OFFICERS ELECTED AT THE ANNUAL MEETING OF THE CITY LEAGUE LAST NIGHT

The annual meeting of the City League was held last night in the Y.M.C.A. parlors. There was a good attendance. Five teams were represented and paid their entrance fees. This is the largest number that has ever signed the first night. Last year there were only five teams altogether but there looks to be every prospect of at least eight clubs playing hockey under the City League banner this season.

Everything points to an exceptionally successful season. The different clubs are organizing and getting their men into line ready for the first opportunity to get out to practice.

Mr Chris Graham, last year's First Vice-President, was elected Presidotn and this assures the league of a good guiding head.

Mr Fred A Clark, who has presided over the destinies of the organization so successfully for the past three years and to whose energetic service and capable management great credit is due, withdrew from office.

President F A Clarke was in the chair last evening.

The minutes of the last meeting were read and adopted.

The teams represented were:

Strathconas—A Weatherston and C. Wilson

Royal Riders—P Porter and P. Dinnick

T.A.S.—Dercoler and Deannard.

C.Chieftains, Y.M.C.A.—E Fox.

West End—W Butcher and J McNeil.

SECY-TREASURER'S REPORT

Secretary Huston read his report, which showed the year to have been the best in the history of the City League. From a financial standpoint it was most successful.

The gate receipts were $210.70. Money held in trust for the club, $310.70 while there was an expenditure of $154.50, leaving $156.20 to be divided among the five teams. The league accounts show a total receipt of $13.70 including the balance of $3.70 from the previous year, against which there was an expenditure of $12.10, leaving a balance on hand of $1.60.

The five teams last year were each paid $29.24, except the Strathconas, who won the championship and they received $39.24.

There was also $40 paid for the annual banquet.

MISS. MILDRED KELLER.

RESTORED TO HEALTH. THANKS TO PE-RU-NA.

Friends Were Alarmed—Advised Change of Climate.

Miss Mildred Keller, 718 13th street, N. W., Washington, D. C., writes:

"I can safely recommend Peruna for catarrh. I had it for years and it would respond to no kind of treatment, or if it did it was only temporary, and on the slightest provocation the trouble would come back.

"I was in such a state that my friends were alarmed about me, and I was advised to leave this climate. Then I tried Peruna, and to my great joy found it helped me from the first dose I took, and a few bottles cured me.

"It built up my constitution, I regained my appetite, and I feel that I am perfectly well and strong."—Mildred Keller.

We have on file many thousand testimonials like the above. We can give our readers only a slight glimpse of the vast array of unsolicited endorsements Dr. Hartman is receiving.

SPORTNG

RICHEAU'S SOUTHERNS THE WINNERS

The opening game of the Majestic handicap tournament was played at the Majestic bowling alleys last night between Richeau's Southerns and McCarroll's Fearnots. The result was of the closest possible order and the contests provided great sport for the big crowd of spectators. At the conclusion of the game the score stood 2032 to 2028 which is probably a record for evenness in a handicap game between five men teams. The bowlers displayed much enthusiasm and took a great interest in the play.

The high score of the evening was made by S Gibbs of McCarroll's aggregation who rolled 453.

Tonight the Majestics will play Mitchell's Picks and tomorrow night one of the best games of the tournament is expected when Munro's Colts play Baker's Pets.

MR. FITZENER ON HIS SHOWING

Tells of Winning a Championship —Satisfied With His Work Last Night

Mr. John Fitzener, the wrestler, who bumped up against Young Hackenschmidt, in the handicap wrestling bout at the roller rink last night, is highly pleased with the showing he made. He informed the Review that he won a wrestling championship three years ago in an exciting bout, securing, according to his statement, 4 falls out of 5.

"It was in the country, too," he said, "and on hard ground."

Hackenschmidt couldn't have beat him last night he claims, if the latter hadn't picked him up and swung him around the way he did. Mr. Fitzener claims that this style of wrestling is not in the book and shouldn't have been allowed. John, however, thinks he made a satisfactory showing, considering the fact that he has done so little at the catch-as-catch-can game lately.

"I have one hold," said Fitzener, "which is a dandy. Hack was too tall for me to get it on him however. I got it on a fellow once, and it took him three hours to break ti."

Fitzener, who was introduced last night as "Young Dutch" says he doesn't know whether or not he will continue the game. He says he thing that with proper handling he should make good.

ARCTIC DELICACIES.

Traveler in Northern Latitudes Recommends Polar Bear.

In the matter of diet the Arctic seas can offer delicacies not to be had elsewhere, Mr. Sandon Perkins, writing in "Canada" of a trip there, recommends the flesh of the polar bear.

"Apart from the value of the skin," he says, "the meat affords a very nice change in diet, as well as being a necessity for feeding the dogs, which always form a part of an Arctic expedition. I found Polar bear meat very nice as a change, but not to be compared with the delicious meat of the Rocky Mountain bears. Whilst on the subject of cuisine I may mention what a very tempting dish the liver of the walrus makes, nicely fried with some rashers of bacon."

Later on he goes on to say: "Our pot was kept boiling for many days by the Arctic hares which we shot while ptarmigan made a nice change in the menu. These birds, though fairly plentiful, were always treated as rather a delicacy. Our most regular items of diet were ducks, geese and salmon, and I have often, when in the absence of the captain, officiating at the head of the table after helping all the officers to "loom scouse," or boiled salmon, cut off for myself a good thick slice of salt beef as a welcome change of diet. The salmon, of which we netted about a couple of thousand in a short time I found to be very nice when fresh but after salting they were rather tasteless. They appeared to be more like the Norway char than the salmon of the Fraser and Skeena, on the other side of the continent.

"In the lower latitudes nearer the Arctic Circle, a great many halibut and cod are caught by the inhabitants of the Greenland side of the straits and there is every reason to suppose that they are equally plentiful on the Canadian side. In the extreme North we obtained some most delicious fish much the shape of the halibut, but with a heavy scale. They are caught by the natives at the foot of the glaciers. I do not know their correct name or classification."

WHERE CHURCHILL IS.

Some of the distances showing the position of Fort Churchill with regard to the other cities of Canada are interesting, in view of the present mention of that point for the centre of the new empire to the north. These are the air line figures:

	Miles.
Fort Churchill to The Pas, crossing of the Saskatchewan	420
Fort Churchill to Prince Albert	575
Fort Churchill to Winnipeg	610
Fort Churchill to Brandon	640
Fort Churchill to Melville (via Pas)	656
Fort Churchill to Regina	700
Fort Churchill to Medicine Hat	865
Fort Churchill to Edmonton	820
Fort Churchill to Calgary	930
Fort Churchill to Macleod	975
Fort Churchill to Vancouver	1,300
Fort Churchill to Prince Rupert and Essington	1,360
Prince Rupert—Port Simpson to Liverpool, via The Pas junction and Port Churchill	5,360
Fort Churchill to Duluth (via The Pas junction)	800
Fort Churchill to Chicago	1,150
Fort Churchill to New York	1,700
Fort Churchill to Halifax	1,650

The air line as compared with roadbed is 8 per cent. shorter.

Cupid at Fernie.

Another romance of the Fernie fire culminated the other afternoon when J. A. Murray, a locomotive engineer on the Canadian Pacific, was married to Miss Lillie A. Gullickson. They first met when the fire was at its height at Fernie. Miss Gullickson was a passenger on the locomotive when the fearless Murray braved death to haul the refugees through walls of fire. The train was crowded to its capacity, and the bride was given a place in the cab.

"We got pretty well acquainted during the ride to Cranbrook," said the bride, "but we came to know each other much better since, for I remained in Cranbrook where Murray resides."

Both the bride and groom were covered with confusion when the best man stole a march on the engineer and kissed the bride before the bridegroom had the presence of mind to do so.

Thirteen Days on Three Biscuits.

Two Indians who were lost from the sealing schooner Thomas F. Bayard and brought here by the schooner Markland a few days ago were adrift in an open canoe for thirteen days with only three sea biscuits as food and no water for ten days.

The Indians allotted themselves one inch of biscuit a day and subsisted on this for nine days. The rain came and water was caught in a sail.

On the tenth day, when hope was almost gone, they killed a seal and cooked it in the bottom of the boat.

On the fourteen day they landed at Bristol Bay, Unimak Island, and were subsequently rescued.

First Lady Member.

The first woman to attain to membership in the Canadian Mining Institute was elected a few days ago in the person of Mrs. Rosalind Young, wife of Dr. Young, Provincial Secretary of British Columbia.

Mrs. Young was the recipient of congratulations from several of the officials of the institute and others on the distinction of being the first lady to be elected a member of the institute. It is noteworthy that when, several years ago, Miss Watson (now Mrs. Young) was elected an associate member of one of the British mining institutes, she was also the first lady member of that institution.

Relic of Roman London.

A portion of the Roman wall, measuring 62 feet in length, 10 feet in height and 8 feet 6 inches in width, has been uncovered during the demolition of houses in America square in the city of London.

HUNDRED LIVES WERE LOST IN THE BURNING OF STEAMER

More Details of Tragic Affair

Entire Population of Valetta Sees Destruction of Vessel

Valetta, Malta, Nov. 26.—A terrible disaster, in which more than a hundred persons lost their lives, occurred at the entrance to this port yesterday morning within sight of the whole population of the city, who were powerless to give aid.

The British steamer Sardinia, of the Ellerman line, sailing from this port and bound for Alexandria with a crew of 44 Englishmen, 11 first and six second-class English passengers, and nearly 200 Arab pilgrims aboard, caught fire and within a few minutes was a roaring furnace surrounded by clouds of black smoke, through which flames burst upward to a height of 200 feet from frequent explosions in the hold.

So rapidly did the fire spread that the frantic efforts of the crew to operate the fire apparatus proved useless, for it seemed but a moment before the upper works and masts crashed down upon the deck, while the ship's boats were crushed by the falling debris or set on fire and quickly burned.

Safety lay only in the sea, for no one could save himself except by jumping overboard and taking chances of being picked up. Assistance was hurried to the burning vessel from all the warships in the harbor and from the shore, but the work of rescue was greatly impeded by the strong tide that was running. Even the naval launches, which came as fast as they could be driven, were unable to go alongside.

Among the Arabs there was a panic that could not be controlled. Many of them were too terrified to jump and they were burned to death. Others cast themselves into the waves and were drowned.

The crew behaved with admirable courage, serving out life-preservers to the last, and working the pumps.

When the pumps became useless Captain Charles Littler, commander of the Sardinia, took the helm and directed his ship towards the shore as long as it could be navigated. He perished at his post. First Officer Frank Watson, all the engineers, Seagraves, Bishop and Neil, 18 of the ship's company and two first-class passengers, one of them a boy named Grant, are missing. Fifty or more bodies have been recovered and seventy persons were rescued.

After the vessel refused to obey her helm, she drifted around three times and finally was beached broadside on the rocks at the mouth of the harbor. She was still burning yesterday afternoon and will be a total loss.

The cause of the fire is not known, but denial is made that there were explosives aboard. Unquestionably, however, explosions occurred, and it was first believed that the rapid spread of the flames was due largely to the flowing naphtha.

Used Benzine For Oil.

Brantford, Nov. 26.—At 4.30 yesterday morning George Halbert, a married man, residing on Dundas street, employed as fireman at the Pratt, Letchworth Iron Work, was terribly burned in an explosion while at work.

He attempted to refill a torch without extinguishing the light. It is supposed he poured benzine into it in mistake for oil.

Whirled Around Shaft.

Quebec, Nov. 26.—Bernadette Belleau, aged 12, met with a violent death in Rochette's box factory at Ancienne Lorette on Tuesday. Her clothes caught in the belting and she was whirled around the machinery. Both her legs and one arm were broken, while her body was frightfully mangled.

Drowned In Well.

Chatham, Nov. 26.—The body of Mrs. Wm. Bell, Jr., Blenheim, was found in a well yesterday morning after she had been absent from the house, where she had left her baby with her husband for twenty minutes. She was drowned in one and a half feet of water.

TORONTO MAN DIED BY GAS

Toronto, Nov. 26.—Arthur H. Buncher yesterday determined to die. He piled five mattresses on a table at the back of his second-hand furniture store at 126 East Queen street. The man then fixed a rubber tube over a gas jet, and, placing the other end in his mouth, turned on the gas. He was found in this position by his wife at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. He was then dead.

He had been despondent, being unwell and sleeping little. He suffered much pain and was awake all Tuesday night. His wife, too, has been sick. He was 43 years of age.

WAS THERE DUEL NEAR MONTREAL?

Mysterious Affair at Cote des Neiges Sets Montreal Agog

Montreal, Nov. 26.—There was a rumor around town yesterday morning to the effect that a duel had been fought Tuesday morning at Cote des Neiges between an attache of one of the Consulates of the city and a man who occupies a good position with a financial institution. The story was that about 10 o'clock Tuesday seven men drove to Cote des Neiges, and soon afterwards a well-dressed and beautiful woman joined the party at a house in Cote des Neiges road. In a few minutes five revolver shots were heard, and half an hour later the party emerged from the house; among them was a man holding his arm in a sling.

The story could not be confirmed yesterday, although there are persistent rumors regarding the affair.

LATE TICKS FROM WIRES

At Washington, D.C., with military pomp and splendor, an heroic statue of Gen. Philip Henry Sheridan was unveiled yesterday.

Vincento Lucello, who wounded a fellow-Italian in a fracas among workmen at Chandiere Falls, got three years in a Hull court.

Howard Mortimer Clark was sentenced at London, England, to 21 months for obtaining money from Lord Howick and others on the pretence that he was a prominent Canadian.

Failing to induce his wife to enter into a suicide pact with him, Max Goldstein, a New York tailor, murdered his wife, cutting her throat and then killed himself. He was 65 and she 45.

Work or Revolution.

London, Nov. 26.—Thousands of the unemployed of London, carrying a large banner bearing the words "Work or revolution, the Government must decide," marched through the fashionable districts of the city yesterday afternoon.

This is the first of a series of similar demonstrations, and speaking of the procession yesterday, one of the leaders said:

"We are going to let the west end know that the east end does not intend to starve."

Indian Stabbed.

Brantford, Nov. 26.—Isaac Mike, Six Nations Indian, is lying dangerously wounded as a result of a stabbing affray on Pearl street.

A clash occurred between a number of Pollacks returning from a wedding feast and some Indians attending a dance at Mrs. Donahue's house.

Mike was stabbed four times in the back. Five Pollacks have been arrested.

DOPE IN KINGSTON "PEN" SUPPLIED TO PRISONERS

Kingston, Nov. 26.—As a result of the finding of a quantity of opium, tobacco, money and two watches in his store room, the officer of instruction at the penitentiary is under suspension. The watches are said to have been bought at Eaton's, Toronto.

The official says he has no knowledge as to how the goods came to be in his department, and his story certainly shows him to be innocent of any wrong-doing.

Quite a sensation was caused when the prison authorities found that the tobacco and opium were being used by prisoners, and upon being closely questioned it appears that one of the prisoners let the cat out of the bag and told where the opium was stored.

A couple of prisoners receiving instructions from the official accused were found to be using dope and one is now in the hospital.

Inspector Dawson will likely be called to investigate.

PARENTS AND CHILD FOUND IN DESTITUTE CONDITION

Tweed. Nov. 25.—Mr. James Crouse, of the township of Hungerford came to Tweed some days ago and requested the local branch of the Children's Aid Society to take charge of his daughter. Maggie Crouse, aged 12 years. and find a home for her.

Agent P. K. Newton and the President, Rev. Mr. Binnie, visited the home near Roslin and found things in pretty bad state. The parents and the child were in most destitute circumstances and depended wholly upon on charity. After due consideration and advice with thoughtful members of the community it was thought best to remove the child. The girl was brought to Tweed on Friday and committed by two local magistrates to the care of the Superintendent of the Children's Aid Society, Toronto. She was fitted out with a new suit of clothes and forwarded to Toronto on Tuesday morning.

DORANDO WON RACE

Italian Was Superior To Johnny Hayes

In a Matched Race at Madison Square Gardens, New York---Foreigner Won Easily

New York, Nov. 26.—Dorando Pietria of Italy defeated John J. Hayes of this city in the renewal of the Marathon race at Madison Square Garden last night. The distance was 26 miles and 385 yards, the same as the Olympic Marathon which Hayes won at London last summer. Dorando in that race fell from exhaustion and was helped across the line, but was disqualified. He proved to be Hayes' master last night, as he held the lead from start to finish, finally winning by about sixty yards. Hayes was in the lead five times during the race, but only for a few seconds each time. Dorando's time was 2.44.20 2-5; and Hayes' 2.45.05 1-5.

Ten thousand persons watched the contest and while partisan feeling ran high nothing more than good-natured raillery was the outcome. The last few miles of the race was exciting. In the 24th mile Hayes made another of the jumps to the front that he had been springing at intervals during the race, but Dorando, running strong, easily resumed the lead like a flash. This was repeated half a mile further on, Dorando again proving the stronger. The 25th mile was finished in 2.36.57 1-5. Hayes weakened in the last half mile and the Italian won handily by about sixty yards.

The crowd was on hand early and for an hour before the race started enthusiasm was stirred up by the playing of rival bands in opposite galleries.

Dorando used a wet sponge on his head frequently, while Hayes had recourse to no treatment except occasional advice from his trainer. They finished the 20th mile, Dorando leading by five feet, in 2.04.23 4-5.

FREIGHT TRAFFIC IS VERY HEAVY

C.P.R. is Busy at Present Time---Many Freight Trains Moving.

The freight traffic on the CPR. is very heavy at the present time. Many persons have no doubt noticed the large number of freight trains passing through the city and it was learned yesterday that from one o'clock Wednesday morning until 11 o'clock Wednesday night —not 24 hours—thirty-four trains, all freight, were handled on the line between Toronto and Montreal. It is chiefly grain.

MASONIC SESSION

Lodge of Instruction Held Here.

Over 150 Were in Attendance---To Promote Uniformity in Lodge Work.

The lodge of instruction of the 20th Masonic district, or the Otonabee district, met here yesterday afternoon and evening in the Masonic hall. The district consists of thirteen lodges. The lodge was called together by District Deputy Grand Master A. H. C. Long, of Port Hope. Peterborough being the most central point in the district and having the best hall accommodation, was chosen as the place of meeting. There were one hundred and fifty present from outside points, many who arrived on the special train which was made up at Bowmanville.

The object of the lodge of instruction was primarily to create uniformity in all Masonic lodge work throughout the district. After the exemplification of different degrees, discussion was invited by the District Deputy Grand Master, who gave his ruling on various matters brought up. The lodges who participated in the degree work last night were Norwood, Jerusalem Lodge, Bowmanville and Corinthian Lodges, Peterborough.

After the work of the day had been concluded, Wor. Bro. Kenner delivered a masterly address on Masonic bolism. It was a fitting climax to a very profitable and instructive day. Mr. Kenner was highly complimented by many present.

It was the intention of Peterborough lodges to entertain the visitors at the close of the proceedings, but owing to the fact that it was 11 o'clock before lodge closed it was impossible to do anything more than serve light refreshments. Many of the visitors left on the midnight C.P.R. and the special G.T.R. trains.

PITCHED BATTLE

Six Strikers Were Shot Down

Bad Mix-up at Perth Amboy, N.J. ---Soldiers Patrol the Streets

Perth Amboy, N.J., Nov. 26.—Following a pitched battle between 700 strikers and 12 deputy sheriffs yesterday at the factory of the National Fireproofing Co. at Keasby, near here, in which six of the strikers were shot down, Governor Fort, in response to a call for troops, despatch four companies of the State National Guard at Trenton to the scene and last night the streets are patrolled by 250 soldiers.

Upon seeing their comrades fall the workmen turned and fled, leaving the wounded lying on the ground. Chief Burke had the injured men removed to the hospital here.

There was only a temporary lull in the rioting. The strikers soon returned to the factory. They kept at a distance angered by the shooting down of their comrades. At 1.15 o'clock in the afternoon Prosecutor Birdeen of Middlesex County telegraphed a request to Governor Fort for troops.

A feeling of intense excitement prevails, as the strikers declare the deputy sheriffs were not justified in firing upon them. Two of the wounded men are dying in the hospital here and four other wounded men are painfully hurt.

Although Keasby was quiet last night the citizens are still afraid of trouble to-night, when the strikers threaten to renew the attack on the plant of the National Fireproofing Co.

The strikers, nearly all of whom are foreigners, say that they were given to understand before election that if Taft were elected their pay would be restored to $1.50 a day.

The officials of the factories say that no such promise was made.

Paris, Nov. 25.—The first day's proceedings in the suit of Count Boni de Castellane against his former wife, who was Miss Anna Gould of New York, and who is now the wife of Prince Helie de Sagan, for the custody of his three children, were characterized by a strong denunciation of the prince and princess by M. Bonnet, who represented Count de Castellane.

Prince Helie and the count glared at each other for four hours, while M. Bonnet pleaded that the custody of the children must be confided to their grandmother, the Marquise de Castellane, because the marriage of Mme. Gould to the prince had polluted the atmosphere of their home.

In addition to securing the custody of the children, Count Boni seeks to obtain $60,000 a year for their maintenance.

While the jury were considering the verdict in the Bishop case, the third prisoner, Arnott, pleaded guilty.

The jury found Bishop not guilty.

To-day the charges against H. Hogarth, J. W. Armstrong, J. Hubert and H. Lethen are being proceeded with, and the charges of conspiracy against the latter three.

DARK HORSE FOR THE MAYORALTY

Report That Certain Element Will Place a Man in the Field

Is Mayor Rush to have opposition against a second term for the chief magistrateship of the city?

There is a report that a certain element have a "dark horse" in view and are circulating a petition to place him in the field.

Why there should be opposition to the present Mayor, is hard to understand. He has filled the position with every satisfaction and there is no doubt but that he will have a second term.

A Huge Grit Campaign Fund Exposed

Brodeur Orders Suspension of F. J. Harding and Engineer Morris

St. John, N.B., Nov. 26.—Evidence in the Marine enquiry developed sensational features yesterday afternoon.

The first sensation was the discovery of a contractor who had not loaned Mr. Harding, marine agent, any money.

Later, when Geo. McAvity, already well known in connection with the Mayes' dredging rake-off, got on the witness stand, he revealed the existence of a huge Liberal fund during the last federal campaign. He also admitted that he had been in the habit of loaning large sums to Mr. Harding, and the latter at present owed him $1,300. His evidence also showed that Harding got a $500 slice of the campaign funds.

John A. McAvity also told of loaning a large amount to Harding.

B. R. MacAulay, on the opening of the session, resumed his evidence regarding the Christmas present he gave Mr. Harding, consisting of goods purchased in May, but did not bring out new evidence. Judge Cassels said flatly that he did not believe witness when the latter said he would have loaned money even if Harding was not marine agent.

A young lady bookkeeper in MacAulay's iron works office gave testimony that she was instructed not to allow Harding's name to appear on the company's books when loans were made.

P. J. Mooney declared he had no personal dealings with Mr. Harding and had lent him no money. He had, however, loaned $40 to John Kelly, inspector of lights, and had done mason work amounting to $135 on his house without billing him for it. An interesting feature of Mooney's evidence was that he had frequently received Mr. Harding's personal checks, which he claimed were in payment of work done for the Department.

Geo. McAvity told that his firm had done business with the Department to the extent of $42,000 in the last few years. He had been in the habit of exchanging checks with Harding. At present Harding owes him $1,300, made in three loans. He could not produce thec heck stubs for two of these because they had been destroyed.

This led to the explanation that the special bank account whose records he had burned was an election fund amounting to at least $25,000, of which he had had complete control. The passbook, the check book and cancelled checks had all been burned on Oct. 28th.

Witness claimed he had refunded the amount loaned Harding from this account by cash from his own account.

John A. McAvity, also of the firm of T. McAvity & Son, admitted that his firm got big orders from the Department without having to soliciting them and that a large part of the business could be awarded by Harding at his own discretion. He told of loaning sums of several hundred dollars at a time to Harding for a number of years. Like other witnesses, he did not charge interest. He admitted that when he exchanged checks with Harding he made them payable to cash or bearer in order to conceal the latter's name, as a knowledge of the transaction might result in his firm losing the contracts and Harding losing his job. He would not admit that loans were improper.

All these gentlemen will appear again before the enquiry is closed.

Officials Suspended.

Ottawa, Nov. 26.—Hon. Mr. Brodeur, Minister of Marine, in view of the revelations as to the relations between Mr. F. J. Harding, agent of the Department at St. John, and the contractors supplying goods to the Government on his orders, wired instructions to St. John yesterday suspending Mr. Harding and Engineer Morris, who was also implicated by the evidence gefore the commission.

MYSTERY IS CLEARED UP; AN ARREST AT PEMBROKE

Pembroke, Nov. 26.—The arrest of Mary Theresa Raymond by Provincial Inspector John Miller, on a charge of concealing the birth of a child, threw the first light on the mystery of Oct. 13, when a strange girl gave a parcel containing a dead body to Agent Hiram Griffiths of the Canadian Express Co. at Pembroke, to be sent to Ottawa.

The parcel contained a two-dollar bill to pay for burial and was addressed to an institution there. When the contents were discovered an inquest was held, and it was declared the child had lived.

Detective Miller came here to investigate the fire and soon found a clew in the infant mystery. The girl appeared before Magistrate Mitchell, and was remanded for a week and bailed out by two prominent merchants. She is not believed to be the mother, but startling developments may follow.

"VAG" DAY IN POLICE COURT; ONE GIVEN FOUR MONTHS

Three vagrants were before the Magistrate at the police court this morning.

John Burns and James Smith pleaded not guilty to the charge and were remanded for eight days. Smith and Burns were arrested at the C.P.R. station as suspicious characters. They came in on a freight train from Toronto and were waiting an opportunity to get a free ride to Montreal. Chief Rossel asked for a remand in order that he might make inquiries into their past.

Charles Beavis, who has been before Magistrate Dumble on several occasions, came back to Peterborough on Monday last from North Bay. He is without money, and has been sleeping at night in the police station. The city also bought him a meal the other night, he having had nothing to eat for two days. He pleaded not guilty to a vagrancy charge. He was given four months in the county gaol.

YOU CAN'T AFFORD TO FEEL "DOPEY"

—to have headaches—an easily-tired body—a stuffy-feeling brain—even for part of the time. There are too many keen alert men and women, always at their best, to give much chance of success to one thus handicapped.

These things are the direct results of a sluggish liver—constipated bowels—dry skin — overworked kidneys — in short, of a body whose sewers are clogged.

Nothing opens up these outlets of the waste, and clears the system of poison so gently, yet so effectively, as "Fruit-a-tives." "Fruit-a-tives" are the juices of oranges, apples, figs and prunes combined—by a process that greatly increases their medicinal value—with valuable tonics and internal antiseptics, and made into tablets.

Take one or two "Fruit-a-tives" every night, eat plenty of ripe fruit, and see how quickly your brain clears and headaches leave you. 50c a box—6 for $2.50. Trial size 25c. Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

THE WELCOME RAIN.

We have received admonitions to the effect that this is really Indian summer, squaw winter and papoose spring, having taken place some time ago. It may be remembered that we intimated a few days ago that the indefinable charm of the real Indian summer was lacking. In defence of ourselves and our position in this matter we can only say that high temperature in the late autumn does not of itself constitute Indian summer. The mingling of mystery, the strange silence of suspended animation, the amber light, the haze of distance—in fact the charm of that season is wanting. But the rain is very welcome.

THE MONGOLIAN PHEASANT.

This fine game bird might from all accounts be very well introduced into our barren lands and marshy places. It would be an additional attraction for the tourist-hunter, but more important still, to the settler. In the matter of fish hatcheries both governments are doing fairly well, but it is something that manifestly should have been done long ago. As to the preserving of our limited variety of game, considerable care is being shown. But no effort worth speaking of is being made to increase the number of varieties of it, which might very easily be done. The Mongolian pheasant is in every sense a desirable bird. The British Columbia government is sending for some and has already done much in this way to make British Columbia the tourist's paradise. Tourists mean money for the settler also. We hope our proposal will be general endorsed.

KISSING

We regret to announce that hereafter the Review will have to frown on kissing. The microbists have decided that making a public race-way of a red lip is to induce, or superinduce disease. Disease is an unnatural, or at least undesirable condition of the animal frame, due to the irritation, etc. of a poison deposited by a microbe or germ, which is either animal or vegetal. A nettle or a snake may poison on the self-same principle. Poison ivy will produce poison ivy rash. A certain minute form, vegetal or animal, bacterial or microbic will produce similar results. "The fevered kiss is o'er" is all very well for poetry but it is not true. The fever is just then beginning. Kissing dogs and cats is most objectionable. It is not only a waste of time and material but it is very dangerous. If young men gave out that they would not kiss a girl who kissed a puppy there would be less of it. "Their spirits rushed together at the touching of the lips," is bogus. It is a dangerous, injurious, etc. Let it be anathema. This is the microbe's age. It rules the world.

FREE TRADE

That Carnegie has decided on free trade for the United States steel trade has filled the hearts of the Cobdenites with delight. The poor things think it a victory for Free Trade. No one ever denied nor can any record be produced to the effect that the Conservative press flouted Free Trade as such. On principle Free Trade is natural. What the Conservative party argued from Sir John Macdonald down was that free trade for a young country while protection was being used against it by its rivals was suicidal and absurd and that party says so yet. Mr. Carnegie specially lays it down that the United States has now got on its feet and in the steel trade at least, and no longer needs protection. What does this prove. It proves that Protection in the short space of thirty years has made of the United States a nation equal to the greatest in the world, financially or otherwise. But free traders used to cry "Ruin." whenever Protection was mentioned. They would have abandoned our autonomy in order to rush into the arms of a country ten times more protective. This was not reason. It was merely bad temper.

Carnegie does not speak for Canada. His very words plainly imply that Canada is too young a country to cope with dangerous and full-grown rivals. But if we do not get weak and forego our present or a higher tariff, in a few years we will be able to afford free trade just as the proper enforcement of good laws enables a municipality in time to reduce its police force rather than to increase it.

SPORT AND RELIGION.

It used to be that a church could not pay its way unless partly turned into an eating house. Nowadays the permanent requisite is a variety of leagues devoted to sport. It is a fact that religion seems unable to go alone, or in other words, there has got to be a pound of tea given away with every ounce of religion. A change is stealing over the world. The following extract from the British Weekly gives the true idea of it:—

"The problems of sin and punishment may be thought to require a new consideration. There are not a few in our day who incline to treat sin and punishment as ghosts that affrighted the past, but ought to vex us no longer. Sir Oliver Lodge has said: "As a matter of fact, the higher man of to-day is not worrying about his sins at all; still less about their punishment." Mr. A. B. Walkley, the eminent dramatic critic, has written: "We think the modern world has lost, or is losing, the old belief in remorse. Moralists still keep up their old habit of making the most of it; the word conscience is a good bogey, but conscience-stricken people are really invalids. Lady Macbeth would nowadays be ordered to Marienbad; and if Hamlet had only played golf, he might have been alive to this day, a prosperous gentleman." A veteran American editor, Mr. Henry Alden, has recently written in the same sense. He affirms that a new psychical era has dawned, and says: "The primary passions and especially those mentioned for deprecation in the Litany, envy, hatred, and malice, are negligible factors except in degenerate life and literature, and we wonder how they could ever have had such prominence in old plays and novels." Mr. Alden's view is that within the last half century a complete revolution has come over human nature. There is much more than an amelioration; it is the passing into a new psychical dispensation. The soul of man is no longer what it used to be.

With writers of this school punishment of course, has gone the way of sin. The mills of God have ceased to grind for lack of material."

There was a time when the sporting parson followed the hounds first and the devil afterwards. But in the current period the amusement has been varied. He will follow in summer the runner, the lacrossist, the ten-pin expert, and in winter the hockey-player. A little religion is used to leaven the whole lump, and it undoubtedly does give a sort of flavour to the young man's food but it is not his daily diet. We do not deprecate sport in the least. It is as necessary as it is pleasant. We are merely remarking upon its preponderating influence in "religious" circles. If the class leader can't play baseball he is a back number. To be truly popular the preacher must be a good sport. Sport dominates religion. Christianity, as Sir Oliver Lodge points out, vanishes while we were at play. We are too narrow, that is what is the matter with us. The intellectual is being subordinated to the physical. It is amazing to find how the great journals and writers of the world are harking back to simpler ideas. Direct thought is once more the fashion with those who think at all. The Canadian, if anything worth noting, is an opportunist and follows the ruck and its time, tide, life and religion to it, or rather feebly tries to do so. It is impossible. We cannot worship two masters. It is impossible to express religion in terms of sport. Are sin and punishment then really vanished bogies? If the following extract is a fair sample we decidedly hope that punishment is not a thing of the past. Christianity in the hands of such a pastor is in dire peril:

"Portage La Prairie, Man., Nov. 23.—In the course of his sermon last night Rev. A. E. Smith, pastor of the Methodist Church caused a sensation by the statement that at a five o'clock tea held here a few days ago a purse had been stolen by one of the guests.

The preacher's comment was "Thank God that someone dared to be human at one of these 5 o'clock teas."

And yet he probably fairly represents the pettiness and banality of his type or class.

SCARLET FEVER.

A Scourge of White Races in All Ages and Countries.

Now that smallpox, thanks to compulsory vaccination, has become a rarity in civilized communities, scarlet fever steps forward as the worst of the eruptive diseases of childhood. It is a malady of enormous antiquity. Thucydides, writing nearly 500 years before the beginning of our era, called it a heritage from the remote past. It has scourged the white races in all ages and all countries, and the physicians of all schools have leveled their heaviest artillery upon it. Yet it remains a puzzle unsolved and an enemy unconquered even today. We are in doubt as to its cause, and there is no drug or antitoxin that will cure it. But despite all this the death rate from scarlet fever is steadily declining, and we may expect it to decline more and more as the years go by. The reason for this, I take it, lies in the fact that the modern doctor is a great deal more sparing with pills and powders than his predecessor and a great deal more lavish with water, air and antiseptics. In the old days it was customary to dose scarlet fever patients with all sorts of violent remedies in staggering quantities, and as a result many of them died. Today medicines are but minor auxiliaries in the sickroom, and both doctor and nurse devote their main energies to preventing a spread of the infection.—Delineator.

USE FOR A TELESCOPE.

Interesting Discovery One Woman Made by Use of the Glass.

"I thought it was a pretty fair sort of telescope for one that wasn't very big," said Uncle Silas. "I rigged it up in the attic by the high north window and had it fixed so it would swing around easy. I took a deal of satisfaction in looking through it, the sky seemed so wide and full of wonders, so when Hester was here I thought I'd give her the pleasure too. She stayed a long time upstairs and seemed to be enjoying it. When she came down I asked her if she'd discovered anything new.

"'Yes,' she says. 'Why, it made everybody's house seem so near that I seemed to be right beside 'em, and I found out what John Pritchard's folks are doin' in their outkitchen. I've wondered what they had a light there for night after night, and I just turned the glass on their windows. They are cuttin' apples to dry—folks as rich as them cuttin' apples!'

"And actually that was all the woman had seen! With the whole heavens before her to study, she had spent her time prying into the affairs of her neighbors! And there are lots more like her—with and without telescopes."—Christian Uplook.

The English Milkman.

In English towns, a Canadian visitor declares in the London Queen, the foreigner runs out to the pavement just to see that glorious chariot called a milk float go by—that gay bit of a two wheeled thing, white and yellow, white and blue, or red, white and blue, with the shining brass churn erect at the side, the reins coming over the shining brass rail in front, the little square seat inserted at the rear and the charioteer standing at the back like Ben-Hur.

Then comes the English milkman on foot, with a modern yoke on his shoulders and swinging at each side a brass bound tin pail in which is a queer little measuring dipper. Who could wish to have milk delivered in glass bottles, with a paper sealed top, when he can have it measured out at his door into his own jug in this quaintly curious fashion? What do microbes amount to compared with the joy of the mediaeval?

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness—caused by catarrh—that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

CATTLE MARKETS.

LONDON, Nov. 25.—London cables for cattle are steady, at 11½c to 12¾c per pound, dressed weight; refrigerator beef is quoted at 9⅝c to 10¼c per pound.

Montreal Live Stock.

MONTREAL, Nov. 25.—(Special.)—The Dominion Government put an order in force to-day which absolutely prohibits all United States cattle from entering Canada. The general impression among leading live stock exporters here is that this embargo will force American exporters to come into our markets for supplies, as they have all the ocean freight space engaged from Portland for the winter and the bulk of it from Boston. If this turns out so, prices for cattle will no doubt advance sharply thruout all the markets in Canada, including the Canadian Northwest.

At the Canadian Pacific Live Stock Market this morning the offerings were 1500 cattle, 25 milch cows, 1200 sheep and lambs, 250 calves and 1000 hogs. There were no really prime beeves on the market, and 4c per pound was about the top price paid, and from that down to 3c per pound for pretty good animals. The common stock are still a drug on the market, and sell at from 1¾c to 2¾c per pound, while the lean canners sell at about 1½c per pound. Milch cows sold at from $30 to $65 each. Grass-fed calves sold at 2¾c to near 4c per pound; good veals bring about 5c per pound; sheep sold at 3¾c to 3¾c, and the lambs at 4½c to near 5c per pound. The demand for hogs was fairly good and prices ruled steady, with sales of selected lots at $6.50 to $6.60 per 100 pounds, weighed off cars.

New York Live Stock.

NEW YORK, Nov. 25.—Beeves—Receipts, 712; steers strong; good to choice, 15c to 25c higher; bulls steady to strong; thin cows steady; others 10c to 25c higher; all sold; steers, $4.25 to $7; oxen, $2.25 to $4.90; culls, $3 to $4.05; cows, $1.25 to $4; dressed beef slow, but steady.

Calves—Receipts, 697; veals 50c higher; barnyard calves steady; westerns sold higher; westerns selling more freely; about all sold; veals, $5.

Chicago Live Stock.

CHICAGO, Nov. 25.—Cattle—Receipts, 25,000; 25c to 35c lower; steers, $4.00 to $7.75; cows, $3 to $5.25; heifers, $2.50 to $4.60; bulls, $2.75 to $4.50; calves, $3 to $7.50; stockers and feeders, $2.50 to $4.55.

Hogs—Receipts, 50,000; market 15c to 25c lower; choice heavy shipping, $5.85 to $5.95; butchers', $5.75 to $5.90; light mixed, $5.30 to $5.45; packing, $5.50 to $5.80; pigs, $4 to $4.75; bulk of sales, $5.40 to $5.75.

Sheep and Lambs—Receipts, 19,000; market steady to strong; sheep, $4.25 to $5.

England Slaughters Cattle.

London, Nov. 26.—The Board of Agriculture has ordered the slaughter without delay of the cattle on board the four steamers that have arrived in England since the board issued its orders prohibiting the importation of cattle from New York and Pennsylvania on account of the foot and mouth disease in these states.

The animals that came in by these vessels were found to be free of the disease, but no chances are being taken.

Quarantine Against Shippers.

Buffalo, N.Y., Nov. 26.—The East Buffalo stockyards will be re-opened Monday for the reception of live stock for local consumption. Cattle and sheep for slaughter only will be received. No "shippers" or "feeders" will be allowed to come into the yards. It was also stipulated that the live stock must come in disinfected cars and must be unloaded in disinfected pens.

Nearly Dies as Sister Did.

Hamilton, Nov. 26.—Violet Norton, a sister of the little girl run over by a Hamilton and Dundas car, put her foot into the place in the crossing where her sister was caught just to see how the sister got caught. Her own foot was caught, and she was released just in time to prevent her from meeting the same fate as the sister.

A Woman's Death.

Stratford, Nov. 26.—Mrs. James Pequenat was found drowned in shallow water in the river Tuesday morning. She suffered from nervous troubles. She was 54 years of age, and leaves a husband and five children.

Bearer—He axed for't, sir.—London Illustrated Bits.

HUGE WEALTH IN DIAMONDS LIES BENEATH THE GROUND

In a Vast Treasure Vault Are Diamonds Almost Inexhaustible In Quantity of Which Twenty to Thirty Million Dollars' Worth Are Mined Each Year—South African Town Is Very Unassuming, After All.

Kimberley is the Lord's greatest treasure vault. Stored away, here in five mighty pipes of hard rock, going down no one knows how deep into the earth, is a blue clay sprinkled with diamonds. Already more than $500,000,000 worth of precious stones have been taken from them, and there are still hundreds of millions in sight. For many years the sales have amounted to from $20,000,000 to $30,000,000, and there are to-day lying here in the open fields still mixed with this clay, diamonds which would have set Aladdin crazy or made covetous the heart of Sinbad the Sailor.

These mines lie right close to Kimberley. They form a necklace around it, and that, one of the most valuable necklaces on earth. The necklace is decorated anew every year with $25,000,000 worth of brilliants, which are taken from these mines. They are allowed to blaze away for a few months under the African sun, and are then shipped off to dazzle the drawing-rooms of all parts of the globe.

The town is a strange one to be the capital of such wealth. It has no palaces, nor sky-scrapers, and, like the jewels of Portia, its treasures are kept in caskets of lead. The offices of the diamond trust themselves are no better than many a 6x9 factory in the United States, and a few thousand dollars would equal the cost of any building inside the town. The most of the houses are bungalows of brick, roofed with galvanized iron. They all have wide porches about them, and many have gardens filled with beautiful flowers. The city has wide streets and amusement grounds. It has a theatre, churches and hotels. Its stores are large and its business is good. The city is lighted by electricity and it has all the modern improvements. The water comes from the Vaal river, which is seventeen miles away.

Until these Kimberley mines were discovered, all the diamonds found were picked up out of gravel which lay on or near the surface of the earth. The Indian diamonds, among which were the Kohinoor, the Great Mogul, the Regent and the Orloff, came from alluvial washings composed of a mixture of broken sandstone, quartz, jaspar, flint and granite. The deposit was about twenty feet thick and was covered by a few feet of black cotton soil. It lay near the bed of a river in India, not far from Golconda, which was the chief city to which the diamonds were taken and sold. The diamonds of Brazil were first discovered in 1728. They were found in deposits of clay, quartz, pebbles and sand, buried under about thirty feet of other earth. They lay along the banks of rivers and in a few feet of black cotton soil.

It is now over forty years since the first African diamond was found. A man named O'Reilly—not the one who ran the hotel, but John O'Reilly the hunter—made the first diamond discovery. It was when he was stopping over night with a Boer farmer not far off from Kimberley. During the evening he saw the children playing with some beautiful pebbles. He admired the stones and took some home with him. To his surprise he found one would cut glass, and upon showing it to a jeweller he was told that it was a diamond and worth $2,500.

Two years after that another big stone was discovered by a Hottentot, who traded it to this same Boer farmer for $2,000. The Boer sold it to a diamond merchant, and it was sent to England, and was eventually sold to the Countess of Dudley for $100,000.

These two finds set South Africa crazy. Diamond seekers came at once by thousands, and the Vaal and Orange rivers were soon covered with mining camps. Men went about everywhere digging up the gravel and searching for stones. As the river beds became exhausted, the miners spread out over the country, and finally got here to Kimberley, which is fifteen miles from the Vaal. One day a Boer discovered some diamonds in a clay bed out of which he was taking material to build a mud hut. He kept on digging, and the result was the five great mines which now form the basis of the De Beers syndicate.

As the miners went down the diamonds did not diminish. They were found everywhere plentifully scattered through the blue clay, and this is so at the depths where they are mining to-day, although in the Kimberley pipe the lower levels are more than one-half mile from the surface.

CURE SICK HEADACHE.

Agreed Not to Marry.

Windsor, Nov. 26.—Harry Bradly, local jeweler, was defendant in a suit yesterday brought by his sister, who claims compensation for about 12 years' household work, amounting to $3,000.

She claims she gave up her occupation as dressmaker in Toronto, under an agreement with her brother, who was then a widower, that he should not marry. Defendant was to be responsible for his sister's maintenance. Some months ago Mr. Bradly married again, hence the present action. Decision was reserved.

Thought of Him.

Papa—Are you sure that you and mamma thought of me while you were away? Grace—Yes; we heard a man kicking up a great row about his breakfast at the hotel, and mamma said, "That's just like papa."

Economy.

Howell—How many meals a day do you have? Powell—Two. We have breakfast, and then it takes my wife until dinner time to decide what to have for luncheon.

The only serious and formidable thing in nature is will.—Emerson.

MAGIC GLASS.

A Curious Mirror That May Be Made Transparent.

One of the most curious inventions of this age is what is called platinized glass. A piece of glass is coated with an exceedingly thin layer of a liquid charged with platinum and then raised to a red heat. The platinum becomes united to the glass in such a way as to form an odd kind of mirror.

The glass has not really lost its transparency, and yet if one places it against a wall and looks at it he sees his image as in an ordinary looking glass. But when light is allowed to come through the glass from the other side, as when it is placed in a window, it appears perfectly transparent, like ordinary glass.

By constructing a window of platinized glass one could stand close behind the panes in an unilluminated room and behold clearly everything going on outside, while passersby looking at the window would behold only a fine mirror or set of mirrors in which their own figures would be reflected, while the person inside remained invisible.

In France various tricks have been contrived with the aid of this glass. In one a person, seeing what appears to be an ordinary mirror, approaches it to gaze upon himself. A sudden change in the mechanism sends light through the glass from the back, whereupon it instantly becomes transparent, and the startled spectator finds himself confronted by some grotesque figure that had been hidden behind the magic glass.

SPEED LAWS OF 1816.

The outcry daily growing louder in England against the excessive speed of motor cars lends interest to the following passage from the Annual Register for 1816:

A new coach was started in the spring to run to Brighton, a distance of fifty-two miles, in six hours * * * This, however, became alarming, particularly in the populous neighborhood of Newington, through which it passed, and the parish officers there caused information to be laid against the drivers for driving furiously on the public road so as to endanger the lives of his majesty's subjects.

The result of this is to be read in Mansard's "Parliamentary Reports," June 10, 1816.

The attorney general moved for leave to bring in a bill the object of which was the protection of the lives and limbs of his majesty's subjects by correcting the enormous abuses of stagecoach drivers. Within these few days it would be hardly credible what a number of applications he had received on this subject.

Some accounts were enough to freeze one with horror. A gentleman of veracity had informed him that on Tuesday, May 21, at 5:30, the Trafalgar and Regulator coaches set off from Manchester and got to Liverpool at 8:20, doing this journey in two hours fifty minutes, at the rate of twelve miles an hour.

Fiji Islanders' Sugar Cane Dance.

A very curious and exceedingly clever dance may be witnessed in Fiji called by the natives "the sugar cane meke," or sugar cane dance. It represents the growth of the sugar cane. In the first figure the dancers squat low on the ground, shake their heads, shut their eyes and murmur slowly and softly an unintelligible sentence. Gradually they all stand up together, growing taller and taller, and as they "grow" they wave their arms and tremble all over from ankle to head, like the tall, tasseled cane waving in the wind, and still they keep on chanting louder and louder. The last figure represents a series of combats meant to symbolize the exactions of the chiefs, who compel the "kaisi," willing and unwilling, to come and cut their crops.—London Standard.

ECZEMA AND PILES CURED

Magistrates and School Commissioners Healed by Zam-Buk.

Zam-Buk by its healing power has earned the praise of men and women in the highest stations of life. One of the latest prominent gentlemen to speak highly in Zam-Buk's favor is Mr. C. E. Sanford of Weston, Kings Co., N.S. Mr. Weston is a Justice of the Peace for the county and a member of the Board of School Commissioners. He is also deacon of the Baptist Church in Berwick. Indeed, throughout the county it would be difficult to find a man more widely known and more highly respected.

Some time back he had occasion to test Zam-Buk, and here is his opinion of this great balm. He says: "I had a patch of eczema on my ankle, which had been there for over twenty years! Sometimes also the disease would break out on my shoulders. I had taken solution of arsenic, had applied various ointments and tried all sorts of things to obtain a cure but in vain. Zam-Buk, unlike all else I tried, proved highly satisfactory, and cured the ailment.

"I have also used Zam-Buk for itching piles and it has cured them completely. I take a comfort in helping my brother man and if the publication of my experience of Zam-Buk will lead other sufferers to try it, I should be glad. For the cure of piles or skin diseases I know of nothing to equal Zam-Buk."

Zam-Buk also cures burns, cuts, ulcers, blood poisoning, ringworm, worms, scalp sores, chapped hands, cold sores and all skin injuries and diseases. Rubbed well on to the chest in cases of cold it relieves the tightness and aching. All druggists and stores sell at 50 cents a box or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price, 3 boxes for $1.25.

IN CUPID'S GUISE.

By JOHN BARTON OXFORD.

Copyright, 1908, by Associated Literary Press.

The afternoon session at the dispensary was over. The last waiting patient in the long line which had filed stolidly by the desk for the past two hours had groaned out a recital of her many ailments, received her portion of advice and a bottle of medicine and departed homeward, calling upon numerous saints to shower their blessings upon the weary, white coated young physician behind the rail.

It was a blistering day. Outside the pavement baked in the pitiless sun, and within the little room the air was hot and lifeless.

As the street door closed with a bang Dr. Trainor slammed down the cover of his desk, elevated his feet luxuriously upon it and, pulling out his cigarette case, began to smoke with deep inhalations of content.

"Now, then, Sammy, old boy," he called to his assistant, who was arranging the bottles in the laboratory beyond, "let's wash up and go uptown for dinner. I'm starved. Lord, what a day! Whole blamed neighborhood laid up, it would seem. No, never mind those reports. We'll fix 'em up in the morning. We've done enough for one day. Hustle up now, old chap! We need something for the inner man, both of us, and a bit of music while we feast to cheer us up and take the edge off these wails we've been listening to all day."

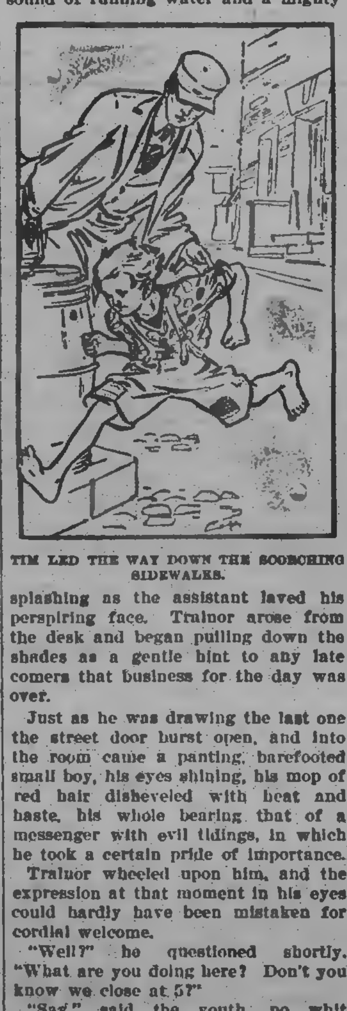
"That's me," he agreed heartily. "Us for the feed. Be with you in a minute, Billy."

From the room beyond came the sound of running water and a mighty splashing as the assistant laved his perspiring face. Trainor arose from the desk and began pulling down the shades as a gentle hint to any late comers that business for the day was over.



TIM LED THE WAY DOWN THE SCORCHING SIDEWALKS.

Just as he was drawing the last one the street door burst open, and into the room came a panting, barefooted small boy, his eyes shining, his mop of red hair disheveled with heat and haste, his whole bearing that of a messenger with evil tidings, in which he took a certain pride of importance.

Trainor wheeled upon him, and the expression at that moment in his eyes could hardly have been mistaken for cordial welcome.

"Well?" he questioned shortly. "What are you doing here? Don't you know we close at 5?"

"Say," said the youth, no whit abashed by his reception, "I guess you know me, don't you? Me name's Farrell—Tim Farrell of Blossom court—cured me kid sister of the measles last month—remember that, don't you?"

"What's the row? Has she got 'em again?" Trainor growled.

"Got nothin'," was the scornful reply. "Accident this time. Lady's fell down the stairs an' sprained her ankle"—

"You're in the wrong booth, sonny—see?" said Trainor. "You want to go to 86 Carver street. They'll send down a doctor from there. This is where we give out medicine. Don't take any out cases here. So long. Chase yourself now. We're closing up here for the day."

Young Mr. Farrell showed no signs of complying with these delicate hints. A knowing smile curved the corners of his mouth.

"I guess you'll come, all right, all right," said he. "Maybe you think it's me old woman or me kid sister that's took the drop. Nixy, Bill. It's a swell dame this time; that's what. Miss Mortimer, from the settlement, that's who."

"Huh?" said Trainor with sudden interest. "What's this? What's happened to Miss Mortimer?"

"Fell downstairs," the youth repeated. "Missed her footin' at the second landin', where it was dark, an' went down to the bottom of the flight. Twisted her ankle bad. Grogan, the fat grocer, picks her up an' carries her up to the old woman's joint, an'"—

Trainor had doffed his white coat in a flash and, catching up his street coat from a chair and the little back case from the top of his desk, laid a hand on Tim's arm.

"Come on. I'll go with you," said he. "Ho, Sammy," he called to the assistant, "go up and get your dinner at Gettemy's. I'll join you there later if I can."

Tim led the way down the scorching sidewalks, turned into a narrow side street and from there into a yet narrower court. With Trainor at his heels he entered the door of a tumbledown tenement and pattered up the rickety stairs.

At the top of the third flight they entered a doorway, to be greeted by a portly woman with red face and anxious eyes.

"And is it you, doctor?" she cried in relief. "Sure, she's hurted bad. Come into the front room."

She ushered him into the room beyond, where on an old haircloth sofa a very pretty girl was propped on pillows. Her eyes widened at the sight of the visitor.

"Billy," she said, "how did you get here?"

Dr. Trainor was a man of considerable decision. He turned to the stout woman, and his manner brooked no delay.

"Mrs. Farrell," said he crisply, "some hot water at once, if you please. You, Tim, hustle back to the dispensary before Dr. Martin leaves and tell him to send me some two inch bandages. Understand?"

The two departed on their errands, and Trainor turned to the girl on the sofa.

"It's nothing—really nothing," she said hastily. "I slipped on the landing and"—

"Helen," said Trainor severely, "don't tell me what it is or what it isn't. That ankle is badly sprained. I'm all out of patience with this settlement work of yours. You've got to leave it!"

"Oh, indeed?" she challenged.

"You certainly have," said he. "There are plenty of others better fitted physically than you are to carry it on. You're to take a rest now. And also you're to have filled this prescription I shall give you."

He tore a prescription blank from the pad in his case and scribbled away for a moment. Then he passed it to the girl.

"It is to be filled at the chapel of the Ascension," he specified.

She took the bit of paper and read it, while a dull red crept into her cheeks. On it was the single word "Matrimony."

Trainor, watching her, saw the color in her face momentarily heighten. Then she crumpled the paper and tossed it to the floor.

"Absurd!" she said, but her eyes were turned away.

"Not in the least," said he calmly. "I think you'll admit I have been patient with a great patience. Let me do the charity work for us both. I can afford it. I have money enough, and, what is more, I have the strength that you haven't."

"Billy, you're a dear, good boy," said she, "but—but"—

"But what?" said he.

She was silent. Trainor reached over and took one of her hands in his own.

"Helen, dear, don't be foolish," he said gently. "I need you far more than these people here. They can find some one else, but I can't. Will you accept that prescription?"

Again she was silent. At length she lifted a pair of radiant eyes to his. There was mockery in them, but tenderness as well.

"You see—you see," she began haltingly—"oh, well, the point is, you're the doctor, I suppose."

He bent quickly toward her, but at that moment the voice of Tim sounded from the hall.

"Hey, doc, here's the bandages!"

Thought Controls Weather.

I certainly do believe we can govern even "the elements"—the weather—by thought power. I believe weather is a reflection of the moods of the race and that as we and our moods evolve the weather changes to match. And I believe it is quite possible for your mental treatment or mine to stem the world tide and change the weather, just as one man's thought sometimes stems the thought tide of a mob and changes its course.

Why not? This is a fluid world made up of thought in motion. All its currents are set by thought, your thought and mine and every man's. Why, then, cannot air currents and thought currents be stemmed by more thought from you and from me? They can be. Nothing is impossible to him who believes and keeps on trying. This sounds like a creed on weather. It is. I've nothing beyond "coincidences" and faith to prove it by. But "faith is the substance of things not seen," and the not seen things are the really real ones. The man who governs his thoughts speaks peace to the weather waves.—Nautilus.

CORRALLED BY FINANCIERS

Shutt Mining Property now put into Actual Organization

It was announced yesterday that the Shutt property, south of the Temiskaming Mine, has been finally corralled by financiers. Several offers for the claim have been refused, but the offer of the Ophir Mines Company was acceptable, and this valuable property has now passed into the hands of this corporation. The officers of the Ophir Mines Comppany carry conviction. They are; President, H. H. Lang, mayor of Cobalt, and Vice-President of the City of Cobalt Mining Company,; Vice-President B. W. Leyson, superintendent of the City of Cobalt Mining Company, manager of the Cobalt Townsite Company, and consulting engineer of the Nancy-Helen Mining Company; Secretary-Treasurer E. P. Rowe, Cobalt; Directors, Jas. A. McVichie, superintendent the Tamiskaming Mining Company, ang G. Mitchell, Barrister, Cobalt. The Ophir Mines Company has certainly obtained a strong directorate. The company has no intention of putting the property forward as anything more than a prospect at present, but it is assumed from those who have allied themselves with the company that the claim will ultimately develop into one of the producting mines of the Temiskaming district.

A Common Mistake About Glasses

Many persons think themselves afflicted with some disease of the eye—believe their eyes need medical or surgical treatment—because they are conscious of physical pain or some impairment of the vision, when their whole visual trouble is caused by some error of refraction than can be remedied by proper glasses. No medicine or operation can relieve such cases. Being prejudiced against wearing glasses, even rapidly failing vision sometimes fails to convince them of the truth until too late. How often we hear the remark, "I won't wear glasses as long as I can see without." Just such a vow has ruined many a pair of good eyes. Don't be foolish—IF YOU NEED GLASSES, GET THEM.

THEATRICAL

"DIVORCE."

Paul Bourget's drama "Divorce," is having its try out "on the dog," preparatory to its presentation before the critical audiences of New York. Montreal and Toronto have already made a favorable pronouncement and last night Peterborough theatregoers turned out in large numbers to the Grand Oper House to decide for themselves.

Neither the play nor its title is pleasant, nevertheless it is a vehicle for the most accomplished acting, and the company in whose charge it has been placed are in every way competent to give a worthy interpretation.

"Divorce" is a sort of problem problem play and the dialogue in full play and the dialogue is full of opinions more or less true, more or less dangerous, but always interesting and magnetic. The "religion of conscience" is something that few are willing and even eager to hear it discussed by thinking men.

All Bourget's characters are intense they hold varying views and are sincere in living up to them, yet by that very sincerity they get hopelessly mixed up. How near divorce sanctioned by law, comes to free union not santioned by law is strikingly indicated.

Once having strayed from what the world acknowledges as the straight path the atmosphere becomes thick with inconsistency. Bourget, without asserting any definite conclusions on the whole subject discussed, shows this throughout his whole play.

"Divorce" is both entertaining and educative—it is one of those plays that induce thought.

There are five important parts in the play and all are taken by artists. Ida Conquest and Marion Terry give a charming and most finished portrayal of the female parts, while Vincent Serrano and John Glendinning splendidly depict two very difficult characters.

The play is beautifully staged and the whole production is most finished and pleasing.

OLDER BOYS' CLUB TO-MORROW

Feature of Meeting To-morrow Night Will be Address of Mr. R. A. Waite, Jr.

The second regular meeting of the Older Boys' Club of the YMCA. will be held tomorrow night in the club room. All older boys, 15 years of age and over and who are members of the Association are invited to be present.

The organization will be completed and the committees chosen.

This club was formed a short time ago and its purpose is to keep the older boys together as a club, and to promote Bible study, clean athletics, sociability and literary work.

It will pay any boy to join this club as it gives him an opportunity to develop along these four lines, named.

From time to time men will be secured who will give talks in athletics, hints on training, how to train for special distances, and answer questions that boys who are interested in athletics should know.

The half hour Bible study gives a boy an opportunity to become familiar with the Bible, and will not only help him through life, but will also make his education more complete.

A great drawback to a large number of boys is their inability to be sociable. To help boys along this line is a very important part of our work. By meeting and talking with the other boys a fellow will develop this important side of his life in a very short time.

The evenings devoted to literary work will be a splendid opportunity to develop the art of speaking in public, and help him to think while on his feet. This is a thing that that is very much neglected by a large number of boys who afterwards find that they have missed a great opportunity. Debates and stump speeches will give all the members an opportunity to become efficient public speakers.

The club wishes it understood that all older boys of the senior and boys' departments are cordially welcome to be present on Friday night at eight o'clock in the senior club room.

OBITUARY

MRS. WM. SIMMONS.

Within a little over a month two members of one family in Peterborough have succumbed to typhoid fever. The mother of these two persons was only removed from Nicholls hospital on Saturday last after several weeks' illness with the same disease. It was then that she learned of her son's death which occurred over a month ago.

The family referred to is that of Mrs. Thos. Trotter, Smith street. Her eldest son passed away a few weeks ago and this morning at one o'clock her daughter Mrs. William Simmons, died at Nicholls hospital.

Her maiden name was Flinda Grace Trotter. She was thirty-five years of age and was married eight years ago to her now surviving husband. four small children are left to mourn her loss, the youngest being an infant only fourteen months old.

Her mother, three brothers and two sisters also survive her. The brothers are Messrs. George, of Moosejaw; Bert., of Orangeville, and Charles, of Peterborough. The sisters are Mrs. Robert Robinson, and Mrs. George Barrett, of this city.

The funeral will take place on Friday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock, to the Little Lake cemetery.

The directors of Lipton, Ltd., have declared an interim dividend for the past half year on the ordinary shares of the company at the rate of six per cent per annum.

CANAL OFFICIALS BLAMED BY THE HASTINGS STAR

For Closing Bridges on River Before Consulting the Steamboat Men—Hog Buyer Lost Money

The Hastings Star says:

Navigation was supposed to have been officially closed last week on the Trent waters and the superintendent of the canal gave the Grand Trunk railway leave to close their bridges at Hastnigs and Peterborough so that a steamer cannot get down to Hastings even though the river is open, and freight and passengers from the lake and river landings have to be dumped off at the street railway wharf at the extreme south end of the city at Peterborough. Of course the poor old Grand Trunk saves about two weeks' wages on their bridge tenders, who are generally millionaires anyway and who wont miss the money, but a buyer who shipped about 200 hogs from Rice lake to Peterborough one day last week figures that the bridge being closed cost him about fifty dollars, as the hogs had to be driven over a mile, instead of landing at the packing house. The difference in weight on account of the drive he estimates at five pounds per animal.

The passengers on the boats to Peterborough had either to pay car fare on the street railway or face a long and tiresome walk up town and back from the lower landing, and all this inconvenience and loss to the people on the lake and river seems to have been caused by the officials consulting the convenience of the railroad instead of finding out from the steamer men whether their season's work was finished or not.

THREE MONTHS IN GAOL FOR THEFT FROM JEWELLERY STORE

George Batley pleaded guilty to stealing four clocks, a fancy tea pot and two hat pins from the W. A. Sanderson Co., jewellery store, at the police court this morning. The articles were stolen at three different times, during the auction sale that is now going on. He elected to be tried summarily. His Worship sentenced him to three months in the county gaol.

Rev. Canon Davidson was present in the interests of Batley. He said that the theft was the result of mental weakness on the part of Batley, he being subject to hallucinations. In his opinion it was no common case of stealing.

Dr Frederick gave evidence as to the man's condition. He said that he had known Batley over a year. He was called in to treat him. He was continually wandering in his mind. He did not think he was responsible for his conduct. He left a good steady job in the old country but through the promise of good wages by immigrant agents he was induced to come to Canada.

His Worship thought that he should be deported. Canada is being made the dumping ground for England's undesirables. He thought that three months in gaol would be the best thing to give him. He would have proper care and medical attendance there. In the meantime the Government could be notified in regard as to what should be done with him.

MESSRS. TURNER AND SONS GET LETTER FROM TURKEY

That Peterborough is a city known throughout the world was evidenced this morning when one of her manufacturers received a letter from the town of Broussa in Asiatic Turkey Messrs J. J. Turner and Sons, whose reputation as manufacturers is almost world wide, received a letter from far off Turkey today asking for a catalogue and all information regarding their tents and more particularly about their special hospital tents.

It is indeed a credit to Peterborough that there is here a manufactory that so widely advertises the city.

BRAKEMAN CONROY ONCE LIVED HERE

Had Conversation at Local Station Regarding Accidents

Peterborough, Nov. 25.—The jury empanelled yesterday morning to enquire into the death of the three West Toronto trainmen who were killed in the head-on collision at Sandbank early on Monday morning was chosen from among the spectators at the wreck. After the remains had been viewed the inquest was adjourned till Thursday night at 3 o'clock to meet at Burketon Jct.

Coroner Tilley of Bowmanville, stated to your correspondent over the long-distance phone that if there was sufficient evidence of carelessness brought out at the inquest to-day to warrant the step he would issue a warrant. Dr. Tilley remarked that he did not want to be too hasty in judging anyone.

HAD TO TAKE HIS CHANCE.

"Accidents are getting plentiful, you want to take care you don't get killed." was the remark one of the group shouted at him as the ill-fated train was pulling out of the station.

"I guess I'll have to take my chances with the rest," he called back cheerily, as he swung on board the moving train.

REED NOT HEARD OF.

Bowmanville, Ont., Nov. 25. — No tidings of Brakeman Reed have yet been received, and inquiries made in the district elicit no information. Dr. A. S. Tilley, coroner, has issued subpoenas for several witnesses, including Reed, but no warrants for arrests. He is determined to thoroughly investigate the cause of the Sandbank accident.

County Crown Attorney W. F. Kerr, Cobourg, is expected to be present at the inquest Thursday night, at Burketon.

THE SKATES THE NATIONS USE

Interesting Display in the Window of Banks Sporting Goods Company

In the Banks Sporting Goods Co. window is a most unique display of the skates used by the skating nations of the world. Among them are the long racing skate used by the speedy Norwegians also the tube skate used in the same country. Then there is the graceful blade used by the frauleins of Germany and the Dutch maidens own particular style as well. Two types of English for rink and figure skating add to the collection, and there are also types from Russia, Sweden and Holland.

In sharp contrast to the foreign article there is a splendid display of the favorite skate of our own Canadian youth, the "Automobile."

LATEST NEWS FROM NORWOOD

Special to the Review.

Norwood, Nov. 25.—Messrs. John Finlay & Son are improving their factory premises by removing the old board wheel shop which stands in the front of their lot. When the old building is removed the new cement shop will be in full view of the road thus setting it off to best advantage. The firm have been spending a lot of money having their large lumber and wood yard covered with gravel which will make a good and firm dressing on top of the mucky soil.

Mr. Thomas J. B. Buck, who lately sold his farm on the 6th Line of Dummer, held a very successful auction sale on Wednesday of last week, and disposed of his farm, stock and implements. Also a quantity of hay and grain at a good figure.

Mr. and Mrs. George Buck, of Asphodel have retired from farming and have taken up residence in Norwood.

We think that Norwood can safely boast of having a larger percentage of population of families who, having made a success of farming and are enjoying a well earned rest in their declining years than any other village of its size in Ontario. Norwood with its excellent sidewalks and streets and beautiful residences and quiet and peaceable citizens is an ideal place of retirement for those having means to spend the latter part of their lives in comfort.

Prof. Gliddon, of Peterborough, is coming to Norwood each week, and has formed a large choral class which judging from the members of the same should under skilful guidance and leadership be well worth hearing in the cantata which he intends presenting to the Norwood public about Christmas.

Mr. T. Morrison is at present engaged in improving his residence on Belmont street by raising the roof and by enlarging the house in several ways. When the house is finished it will add greatly to the appearance of his property. Mr. Morrison and family are living in the house owned by Miss Hetherington on that street while their own house is being fixed.

HAVELOCK

Special to the Review.

Havelock, Nov. 26—At one o'clock on Monday morning word was received of a bad head-on collision near Burketon and the auxiliary was hastened as quickly as possible to the scene of the accident.

A sad gloom seemed to hang over the village when word was received that three men had been killed in the unfortunate affair as a large number of those who live here are railroaders and do not know when it may come home to them. The men who were killed were known in town also, especially Mr Findlay, whose wife resided in town for several years. Engineer Ed Dorricott, who was slightly injured about the head, lived in Havelock for a long time and there was great alarm when the report came at first that he was among the dead. Another report received about eight o'clock denied this, saying he was but injured.

The auxiliary has been very busy lately, this being the second big wreck on the west end division.

ANNIVERSARY SERVICES

The anniversary services of the Havelock Methodist church of which Rev Dr Balfour is pastor, were held in the church on Sunday and Monday evenings last.

On Sunday morning the anniversary services were conducted by Rev. A J H Strike of the Campbellford Methodist church, a very able and instructive speaker. The choir assisted by special music, there being two anthems, "Praise the Lord," and "I'll wash my hands in innocency." Dr and Mrs Kindred assisted in a duett and Miss Archer by a solo.

At the evening services there were two anthems, "O come let us sing," and "O, for a thousand tongues," and a solo by Mrs Calender and a solo by Dr Kindred.

The services on Monday evening, were opened by an anthem by the choir, "Praise ye the Lord," followed by prayer and an anthem, "Stand up for Jesus."

Mr Jno A Sexsmith, M.P., was in the chair and gave a short address.

Those present were delighted by solos by Mrs Kindred, Miss B Rose, Mrs M Swain, and Miss Archer. The chief feature of the evening was a witty and interesting address by Rev W H Emsley of Napanee, entitled, "'Look over my shoulder.'"

Rev. H. Caplan, who has been the rector of St. John's church, Havelock, for the past four years, has been appointed by His Grace the Archbishop of Toronto, Anglican missionary to the Jews of that city, and will remove to that point in the near future. Such a movement has been under consideration for some time and has at last been decided. It is understood that a number of clergymen had been named for the position but Mr. Caplan seemed the most suitable. He is by birth a Hebrew, but has since embraced the Christian faith. He came from England a number of years ago and acted as pastor of the Anglican church at Duntroon before coming to this parish. Other denominations are now ministering upon the Jews of Toronto, but there is plenty of room for all churches to work in, as there are about 30 Jews in that city at the present time. Mr. Caplan will be in every way fitted to instruct these people.

Miss Mollie Johnston visited at her home in Norwood on Wednesday.

HAVE YOU $25 TO INVEST?

PUT IT INTO ACTUAL MINING.

If you are interested in mining you want your money in something having merits and possibilities abov the average proposition. You look for a good investment. We believe that investors are entitled to more consideration for the money they put up than is usually accorded to them, therefore, this is a "ground-floor" offering to everyone.

The Fenton Mines Syndicate will be operated on the lines of a close corporation. It is not a promoter's stock-selling scheme, but a mining and business man's opportunity. Its system of organization is simple and so fair that it appeals to all investors. And it is so conservative that its main support comes from the best posted mining investors.

The ordinary mining company has but one legitimate source of revenue. Its dividends must come from the profits derived from the shipment of ore.

This syndicate is a co-operative association in which the investor participates in every form of profit that the prospector and promoter make; an organization of investors run in the interest of the people who put up the money.

The ordinary mining company has the disadvantage of requiring to purchase properties and in case the venture does not win, the company's entire capital is tied up.

One of the best methods of operation is under what may be termed "the bond and lease system" and by its use the syndicate will not have its capital invested in properties. The party also operating under the leasing system will have a bond in the property, so that if it proves as valuable as it is believed to be, it can be acquired at the price fixed before development work had proved the existence of valuable ore bodies. Thus the fruits of its money will be secured for the syndicate, not solely for the term of the lease, but for the future as well. A reasonable percentage of net profits from the shipment of ore is also to be set aside for a sinking fund, to be applied toward the acquisition of properties. This sinking fund will accumulate as the ore is produced and when the bond becomes due if it is advantageous to acquire the property the cash is ready to be so used.

The syndicate is seeking public subscriptions because its organizers are not men of large means and more money is needed for pushing to a successful conclusion development work upon highly promising properties in the very best sections of Cobalt and Montreal River Districts. Enough work has already been done to encourage exploiting the properties systematically. Experienced miners and prospectors say that they have never seen better ground and the showings are certainly such as to justify active mining operations.

We do not want to over-estimate the chances and do not care to make rash promises, but as in every instance to date values have been found to increase as greater depth is attained on adjoining claims, record-breaking ore will, it is believed, be encountered on these properties at a greater depth.

In commercial mining, management is one of the most important features. You must have men who know how in any business to make a success of it. Therefore, the best officers for a mining enterprise are those who know the most about practical mining. The name of a member of parliament or a bank director may look very nice and prove enticing as an officer of a syndicate or company, but we don't think it would make as much for its prosperity as that of clear-headed mining men, who know pay ore when they see it and the cheapest way to get it out of the ground.

The active management of this syndicate is in the hands of the following men, who have all made mining their life work and are experienced in every branch of that business.

E. C. SEWELL,

Sometimes there are real opportunities in mining and this is one of the times. It is an opportunity to become associated with men with practical experience in mining, covering everything from active service with the pick in the prospect field, to superintendence of operations, and who realize that with the needed funds in hand they they will be able to score a much larger and quicker success and make more money for themselves by offering the public perhaps "a better run for their money" than has ever been offered them before. The opportunity is made so good that every investor should act quickly and thereby assist in financing the syndicate, so that we can get to work and open the ore bodies without delay. No liability to members in excess of subscriptions.

While we have a strong, conservative proposition, it is not a "sure thing" pet, and we only solicit the subscriptions of those who have the means and are willing to take a small risk for big profits. No subscriptions for less than $25 will be received and bear in mind that this is a limited offer, AS ONLY 2000 MEMBERSHIP SHARES ARE OPEN FOR SUBSCRIPTION.

"JIDDY" MILLER WILL PLAY AT BRANTFORD THIS SEASON

Brantford, Nov. 25—Speaking of the prospects of this year's professional hockey team, Manager Roy Brown intimated that there would not be very much difficulty in securing an aggregation. The announcement scarcely went forth that the telephone City was to be in the game, again when many well known hockey stars opened communication with Manager Brown.

Fans can pretty nearly count on Johnny Ward, Jack Marks, Cap McDonald, Miller and Dick Meade as a starter.

Miller of Peterborough will come back this year a very much improved individual on last season. Brown picks him to make one of the best forwards in the league this year, and the manager's predictions generally hit the mark.

The rest of the team is problematical. A rover and a point man are willing to come from the eastern wood near Prescott. There is another fellow at Pittsburg, who, it is said, has hold on in the position of cover-point. Pete Charlton of Toronto, may come to Brantford. Lehman, the Canadian Sault goal tender, who played with Brown in the old International, and who is a scrappy goalkeeper in getting out of a mix-up around the nets, is also willing to come.

YOUNG HACKENSCHMIDT AND ROGERS MEET AT BELLEVILLE

Charles (Young) Hackenschmidt of Boston, who is wrestling Yankee Rogers, the famous Buffalo boy, at the opera house on Friday night, Nov. 27th, is considered one of the best men in the business. He has beaten a number of men and gave the great Frenchman, Cazeaux, a big tussle last year in Montreal. Rogers is 6 feet 2 inches tall and weighs 207 pounds. "Hack" is 5 ft. 10 inches tall and weighs 190 lbs., but what he lacks in size he more he more than makes up in speed and science. It promises to be a great bout on Friday night at the opera house.

Preliminary—As a preliminary arrangements have been made to put on a 6-round boxing bout between A. Finch and H. Loudon. As there has been keen rivalry between these two men for some time past, some lively work can be expected.

This is only a start in the sporting line in Belleville and Mr. Naylor, manager of Yankee Rogers, says that if he finds Belleville a good sporting town, he will bring other attractions here during the season.—Belleville Intelligencer.

An Old Time Adventure With Solomon Island Cannibals.

One day on a Solomon beach a little girl ran to me and, before I was aware of it, placed my foot on her neck. One knows what this means well enough. In hot war it means that if a chief allows his foot to rest on the defeated one's neck the man's life is safe, but he is a slave forever, rescue or no rescue. I was puzzled at the child's action. It was soon explained. Shortly afterward down came a lot of villagers and insisted on taking the youngster. I told them what she had done. They said they did not care. Her mother was being cooked in the town, and the child should go to the ovens with her.

"Never!" I said. "What! We, who have eaten betel nut together many times, to quarrel for a mere child to whom I have granted life in your own way!" I swore they should kill me first. They replied:

"Oh, that is an easy thing to do."

A bold front was the only thing now. Luckily I had my sixteen shooter. Springing back and putting a mark on the sand with my foot, I swore I would shoot the first man who crossed it. They knew I could answer for a dozen of them or so, and, although clubs were up and bows bent, they hesitated, as well they might, and I knew I had mastered them. Then one proposed I should buy the child fairly. They cared not to fight a friend. To this I at once agreed, and a muss was thus avoided, and a mission ax worth tenpence made me a slave owner.—"Among the Man Eaters," by John Caggin.

The Century Plant.

The century plant, so named because of the popular idea that it blooms but once in a hundred years, in one sense makes good its name, for it blooms only once, then dies. In the genial climate of southern California it reaches maturity and blooms in fifteen or twenty years, while in colder climates the period may range from forty to fifty years. There are many species of the agave family native to northern Mexico, where it is called the maguey. The plant furnishes "pulque," the national drink of Mexico. At the time of blooming the plant throws up a single stock of rapid growth to the height of twelve to twenty feet, from which the tassel-like flowers sprout forth. This great flower stalk draws all the sap and vigor from the body of the plant, which soon withers and dies.

Apt Pupil.

Captain Jones (giving a short lecture to the recruits of his company on their demeanor in public)—If a civilian should make offensive remarks in a public house and try to induce a quarrel the well conducted soldier should drink up his beer and go quietly away."

After his address Captain Jones questioned his audience to ascertain if they had comprehended his remarks.

"Now, Private Jenkins, what should you do if you were at an inn and a civilian wanted to quarrel with you?"

"I should drink up his beer, sir, and 'ook it."—London Pick-Me-Up.

THE CARNAGE OF WAR

Story of a Survivor of the Battle of Gravelotte.

INTO THE JAWS OF DEATH.

An Advance Under Fire From Behind Barricades That Literally Mowed Down the Charging Troops—A Hand to Hand Conflict in the Streets.

William Guldner, a survivor of the battle of Gravelotte, the most hard fought victory of the Franco-Prussian war, tells in Harper's Magazine how he saw the victory as color bearer of his regiment:

"It must have been, I think, about 4 o'clock when Colonel von Boehn rode to the head of the regiment. and we all straightened quick, as on parade. And he said sharp a few words, something like, 'Men, the regiment has a good name, and you will give it a still better one.' I was in front and could hear part of what he said.

"The colonel led us to the left, and we crossed a railroad track and went through another little white village, and then we faced a slope—a long slope—with a village on it, which the French had made into a fort, and we, our regiment and others, were to capture it, and there were many Frenchmen and cannon there.

"The colonel rode on a horse, he and the majors and the adjutants. Our captains usually rode, too, but this day the captains sent their horses back and went on foot.

"And soon our first men began to fall, for we came under the fire of the chassepot. It was hard, for we could not see the enemy. These first ones were many sharpshooters in a ditch, and the noise of their firing was like that of a coffee mill—kr-r-r-r-r! They drew off as we went forward. It was only at a walk that we went—a steady walk, just as if there were no bullets there.

"And now we would run forward fifty yards and throw ourselves flat, then another fifty yards and the halt and the falling flat, and each time we could see the village that was a fortress nearer.

"And once when we were lying down and I saw that the officers were standing, just cool and quiet, it came to me that a man has to pay in such ways to be an officer.

"I saw the colonel fall. He was shot from his horse and carried back.

"The first major, he took command, and he galloped to the skirmish line, and he was shot. Then the second major, too, was shot, and he tried to get up, but he could not stand, and he sat on a big stone and shouted: 'Go on! Go on!' And he took a gun from a dead man and fired it.

"We were ordered to fix bayonets, and that made us glad, but even yet the men carried their rifles on their shoulders as they ran. We were not near enough to charge with bayonets.

"I wish I could tell you what it was like as we got near that village of St. Privat—the noise, the smoke, the flashes, the falling men and only one desire in our hearts.

"There were three sergeants in the color section, one at each side of me. And first the one at my right was killed. Then the one at my left was shot—eight big bullets in his body from a mitrailleuse—eight! Yet he afterward got well, while many a man died from only one little bullet.

"And at last we went at a bayonet charge, and for the first time there was a cheer, a wild and savage cheer, and we ran on, eager to plunge the bayonets, and we could see as we came near the village that the French were firing from behind barricades and garden walls and from windows.

"And we looked into the wild faces of the French, and they met us hand to hand. Ah, we climbed over walls and barricades, and we fired and bayoneted, and we fought them in the streets!

"On and on we went. It was a wild time of shooting, bayoneting, wrestling, clubbing, shouting. On and on, but it was slow work and terrible, for the French fought for every step.

"I was at the front, for I had the colors. There were a few officers still left, and they were shouting and waving their swords, and other regiments stormed into the village with us and after awhile—I can't say how long—the place was ours.

"As I tell it to you it seems perhaps a simple thing. But when the regiment was paraded before the battle began we were more than 2,000 men and more than fifty officers, and we lost in the fight forty officers and more than a thousand men. Yes, that was the loss of just my regiment alone. It was morderisch, but it was necessary.

"Well, it was over. The village was blazing, and many a dead man lay in the ruins. Some sat upright, dead, with their backs against walls."

India's Fame.

They were holding an "exam" in an east London school, and the teacher was explaining the chief products of the Indian empire. One child recited a list of comestibles. "Please, miss, India produces curries and pepper and citron and chillies and chutney and—and"— "Yes, yes, and what comes after that?" "Please, miss, I don't remember." "Yes, but think. What is India so famous for?" "Please, 'm, India-gestion."

He Called For Trumps.

The major was laying down the law on whist. He always did, and woe to the man who ventured to differ from him!

"I tell you," he said, glaring defiantly round, as if daring any one to contradict him, "I once, and once only, had all thirteen trumps dealt to me!"

"You, I suppose, were—er—the dealer?" a meek looking young man put in.

The major turned purple.

"No, sir," he roared, "no, sir! Confound your impudence, I was not the dealer!"

"Then may I ask," the meek young man asked calmly, "what happened to be the trump card the dealer turned up?"

By the time the major had recovered from an apoplectic fit the meek young man had left the room.

The Ghost of Lochrain Castle

By Mrs. C. N. Williamson—Author of "The Princess Passes," "The Lightning Conductor," Etc.

COPYRIGHT, 1906, BY MRS. C. N. WILLIAMSON

John Kenrith himself opened it, and somehow she had the conviction—conceited though it might have been in a mere typewriter—that he was present for her sake, to introduce her to Captain Oxford and put her at her ease.

His first words confirmed the impression. "I ran in before keeping a golf engagement, to see if you were here, as I heard you were coming," he explained. "My friend, Captain Oxford, met with an ugly adventure last night, with a rascally poacher, or some one of that ilk, it's supposed, and was shot in the arm—of course, the arm that had been hurt before! That's usually so, isn't it? He won't be able to help himself much for a day or two, though it's the left arm, for he has lost a good deal of blood and is rather weak. I think you had better not let him dictate many letters this afternoon; say three or four at most; and I'm sure he'll listen to your advice, and rest afterward, though he doesn't like playing invalid. Now come and be introduced. See, there he is on the sofa over there."

Kenrith led Elspeth across the large room toward a comfortable sofa, piled with cushions among which could be seen the back of a man's head—a well-shaped head, thickly covered with close-cropped, rippling bronze hair. In another moment she saw the face, which turned toward her as she approached, at Kenrith's side, and as the handsome eyes and lips smiled faintly in greeting, the girl gave a slight start of surprise.

"Why," she asked herself eagerly, "where have I seen him, or someone exactly like him, only a short time ago?"

CHAPTED V.

A second glance at Captain Oxford assured Elspeth that, despite the haunting likeness to some other face, she had certainly never seen him before. He was not a young man to be easily forgotten, and the girl did not wonder that he had attracted Lady Hilary. Not only was he remarkably good to look at, but it seemed to her that, with such eyes—bronze, like his hair, and only a few shades darker than his sunburned skin—he must be honest and sincere. If there were a mystery about his adventure of last night, she told herself that it could be nothing of which he need feel ashamed.

She wrote two or three short letters, which she would not have judged to be very important, and then came a pause. "Don't you think you ought to rest now?" she asked, remembering Mr. Kenrith's instructions.

"Yes," the young man answered. "I'm not going to ask you to do any more letters to-day. But"—— he hesitated, and Elspeth took up the sentence where it broke off, inquiring if there were anything further that she could do for him.

"Yes, there is something," he said. "I—my friend, Mr. Kenrith, told me you traveled up in the same carriage with him yesterday, and—with Lady Lambart and her daughter."

Elspeth's eyes brightened, she knew what would please him now, and did not see any wrong in doing it. "Oh, yes," she answered, "it was so crowded, they put me in first-class, and Lady Hilary Lambart was so sweet about it. I never saw such a lovely girl as she is, and I am sure she is as nice as she is beautiful."

Captain Oxford's face lighted up, and he smiled, showing his white teeth. "You are very quick in forming your impressions, evidently," he said. "But I believe in the kind of admiration that begins at first sight."

"So do I, and love, too," said Elspeth. "If I were a man I should have fallen in love with Lady Hilary Lambart at first sight. As it is, I would do anything I could to please or help her, and I told her so this morning."

"What? You've been talking together this morning? I was going to try and pump you, without letting you find out what I was doing, but now I begin to see it isn't necessary to do that."

"It isn't a bit," laughed Elspeth, "if you really don't mind my saying so."

"Mind? Why, now that I know you are such a stanch alley of hers, it will simply be paradise to have a chance of talking about her. Do tell me, since we've come down so quickly to 'bed rock,' as the Americans say, how did you find out that I was in love with Lady Hilary Lambart?"

"Shall I tell all the truth?"

"Why, of course."

At this encouragement Elspeth proceeded to give Captain Oxford a short sketch of the journey; how she had heard his name mentioned by Mr. Kenrith; how Lady Lambart had not seemed pleased with the news that he was staying at Lochrain Hydro, and how she (Elspeth) had fancied from the look on Lady Hilary's face that her emotion was very different.

"I didn't try to listen," the girl apologised; "but I couldn't help being interested, because it seemed such a romance, and Lady Hilary is such an ideal heroine for a love story."

"Bless her, I should think she was!" exclaimed the young man. "The only heroine possible for a love story of mine, even if I were banished to some far country, and knew that I could never see her again. She knows I love her, of course, and I do think she likes me a little, but I am afraid she will never go against her mother's wishes, and marry me. Perhaps I oughtn't even to wish it, for she is so lovely, she could have anybody, and I'm a poor man, heavily handicapped in many ways. But I can't rise to such heights of unselfishness."

"I'm sure she would hate you to rise to that," said Elspeth, absolutely on Captain Oxford's side now.

"Do tell me why you think so—or do you only say it to be kind?"

"I think so, because of something that happened this morning." And then she told him how Lady Hilary had been as one struck with a blow, on hearing from the gossip of Lady Ardcliffe that he had been dangerously wounded. She told also how she had managed to give the girl news of the real state of his health, when she heard of it from Mr. Grant.

"You really do seem to have been sent here by Providence, Miss Dean," said Captain Oxford, half laughing, half serious. "Of course, you guessed why I asked that I might have you to write letters for me?"

"You hoped that, as I had seen Lady Hilary, you might get me to talk about her, and that is just what has happened."

"You have guessed right. I thought you would. And I shouldn't wonder if Kenrith guessed, too. He admires Lady Lambart very much, but he is against her where I am concerned. He didn't know till yesterday that she disapproved of me as an acquaintance for a woman with a marriageable daughter, though if he weren't rather unworldly in some ways, despite his shrewdness in others, he might have guessed how it would be with her. He has too much money himself to care about whether others have it or not, or even think of it; but Lady Lambart has very little, unfortunately for me, otherwise she would perhaps not mind so much. As it is, I'm sure she would have thanked Heaven devoutly if I had been killed last night out of her daughter's way forever, instead of just winged, and laid up for a day or two."

Elspeth shuddered. "It doesn't matter so much to you about what she feels," said the girl. "But do you really think that it was a poacher who shot you by mistake for a keeper?"

"No. I'm certain it was not," he answered.

"Mr. Grant and, I suppose, Mr. McGowan are certain it was."

"I haven't told them everything. I have my own reasons for not doing so," said Captain Oxford, thoughtfully. His face changed to sternness as he spoke, and Elspeth wondered if she could have been mistaken after all in fancying him absolutely frank and open. Suddenly he looked like a man who could keep a secret well, and might have secrets of his own. The words that Kenrith had said before going out darted back into Elspeth's brain, "He lost a good deal of blood." What of the ruby drops that had fallen through the crack in her ceiling, from that mysterious place above, inhabited by no one save ghosts—the ruby drops that had stained the face of the boy in the sketch!

But at the thought of that sketch, something which had been puzzling Elspeth was made clear. The likeness which had so bewildered her was between Captain Oxford and the boy in the portrait.

It was not so noticeable now, for the young man was looking grave to sombreness, while the face of the boy was bright and smiling still Elspeth could see it, and it was marked enough to seem rather odd. But, after all, what could it mean? The boy, who was by this time either an old man, or dead, had been one of the same type with Captain Oxford, perhaps not an extraordinary one, although she had not happened to see any others, save these two. She was half-inclined to speak of the pencilled portrait she had found, but she did not wish to be called upon at present for an explanation of the pink stain, as she probably would be, if she showed the sketch to Captain Oxford.

As she mentally compared the real features with the pictured features, the young man spoke again. "Naturally, Mr. McGowan would prefer to think that I had been attacked by some poacher, while straying about in lonely places, where I had no business to be after dark. Any other idea—any more sensational idea—would be bad for the hotel."

"Why?" asked Elspeth.

"He wouldn't like to have it said that there were thieves and murderers lurking about. That sort of thing would probably keep a great many guests away from the Hydro. The sort of people who come here don't want adventures."

"But do you think it was a thief who attacked you?" the girl impulsively asked.

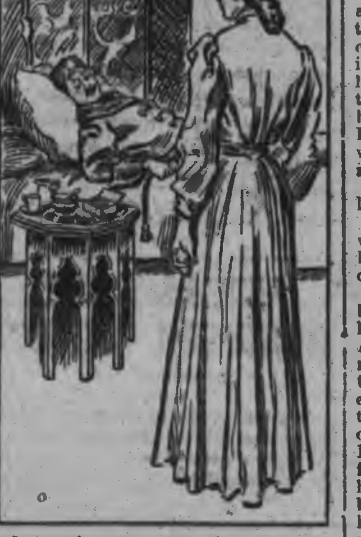
Captain Oxford laughed. "I've nothing worth stealing, and everybody who knows me, knows that. Otherwise, the whole affair might have been almost worthy of the Underground Syndicate—if only it had come off a little more successfully."

Elspeth looked blank. "What is the Underground Syndicate?" she asked.

"You've never heard of the Underground Syndicate? Well, I can't tell you precisely what it is, or even whether it exists. And if it does, that probably isn't its own name for itself."

"It sounds rather vague—but very mysterious," said Elspeth.

"If there is such an association as the Underground Syndicate, it is very mysterious—so mysterious that it has puzzled England in general, and Scotland Yard in particular, for years. It's supposed, you know, to be an association banded together to commit crimes for important clients who don't wish to commit them themselves. Several famous murders have been set down to the account of the Underground Syndicate, but though there have been clues and traces, there have never been enough to help the police to make arrests, or even actually suspect any one person. They have, as it were heard stirrings behind a veil, but the veil has never been lifted. Now, if I were a very rich man with millions to leave to relatives, or if I were in any one's way, I should say to myself—because of certain things that have happened—'Aha, the Underground Syndicate has put a black mark against my name.' But there is absolutely nobody except Lady Lambart—who would be the better off for my death; and poor Lady Lambart, even if she were prepared to go to such lengths to wipe out a would-be son-in-law, couldn't afford to pay the Syndicate's prices. They charge thousands, so the story goes. And they are very rich—according to the same stories—for they often bring off big coups on their own account, such as relieving people of their jewels. I often warn Kenrith that he had better look out."



"It sounds rather vague, but very mysterious," said Elspeth.

"It sounds too extraordinary," said Elspeth.

"I don't believe there is such a syndicate really, do you?"

"No, I don't," replied Captain Oxford. "As you say, it is too fantastic. People will get up any theory to account for crimes which remain mysteries; and I believe that rather a sensational morning paper is responsible for suggesting the idea that there was a syndicate. After a murder that baffled the police last year, the editor published a series of extraordinary anonymous letters that served the object of selling the issues in which they appeared, if no other."

At this moment, the resident doctor appeared to see how his patient was getting on, and Elspeth was banished from the room. It was now her hour of freedom, and she was glad of it, for she had much to think of. She went to her room, where tea was sent to her, and rested luxuriously on the old-fashioned sofa. What a wonderful day it had been, she thought. More had happened in it than happened in weeks in her old London life, where one day told another, and she forgot whether it was Monday or Saturday. She seemed to have been plunged into the midst of many lives, and to have some influence, large or small, upon each one. It was almost as if she, an insignificant young girl, a paid employe of the hotel, were watching the performance of a play in a theatre to which she alone had the right of entrance.

She tried hard to join all the different loose threads, which she felt vaguely ought somehow to match together, but she could not find the way; and at last the effort culminated in an absurd jumble which was a dream.

Sleep did her good, although her nap was short, and she awoke with a start, fearing that she had missed her next appointment; but it was only half-past five, and ten minutes later, with smooth hair and bright eyes, she was in Mr. McGowan's room. He was there, and had kind things to say concerning the reports he had received of her work during the day. This was encouraging, and the girl felt very happy as she went to begin her hour of work with Mr. Trowbridge. She did not like him much, but she fancied that he could be very amusing and, whatever else it might be, she was sure that her time in his society would not be dull.

In the great hall, through which she had to pass on her way to Mr. Trowbridge's sitting room, she saw him deep in talk with Lady Hilary. He was leaning far forward in his chair, his elbows on his knees, lost to everything but his interest in the beautiful girl who listened with an indifference which she did not try to hide. His back was turned towards Elspeth, but Lady Hilary saw her, and with a word to Trowbridge, which Elspeth did not hear, sprang up and gave the young stenographer a look which said "Come to me."

The two girls met half way across the hall, and Lady Hilary handed Elspeth a book. "A pretence," she said hurriedly. "Open it anywhere, and we will seem to be talking about it. Now; have you seen him? Mr. Kenrith happened to mention you were going to write for him this afternoon."

There was no need to speak the name. Elspeth well knew who was meant by "him," and she doubted very much that Mr. Kenrith had "happened" to speak.

"Yes," she answered, as her head and Lady Hilary's were bent over the book. "He only wanted me because he had heard that I'd traveled in the same carriage with you, and hoped I could be got to talk about you to him. He confessed that after I'd been in the room a little while. Oh, Lady Hilary, he worships you. I do wish I might take the liberty of saying something"——

"Say it, quickly. It won't be a liberty."

"It's only that I do hope nobody will persuade you to give him up, because such a love can come but once in a life, it seems to me, and"——

"Hush! Here comes that Mr. Trowbridge," whispered Lady Hilary. "Oh, he is most oppressive. I wish Lady Ardcliffe hadn't introduced him to mother. I'm afraid I'm going to have trouble with him." Her voice changed suddenly, as Trowbridge, strolling towards them, came within hearing distance. "It will be good of you, Miss Dean, if you will copy out the poem for me. As it's a valume out of the hotel library, I"——she stopped, for her purpose was served. Trowbridge had paused close beside them and must have heard all that she intended him to hear.

"I will do it gladly this evening," said Elspeth. "For the next hour, my time belongs to Mr. Trowbridge."

"Lady Hilary and I were just having a rattling good argument," said he. "I was on the point of convincing her that I was right and she was wrong, so I will give up half my share of you for to-day to her. Copy out the poem she wants, Miss Dean, and when you have finished, come to my sitting room, please. I'll be there by that time."

Elspeth moved away obediently. The book really was a volume of verses by a minor poet, and though Lady Hilary had probably selected a page at random, the girl copied it in her own room, with her own machine. In half an hour she went down again, and this time Lady Hilary and Trowbridge had both vanished from the hall. Elspeth had brought the typed poem, and the book, in case she should meet Lady Hilary, but not seeing her she took them on to Mr. Trowbridge's sitting room. He himself stood just outside the half open door, speaking with the handsome woman Elspeth had heard spoken of as Countess Radepolskoi, but as the girl approached, with as light shrug of the shoulder the Countess left him. "Be careful, that's all," Elspeth thought she heard her say; and Trowbridge's expression was not quite so pleasant as it had been, though he forced a smile to greet the stenographer.

"Fine looking woman, that," he said, as he ushered Elspeth into the room. "Countess Radepolskoi, I mean. She and I only met here a short time ago, but she's mighty kind about giving me good advice, and was just telling me I ought to be careful and not overwork myself. You wouldn't think I was delicate, would you? But I'm supposed to be here for the tonic air to pick me up after a threatened breakdown. We Americans are so apt to keep the candle burning at both ends, you know."

Elspeth answered that she would not have dreamed he was out of health; but she was thinking "I don't believe the Countess was talking about overwork. If it had been anything as simple as that he wouldn't have minded whether I overheard or not. But he did mind, for some reason or other, and went out of his way to account for her words. Perhaps he's afraid I might tell Lady Hilary that there's something between him and the Countess."

"You ought to see her jewels," Trowbridge went on, as Elspeth arranged her typewriter and paper on the table. "She's rolling in money, I believe, a jolly good catch for some poor young man. By the way, she was telling me that Mr. Kenrith had bought a jewel—a diamond, I believe, which was once in her family. I don't care much about such things myself. Whenever I buy diamonds, it is to give away to some friend. But she is keen to know if he's got it here, for it seems, though it was in her late husband's family for many generations, it passed from them before her marriage, and she's never seen it. If you hear him speak of it, you might let me know, as she feels delicate about asking, and, anyhow, she hasn't met him yet. But now to work. We must get through as much as we can in what's left of the hour."

By this time Elspeth was sitting at the table, and he flung himself down in a big easy chair within comfortable distance for dictation. He had begun the first letter, by giving the date, and getting as far as "Dear Sir," when suddenly he spied on the table near Elspeth's elbow the book which Lady Hilary had given her. The folded paper was visible between the pages, and at sight of it Trowbridge's face lit up with interest.

"Oh, just a minute," he said. "Let's see, if you don't object, what is the lovely Lady Hilary's taste in poetry."

Elspeth did not object, because the thought flashed through her mind that Mr. Trowbridge perhaps suspected that something more than the poem was written on the paper, therefore it might be well for him to find there was nothing besides. Accordingly she was silent; but she watched Trowbridge, to see what he would do, and as he reached to take the book, which lay at some distance from his hand, his wrist was exposed for an inch or two beyond the cuff, and Elspeth saw a very odd thing. Just above the wrist bone, he wore a bracelet—not the padlocked bangle which some men affect, to suggest a love-secret, but a flat band of gold set with pearls and turquoises, and fitting so closely that it pinched the skin as far down as the hand into little folds. Above this bracelet the arm was covered with white kid, like a woman's glove, and the junction between this and the flesh was masked by the band of gold.

For the fraction of a second Elspeth forgot herself, and stared. Whether Trowbridge noticed the direction of her eyes, or whether he merely remembered after an instant of self-forgetfulness that he had been indiscreet, the effect was the same. Flushing darkly, he drew back his arm, and the bracelet and what was above it were once more completely hidden by his sleeve.

CHAPTER VI.

Elspeth had had very little time during her first day at Lochrain Castle Hydro to brood over her own affairs. Those of other people had proved still more absorbing, and dwelling upon them had prevented her from giving much attention to the mystery of the night's disturbances. But when darkness came again, and a second night had to be faced in the tower room, even the romantic love troubles of Lady Hilary Lambart and Captain Oxford faded into the background of her mind. The one absorbing question was whether a trick had really been played upon her, or whether, in spite of her firm conviction to the contrary, there were such things as ghosts, which haunted places on earth that they had loved or hated?

The girl had now to remember ruefully that she had taken steps to defend herself against other nights of terror, and that no light whatever had been thrown upon the mystery. The one piece of evidence in favor of the trick theory (if indeed it could be called evidence) was that the servant who had brought her meals had worn rather a peculiar expression when he civilly asked after her health in the morning. He had looked, she thought, as if he had expected to hear that she had passed a bad night, and appeared somewhat disappointed when she had announced herself to be in the best of health and spirits.

But then, even if she had not imagined the expression, the man might easily have known no more than that the tower was said to be haunted.

Persons in that class of life were supposed to be fond of horrors, and it would have been a delicious declaration for the servants' hall if Mr. McGowan's new secretary had acknowledged receiving a visit from the ghosts. Perhaps the man knew the story of the tower, whatever it might be, and would be more willing than Mr. Grant to repeat it. But Elspeth would not yield to the temptation she felt to ask him, when he brought her dinner or took away the tray, and when he had gone with his polite "a good night's rest to you, miss," she knew that she was alone.

Realizing all too keenly now what she had undergone last night, her nerves began to jump, but she took herself to task sternly. This sort of thing would never do. Either she must become the victim to moral cowardice, trick or no trick, and ask to be given another room in exchange for this, even if it were no more than eight feet square; or else she must be firm enough not to be frightened; for it was impossible that she could lie wakeful and trembling with nameless terrors night after night, and still be able to do justice to her work by day.

So well did she succeed in getting the upper hand of her nerves, that by 10 o'clock she was actually calm enough to be sleepy, and to feel that nothing earthly or unearthly would have the power to rob her of slumber. Hardly had her head touched the pillow than she had that sensation of falling which is so often the forerunner of a heavy sleep; and having saved herself duly, she floated peacefully off into dreamland.

PLAYING OF THE NATIONAL ANTHEM

King Makes an Order in Order to Have Uniformity

London Nov. 25.—King Edward's order that henceforth the National Anthem be played by military and naval bands at a tempo of 80 to 84 crochets to the minute is not universally approved by musicians. Hitherto there has been a decided lack of uniformity, the naval bands frequently playing the anthem at a tempo approaching 100 while the army bands at times played it as slow as 72.

Dan Godfrey considers that for a smart military salute the quicker tempo will be an improvement, but that the present slower movement should be adhered to for church or concert purposes in order to preserve the solemnity.

TORONTO STAR'S ANNUAL PRIZE

For the second time in succession the Toronto Daily Star's prize rod for the largest small-mouthed black bass goes to Lake "Koshe," or, more accurately, Lake Kosheabebogamog, a little body of water in lower Muskoka, being situated a short distance south-east of Muskoka Wharf.

This year the winner is Mr A D Slocum, of Homestead, Pa., who caught the fish during a visit at Lake Koshe during the month of August. Thus for the first time in the history of the Star's competition has the prize been won by a resident of the United States.

Weight, 6 3-4 pounds.
Length, 23 1-2 inches.
Girth, 17 1-2 inches.

The weight was not taken until several hours after it had been taken from the water. It is probable that had it been weighed at the time of catching it would have weighed perhaps as high as seven pounds.

It will be recalled that last year the prize was awarded to Mr J. C. Boomer, of Toronto, whose fish was also caught in Lake Koshe.

When Mr Slocum is at home in the historic town of Homestead, Pa., he is the editor and treasurer of the Daily Messenger.

At Roller Rink

The Hollowaya, who are giving a week's entertainment at the Auditorium Roller rink, are worth going a long way to see. The exhibition of skill and strength in their acrobatic performance has not been excelled here since roller skating was inaugurated in Peterborough. Their exhibition of strength on their great ladder trick is a wonder. Mr. Holloway has the ladder fastened around his waist while his partner ascends. When she reaches the the top she turns hand springs with a chair. Mr. Holloway and partner will give exhibitions every night this week with a Saturday matinee. They were formerly the two stars with the Ringling Bros. circus.

LAST NIGHT ON LAKE OF BAYS.

Night birds are calling from hill to hill,
Whip-poor-will, hawk and crane;
Spirit o' northland, out o' the memory-land,
Give me the summer again!
O sweet is the wine of spruce and pine,
Golden the flowers that gleam;
And the long, still days in the wild north ways
Drift by like a childhood's dream.

Shadows are flitting from hill to hill,
Loon birds are crying mid-bay;
Spirit o' northland, out o' the memory-land,
Give me but one summer's day.
O strong is the wine of the northern pine,
Purple the flowers that gleam;
But the wondrous days in the wild north ways
Are gone like a girlhood's dream.

Quiet the starlight on hill and hill,
Ghostly the mists on the bay;
Spirit o' northland, into the memory-land,
Gone is my last summer's day.
O rare is the wine of the sweeping pine,
Cold as a hill-born stream;
And the fragrant days of the wild, north ways
Are only an ended dream.

A TRAGEDY OF THE NORTH.

Jewish Immigrant's Joy Is of Short Duration.

In connection with the Jewish colonies of New Ontario, a story is told of a father and two sons. The father came out into the bush alone and toiled hard for over a year to enable him to lay aside sufficient to bring his sons from Russia. On the day that they came, he went down to town, in a canoe which he had fully mastered, to meet them. No man was happier than he. He figured out that his sons, both young, would surely double his earnings. Should they turn to the timber lands, for instance, and cut cord wood, he would be in a position to stay about the house, properly look after the farm which till now he like all the others, could at best attend to during spare moments and idle days. He planned various improvements and thus pictured to himself his as the best kept farm the township over. Surely he knew his business, for did not the gentleman from the Toronto Government buildings, when he was last there, compliment him upon his work? Yes, another year and his wife and little ones, whom he left behind, would be sent for. The father and sons met and clasped in a warm embrace. After spending a few hours with friends in Englehart, he told them that the evening would soon set in and that they had a long journey before them. The three entered the canoe. They had six rapids to pass. Five they passed together, the sixth the father passed alone—the boat had upset and with it all his hopes.

Criticizes American Women.

Dr. Andrew MacPhail of Montreal has appeared in The London Spectator in the now popular role of a critic of American women. Among the generalizations of his article is the statement, "Speaking generally the aim of American women is to live in idleness." Who that knows the many positions that women in the United States fill in the laboring world believes that such a statement can be, to any great extent, true. Whatever may be the case with the class, which after all, is a comparatively small one, whose members have come into the possession of great wealth, it cannot be believed that the women who manage the homes, teach the schools, and fill thousands of positions in the business world can look upon an idle and useless life as the ideal one. Even among the rich there are women who are active in philanthropic work. There are among American women as there are among Canadians many different types and while there are some whose lives are useless and unprofitable alike to themselves and the state, the great majority are good women who are working hard in order to support themselves or to serve those whom they love. In his next article Dr. MacPhail proposes a remedy for the idleness from which he supposes the women of the American nation suffer. Is he sure that he has diagnosed the disease correctly?

Sir Oliver's Pen.

A group of barristers stood in one of the corridors of Osgoode Hall, Toronto, one day recently, and, in the interval preceding the opening of the court, one legal mind contributed the following story of Sir Oliver Mowat:

"Sir Oliver was vice-chancellor here at one time," he said. "As you may remembers, his sight was not of the best, and he wrote freely. He didn't spare the ink, and, after a sitting, there were noticeable signs of Sir Oliver's industry. His registrar had a fine head of light hair. Well, at the end of the day's work, the officer's devoted head presented a decidedly spotted appearance."

"At a later day," remarked another counsel, with a twinkle, "a chief justice was heard to observe, concerning a bald pate before him, 'I am tempted occasionally to let just one drop fall from my pen, but I resist the temptation.'"

A Unique Wager Paid.

One day recently during the noon hour many people in the neighborhood of Yonge and Louisa street, Toronto, were amused at seeing a man industriously and carefully pushing with a toothpick a pea along the pavement. It was J. McCormack paying an election wager, and Charles Langley, who held the winning end of the bit, was there to see that it was carried out. A crowd of their fellow-employes were on hand to witness the feat. It is needless to say that Mr. McCormack is a Tory and that Mr. Langley is not.

Witness at Port Arthur Election Says He Through Down the Briber After All.

Port Arthur, Nov. 27.—The election conspiracy charges against J. W. Armstrong, J. Hubert and R. Lethen, jointly proceeded yesterday, but slowly, on account of vigorous objections and technicalities of defending Counsel Cassels, Dowler and Kenny.

Poll Clerk Harry Hogarth testified that he and Jim Horrigan were to gather up men in Port Arthur, while J. W. Armstrong was delegated to similar duties in Fort William.

Arnett and Tomlinson, minors, already convicted of impersonation, told of gratuitous supplies of liquor and cigars on the train.

Witnesses told of J. Hubert, outside scrutineer, telling them when and how often they were to go in to the poll. Inside they were coached by Deputy Returning Officer Lethen, how to vote for Conmee, Liberal candidate. Arnett further said he only voted after being urged and then after being coached, to vote for Conmee had deliberately marked his ballot for Keefer.

Tomlinson testified that he had voted three times for Conmee and once for Keefer. He stated that a man named Seymour cast eight votes during the day.

Poll Clerk Hogarth told of Bert Newton, Conservative scrutineer from another poll, during the day discovering the state of affairs, and during the evening Newton asked $2,000 to keep quiet. This latter part Newton denies.

BIG CAPTURE BY TORONTO POLICE

"Gun Mob" Believed to Have Been Run Down---Six in the Party.

Toronto, Nov. 27.—Six more men, believed to be members of an American "gun-mob," as bad as any that have visited this city in some time, were bagged in a Jarvis street house yesterday. They are held as vags.

Detectives Wallace, Mackie, Lipton, Archibald and Armstrong made the roundup.

Those got were: Jas. Lee, Ottawa; Geo. McDonald, W. Scott, Jas. Higgins, Chas. Corley and Jas. Cook.

Three others were got earlier in the week.

THE MINISTER OF EDUCATION WAS WELCOMED

By Mr. Robt. Fair and Dr. M. A. Morrison To-day — Had a Drive Around the City

The Honourable Minister of Education, Dr. R. A. Pyne, with his secretary Mr. G. W. James, arrived in the city at noon today for the opening of the new Collegiate Institute at three o'clock this afternoon. He was met at the station by the chairman of the school board, Mr. Robert Fair and Dr. M. A. Morrison, chairman of the special committee appointed to look after the arrangements for the formal opening.

This afternoon the Minister and Messrs. T. E. Bradburn, MPP. and Jas. Thompson, MPP., and a number of other gentlemen are having a drive around the city prior to the proceedings at the school.

CIVIC LIGHTING PLANT PAYING AT BROCKVILLE

Brockville, Nov. 27.—The annual report of the board of commissioners of the Brockville Light and Power Department for the past year shows another period of successful operation.

The revenue from gas, electricity, etc., amounted to $51,083.80 and the working expenses $32,267.62.

The debenture debt of the plant was reduced $7,034.68. There was also paid in debenture interest $6,333.18, and, allowing $3,190.42 for depreciation, the department made a net profit of $1,525.50. Not a single dollar was lost in bad debts.

During the eight years since the town purchased the plant, in addition to meeting the running expenses and debenture interest out of the revenue, the commissioners have reduced the debenture debt $43,656.64 and written off a considerable sum each year for depreciation. The interest item alone reached the sum of $39,530.04. The actual net profits for the eight years were $9,977.25. The price of gas has been reduced from $2 to $1, 12 1-2 net per 1,000 cubic feet for both illuminating and fuel, and the price of electricity reduced 50 per cent.

DOCTOR MAKES ATTACK UPON ONTARIO HOUSES OF REFUGE

Toronto, Nov. 27.—The charities and corrections convention had an interesting meeting yesterday. Officers were elected, Hon. W. J. Hanna being chosen honorary president.

Dr. Bruce Smith in the course of his address said that some houses of refuge in Ontario were "a disgrace." Dr. C. R. Charters of Chatham urged that separate wings should be built for insane inmates.

Col. Rolmore of the Salvation Army spoke on reclaiming ex-prisoners. Dr. Chambers said that the saloons were responsible for nearly all the people who came under his charge.

Mr. S. I. Sullivan, superintendent of the Mercer, complained that people did not look upon the institution as a reformatory. When women left there they were looked upon by many as incorrigible. He suggested the need of a female probation office. Capt. Pease spoke on the ex-convict as one who could be reclaimed and cited a number of cases.

There was an interesting discussion as to hospitals, and Mr. John Ross Robertson stated that the hospital for sick children did not receive enough from the public for its maintenance. It was not the wealthy, he said, but principally the people of small means who maintained the hospitals.

MAKING DISTRIBUTION OF SEED GRAIN AND POTATOES

From the Central Experimental Farm at Ottawa—Farmers Should Take Advantage of the Offer

By instruction of the Hon. Minister of Agriculture a distribution is being made this season of samples of superior sorts of grain and potatoes to Canadian farmers for the improvement of seed. The stock for distribution has been secured mainly from the Experimental Farms at Indian Head, Sask., and Brandon, Man. The samples consist of oats, spring wheat, barley, peas, Indian corn (for ensilage only) and potatoes. The quantity of oats sent is 4 lbs., and of wheat or barley 5 lbs., sufficient in each case to sow one-twentieth of an acre. The samples of Indian corn, peas and potatoes weigh 3 lbs. each. A quantity of each of the following varieties has been secured for this distribution:

Barley—Six-rowed — Mensury, Odessa, and Mansfield. Two-rowed—Invincible and Canadian Thorpe.

Field Peas—Arthur and Golden Vine.

Indian Corn, for ensilage — Early sorts, Angel of Midnight, Compton's early and Longfellow; later varieties, Selected Leaming, Early Mastodon and White Cap Yellow Dent.

Potatoes—Early varieties, Rochester Rose, and Irish Cobbler. Medium to late varieties, Carman No. 1, Money Maker, Gold Coin and Dooley. The later varieties are as a rule more productive than the earlier kinds.

Only one sample can be sent to each applicant, hence if an individual receives a sample of oats he cannot also receive one of wheat, barely, peas, Indian corn or potatoes. Lists of names from one individual, or applications for more than one sample for one household, cannot be entertained. The samples will be sent, free of charge through the mail.

Applications should be addressed to the Director of Experimental Farms, Ottawa, and may be sent in any time from the first of December to the 15th of February, after which the lists will be closed, so that the samples asked for may be sent out in good time for sowing. Applicants should mention the variety they prefer, with a second sort as an alternative. Applications will be filled in the order in which they are received so long as the supply of seed lasts. Farmers are advised to apply early to avoid possible disappointment. Those applying for Indian corn or potatoes should bear in mind that the corn is not usually distributed until April and that potatoes cannot be mailed until danger from frost in transit is over. No postage is required on mail matter addressed to the Central Experimental Farm, Ottawa.

WM. SAUNDERS,
Director of Experimental Farms.

HARDING AVOIDS THE STAND AT THE MARINE INQUIRY

Counsel Declares That St. John Official is Unwell as Result of Paralytic Stroke Last Year---Further Evidence Shows Liberality of Merchants With Presents to Government Employees.

St. John, N.B., Nov. 27.—An interesting feature of yesterday's session of the Marine enquiry was the refusal of counsel for Marine Agent Harding to put his client on the stand, saying that he would not be responsible for the result in Mr. Harding's present physical and mental condition.

Harding had a paralytic stroke last year and is now far from well.

Evidence yesterday showed that officials were in the habit of getting small presents frequently and had the privilege of getting goods at contractors stores without paying any bills.

A young lady employed in Harding's office was the first witness in the afternoon. She knew of Mr. Harding making many checks payable to cash, but did not know where they went. Harding only had one bank account, and used it for both departmental and personal purposes.

On account of information contained in a letter received by counsel, Chas. Bradley was summoned. He denounced as a lie the statement that Harding had held back $50 on his account, and that he had to see R. O'Brien of the patronage committee before he could get his money. He afterwards admitted this was practically true about a $30 item.

The firm of J. & F. Watson supplied groceries and were in the habit of sending game and fowls to Mr. Harding as presents.

The local manager of Jas. Robertson Co., Limited, said he did not get as much business from the Department as he would like. Witness was not in the habit of cashing checks for the agent.

C. B. Allan sold large quantities of light house supplies to the Department. He had not pressed for payment of balance of personal account, which the lighthouse inspector had at his store. Mr. Harding had an account with him. It only amounted to $63 in ten years, and he had not enforced payment. It made a difference when a man was giving him business. He did not think it a large matter, and said he "had given larger commissions than that." Harding had once tried to borrow $900 from him, but he had refused.

Although a small dealer Michael Donovan sold $2,600 worth of meat in the last two years to the Department. He had sent a turkey to Harding on Christmas Day.

John A. McAvity was recalled to tell about officials' accounts at his store. They all got wholesale prices on purchases. Some had settled, but Harding's account had not been paid, and Kelly, lighthouse inspector, had unpaid accounts in his own name and his wife's.

Several contractors were heard who had got their supplies by public tender, and who had not been held up by any officials.

At the evening session John Kelly, lighthouse inspector, was heard. Counsel questioned him about large quantities of excess supplies laid in by lighthouses and used by keepers for their own benefit. He refused to admit this, except in one case. Afterwards he admitted having heard of keepers giving oil away or selling it, but his memory was not very clear about this. He also admitted that he was frequently offered presents of various kinds. He did not think there was anything wrong in accepting loans from a contractor.

John Allan, storekeeper, was summoned to tell that Harding was in the habit of storing his own goods in the department's store. He was in the habit of running Harding's launch for him. This was the launch which counsel had heard cost, with fittings, about $10,000.

John M. Driscoll said he did not get lumber contracts now because he was not in the swim. The last time he had tendered the contract was awarded to someone else at a higher price.

Chicago Windstorm Hailed as a Blessing by This Couple.

Windsor, Nov. 27.—One of Chicago's famous windstorms was hailed as an ante-thanksgiving day blessing by one couple, John J. Foley and Miss Josephine Barber, formerly of Windsor.

Foley accompanied Miss Barber to the residence of mutual friends, where the announcement was made that the long-delayed wedding would be celebrated in a short time.

THE DETECTIVES DISAPPEARED

Left Their Hotel Shortly After 10 O'clock Wednesday Night.

Owen Sound, Nov. 27.—When the liquor cases were called yesterday, Mr. Cameron, prosecuting counsel, sprang a surprise by asking for another adjournment.

He stated that two of the three detectives who were expected to give evidence had disappeared. They had left their hotel shortly after 10 o'clock Wednesday night, and had not been seen since. He said he believed they had been spirited away, or had met with foul play.

Mr. Cameron's statement caused quite a sensation in the crowded court room. Mr. Tucker, disclaiming all knowledge of the men, wished to proceed, but the cases were adjourned

Montreal, Nov. 27.—It is stated here that Premier McBride of British Columbia contemplates inviting the premiers of the other provinces of confederation to visit British Columbia next summer and to see for themselves what the Pacific province really possesses in the way of natural resources, and to show that the claims made from time to time by Premier McBride for better treatment at the hands of the Dominion are well founded.

The theory is that the Prime Minister of British Columbia considers that he has more to fear from the local Governments in any future claim he may make upon the Federal authorities than from the Government of the Dominion.

Miss Whitely denied that there was any engagement.

Bellmore said he paid $60 for the ring, but brought suit for $100, claiming he was entitled to its present value. Miss Whitely said she "obtained money on the ring" the inference being that she had visited a pawnbroker, and this was not denied. Decision was reserved.

BANKER'S HOME WAS BROKEN INTO

Burglars Had Heard of Arrival of Big Sum of Money.

Islington, Nov. 27.—D. L. Streight, manager of the local branch of the United Empire Bank, received an unusually large sum of money on Wednesday from the head office in Toronto and placed it in the safe.

At 4.30 yesterday morning three men broke into Mr. Streight's house, 500 yards distant from the bank, and had turned things upside down in the lower part of the house, when Miss Olga Streight heard a noise and awakened the household.

Her father then fired a couple of shots from his revolver, and the would-be burglars, who entered by a back window, made their escape with a few portable articles. Mr. Streight fears that the men had been informed of the arrival of the money, but is at a loss to know how the information could have been secured. There were no indications that an attempt had been made to break into the bank.

STEAMER IS SUNK

Panama Liner Finance Run Down by Freighter at New York.

New York, Nov. 26.—In the thick of a fog off Sandy Hook yesterday, the stout freighter Georgie of the White Star line rammed and sank the lightly-laden Panama line steamer Finance, outward bound, with 85 passengers.

The Finance went down ten minutes after the collision, carrying to their death three of her passengers and one of her crew.

The rest of the passengers, which included 19 women and 14 children, and the others of the crew, were rescued by the boats of the Georgie. The freighter was not damaged.

Of the passengers lost one was a woman, Miss Irene Campbell of Panama, who clung frantically to the rail of the sinking vessel and could not be persuaded to release her hold. Not even by force were the men who manned the small boats able to remove her.

Wm. H. Tedd, third assistant engineer, jumped over board and was lost.

When a roll of the passengers of the Finance was called it was found that Chas. Schweinler, a policeman of Panama, and Mr. Henry Culler, a railway conductor of Panama, had disappeared, and there is little doubt that they were drowned.

The disaster occurred in the main ship channel, of Sandy Hook, at 8 o'clock in the morning, as each vessel was groping her way through a fog that has hampered or held up traffic in local waters for the past three days.

NEW BOAT LAUNCHED

"Hamonic" Takes to the Water.

Big Gathering at Function at Collingwood---Mrs. Gildersleeve Breaks Bottle of Wine.

Collingwood, Nov. 27.—The steamer Hamonic was successfully launched at 2.30 p.m. yesterday. In the absence of Miss Hays, daughter of Chas. M. Hays of Montreal, Mrs. Gildersleeve, wife of H. H. Gildersleeve, manager of the Northern Navigation Co., broke the customary bottle of champagne as the Hamonic sped on the ways to her first submersion in Georgian Bay.

Over 10,000 people witnessed the launching and it will be held as a memorable event in the history of Collingwood. The town took a day off for the occasion, and for hours before the time named thousands were grouped in and around the yards. Many visitors arrived via special train, prominent in transportation and railway circles.

After Mrs. Gildersleeve had officially named the new ship, the crash of the bottle was the signal to cut the fastenings and the great vessel of steel plunged into the water at exactly 2.30 o'clock. The launching took place without a hitch, under the superintendence of Joseph Smith. The whistles of all the boats in the harbor and buildings throughout the town were vigoreusly blown in honor of the occasion.

In the tremendous backwash caused floating timbers were tossed violently about and an Italian had his ankle broken by a section of planking.

When the Hamonic, which is named after President Hammond of the Northern Navigation Co., joins the fleet of that company next June, it will be the fastest and most up-to-date vessel in the Canadian service.

NEGLIGENCE OF EMPLOYEE WAS THE CAUSE OF WRECK

Evidence at Burketon Inquest Points to Lack of Oil to Keep Lamps Going—Switchman Not on Hand—Many Witnesses Testified.

"We, the jury, have decided that Edward Findlay came to his death on Nov. 23rd, 1908, the cause of death being a head-on collision at Sandbank, by the negligence of the employes of the company."

Burketon, Nov. 26.—This was the verdict returned by a jury empanelled by Coroner Dr. Tilley, of Bowmanville, to enquire into the cause of the death of Edward Findlay, who was killed in a head-on collision at Sandbank, on Monday, Nov. 23rd, when two fast C.P.R. freights came together at a siding.

W. F. Kerr, of Cobourg, represented the Crown; J. D. O'Donoghue was here for W. C. Reed, the missing brakeman, who threw the switch; George Walker for the C.P.R., and J. M. Godfrey for Mr. and Mrs. Conroy, Mrs. Findlay and Engineer Hassenfeldt.

The jury were;—Thomas Bailey, William Corbett, John Corbett, Samuel Wright, Jerry Henry, William Hall, Charles Gibson, Hugh McCullough Samuel Robins, Robert Rickers, D. McKnight, Thomas Quick, all coming from the vicinity.

When the evidence had all been heard W. F. Kerr, the Crown counsel, said that as no one knew of the whereabouts of Brakeman Reed, he did not see any reason why the inquest should be closed. It was unfortunate that Reed should not be present so as to give his explanation of the sad affair, but he must take his chances with the jury.

"As regards the whereabouts of W. C. Reed, the brakeman," said Mr. O'Donoghue, "we don't know where he is, but as I appear for his interests I advise him very strongly to come back."

In his charge Coroner Tiley said the evidence showed that the rules of the company had not been carried out, but that they had to return a verdict on the evidence procured and not on what they had talked about on the street. They had heard witnesses say that the switch had been opened by Brakeman Reed without any orders, and if they thought he was the cause they should return a verdict to that effect.

NO OIL.

When William Baldwin was called Lawyer Walker asked for the same protection under the statutes as had been given to Knapp. The witness said he was a section foreman for the C.P.R. and that he supposed it was his duty to keep the lights going on that particular night. Thomas Clydale was the track walker and should have lit them. But he himself knew they had not been lit for the last couple of nights because he had used up all the oil on Thursday night. This oil was usually procured at the station, and there was none there. On Saturday night or Sunday morning Clydale asked the station agent, Mr. Douglas, for oil. When oil was all used up it was his duty to report to D. J. Macdonald, at Peterborough, the roadmaster, but he had not done so because it had slipped his mind. He had only been on the job a short time.

Robert Chisholm, also a section foreman, said that on Saturday he had asked Frank Hall, baggagemaster, for oil and that gentleman said there was none. He usually got his oil at Nestleton. He affirmed positively that he knew there was no oil in the lamps on the east or west switches.

HOSPITALS FOR IMMORALITY

So low has become the tone of public morality in Canada that it is seriously proposed to establish hospitals for moral improvement. The elementary and basic principles of ordinary honesty and clean living will be taught regardless of the rade or creed of the weakling. Tuberculosis, the greatest physical scourage of modern times, is not in the same statistical class with moral leprosy. Spiritual and moral insight has been destroyed. Canadians are considered in the mass blind to their own faults. Utilitarianism and the worship of brass has brought us perilously near to the brink of animalism pure and simple. Mr. Aylesworth is to bring in a Canadian Commissions Bill. Stealing even in high places is eradicable only by law, apparently.

AN INSPECTOR WANTED

An electric wiring inspector is badly needed in Peterborough. We have building inspectors, plumbing inspectors, etc., but no electric wiring inspector. We do not mean to say that the electrical men of Peterborough do not do their work properly. On the contrary, Peterborough is a centre from which emanates much of the wiring and similar work of the Midland district. But in the light of the Underwriters' requirements and alterations demanded there should be a public inspector so that there could be some certainty, as in the case of plumbing, etc., that the work was on each particular job being done according to regulation. Very many fires are due to worn-out insulation, improperly insulated wire, etc. An inspector would prevent much of the risk and loss incurred in this way. Besides, in other places of similar importance inspectors are in charge, and why not here? It is better to be sure than sorry.

BISHOP FARTHING

The choice of Dean Farthing was a good one, but this we must take for granted since it has taken place under divine guidance. The theory that the Creator did all things well is combatted by an eminent English Anglican divine, who shows that He has "corrected" many things that were not right which is alleged He would not have done under the former supposition. In any event the present choice will appeal to those who like to see business and religion kept separate and distinct. There is a truly noble reverence as there is a profound sincerity in the Christianity of Bishop Farthing, which appeals to us. He rises to the august, yet simple, unaffected dignity of his calling. The "pother" over his selection does not, as the Montreal Witness plainly hints in a recent editorial concerning a kindred circumstance, convince anybody of the "mission" to those of the men assembled. The convention bore every evidence of being like any other convention. Perhaps it was. At any rate if, as the public suspects, there is no essential difference between the birth and operation of Christianity and a bun social or a Marathon race, the difficulty of diffusing it amongst thinking men will continue. At least it would so appear. There is a great awakening amongst Christian people in the old land. They have long since lived down and out a vast proportion of the crudity of our religious system. It may be true, as frequently alleged, that if it were not for the social side of our churches they would not live an hour and thrive. What does that prove?

EDITORIAL NOTES

Women are called the weaker sex, but you have noticed that the wife whose word is law never has to call in the militia to enforce it.—Exchange

Compulsory life insurance is the new fad that threatens the liberty of man. Life will not be worth insuring if this sort of thing is to be kept up.

Judge Cassels had not much more than opened his marine department inquiry at St John, NB., when the evidence revealed a state of affairs that drew from him the statement that government officials had been greased. The further this enquiry extends the more damning are the disclosures. It is indeed a disgusting mess and a mess for which the Laurier government must accept full responsibility.—Hamilton Spectator.

All credit to the Toronto Star for its outspoken statement that newspapers and members of Parliament who endeavor to influence constituencies with a promise of public expenditure should be punished. If this sentiment had been embodied in a law last session and if all the Liberal newspapers had followed the same course as they have followed recently most of the Liberal editors of Canada would now be in jail.—Canadian Courier.

A correspondent asks us to dilate upon Liberal antagonism to the Remedial Bill in order to compare it with Conservative hostility to the Autonomy Bill. We really have not time. But we can say that the irritation of the Orange Sentinel at the condemnation of it in 1906 while it was loudly praised in 1896 by the very same people, is both entertaining and instructive. The course of Conservatives in both 1896 and 1906, was consistent throughout. The only sure foundation for a people's principles is respect for the law. Change it, if you like, but respect it while it remains on the statute book, the expressed will of the people.

The "lifting of the lid" at Quebec did not show us a man gone wrong, but the local agency of an entire Government Department acting as if the public treasury were a public fountain from which every man carried off his pailful. It was by no means only the officials of the department who had this notion. Those who sold these officials supplies for the department tell us that they charged retail prices on wholesale transactions as a matter of course. One man says that "they wanted to get all they could," and another man remarked that he charged what he chose they were not on the "patronage list" for nothing. No wonder they were willing to discount their claims with the Chief Agent whether they needed quick money or not; and that they gave "presents" to every employee of the generous department with whom they came in contact. We are even told of a case in which a merchant's book-keeper was distributing cash "presents" to nearly every man he knew in the Government employ, and remarked that it was hard to be giving out all the time and getting nothing in return. At this, the Government employee took the hint and gave him back some of the money he had just given him.—Canadian Courier.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rambling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness—caused by catarrh—that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

Bad For the Foreigners.

The case was one of assault, and the magistrate, fearing that it might be the beginning of another outbreak of hooliganism, was inclined to be severe.

"For the second time," he said, addressing the prisoner, "you are charged with assaulting your neighbor. The evidence shows that you deliberately and without any apparent cause struck the complainant with your clinched fist."

"Faith, yer honor," cried Pat, "if I did he struck me back again!"

"But he only did so in self defense," said the judge.

"An' what about me?" asked Pat.

"All about you," answered the magistrate, "is that you are found guilty and must therefore keep the peace toward all his majesty's subjects for twelve months."

OF INTEREST

Kipling says something somewhere about the futility of any six-cylinder man going east of Suez and trying to "hustle the East." But here is the story of one Leigh Hunt who not only hustled the East, but came back to his native heath (Washington state) and paid off over a million dollars of indebtedness with the proceeds of his Oriental liveliness. How did he do it? Mines. Fourteen years ago Mr. Hunt, in debt a million dollars through the financial panic and a combination of unfortunate circumstances, left Seattle, where he had been owner of the Post Intelligencer and promoter of a number of enterprises, including the steel mills at Kirkland, Washington, the operation of the Monte Cristo mines, and the building of Seattle and Everett, Washington projects in which he had interested Russell A. Alger, James S. Clarkson, T. C. Platt, John D. Rockefellow and others. Mr. Hunt went first to Japan and then to China, but not meeting with the success he anticipated, drifted to Korea, where he found rich ore being mined and worked on the most primitive manner.

He proposed to the representative of the Crown to bring a machine from America, which, operated by two men, would crush more ore in a day than a thousand Koreans working by hand. His offer was accepted, and a ten-stamp mill purchased for the Monte Cristo mines was shipped. Mr. Hunt installed the machinery himself, and made good his word. In return he was given a mining concession 10 per cent. of the gross receipts going to the Emperor. The first machine paid for the installment of the others, crushing the Oriental ore. The Emperor of Korea began to get quite chummy after this, and Hunt graduated into the philanthropic class. He established free hospitals throughout the country. Native Koreans are a softish race, easily affected by disease. The whole country was having trouble with its eyes. Hunt called in occulists by the squad and the platoon. The natives caught on. Now they know how to take care of their eyes over there. Hustle the East? Yes, indeed. until Hunt had more than 120 stamps

His friend, the Emperor, needed a trifle of $5,000,000. Could Mr. Hunt negotiate a loan? He could. He took the next train to St. Petersburg, talked to the Czar about the possibility of the Japs sneaking in and grabbing Korea if the five million wasn't there to stop them—and he got the five. After some years in Korea, Mr. Hunt sent word back to Seattle he was returning to liquidate all indebtedness. He literally came back with bells on, in Oriental style, traveling with a retinue of servants, like a true Nabob. He had no account books, but called in every creditor, no matter whether the claim was outlawed or not, and every friend and acquaintance who had lost by investing in his schemes, and paid the full amount of the loss, together with 8 per cent. interest.

Leaving Seattle again, he went to Africa, the British and Egyptian governments granting him land concessions said to total 4,000,000 or 5,000,000 acres. A small track of something like 10,000 acres was put under cultivation as an experiment, Mr. Hunt's plan being for the construction of big reservoirs to store the flow of the Nile when its volume was greatest. Mr. Hunt returned to America a few months ago and was introduced to President Roosevelt by James S. Clarkson of New York. His stories of hunting big game in Africa, told over the White House dinner table, the President's imagination and the proposed ex-Presidential hunting trip is the result.—Hampton's Broadway Magazine.

Write With Both Hands.

Sir Edwin Arnold once stated that one of the many evidences of Japanese common sense is the custom of teaching children to write with either or both hands. Charles Reade, through arguments in his writings, converted many persons to become ambidextrous, and it is a gift or an acquisition greatly to be desired by those who wield a pen. To be able to change the pen from one hand to the other at the first premonition of weariness would relieve many a weary hour and perhaps prevent writers' cramp. Thomas Jefferson while American minister to France broke his right wrist, but with little trouble learned to write with his left hand. That was before the days of the typewriter, and without the use of both hands it would have been impossible later for Jefferson to carry on his voluminous correspondence. Instead of wasting time and patience trying to break a naturally left handed child from using the pen in that hand, would it not be better to teach him to use both hands equally well? An adult whose muscles are no longer supple can learn to write with the left hand in one week, and in one year the handwriting of one hand will be as good as that of the other.

For the Woman Who Travels.

One of the most useful garments for the woman traveler by sea or her sister who must take a sleeper for a land journey is a black china silk negligee. Let it be cut with ample fullness both back and front full length to the floor, open in front and finished with a sailor collar. A dressy touch may be given by edging the collar and sleeves with lace and jaboting lace down either side of the front. Fasten the front with ribbon bows at intervals of eight inches. The garment takes but small compass, does not show the effect of close packing and may be substituted for the bulky bath robe on shipboard or in the sleeper. Those who have been the fortunate possessors of such an acquisition to the wardrobe cannot speak enthusiastically enough of the comfort coming from its use.

CATTLE MARKETS.

Toronto Live Stock.

TORONTO, Nov. 26.—Receipts of live stock at the City Market, as reported by the railways for Wednesday and Thursday, were 132 carloads, consisting of 1446 cattle, 5509 hogs, 1692 sheep and lambs, with 35 calves.

Exporters.

None on sale; at least, there were no loads, and, what is more, we did not hear of any cattle selling at $5 per cwt. since Monday at the Union Stock Yards. There were no sales of exporters reported, excepting a few bulls, and they were not in demand, the best bull selling at $4 per cwt., which weighed 1770 lbs.

Butchers.

The pick of the market sold at $4.40 and $4.50; the best loads, $4 to $4.25 per cwt., and there were few loads [illegible] medium, $3.60 to $3.90; common, $2.80 to $3.50; canners and bologna bulls, $1 to $2.

Feeders and Stockers.

H. & W. Murby report a small run in this line this week with prices ranging about same as last week, altho trade was a little brisker. Messrs. Murby bought about 250 head this week at following quotations: Best feeders, 950 to 1100 lbs. each, at $3.65 to $4 per cwt.; best feeders, 800 to 900 lbs. each, at $3.25 to $3.75; stockers, 600 to 700 lbs. each, at $2.90 to $3.15; common and medium stockers, 500 to 600 lbs. each, at $1.75 to $2.30.

Milkers and Springers.

Deliveries of milkers and springers were moderate, and for the first time in several months the market could not be called brisk, altho high prices were still paid, but as a rule quotations were from $5 to $8 per head cheaper owing to light demand from Montreal and Quebec. Prices ranged, as a rule, from $40 to $60, with two or three cows at $65; common cows, $25 to $35 each.

Veal Calves.

Receipts light, with prices unchanged at $3 to $6 per cwt., with $6.25 to $6.50 for two or three milk-fed.

Sheep and Lambs.

A moderate run of about 1700 sheep and lambs caused the market to be from 10c to 15c per cwt. firmer for the two days. Export ewes sold at $3.25 to $3.60 per cwt.; rams, $2 to $2.50 per cwt.; lambs, $4.25 to $4.50, with select lots of ewes and wethers at $4.60 to $4.65 per cwt.

Hogs.

Receipts for the two days were large—5500 from all sources. Mr. Harris reported selects at $6.25 fed and watered, and lights $6 at the market.

Cheese Markets.

BELLEVILLE, Ont., Nov. 26.—Offerings to-day 301 white and 45 colored; 11c to 11 1-16c bid. None sold. Board adjourned to meet April 17, 1909.

KINGSTON, Nov. 26.—At the final meeting to-day of the Frontenac Cheese Board, some 314 boxes were offered and 129 were sold at 11c to Mr. Kerr.

Britain's Big Drink Bill.

London, Nov. 27.—(C. A. P.)—The Lord Bishop of London, advocating the second reading of the Licensing Bill, said that last year Sir Wilfrid Laurier and indeed all Canadians were horrified at the extent of the British drink bill. In proportion to the population Canada drank only one-quarter what the Mother Country did. In America women never entered the public houses.

The Times points out that the bishop does not seem to have taken any account of the difference in the price of liquors here, where drinkers contribute largely to the revenue, and in Canada.

Good System In Canada.

London, Nov. 27.—In reference to the statement of the Premier of South Australia regarding the vacant governorship of the state, namely, "There is no position of honor in South Australia which should be regarded as beyond the reach of our most distinguished citizens," the Earl of Crewe states that, if Australians desire to adopt the Canadian system, the Imperial Government would probably be disposed to agree.

Accidents In October.

Ottawa, Nov. 27.—Of the 241 industrial accidents occurring in October, according to the Department of Labor's report, 79 were fatal, which is 23 less than the previous month and 61 less than in October of last year. The non-fatal accidents numbered 162, which was 8 more than the preceding month and 144 less than October last year.

Halbert Dies of Burns.

Brantford, Nov. 27.—George Halbert, injured here on Wednesday by an explosion of a torch lamp, succumbed to his injuries yesterday afternoon. Halbert endeavored to refill the lamp with oil without extinguishing the light.

Burglars Make Sweep.

Montreal, Nov. 27.—Burglars made such a clean sweep in the house of Wilfrid Potvin two nights ago that when the family returned they had to go to a hotel to sleep. Even the bedding was taken.

ASPHODEL PEOPLE BADLY INJURED IN A RUNAWAY

Norwood, Nvo. 25.—As Mr. and Mrs. Geo. H. Parker, of Asphodel, were coming to town last Thursday forenoon, near Mr. Sedgwick's residence about a mile west of the village, the front wheels of their buggy dropped into a channel in the road, washed out by the water running down from the hill opposite Ford's line, which caused the reach of the vehicle to give way and let the box drop down into road. Mr. and Mrs. Parker were both pitched out on their heads and were somewhat cut and bruised by the fall, besides Mrs. Parker had two of her front teeth knocked out. The sudden jar also broke the hind axle of the buggy. The noise and suddenness of accident frightened the horse which struck off at a fast pace towards the village with the front wheels of the vehicle, and never stopped until it reached the Methodist church sheds, where it had been accustomed to turning.

TRAPPER WAS MAROONED ON A STONY LAKE SHORE

Stony Lake, Nov. 25.—The other day an old time trapper and hunter who has been about the lake for the past thirty years, went out in the afternoon to see his traps and see if there was anything in those he had set. Being an old trapper he did not take the necessary precaution to secure his canoe; he just stepped out of it and pulled the bow up on a log and went away to look at his traps, but when when he returned found that the swell had washed his boat off the log and it had drifted out of his reach. Here he was like Robinson Crusoe of old, but he was possessed with a good pair of lungs so he commenced to call for help so lustily that he alarmed the whole neighborhood. He was heard for miles away, and several parties went to the lake to find out what was wrong and to give assistance if necessary. Some men working on Quarry island were the first to reach the scene and found that he had swam out a short distance to the canoe. The quarry men got him home wet and cold, but it has been learned he was nothing the worse of his cold bath.

SOME NEWS OF "HAZEL BRAE"

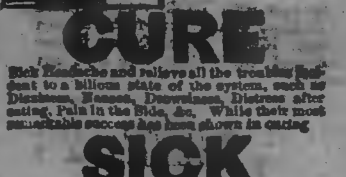
There is a sombre side to the brightest happenings in life, and as we watch the construction of the building at "Hazel Brae" and the rapid progress of the alterations and improvements that will make it, when completed, one of the finest and best appointed institutions of its kind in Canada, we cannot help saying to ourselves, "if the Doctor could but have seen this!" He always delighted in "Hazel Brae," and the circumstances under which it came to be one of his Homes. He had an immense admiration and affection for Senator Cox and he always felt sure that when when the Senator once realized the need of further accommodation in order to keep pace with the growth of the work, it would not be withheld. And now everything is being provided that will meet all possible requirements of the work on the most generous scale, and we shall never again have reason for anxiety as to housing and providing for the largest parties that are likely to be sent out. There will be a Home to receive the little travellers at the end of their long journey by sea and land, where they will find, indeed, "all the comforts of home."

Besides the fine, airy dormitories and the spacious dining room contained in the new wing, intended specially to accommodate newly arrived parties, all the other requirements of the institution are being amply provided for. "Hazel Brae" has to serve for many other purposes than that of a receiving and distributing house for parties from England. It is a home and refuge for all sorts and conditions of young people. It is the place where we welcome old girls who find themselves able to take a little holiday and make a little visit to the old Home. Girls who are run down, and want a little rest and mothering to build them up again, find their way to "Hazel Brae," and in this way it has been a house of rest and convalescent home to a good many scores of young women who have had reason to be thankful for its shelter. It is the hospital that stands ready to open its doors at any hour of the day or night to any sick one among our girl family. Many of the cases received require much skilful nursing and close watching, and the infirmary is the scene of some of Miss Pierce's most arduous labors. The new infirmary will be an immense boon to both nurse and patients, and will supply a longfelt want. But we have our moral as well as our physical invalids to care for at "Hazel Brae." It has to serve as a house of correction for ill-doers, and we are glad to think it has been the point of departure for many a fresh start after previous failure that has ended in genuine reformation. We are not suggesting that more room is required for our naughty girls, but we would like to give a hint to those young persons whose lines of conduct is leading in the direction of a return to the Home, that, in future, there will be facilities offered for private meditation upon their past misdeeds that hitherto we have not been able to afford them. "Hazel Brae" is, of course, the headquarters of the secretarial work with the ever-increasing inpour and outpour of correspondence. There are very few offices in the country where from day to day a greater volume of work is turned out, or where the work increases so rapidly. It will now be possible for Miss Kennedy and her staff to extend their borders with much advantage to themselves and their work. Most of the lady workers live at "Hazel Brae," and, of late, Miss Pearce has had no easy task to provide room in the staff quarters for the increasing numbers of her household. When the alterations are finally completed, we shall hope everybody will be comfortable, and that, as far as house-room is concerned, every need will be met.

Never, we should think, has work been done so pleasantly and with so little inconvenience to the inmates of the establishment or disturbance of the regular routine. We know the sort of terror that the idea of a lot of workmen in the place raises in the mind of anyone responsible for a houseful of young females, including sick and whole, discreet and indiscreet. We had a vision of Miss Pierce's hair growing grey and Miss Kennedy permanently ageing under the strain and worry, and we conceived the possibilities and demoralizations of the establishment. None of these gloomy forebodings have been in the slightest degree justified. There has not been a disagreeable incident during all the work has been in progress, and from Mr. Wilson the Superintendent of the work down to the youngest brush hand, everybody has been considerate, courteous and pleasant as it was possible for them to be. The ordinary routine of the household has gone on uninterruptedly, even though just when the work was at its height the party from England arrived and was distributed. When it is considered that in addition to the building of the new wing, the whole house has been painted and papered throughout, a new staircase put in, several partitions removed, and fresh doorways cut, that for the installation of the steam heating almost every floor has been cut and every wall pierced, those who have had experience in such matters can readily imagine what an amount of annoyance might have been caused had the work been in different hands. As it is, we can but express our high and grateful appreciation of the unfailing kindness and consideration we have received, and we beg Mr. Wilson and his men of all trades employed to accept our cordial thanks. We venture to think they have established a record in the building trade by carrying on such an extensive and important job into public institution with so little distress or inconvenience to its inmates.

The work is not yet completed, but it is only now a matter of two or three weeks before the new building will be ready for completion. We do not quite know, as yet, what we shall be able to attempt in the way of a house-warming. We should like, if it were possible, to gather together a goodly number of the old girls for the occasion. The season of the year is not very favorable for this however, and it may not be possible of accomplishment; but if they cannot do so in person we know well that in heart our girls will pass a very unanimous and and heart-felt vote of thanks to Senator Cox for his noble generosity to the work.

We have received two parties of little maidens from England since our last issue and the immigration work proper is over for the season. There has been a slight drop in the total this year as compared with last year—314 as against 340. We are, of course, sorry for this falling off, as we like to feel that we are going ahead; but many causes which there would be no advantage in discussing have conspired to curtail our numbers. The average age is decidedly lower than in any previous year. For this we have no regrets. Of course the demand is greater for older and more experienced girls and if we were simply an employment agency we should like to see the parties consist of girls from 14 to 18. We are not here however, simply to find servants for mistresses, but to aid in opening up a bright, happy future in the new country to children who could have had no such prospects at home. The younger they can come to us the better, and we welcome and want the "bairnies" never mind how wee they may be. Certainly the last two parties particularly the second contained some of the prettiest, jolliest, bonniest, nicest little lassies that ever came to any country. They have gone to bring sweetness and brightness to many homes in Canada and in the years to come we hope to see them in happy homes of their own.



CURE Sick Headache and relieve all the troubles incident to a bilious state of the system, such as Dizziness, Nausea, Drowsiness, Distress after eating, Pain in the Side, &c. While their most remarkable success has been shown in curing

SICK Headache, yet Carter's Little Liver Pills are equally valuable in Constipation, curing and preventing this annoying complaint, while they also correct all disorders of the stomach, stimulate the liver and regulate the bowels. Even if they only cured

HEAD Ache they would be almost priceless to those who suffer from this distressing complaint; but fortunately their goodness does not end here, and those who once try them will find these little pills valuable in so many ways that they will not be willing to do without them. But after all sick head

ACHE is the bane of so many lives that here is where we make our great boast. Our pills cure it while others do not.

Carter's Little Liver Pills are very small and very easy to take. One or two pills make a dose. They are strictly vegetable and do not gripe or purge, but by their gentle action please all who use them.

Great Herring Run.

London, Ont., Nov. 27.—Mr. J. A. Wilson of this city, who was in Port Stanley yesterday in the interests of the fish houses, said yesterday that the disposal of the immense quantity of fish caught this week is becoming an urgent question. On Monday the run started with 55 tons of herring taken; on Tuesday 75 tons were caught, and Wednesday 100 tons were brought in. This is a record run in the history of Lake Erie.

Attacks Wife With Knife.

Chatham, Nov. 27.—John Hales a farmer near Dresden, was arrested on a charge of attempted wife murder.

It is alleged that Hales had a dispute with his wife and attacked her with a knife. A Miss Fleming of Dawn Valley, who was visiting Mrs. Hales, attempted to rush out of the house to alarm the neighbors and, it is alleged, she was also attacked.

Trial has been set for Friday.

Guilty of Arson.

Laporte, Ind., Nov. 27.—Ray Lamphere, charged with arson and the murder of Mrs. Belle Guinness and her three children, by setting fire to the Guinness' house on April 28, was found guilty of arson last evening by the jury which had the case under consideration for 24 hours.

In October 241 work people in Canada were injured and of those 79 died.

Behman's Compromise.

By W. F. Bryan.

Copyrighted, 1908, by Associated Literary Press.

For a third time the "By Request" sign was hung in front of the music stand, and as Arthur Behman came slowly down the stairs from the restaurant on the upper deck the strains of "The Merry Widow" waltz filled the social hall. Behman fled.

It was not so bad on the forward deck, where the scraping of catgut was replaced by the music of the waves. Now and then the deep toned whistle sounded above the noise of the water, but a smart breeze from dead ahead carried aft the sound of the man made music.

It was cool, almost cold, on the forward deck, and considerations of comfort as well as culture held the people inside the cabin. Behman was glad that it was so.

He had the deck to himself, so he lit a cigar and took a camp chair well ahead of the deck lights, shaded toward the bow that the port lights might be more easily seen by other boats.

There was no moon, but the stars shone brightly in the cloudless sky, and the Milky way, like some phantom banner, streamed across the blue expanse. Beyond the dark waters a darker tone told of the land, and here and there the lights of the beacons winked solemnly into the night.

There was the smell of salt in the air, the tang of the sea that Behman loved, and for the first time in weeks he almost knew content.

It was worth while, this communion of the night and the sea, and Behman was grateful to the musicians who had driven him from the cabin, with its satin upholstered chairs and its gaping occupants.

Somewhere inside sat Nell Wheaton. He had seen her in the dining saloon, and he had taken a seat close to the stairs—and the music—that he might be as far from her as possible.

He had no mind to let her think that he would seek to attract her attention. He knew that she had learned that her jealousy was entirely without foundation. It was her place to speak first. Probably she was in there, with other tourists, listening to the band.

He was better off here in the cool of the summer evening. It was a symbol perhaps. He was far better off, after all, even if she had broken the engagement, and he had vowed that life was no longer worth the living.

Down on the lower deck a boyish laugh rang out. Half a dozen youngsters were crowded into the sharp bow and were leaning over the rail watching the white fall of water on either side of the prow.

Their voices came to Behman vaguely and indistinctly, and he smiled indulgently as he caught the note of youth and love of life. He had felt like a boy himself only a week ago.

Now he was a man who would carry through life the thought that a woman's jealousy and a woman's pride had spoiled his career. Let the boys have their laugh. Their awakening would come all too soon.

Behman found it rather pleasant to sit and dream of the last few weeks. He was at the stage where self commiseration is a balm to wounded feelings, and he went over the incidents that had resulted in the breaking of the engagement by Nell Wheaton, assuring himself that his course had been blameless.

Surely it was Nell's place to speak, and as he started out into the night Behman found pleasant occupation in wondering just how she would make apology.

She was clearly in the wrong, and it would never do to bow to her before marriage. He would be henpecked all his life, and Behman hated the sight of a henpecked man.

He would be rather stern at first. He might even make her plead a little, but in the end he would be magnanimous and would forgive her on her promise not to offend again.

For her own sake as well as his, for the sake of their future happiness, there must be no compromise. He had hinted as much to Bob Wheaton when the latter had offered his services as peacemaker between his sister and Behman.

So engrossed was Behman with his thoughts that he did not hear the light footfall on the canvas covered deck nor realize that his solitude had been intruded upon until Nell Wheaton stood beside the rail and looked out across the foam capped waves.

She did not see him until she had taken her stand beside the rail, and then she was too proud to beat a retreat. She stood quietly looking down upon the water, one hand clasping the rail, the other clutching her hat.

On the lower deck the boys had piled into chairs, and now one of them was playing on the mouth organ. He was rather skillful and played with expression bits of popular songs and snatches from current musical productions. Behman found this concert more musical than the efforts of the poorly paid band within doors.

Then the music changed from new to old, and the boy was playing some of the songs that Nell had softly sung in the weeks just gone as he had paddled the canoe or had drifted with the current.

In the dark of the night Behman could see the river again, with Nell's sweet eyes looking into his through the soft moonlight.

He wondered if she, too, recalled the scene and if her eyes were filled with tears now. His own were moist as he listened, and when the boy struck up the song that had been their favorite his teeth met together through his cigar, and he tossed it over the rail.

This was a simple little southern air, half mournful, wholly musical, and she had always sung it as they had come in sight of the landing.

It had been their good night song, and as they had trudged up from the boat stage to the hotel she had always hummed it softly to herself. He wondered if she was humming it now. She might be. The wind would carry the song away from him.

The boy stopped, and the spell was broken, but another lad broke the silence.

"That last was pretty, Dunc," he called. "Play 'er ag'in."

The willing musician complied, and Behman rose to his feet. He could not sit still under that music, and he took a few nervous turns up and down the deck.

He came to rest beside the rail, so close that he could reach out and touch the girl had he desired.

She had removed her glove, and one bare hand rested white against the white of the rail. Her face was turned from him, and she was looking out across the sound, pretending an interest in one of the winking beacons whose lights she could not see through her tears.

The young musician ended his tune and without pause began to play another, a farewell song that had been familiar to Behman since his childhood.

He knew that it was a favorite of Nell's, and he wondered if the song would make her speak. There was a lift to the fragile shoulders, as though she was holding back her sobs, but she gave no sign of being aware of his presence.

The music paused abruptly in the middle of a strain, as the mother of the player came to call him to bed, and with a shout the little party hurried into the cabin.

Nell paused a moment, then turned as though to go, but a hand rested over her own and held the slender fingers firmly with a grip that pained.

"I thought that you would not even compromise," she said uncertainly.

"Compromise be hanged!" he cried. "I don't care what you think of me. I'm tired of waiting for you to be the first to speak. Will you be friends, dear?"

He felt the relaxation of her attitude, and he drew her within the circle of his arm.

"Is that the way you treat your friends?" she demanded, with a laugh.

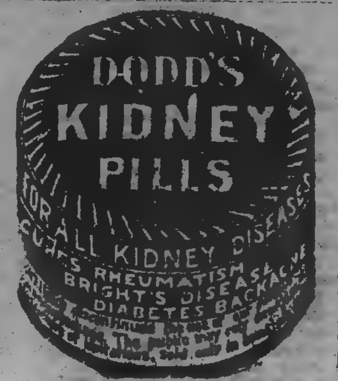
"That's the way I treat bad little girls," he explained. "I've been bad too. If you want to punish me, why"—

He paused suggestively, but Nell only tapped his bronzed cheek with her hand.

"It was punishment enough to have to break your no compromise declaration," she said lightly.

"That was not a punishment," was the fervent assertion. "I enjoyed it. I'm glad I found it out, because now after we're married there'll be no need of compromise."

"There'll be no need for making up," promised Nell as she slipped her arm through his.



Hamilton Unemployed Parade.

Hamilton, Nov. 27.—Because the Board of Works did not pass a by-law Wednesday night allowing the Cataract Railways access to the barns, the company is building, the company yesterday morning stopped the work, and threw some 130 laborers out of employment. The laborers paraded the streets with a placard saying that the action of the council had thrown 400 men out of work. Mayor Stewart, Ald. McLaren and other members of the council said that such tactics would not stampede them.

May Recall Ambassador.

Vienna, Nov. 27.—If the Turkish boycott of Austrian trade does not cease by Dec. 2, Marquis Pallacini, the Austrian ambassador, will leave Constantinople. Negotiations concerning Bosnia and Herzegovina will cease also and a charge d'affaires will be appointed.

Reschid Pasha, the newly-appointed Turkish ambassador, will not be here for some months and it is thought Turkey is stiffening her attitude towards the two provinces.

Arithmetic Made Easy.

The class in business arithmetic in one of the evening schools is made up wholly of men who wield the pickax and push the shovel during the day. These men are ambitious to improve their minds, and the fact that they give up their evenings to study shows that they appreciate the value of a trained mind. But they are pathetically stupid in some things.

"On the first evening," said the teacher, "I asked the class, 'How much is six times two?' There was no apparent desire to shirk the question, but no amount of head scratching or knitting of brows could bring forth an answer.

"'I'll put the question in another way,' said I. 'Suppose your boss is paying you at the rate of $2 a day, how much do you get at the end of a week's work?'

"Every man had his hand up. 'Twelve dollars,' said one in the first row.

"These men can think in dollars and cents quickly enough," said the teacher, "but figures are Greek to them."—New York Press.

A Common Mistake About Glasses

Many persons think themselves afflicted with some disease of the eye—believe their eyes need medical or surgical treatment—because they are conscious of physical pain or some impairment of the vision, when their whole visual trouble is caused by some error of refraction than can be remedied by proper glasses. No medicine or operation can relieve such cases. Being prejudiced against wearing glasses, even rapidly failing vision sometimes fails to convince them of the truth until too late. How often we hear the remark, "I won't wear glasses as long as I can see without." Just such a vow has ruined many a pair of good eyes. Don't be foolish—IF YOU NEED GLASSES, GET THEM.

BRAKEMAN HAD LEG CUT OFF

Special to the Review.

Lindsay, Nov. 23—A distressing accident occurred in the Grand Trunk yards this morning about 10.45, o'clock in the vicinity of the freight sheds, when a young brakeman, T A Capstick, had his right leg amputated by being run over by the short yard engine—a yard shunter.

No persons seems to know just exactly how the accident happened but it is stated that he was running alongside of the engine and made a quick jump for the front of the engine as he was going to ride on the cow catcher for a short distance. In some manner his foot slipped on the ground and the unfortunate young fellow was almost pitched headlong in front of the heavy locomotive. As it was his foot slipped in front of the cow catcher and before he had time to jerk it aside it was pinned and the heavy wheels passed over his leg, crushing it to pieces.

TO PROPAGATE BLACK BASS

Site For Fish Pond Selected Near Healey Falls

The site for a fish pond for the propagation of black bass has been selected by the Public Works Department in a small tributary of the Trent River at Healey Falls. The creek in which it is to be made will require to be dredged out and the bottom covered with gravel. A dam with slide will also be constructed so as to keep the water uniform in depth. The surface area will be about three hundred feet in length by one hundred in breadth. Work will probably be done this winter to make the pond ready for use in the spring and local anglers are rejoicing at the thought of the benefit the fishing will receive in this vicinity and also throughout the province.

COURT CHEMONG'S FINE CONCERT

Large Attendance at Sons England Hall Last Night---Programme of Much Merit

The Sons of England Hall was packed last night at the concert given under the auspices of Court Chemong, Independent Order of Foresters. Morgan, M.A., the well known vocalist and entertainer of the Foresters, were received with much applause. A reading by Mr John Allen was received in a similar manner. A splendid address "On the Objects and Benefits of the Independent Order of Foresters," was given by Mr. W. H. Lowrie, of Russell, Ont., High Chief Ranger for Eastern Ontario. Two selections on the bagpipes by Mr. T. S. MacKay caused great enthusiasm. An excellent recitation was given by Mr. J. Rummett, and Mr. J. C. Morgan gave an address on Forestry that was one of the features of the programme.

WILL STOP FAST MOTORING IN PETERBOROUGH COUNTY

County Council Offers Reward of Twenty-five Dollars for Information Leading to Conviction of Too Speedy Drivers -- Thursday's Session

The County Council was in committee all day Wednesday and until late yesterday afternoon.

At yesterday's meeting it was decided to offer a reward of twenty-five dollars for information leading to the conviction of anyone guilty of driving a motor car at too fast a speed on any road in the county.

In some counties the councils are trying to have the Ontario Act amended but the Peterborough County Council realizing the efficiency of the present law have decided to enforce it. By offering a reward it is hoped that the careless drivers will be dealt with.

The committee appointed to report on the Warden's address presented their report which was received and adopted.

On motion of Messrs Fife and Russell, the by-law re auctioneer licenses was amended to read "That any license issued would expire one year from date of issue," and that the County Solicitor be authorised to prepare such by-law, to receive its several readings during the session.

On motion of Messrs Fife and Breault, the Council expressed its satisfaction with the Dickson Brother' of Campbellford, contracts with the Council during 1908. The contracts were as follows—North River bridge, Belmont; Victoria St. bridge, Norwood, Armstrong bridge, Otonabee.

The Council also expressed itself similarly with the sub-structure contractors, viz., Messrs Smith & Aikens, North River bridge abutments; John Drisdale & Son, Armstrong bridge abutments.

On motion of Messrs Russell and Fife, the clerk was authorized to notify all county constables of their powers in regard to pack peddlers, referring to the section governing the same—Section 24, chap, 22, Ed. VII, page 100, 1904.

On motion of Messrs. Graham and Moore, the by-laws regulating fees of pack peddlers was amended to read "$25 per year to expire one year from date of issue."

The meeting then adjourned.

At Wednesday's short session it was moved by Councillors Hales and Russell, that Mr C R D Booth, recently appointed police magistrate for part of the county, be paid for his services, the sum of $200 per annum and also all fees pertaining to the office.

Ald. Bailey will be the Conservative candidate for Mayor of Hamilton.

The 24th regiment of Chatham, may disband as a result of its Quebec trip.

WEDDING BELLS

THOMPSON—HUGILL

The marriage of Miss Edith K. Hugill, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. S. P. Ford to Mr. Kenneth G. C. Thomson, son of the late Rev. C. E. Thomson, of West Toronto, was solemnized at Christ church, Norwood, on Wednesday evening at 8.30 o'clock by the Rev. E. W. Pickford, assisted by the Rev. Canon Tremayne, of Mimico, in the presence of a large number of guests and friends.

Mendelssohn's wedding march played by Miss Gwendolene Sherry, announced the coming of the bride, preceded by the ushers, Mr. R. C. Street, Mr. F. B. McCleary and Dr. Weldon. Dr. Ford escorted his daughter, who was attended by her sister, Miss Lillian E. Hugill.

The bride was attired in a gown of white messeline silk with pearl trimming and veil and cluster of lily of the valley and carried white chrysanthemums.

The bridesmaid was gowned in pink Lansdowne silk. She wore a black satin hat with plume and carried pink chrysanthemums.

After the ceremony the guests assembled at the home of the bride's parents, where a reception was held and refreshments served. Pink and white chrysanthemums and smilax composed the floral decorations of the home and made a very pretty combination.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomson left by the midnight train, the bride's going away dress being a brown broadcloth suit with a large brown velvet hat with plume.

The guests from a distance were Miss Blanche Moore, Boston, Mass.; Mrs. G. G. McDonald Detroit, Mich.; Mr. J. B. Cannon, Detroit, Mich.; Mr. S. R. Hart, Detroit, Mich.; Mr. and Mrs. Shortly, Peterborough; Mr and Mrs. A. P. Brown, Peterborough; Rev. Canon Tremayne, Mimico; Mr. R. C. Street, Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Thomson and the Misses Thomson, Trenton; Mr. Wm. C. Thomson, Toronto; Mr. F. B. McCleary, Merrickville; Mrs. W. M. Fowlds and the Misses Fowlds, Hastings.

MACLAREN—MONTGOMERY

Lakefield, Nov. 26—The Presbyterian church on Wednesday afternoon, was the scene of a most interesting social event, the occasion being the marriage of Miss Lillian, only daughter of Mr and Mrs. Samuel Montgomery, to Mr Frederick MacLaren, of Montreal, and formerly of Lakefield. The church was prettily decorated with flowers, foliage, etc., the work of the friends of the bride. The ceremony was performed by the Rev John Bedford, pastor of the Methodist church, the church being filled to the doors with friends and well wishers. The bride entered the church leaning on the arm of her father, Mendelssohn's wedding march being played by Mrs J Harry Sherin. The bride was attired in a very becoming travelling suit of green broadcloth with hat to match, and carried an armful of white chrysanthemums. The bridesmaid, Miss Cora Lightfoot, of Montreal, was dressed in brown broadcloth and carried pink chrysanthemums. Mr Chas. Patrick acted as groomsman. After the ceremony and while the bridal party was registering, Mrs H G. Fitzgerald sang 'O' Promise Me.' A reception was then held at the residence of the bride's parents. The happy couple drove to Peterborough and left on the five o'clock C.P.R. train for Niagara Falls, Buffalo and other western points. On their return they will take up their residence in Montreal. The bride was the recipient of a large number of handsome and valuable presents, testifying in no small measure to her popularity. The best wishes of hosts of friends follow Mr. and Mrs MacLaren to their new home.

McILROY'S PACIFICS WIN EXCITING GAME OF SERIES

In the most exciting game of the league series yet played Martin's strong trio succumbed to the prowess of McIlroy's Pacifics at the P.B.C. alleys last night, the Martingales dropping two of the three games to their opponents.

The result of these games exemplifies in a remarkable way the peculiarities of bowling. Martin's team though they lost having set up records all along the line. Martin for example, set a new mark for a single game at 236, supplanting Ned LaPlant whose mark of 212 has stood since the opening night. The losers also had the best single game to date, 548 being the mark hung up. Further still their total for the three games—1468— also constitutes a record for the league. And yet they lost.

The work of Jack Connors was one of the features of the evening. He has not rolled all summer, but despite this handicap it was due to his bowling that the Pacifics managed to pull out a victory in the first game. Both McIlroy and Lillie were off color in the opening game but bowled in form in the last two games, the last named having a little the better of the argument in the total score.

It was announced at the club this morning that a new competition will be opened early next month for a handsome and valuable trophy. The trophy is in the form of a punch bowl standing on three silver ten pins mounted on an ebony base, and it will be offered for individual competition, the younger bowlers to be allotted generous handicaps so that even the newest trundler will have an equal chance to land the valuable prize. Full particulars will be given at the alleys.

The scores last night follow;

McILROY.

RUNNING

Alfred Shrubb the great English foot runner, who has been trying so faithfully to arrange a series of races with Tom Longboat, has so far been unsuccessful in his attempt. At a recent conference between himself and Tom Flanagan, the Indian's famous manager, the outcome of the meeting seemed to leave everything the same as before the meeting, neither side agreeing with each other's proposals. Shrubb wants the shorter races first, while Flanagan said "No, the long race first, or no race at all." But whatever way these two runners arranged matters before they departed from each other, it is very evident that they will soon have to race each other's heads off before the title of champion of America can be decided in either one's favor. It seems that one of them is shirking from an almost impossible position of racing one another. But as for Longboat, he looks as though he will go after the easy money first, and take after Tommy Burns, the fighter, when he has conquered all the live ones, and then make Shrubb come after him for the title. So far Tom has been very successful in his professional debut, winning all his races very easily and picking up the long green besides. He has already made arrangements to run Dorando the great Italian runner, who beat Hayes, the American crack, in their 25 mile race at Madison Square Gardens, a matched race at 15 miles to be run in the 74th armoury building in Buffalo, on the 15th of December. It looks as though the Indian would beat him at that distance, as Longboat holds the Canadian record for 5 miles and will try to kill his sturdy opponent off in the early stages of the game. But before that time Longboat will have run quite a few races in different towns and cities in the States.

Shrubb will run a three mile relay at Brockville on Monday night. Next week he appears here on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday under local auspices and will run against roller skaters and foot runners.

SPORTING TALK

ALASKA WHEAT A FAKE.

Many Experts Have Set Seal of Disapproval on It.

Alaska wheat, trailed to its lair by a farm machinery man, has been pronounced unworthy of the attention of the farmers of the northwest who may have become interested in it through its extensive advertising east and west.

A thresher manufacturing firm has received a letter from one of its northwestern representatives.

Neither traveler nor company has the slightest interest in the Alaska wheat other than that they are in the business of selling farm implements and machinery, are dependent upon farmers for patronage, and do not wish to see their patrons take up the new cereal in expectation of results that, they feel, cannot be realized.

First interest in the wheat was aroused by an article in The Saturday Evening Post some time ago by Oscar F. G. Day of Minneapolis, in which statements were made that Alaska wheat will yield up to 22 bushels to the acre and will grade No. 1 hard. The impression made by the article was that the world was on the eve of revolution with reference to food supplies. The wheat, as seed, at a fancy price, was offered by Abraham Adams of Juliaetta, Idaho, and by a local firm which had an exhibit at the fair.

Mr. Travis, in his letter, says that on one 700-acre field of this Alaska wheat, the best yield was thirty-six bushels, while club wheat in adjoining fields went forty and fifty bushels to the acre. The wheat, he says, is well known, has been known for years, has little value for flour making, and is a great deceiver.

Every milling and grain journal in the country has pronounced Alaska wheat a fake, and the Government experts from Washington have put their ban upon it. The letter from Mr. Travis to Mr. Lewellen is the indorsement of these adverse opinions by grain men.

Big Drill Crushes Man.

Cobalt, Nov. 27.—George Thompson, a driller's helper employed at the Nipissing property, was instantly killed last night at the 125-foot level of the Meyer shaft. Thompson was struck on the head with a big steam drill which was coming down in the bucket. It fell out when it was a few feet from the surface, the shank striking Thompson. Caleb Jerry, machinist, whom Thompson was helping, was standing near the spot, and narrowly escaped himself. Thompson was 32 years of age, and leaves a wife and one child here.

New Bills of Lading.

Ottawa, Nov. 27.—The Railway Commission has under consideration a new form of bills of lading, submitted to it some time ago by Canadian shippers. It is claimed that the present bills of lading do not give shippers any adequate security for their shipments and that the railways bear minimum of liability.

TO-MORROW NIGHT'S BASKETBALL MATCH

Toronto Central Y.M.C.A. Basketball Team, Which Will Meet the Peterborough Y.M.C.A. Team Here To-morrow Night

THE RING

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 26 — Abe Attell, the fast and undefeated featherweight champion of the world, met more than his match last night in Freddie Walsh, the English lightweight champion. Welsh showed himself to be a clever man. His boxing footwork, generalship, defensive tactics were superb and Attell never had a chance from the beginning. The doughty little champion seemed to lack confidence, his blows lacked vigor, and his generalship was not up to his standard.

While he fought bravely on the defensive and rallied frequently against the lead of his opponent, Attell was not able to make sufficient showing at any time to place the result of the fight in doubt. Welsh led with both hands with unerring precision. There was much in-fighting, and in this alone did Attell show to advantage. Attell said after the fight that he had given away too much weight to his opponent. He also alleged that an injury to his hand, received in training, interfered with his work. The betting was 10 to 6, on Attell, who lost the decision at the end of the fifteenth round.

San Francisco, Nov. 26.—Stanley Ketchell, of Grand Rapids, Mich., regained the middleweight championship of the world to-day and reversed his defeat of last September, when he met Billy Papke, the Illinois "thunderbolt," with a blow which caught his opponent flush upon the jaw. The blow came in the eleventh, prior to which Ketchel showed clearly that he was master of his opponent in any kind of fighting.

WRESTLING

Arrangements were completed last night for a wrestling match on Thursday, December 8th, at the Labor Temple, to decide the lightweight wrestling championship of Canada. The contestants will be Artie Edmunds the "pocket Hercules" and Young Rober, of New York one of the shiftiest mat artists in the country.

DONNED MAN'S GARB.

Canadian Woman Found Struggle Too Had In Female Clothes.

Dressed in a dark suit and wearing a slouch hat set rakishly on a thatch of black hair, showing gray about the temples, Frank Woodhull, fifty years old and a native of Canada, walked up the broad entrance to the immigration station on Ellis Island, New York, a few days ago. An hour after he left the private room of one of the matrons in a state of agitation, shorn of the name of Frank Woodhull. The passenger was, in fact, Mary Johnson, an English-Canadian woman, who had adopted men's dress. She confessed that she had so disguised herself to have a better chance in the world and because of a moustache which nature had unfortunately bestowed on her.

Standing before the immigration officials she told a pitiable story of her life, which, she declared, had been blameless.

"My life," she said, "has always been a struggle. I come of an English-Canadian family and have had most of my fight to make all alone. Thirty years ago, when I was twenty, my father died and I was thrown entirely on my own resources. I came to this country a young girl and went west to make my way. For fifteen years I struggled on. The hair on my face was a misfortune. It was often the subject of rude jest and caused me endless embarrassment. The struggle was awful, but I had to live somehow and so I went on.

"Then came a time, fifteen years ago, when I got desperate. I had been told that I looked like a man, and I knew that in Canada some women have put on men's clothes to do men's work.

"I was in California at the time. I bought men's clothes and began to wear them. Then things changed. I had prospects. I have sold books, lightning rods and worked in stores. Most of the time I have been in California, but now I am going to New Orleans, where there are chances of employment."

Lindsay, Nov. 27.—James Capstick, 22 years of age, who came here from Bobcaygeon a week ago to work for the G.T.R., was run over by the shunting engine in the yards here about 11 o'clock yesterday morning, and died yesterday afternoon. His right leg was completely severed from his body.

The Ghost of Lochrain Castle

By Mrs. C. N. Williamson—Author of "The Princess Passes," "The Lightning Conductor," Etc.

COPYRIGHT, 1906, BY MRS. C. N. WILLIAMSON

How long she slept, she did not know, but she waked with a start to find the room filled with a soft light, which at first she mistook for dawn. She had the sensation that something had waked her, some sound perhaps; but if so, it had ceased and the room was as still as if it had been a vault. She realized after a moment that the light was the light of the moon, not of morning, and she wondered how many hours of sweet unconsciousness she had had. Were they few or many? In any case, it was delicious to know that there must be several more left before she need think of getting up to begin a new day's work. Thus she lay for awhile in a blissful state between dreaming and waking, her eyes half closed, when a board creaked, as if under the pressure of a foot.

Elspeth knew the very board, or thought she knew it, for in passing to and fro her foot had caused the same disagreeable squeak, and she had tried to avoid the place. In a second she had bounded from her bed, and out of the alcove into the big moonlit room.

It was more by impulse than deliberate intention that she rushed to discover, if she could, what had made the sound, for hardly did she expect to see any form save the dim shapes of the old-fashioned furniture, each one of which she already knew.

But there was more to see. By the fireplace hovered the pale appearance of a man, dressed in something dark and loose, his face clear and white in the stream of moonlight, which fell full upon it. Only for a breathing space did Elspeth's eyes, and the eyes of this apparition meet and hold each other, for, without a sound, seemingly without a motion, save one gliding step backward, the tall form vanished from sight, as if the shadows—no more ethereal than itself—had swallowed it up.

Stiff and straight the girl stood staring at the spot where it had been. Then, when she recovered from the first shock, half terror, half amazement, she went, unsteadily and shivering, as if with cold and weakness, across to the table to light lamp and candles. All the while she could see the white face in its halo of moonlight, as plainly as if it had been photographed upon her brain; the fine forehead, the straight brows, the brilliant eyes, yes, more clearly than the rest, those terribly brilliant eyes.

Her own breathing frightened her, and the knocky-knock of her heart against her side, until she had got a light. Then it was more horrifying to find the room empty, save for herself, than it would have been to see the man where he had stood before. If he were a man of flesh and blood, he would have been there still, she said, for the door was shut and locked, and it would be impossible to enter or escape through a window. It must be, the girl thought, that a ghost had come to prove to an unbeliever that such things were. And yet—and yet—she did not feel as if she had seen a ghost. Besides, why should a ghost have seemed startled at sight of her? Surely there had been a look of apprehension and alarm on that pale face, with its frame of dark beard, as the brilliant eyes had found hers. And then, there was another question. Why should a ghost look like Captain Oxford, disguised in a dark wig and beard?

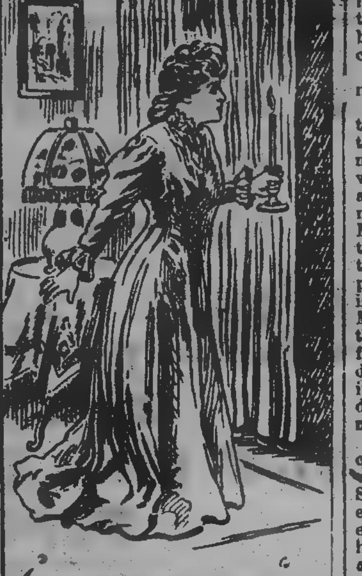
Elspeth hated to ask herself this, for she wished to believe Captain Oxford all that was noble; and yet there was a kind of relief in the thought that the strange visitant might have been he, bent upon some mysterious errand to the haunted tower.

There were secret entrances to rooms in some old houses—secret entrances so skilfully hidden that none save the initiated would dream of their existence; Elspeth knew this very well from hearsay. But what business could Captain Oxford or any other man, have in the tower? Whoever it had been, ghost or human, the sudden revelation of her presence in the room had been unwelcome, and the apparition had hastened to avoid her by vanishing in some way, therefore she might assure herself that the visit had not been connected with her. The trick theory was equally negatived by the evident apprehension on the white face. If a man had come into the room to play ghosts and frighten a girl out of quarters sacred to his own purposes, he would have stopped long enough to complete his work thoroughly, and he would have attempted to look appalling, rather than appalled.

All these reasonings restored Elspeth to a semblance of calmness. She took a candle in each hand, and made as thorough an examination as she knew how, of the wall on the right of the fireplace, into which the figure had seemed to vanish; but as far as she could tell by peering closely, and passing her hand over the surface of oak, there was no door or any means of opening the wainscot there.

When she was satisfied that, if the wall hid any secret, it was not to be found out by her that night, she sat for a time, and waited, so still she scarcely breathed, for any repetition of the sounds. But nearly an hour passed, and all quiet. Nothing could be accomplished by waiting longer, Elspeth decided, and shivering with the night chill, she crept back to bed.

She did not expect to sleep, but fatigue overcame fear, and from puzzling over the mystery in waking thoughts, she began heavily striving to decipher it in a tangled maze of dreams. As before, she slept until broad daylight; but it was earlier than on the previous day, and when she had dressed hastily, she thought that she would have time before the coming of the servant with breakfast, to venture on some explorations. But they were even more brief than she expected, for as she had supposed, there was no way of mounting higher than her own room. The stone staircase that had once wound on above, had been built up with brick, which formed a solid wall. On the floor below, the door of the room under hers was not locked, and a glance showed that there was no mystery there. The wainscoting had been prepared long ago by some person of bad taste, and not being renewed evidently, for many years, it had fallen into bad repair. A few pieces of old furniture, and some empty packing boxes and rolls of carpets, were the sole contents of the room, and all were plainly visible in the bleak light which streamed through the two uncurtained windows. From the room on the ground floor came sounds of hammering, and Elspeth guessed that the carpenter who, according to the housekeeper, had his quarters there, was already at work. It was more than improbable that there should be any visible means of communication with the upper floors, in a room used as a carpenter shop, and if there were a secret one, it would not be possible for her to seek it while the carpenter was at work. Altogether the girl's exploring expedition did not last ten minutes, and she gleaned nothing from it, save one thought, which struck her as somewhat significant. Why, she asked herself, had this one room—the one she occupied—been kept in repair, while the others had been neglected, and left uninhabitable? Was the reason for this connected in any way with the story of the tower, or was it concerned with some other secret apart from the ghost story? She decided that, without mentioning her experiences (for which she still intended to be silent at all events for the present) she might ask these questions of the housekeeper.



She took a candle in each hand.

She was keyed to a high pitch of nervous excitement, which had increased rather than diminished since yesterday, but there was no confusion in her brain. She felt that, if she could only put her hand upon one single first clue she would be capable of ferreting out others, where now all seemed chaos.

Breakfast was hurried over so that she might steal time for a few words with the housekeeper before going to Mr. McGowan, and as an excuse she began by asking Mrs. Warden if she might make some little changes in the arrangement of the furniture in her room. She would like, she said, to place the sofa and table differently, but had not wished to do so without mentioning it beforehand.

"Why, bless your heart, my dear," said the friendly old woman, "you can do just as you like in your own quarters. I hope you're quite happy there. I went up on purpose to ask how you got on yesterday afternoon, but you were away—busy, I suppose, though it was close upon tea time."

This was exactly the turn which Elspeth had hoped the conversation would take. She thanked Mrs. Warden, and said that she was delighted with her room. "It's good enough for a duchess, so it would be strange if I shouldn't be satisfied," she laughed. "But I do wonder why it is the only room in the tower which they've made habitable. There is such a lovely view from there, and if the guests would object to the ghost stories, surely the employes would be more sensible."

"It wasn't worth the trouble and expense of putting the other rooms in repair, I suppose," replied the housekeeper, "seeing that they couldn't very well be offered to guests. The one above yours has the roof fallen in on it, which was the reason the stairs were blocked up, rather than restore the whole upper story. But you needn't worry, the floor is so thick that there's no danger of the debris breaking through. It's been as it is for years, many years. Nothing would have been done to repair your quarters, either, for the same reason, and the whole tower would have been left to itself, but that room of yours was never let fall into a bad state, like the others. Old Lord Lochrain wouldn't have that happen; so you see when the castle was bought for a hotel there was nothing much to do there, except to put in a few more bits of furniture to add a little to the comfort."

"Used old Lord Lochrain to occupy my room, then?" asked Elspeth.

"Oh, dear, no. He never even went there, so far as I can say. But—well, the bathroom and all the improvements were made for a person who was once of importance to the family, and as long as the old Marquis lived nothing was changed there. When Mr. McGowan took charge of everything he gave orders to have some of the handsomest pieces of furniture put elsewhere, but the bed, though it is the finest of all, couldn't be moved. Maybe you noticed, it is built into the wall, and has been where it is for hundreds of years, I fancy. I don't know the date, but I do know it's very old, and I daresay curiosity dealers would give any amount of money for it, if it were for sale."

Elspeth had learned what she had come to find out, but she had gained very little enlightenment, after all. She saw by a certain obstinate hardening of the old woman's good-natured face that she did not intend to let herself be "pumped" on the subject of that vanished "person of importance" for whose sake, apparently, old Lord Lochrain had preserved the one room in the tower, and Elspeth guessed that the ghost story, whatever it might be, was connected with him.

"If I can find out from any one it will be not from her, but from Mr. Grant," she said to herself as she bade Mrs. Warden good-bye. Her woman's instinct told her already that she would not have to ask favors in vain of her fellow employe, and though she would have made no serious demand upon the young man she determined to try again to draw from him the story of the haunted tower.

She had no opportunity of seeing him alone that morning, however, and nothing of importance happened during the day except—if it could be called important—an introduction to Countess Radepolskoi. Mr. Trowbridge, instead of employing her time himself, lent her to his friend the Countess, who had a pretty little private parlor, divided from the best of her suite by an archway with heavy portieres.

Elspeth had fancied that she would not like the dark, handsome woman, who was too foreign in appearance, in the somewhat narrow opinion of a young girl, to be freely trusted. But she found her prejudice melting in the unexpected charm of the Countess's manner; and, besides, she would scarcely have been human not to be a little flattered by the evident wish of so magnificent a person to win her regard.

She had never met any one at all resembling the Countess Radepolskoi: she had never seen a room so littered with beautiful things as the Countess's small sitting room, nor had she ever imagined a tea gown so wonderful as that in which the dark beauty received her.

Elspeth wrote a letter or two from the Countess's dictation, and then the lady made a pause to ask questions about the typewriting machine. She showed such an intelligent interest that Elspeth was pleased, and then would not be satisfied unless the girl explained something about the system of shorthand. "But you are so young and pretty to be earning your living all alone in the world," said the Countess, with her fascinating roll of the "r." "You must tell me about yourself. I would rather hear you talk than write more letters."

Elspeth demurred at first on the plea of wasting time, but the Countess laughed, and said she found it more amusing to waste time than to do most other things, that was what time was for, to be wasted by nice people, such as they both were. So the girl was drawn into talk about herself, as she had been by John Kenrith, though in a very different way, and at last was led on, before she quite knew what she was doing, to discuss the people she had met in the hotel.

The Countess was enthusiastic in praise of Lady Hilary Lambart, but did not like the mother, and Elspeth was only just prudent enough not to exclaim, "Neither do I!" However, her face must have been expressive, for the Countess said: "Ah, I see you agree with my opinion, though you are too wise to say so in words. You are only a young girl, quite a child, yet I see you have a remarkable insight into human nature. It is a great gift. What a pity men have not got it, where women are concerned! And the nicer the man's mind, the less he seems to know of women. There's good Mr. Kenrith, for instance. I have not even met him yet, but I have eyes, and already I see that Lady Lambart intends to marry him."

"I hope she won't!" exclaimed Elspeth, lured out of her prudence.

"So do I, for his sake, though I do not know him. They say she is horridly poor and in debt. It is his money she thinks of, for he is not her sort of man, at all. Cannot you—as it seems you are helping him with some important work—find a way of warning him against such a schemer?"

"I don't see how I possibly could," said Elspeth.

"It is a pity. But perhaps you are too young to undertake such a diplomatic mission. By and by, I shall know him, perhaps, and then I will try to do it so cleverly that he will not even know it has been done. Only, unfortunately, I fear he has been in some manner prejudiced against me. He looks at me with cold eyes, which do not seem to see me at all, and—I am not quite used to that."

"I should think not," Elspeth replied.

"Do, if you care, speak kindly of me to the gentleman. I fancy your opinion—you are so young and frank—would have weight with a man like Mr. Kenrith. Perhaps he thinks I grudge him the blue diamond which was once in my dead husband's family, but I don't. I am glad for him to have it, for I believe he is a good man. But I should dearly love to know if the diamond is as beautiful as those say who have seen it. It is such a strange mischance that I never have. If he shows it to you, you will describe it to me afterwards, won't you?"

"Of course I will," answered Elspeth.

"What a dear child you are!" cried the Countess, patting her hand, and giving her a charming smile, with dark eyes alight. Still, Elspeth asked herself afterward if she had said anything which might give the impression that she knew Mr. Kenrith had brought the diamond to Lochrain with him. She remembered how Lady Lambart had exclaimed against his imprudence in mentioning it before a stranger, therefore she supposed the presence of the jewel in the house would not be spoken about. However, on reflection she decided that she had committed no imprudence; and as Countess Radepolskoi was a rich woman, with many remarkable jewels of her own, her interest in Mr. Kenrith's blue diamond could not possibly be a dangerous one.

The following day, as it happened, the subject of the diamond was brought up, and the girl had an opportunity of keeping her promise to the Countess, if she would.

Lady Lambart, with Lady Hilary, came to the sitting room door just as Elspeth was finishing her work for Mr. Kenrith, but at sight of the young stenographer, made as if she would retire.

"Oh, I thought you would be alone by this time," she said. "You told me the hour, but"—— (she glanced at her bracelet watch) "I see we're a few minutes before time."

"It doesn't matter; we have finished," said Kenrith. "You shall see my treasures such as they are."

"Pray, let us wait," began Lady Lambart, significantly, but Kenrith only laughed. "Miss Dean, you may perhaps remember our talking of a certain diamond in the train the other day. Now I am going to show it to Lady Lambart and Lady Hilary, also a black pearl which I have lately picked up. You shall stop and see them too."

"I—I think perhaps I had better not, thank you," stammered Elspeth, rising.

"Why, don't you like jewels?" asked Kenrith.

"Yes, but"——

"Then you must stay," said he, in his masterful voice.

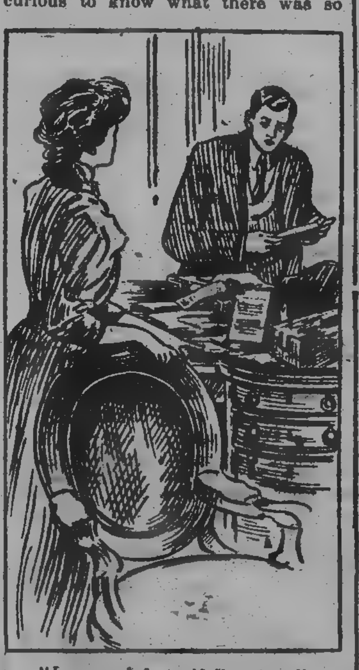
The girl resisted no longer; but the idea flashed into her head that she would rather not know where the millionaire kept his valuables. There was no definite reason for this feeling, but she had it strongly. Instead of following Kenrith with her eyes as he walked to the other end of the room, she turned them upon Lady Hilary, with rather an appealing smile, as much as to say, "I do hope you don't mind me having stopped?"

But the other girl did not even see the smile. Her whole soul seemed concentrated in a gaze which was fixed upon John Kenrith, or Lady Lambart, who had walked away with her host.

Elspeth was almost startled by the look in the girl's face, which hardened it, and for a moment made it old beyond her years. The eyes were eager and feverish, the white throat visibly throbbing under its wisp of tulle. What is the matter with her? Why does she look like that? Elspeth asked herself. And then Lady Lambart exclaimed, "How extraordinary of you! Who on earth would have dreamed of your keeping them there?"

The blood suddenly streamed up to Lady Hilary's face then receded, leaving it very pale.

In spite of herself, Elspeth was curious to know what there was so extraordinary about the hiding place Mr. Kenrith had chosen for his jewels. She had deprived herself of the knowledge which she might have had; but whatever Lady Lambart had seen, that had Lady Hilary seen too.



"I can work faster if I'm alone."

CHAPTER VII.

For two nights Elspeth had a respite. Nothing happened. But as she lay awake in fearful expectation, or started out of her first sleep with her heart pounding and her forehead damp, it was not surprising that she began to lose her color and have blue circles under her eyes.

The girl knew that her face showed something of the strain she was silently enduring, but she hoped that no one would notice the change. Luckily, she said to herself, nobody cared enough for her to observe too closely, not even Lady Hilary, who, though grateful to Elspeth, was naturally much absorbed in her own anxieties. But on the morning which completed the girl's first week at Lochrain Castle Hydro, James Grant was waiting for her in Mr. McGowan's room; and he was there alone.

As Elspeth came in, he sprang up from his chair at the desk. "At last," he exclaimed, "I have a chance to see you alone. I began to think it would never come again. Not once since the second day after you arrived, when you promised me your friendship, have I had five minutes to speak to you, without McGowan or someone else bursting in upon us."

Elspeth was rather taken aback at his manner, which gave a very different impression of the man from that she had received on their first meeting. He had been exceedingly quiet and self-restrained then, talking to her of his employer with marked respect and reticence. Now he called the manager "McGowan," and referred to him almost truculently, as if with resentment.

Somehow Elspeth had been glad not to see Mr. Grant alone since the day when he had suddenly asked for her friendship, with repressed emotion, and an odd air of mystery; and now she shrank away a little, laughing uncomfortably.

"As it's Mr. McGowan's own room," she said, "isn't it rather funny to speak of his 'bursting' in?"

"You know what I mean," replied Grant, with no answering smile, as he closed the door which Elspeth had intentionally left open. "Anyhow, there's no danger of his intruding upon us this morning."

"Is he away?" asked Elspeth.

"Yes, till afternoon. He has gone to see Lord Lochrain, by his request, at a place about thirty miles from here, where his lordship is visiting, before coming on to stop at this hotel. There's some business about the coal on the estate, a question of boundaries, and so on."

"Well," said the girl in a matter-of-fact voice, "we musn't neglect our work, if he is away. I suppose the letters"——

"You need suppose nothing about the letters," cut in the young man, his black eyes brightening. "You are to rest this morning. I will do your work and mine, too."

"It's very kind of you to suggest such a thing," replied Elspeth hurriedly, "but"——

"Kind!" echoed Grant. "As if there could be a question of kindness from me to you. Why, I have thought of nothing but your face, growing paler and thinner this last week, from overwork."

"Oh, it isn't that," answered the girl, then checked herself quickly. She did not wish to confide in James Grant.

"You have had enough to wear you out, anyhow," he said. "It's a shame. But I hope it won't be for long. You promised that other day to let me be your friend; but you know I want more than that, really. I never cared about any woman before I saw you. The sort of girls I came in contact with were commonplace creatures, without any attraction for me. I used to think it would be my fate, if I ever fell in love with a woman, that she should be some one so far above me, it would be hopeless for me to try to reach her. But you—you are as dainty and refined and as pretty as if you were the daughter of a countess, like Lady Hilary Vane, yet you are of my own class in life, and I can dare to tell you now that I have been in love with you ever since the afternoon when I drove you up from the railway station."

"That's only a week ago," stammered Elspeth, distressed and embarrassed. "You can't know your own mind in such a short time. Please forget about this. I will be your friend, of course, but"——

NO WORK FOR SIX MONTHS; HARD WINTER FOR HAMILTON

Hamilton, Nov. 26.—A forecast of a very hard winter was a demonstration this morning by a small army unemployed, who marched through the streets, carrying a large banner, with these words—"City Council stopped work for 400 men."

On Monday last the Dominion Power and Transmission Company placed a hundred men at work on the site of the new car shops. Employment was promised 300 more men to-day. When the men who had been working reported this morning they were informed that until the Council granted the company's request to connect the tracks of the different electric lines with the shops, the work could not go on. The men, carrying the banner, and with their dinner pails, marched to Mayor Stewart's office and demanded work to prevent their families from starving. Many of them are new arrivals, and said they have had no work for six months. The Mayor promised that the matter would be dealt with at once, and an effort will be made to furnish 200 men with work on the mountain sewer.

"We are certainly going to have a tough winter," said the Mayor thoughtfully, as the crowd marched away.

COUNTY COUNCIL PASSED REPORTS OF COMMITTEES

Final Session of the Year Concluded This Morning—Deputation Appointed to Ask for Bridge to be Built From Indian Village to Ennismore.

The County Council met this morning and passed the reports of the several committees. Warden Thompson was in the chair. This is the last meeting for the year and the next meeting may see many new faces in the Council.

Moved by Messrs Breault and Coburn, that the townships of Harvey, Galway and Chandos be added to the territory given Mr Booth, the newly appointed county police magistrate, for part of this county and that this resolution be forwarded to the Ontario Legislature.

To the Warden of the County, 1908. Jas. Thompson, Esq., M.P.P.—

Sir,—Having learned with regret that you have decided to withdraw after this year from municipal life, we desire to express, ourselves, as your colleagues, so as to impress upon you the fact that we have been proud of you in your capacity as chief magistrate of the county during 1908.

We heartily congratulate you and congratulate your constituents upon your election as representative in the Legislature for East Peterborough. We feel confident that you will lend dignity to that greater body as you have done to the county council.

Your stewardship here has been of such a character that Havelock will in future be recognized as one of the important municipalities of the county and your successor will have nothing to encounter but the best of feeling for his village.

Again permit us in saying good by that the concentration of effort put forth this year was largely due to yourself.

Signed on behalf of the council,

A. BREAULT,

Chairman Finance Committee

Warden Thompson, M.P.P., assured his colleagues that he did not expect any such recognition of his services and he felt that he was not really entitled to so much praise. He had, however, done his utmost to fill the position to the best of his ability. But if things had been done satisfactorily it was due more to the credit of the councillors. He wished to congratulate the representatives of the different municipalities upon the harmonious conduct during the past year. He hoped that while he would not be here next year he hoped that he would not disappoint them in his future career.

He also expressed great pleasure at the way Mr Scott, chairman of the House of Refuge committee and to Mr Brown, chairman of the roads and bridges committee have done their work during the past year. The year has been a particularly heavy one in these two departments and it required a great deal of time and good management.

COMMITTEE REPORTS

The reports of the various committees were read and adopted by the Council and by-laws confirming them were passed.

The reports were as follows:

The committee appointed to consider the Warden's address beg to report as follows:

1. We desire to express our endorsement of the harmony which has characterized our meetings during the year, and also to recognize and commend the dignity with which the warden has presided over us on all occasions and the ability he has shown in conducting the affairs of the county during the present year.

2. As pointed out by the Warden, there has been a considerable expenditure during this year, in the way of bridge construction, and future Councils will no doubt find it necessary to continue the work of replacing our wooden bridges with those of a more permanent character. We consider that the work of the county in this respect has been done in a thorough and substantial way, and yet with a due regard to economy of expenditure.

3. We are pleased to learn that in spite of the calls upon the funds of the county, the estimate and levy previously made by this Council will not likely be exceeded.

4. We note an increase in the number of inmates in the House of Refuge but believe the levy made this year for its maintenance will not only be sufficient, but will probably not have to be exceeded for some years to come, the building, equipment and furnishings of the institution being now practically completed.

5. We are very pleased to endorse the views of the Warden as to the continued prosperity of the county and province, and to join with him in the hope that this condition of affairs may long continue.

Respectfully submitted,

J. FIFE,
Chairman.

County Council Chamber,

SPECIAL REPORT OF CHAIRMAN OF ROADS AND BRIDGES COMMITTEE.

To the Council of the County of Peterborough;

Gentelmen,—

I beg to submit the following report, which on account of the amount of work, as well as the report of the chairmen of several committees I do not think it advisable to enter too minutely into details. The first work undertaken was filling in the approaches to the Burleigh Falls bridge on the Smith township end, the old wooden approach has been removed and a permanent structure 16 feet wide between railing completed.

The Deer Bay Creek bridge authorized to be built at June session has been finished and shortened and over ninety feet turned into permanent roading it being thought better to make two bridges there being two channels.

Your committee also visited Buckhorn bridges and inspected both the old and the new, the latter constructed by the Dominion Government and soon to be handed over to the county.

It was not deemed advisable by your committee to make any claim on the timbers of the old bridge. I may say the new bridge appears to be a very permanent structure. It was our wish that every member of this council should have an opportunity of seeing this work.

A new wooden bridge over Black Lake creek has been completed, thirty-five feet in length, nine feet above the bed of stream the whole structure appears to be done in a solid and satisfactory manner at a cost of two hundred and fifty dollars.

The three new steel bridges at North River, Victoria street, Norwood, and Armstrong's in Otonabee, have all be undertaken and completed and fuller details may be secured from the chairman who had charge of the work. This with small repairs done on boundary bridges between Durham and Peterborough, complete a large amount of work and consequently a like expenditure but as all new work has been of a permanent character, their repair will not amount to any considerable expenditure for many years to come.

Signed—JOHN BROWN.

REPORT OF THE COMMITTEE ON APPOINTMENTS.

The Committee on Appointments beg to report as follows;—

That William Dickson of Asphodel (Westwood P.O.) be appointed a County Constable.

Respectfully submitted.

R. SCOTT,
Chairman.

County Council Chamber, Peterborough, 26th Nov., 1908.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON COUNTY PROPERTY.

The Committee on County Property beg to report as follows;—

That the Chairman be authorized to have placed in the residence of the caretaker of the gaol a hot water tank and to have connections made therewith to bath.

Respectfully submitted.

PORTER,
Chairman.

County Council Chamber, Peterborough, 26th Nov., 1908.

On motion the Council adjourned.

The fire brigade had two calls last night. The first one was about ten minutes to nine o'clock to the residence of William McKinley, 297 Townsend street. It was just a chimney fire, extinguished with a couple of pails of water, and no damage was done.

About 11 o'clock the alarm rang in from box 53 in Ashburnham. The brigade quickly responded, but found it to be only a false call.

THE NEW COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE WAS FORMALLY OPENED

MR. H. R. H. KENNER, B. A.
Principal of the Peterborough Collegiate Institute.

Memorable Day in the Educational History of Peterborough—Visit to City of Hon. Dr. Pyne, Minister of Education.

Minister Was Accompanied by Dr. Pakenham, of the University of Toronto, a Former Peterborough Boy---New Collegiate Pronounced One of the Best in the Province.

Yesterday was a memorable day in the history of Peterborough and particularly as regards educational affairs. It was the formal opening of the new Collegiate Institute, the occasion being marked by the presence of the Honourable Minister of Edution, R. A. Pyne, M.D., who delivered an address.

The opening of the new building yesterday was a happy event, and it must have been a source of deep congratification to the members of the Board of Education, and especially to the Collegiate Building Committee, to to see their plans of a few years ago fully realised. The old Collegiate had long ago outgrown its usefulness as a high school and it was insistent that a new one would have to be built. After many months of consideration a by-law was voted on and passed appropriating $50,000 for the building of a new school. Several towns and cities were visited and the newest and best ideas were procured before plans were drawn for the new Collegiate. It is most modern in every detail and fills the requirements of Peterborough students most admirably. The building committee were most indefatigable and spent much of their time in superintending and looking after the work.

Many were the expressions of delight and satisfaction from citizens yesterday who inspected the beautiful school for the first time. Those who were present and attended the old school remarked what a contrast, and even expressed regret that they were not now going to High School.

The fine large assembly hall was filled, every available seat being taken, and many having to stand. The chairman of the Board of Education, Mr. Robert Fair, presided, and seated on the platform with him were: Honourable Dr. Pyne, his secretary, Mr. C. W. James, Revs. Father McColl and H. J. Keith, His Worship Mayor Rush, Dr. Pakenham, Toronto; T. E. Bradburn, M.P.P.; Warden Thompson, M.P.P.; J. E. Belcher, John Crane, M. A. Morrison, W. F. Nelson, W. H. Hill, D. W. Dumble, W. S. Robinson, H. R. H. Kenner and James Stevenson.

CHAIRMAN'S ADDRESS.

Mr Fair spoke as follows;

Ladies and Gentlemen,—

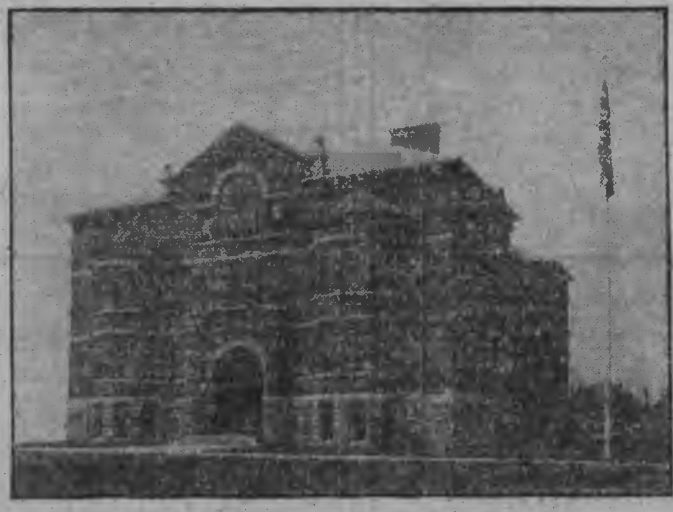
As Chairman of the Board of Education, the honor and duty of presiding on this important occasion has fallen upon me.

The purpose of this gathering is well known to you all, but it's significance to this city and county cannot yet have been fully recognized.

The formal opening of this new Collegiate Institute building marks but the last step in a series of very important undertakings which the Board of Education of this city has had to grapple with during the past few years. These steps are so important, and have involved the expenditure of so much money and energy that, much as I would prefer to pass over them all and call upon some of the distinguished gentlemen who are to address you, yet I deem it my duty to briefly outline what the Board has undertaken and accomplished during these years.

Within the past ten years, Peterborough has made rapid strides. The increase in wealth and population has been gratifying. The public school population, alone, has in these years increased by fully thirty-three and a third per cent.

So rapid was this increase in the school population that the Board soon found the school accommodation entirely inadequate. Recourse had to be made to the half-day system of teaching in the junior forms of our public schools and additional accommodation was provided by renting a private building for school purposes. These were but temporary expedients and the Board realized that a new school in the southern part of the city was an absolute and pressing necessity.



THE NEW COLLEGIATE INSTITUTE
Which is looked upon as one of the most up-to-date in the Province of Ontario

This need was met by the erection of the King Edward school, and the wisdom of putting up a large building has already been shown yb the fact that eight rooms are now occupied in this school. There are yet four unfinished class rooms in the building which will provide accommodation for future expansion in that part of the city.

The King Edward school designed and planned by Wm Blackwell is admittedly, a splendidly constructed building and it is a monument to the integrity and self-sacrificing spirit of the late William Pringle, who, as chairman of the building committee had much to do with its erection. The site, building, and equipment of this school involved an expenditure of $35,000 and good value was obtained for the money expended.

About the same time, Peterborough was fortunate enough to be selected by Hon Dr Pyne, Minister of Education as a centre for the erection of one of the new Provincial Normal Schools. It's location in the northern part of our city necessitated the building of a six-roomed addition to the old school building, making the new structure when completed a ten roomed school. This addition was built and completed in 1907, and we now have in the northern part of the city a building which in appearance, accommodation convenience and equipment, would do credit to any city in the Province.

The successful and expeditious construction of this school is largely due to D W Dumble, KC., who as chairman of the building committee supervised its erection. Mr Dumble gave much time and energy to this work, and his wide experience in building was most valuable to the board. As a result the city has in the Queen Alexandra school a modern and commodious building, well equipped, well planned and satisfactory in every way.

The enlarging of the grounds, the erection of the building and its equipment cost approximately $26,000, which, again, the board feels satisfied is no expenditure for which good value was received.

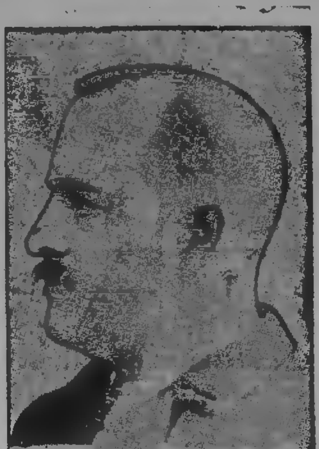
Of the ten class rooms in the school nine are already occupied.

Not only were our public schools inadequate but in High School accommodation we were, if possible, in a worse condition. The old Collegiate building was practically condemned by the Education Department years ago.

There were no proper physical or chemical laboratories, and the seating accommodation was so overtaxed that, during 1907 andt he first half of 1908, the Board found it necessary to sendt wo of the Collegiate classes to one of the new public schools. No other course was, therefore, open to the Board than the erection of a new Collegiate Institute and this fine building in which we are gathered is the result.

I need not add any words in defence or praise of it, as the building speaks for itself, but the Board desire publicly to express their appreciation of the ripe experience and skill of the Architect, Mr John E. Belcher, CE. under whose superintendence the building was planned, designed and erected and also their complete satisfaction with the Contractors, Messrs. Langford and Sheehy who faithfully executed the work undertaken by them, and to the clerk of the works, Mr John Kincaid, whose serious and regrettable indisposition, prevents his presence today the Board also desire to express their appreciation of the services he rendered.

It is undoubtedly one of the best and most modern Collegiate buildings in the Province. The supervision of its construction fell to the lot of Dr Morrison, Chairman of the Building committee and that he gave unstintingly of his time, an examination of the building itself will prove, [illegible]



HON. DR. PYNE.
Minister of Education for Ontario.

The building has been carefully and plainly constructed and there has been no lavish expenditures. The cost of the site, building and equipment will be in round figures, about $80,000.—a large sum of money but for which again, good value has been received.

Another step that the Board recently took was the introduction of Manual Training and Domestic Science, into our schools. When such places as Ottawa, Kingston, Brockville, Cobourg, Galt, Berlin, Woodstock, Essex, Renfrew and many other smaller towns have made these subjects a part of their school system, it was felt that Peterborough should lag behind no longer.

The Board hesitated, however, not wishing to increase the already heavy expenditures, when recently a favorable opportunity presented itself which was taken advantage of. This opportunity was the proposed joint-engagement of the teachers of these subjects by the Board and the Education Department. The favorable terms offered by the Department, makes the city's expenditure comparatively light and very soon the classes will be organized and set to work in these subjects of study.

The vacating of the old Collegiate building affords accommodation for these classes, so that when they begin work in the near future they will start under most favorable conditions.

Not only has the Board provided adequate and suitable accommodation for the school children, but they have used every means in their power to secure the best teachers available. In the selection of new members to the teaching staffs, both Public and High great care has been exercised and with gratifying results. The Board believes that today, few, if any cities in Ontario, have a stronger teaching staff than has our city of Peterborough. And in this regard it is appropriate to say that in Mr. Inspector A. Mowat the Board have been most fortunate in obtaining the services of a gentleman of marked administrative and literary ability who is proving a most efficient superintending officer and renders the Board most valuable assistance.

In all the many changes that have been referred to, the Board has had no other motive than to give to the rising generation of this city every possible educational advantage. The members recognized that they had a duty to perform. They realized that the future of this city and of this country depends upon the intelligence of its citizens and realizing this they felt that our Educational institutions should receive every possible attention. They have given of their time unstintingly and have discharged their duties most faithfully.

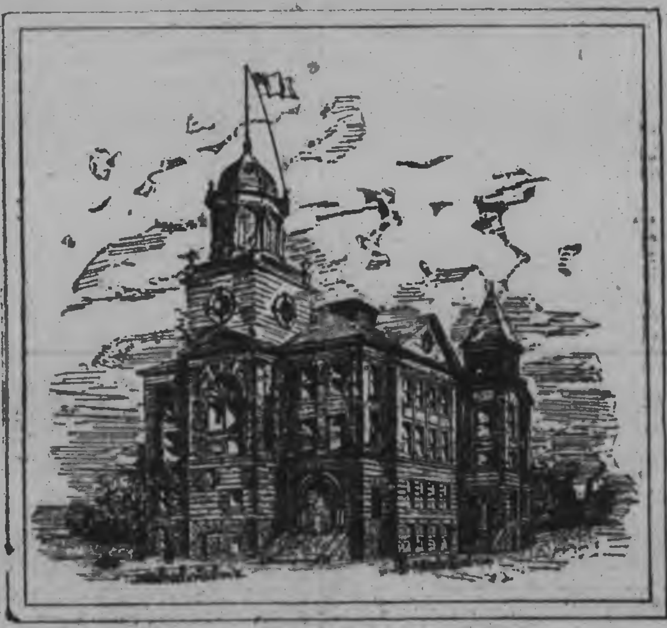
It would be a most gratifying result to them and to every citizen, should the city of Peterborough soon become known throughout this Province not only as an important industrial centre, but as an important educational centre as well.



THE NORMAL SCHOOL AT PETERBOROUGH

With suitable buildings, an efficient staff of teachers and a sympathetic interest in the work in the part of the citizens, surely this is an end not too high to aim at.

The action of the city council in deciding to establish a free Public Library in our midst should also further the cause of education in Peterborough. In the past the Provincial Inspector of Public Libraries reports that many of the Public Libraries throughout Ontario have been filled with a mass of badly selected books, trashy fiction predominating and evil has resulted.

The better class of libraries, however, are avoiding this evil and are proving themselves of real educative value in the communities where they are established. These better libraries are the storehouses of the best books obtainable —books that tell of discoveries, achievements and progress of the human race from barbarism to modern civilization —and through careful selection of books and by dividing them into sections, one suitable for adults and the other for children, they are being read and appreciated. Where such libraries have been in existence for any length of time, a class of trained readers is growing up and the average intellectual capacity is being evidenced.

It is a library of this better class that we expect soon to see established in Peterborough and beneficial results cannot help but follow.

ADDRESS TO DR. PYNE.

The chairman called upon the secretary of the Board of Education, Mr. W. G. Morrow to read the following address to the Minister of Education:—

To the Honourable R. A. Pyne, M. D., Minister of Education:

Sir,—The Board of Education of the city of Peterborough gratefully acknowledge the courtesy and kindness of your attendance at this, the formal opening of their new Collegiate Institute.

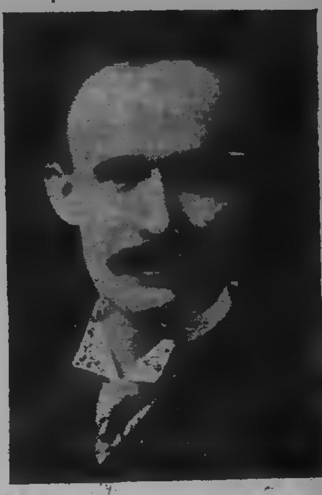
The bold and liberal measures adopted by your Government for the advancement of the educational interests of the country mark a new era in our history; all our educational institutions have been helped from the Public schools to the Universities—and the most liberal measures adopted have elicited from the people, not censure, but only universal approval.

The disclosure of unlimited mineral resources and the extension of commerce through the opening and settlement of New Ontario and the Western Provinces, present a great field for the employment of our people, in the home land. But these call for educational fitness to meet the emergency, and you, sir, have grasped the requirements and have risen to the emergency. We congratulate you on your liberal treatment of educational problems. When a deputation of our citizens went to Toronto to solicit the location of one of the new Normal Schools at Peterborough, you, and the members of the Cabinet courteously received us, and now we rejoice in the possession of the magnificient Normal School with its splendid staff of instructors.

We have met the requirements you called for, and by large expenditures and great care in the selection of our Public School teachers, have builded a complete Public School system, which with the Normal School and this Institute, will complete an educational establishment equal in all respects to anything of the kind in Canada.

We welcome you to our city. We thank you for your presence, and we wish you the happiness of living to see splendid results from your liberal and wise legislation in behalf of education.

On behalf of the Board.
R. FAIR, Chairman.
W. G. MORROW, Secretary.



DR. M. A. MORRISON
Chairman of the Collegiate Institute Building.

HONOURABLE DR. PYNE.

The Honourable Minister of Education, Dr. Pyne, upon rising to reply, was warmly received. In beginning, he said that he felt rather embarrassed by the address just presented him. The many commendable things that had been said of the government, he was sure, would furnish much food for thought. During the past three or four months politics had engaged the minds of the people, but he was glad to be before an audience of both Liberals and Conservatives, and where there was no politics. He congratulated the people of Peterborough on the great interest they manifested in educational matters, and especially the Board of Education for their devotion of time to works of education. Thanks was due them for their courage in putting up such a magnificent building.

Speaking of the educational policy of the Government, he was glad that it was meeting with the approval of the people. When he accepted the office of head of the Department of Education he knew that courage would be needed. He looked upon the educational system just as a medical man would upon the human system. As a doctor found defects so had he, and one of them was the teaching profession.

Referring to the teaching profession, the Minister of Education said that a school might be a fine building and well equipped, but what good was it, he asked, if the teachers were not competent? The department had started out by trying to improve teachers, and the first step was the building of Normal Schools. "Judging from the strong educational sentiment evidenced here," he remarked, "I don't think I made any mistake in giving Peterborough one of them. If there was one man more than another who was continually reminding me of Peterborough, it was your member, Mr. Bradburn." The speaker said that as he went through the Normal School here he noticed how excellently it was equipped, in marked contrast to the old Normal Schools in Toronto, Ottawa and London. He thought that if the legislation, the county and towns and cities each did their part, education would be vastly improved.

But, he said, that it was hard to improve the condition of education. Every country was vieing with each other in this matter. It has been said that England has been developing along wrong lines of education, but Germany had excelled almost every other country. Industrial training was attracting a great deal of attention. The speaker said that his position on technical education was that as the tariff is controlled by the Dominion Government, it behooves them to contribute to each Province, a grant each year to train up merchants and other artisans, or such other trades as the industries of the province demand.

Changes in education cannot be brought about suddenly the speaker continued. Referring to higher education, he said that looking at the States of Wisconsin and Michigan, one saw Universities being encouraged by the State. He thought that

THE NEW INSTITUTE

The opening of the new Collegiate Institute in Central Park is a long step forward in the way of providing better facilities for the education of the young. As remarked by Dr. Pyne the British Empire must keep abreast of the foremost in the world and only by continued effort can this be done. It was gratifying to notice the hearty response of the people to his reference to the present open handed policy of the Government toward the University of Toronto. A nation, a sect, or a creed are after all judged by the standard of their technically educated men and women and rightly so. Experiment is both the father and mother of knowledge and knowledge is really power. It is true that the final touches of an education are acquired in the study not in the lecture room but that is where as a rule the early conditions necessary thereto have been well looked after.

Dr. Pakenham evidently has high ideals which he has, as Professor of Pedagogy, an excellent opportunity of developing.

The Rev. Father McColl opened with congratulations on the culmination of the School Board's efforts to provide proper means of education. He then turned his attention to the teaching methods of the present day and deprecated the teaching of the history of scandal. The proper idea, he remarked, was to bring to the notice of the pupil only that which is pure and good. This would probably reduce history to a list of dates, although it is undoubtedly true that evil communications will corrupt good manners. The most noticeable feature of the reverend gentleman's spirited address, however, was his reference to the desire of the Roman Catholic church in Ontario to have separate Collegiate Institutes. It seems that the Catholic ideal can be properly realized only under its own auspices. Separation, isolation and exclusion are apparently the only considered means to the desired end. It is a pity that this should be so and we are no doubt correct in supposing that the rector of St. Peter's was speaking with authority. Separation in church and state, in marriage, in education, in social intercourse, will ultimately lead one would suppose, to national disintegration and estrangement.

Upon Mr. Robt. Fair, devolved as chairman of the Board of Trustees, the duty of presenting the key of the magnificent structure to the Minister. The whole affair from the first conception of the serious problem to the word declaring it solved, uttered yesterday, has been a success of the most pronounced kind. Mr. Belcher, C.E., with his usual correct idea of the architectural fitness of things is again to be congratulated. Messrs. Hungerford and Sheehy have put up a very solid and enduring structure. In a word, everything has been well done. Mr. Kenner and his staff have every opportunity of appearing to their best advantage and we are confident that every expectation will be realized. Rev Mr Keith Warden Thompson, M.P.P., Mr Sexsmith, M P, without exception voiced the general public admiration and approval. The new hall will serve to keep the public in touch with the Institute and will, we hope, afford our people a means of hearing good men on edifying subjects. The intellectual after-life of a people should not be left wholly to the hockey rink or the football field. These are all exceedingly good in their way but there are other ways also.

THE TWO CONGRESSES

Pope Pius X has said that it is in vain to build churches, give missions and found schools unless there be a strong Press to back up these efforts. The new "Catholic Register" of Toronto under its new board of management and control is probably an outcome of this promulgation. Upon that board appear the names of the chief controlling powers of the Roman Catholic Church in Canada. The new journal may be taken to be the official mouthpiece in Ontario at least of that church. The great Catholic Church extension movement is now fairly under weigh. The new Catholic journal is probably part of that new and powerful movement. The attitude maintained for so long a time, especially under the late Pope of mild disapproval has given way to a direct attack by the whole body of the Roman Catholic Church under the immediate direction of the Pope himself upon modernism which may briefly be explained as the tendency of modern thought to free itself from all but the thinker's own personal responsibility. The modernist takes upon himself the examination of all things, no matter how sacred or profane, always approaching them in the scientific or sceptical frame of mind. The struggle between individual freedom to do and think as the thinker is prepared to accept responsibility for and that other freedom which is allowed by the Roman Church is the struggle of the day, so far as that church is concerned. With it, it is a conflict of policies as well as faith. With Protestantism there is no conflict of policies but there is one of faith. The comment of the Register on the Pan-Anglican Congress is interesting, especially regarding the proposal to establish a head for the proposed Anglican Church Universal;

"The Bishops of the British Colonial churches might have been persuaded by the energy and eloquence of the English Bishops to adopt the course so strongly urged upon them, but the United States Bishops would not listen to the proposition. The latter Bishops pointed out that the Anglican Church is based upon national independence, and with one accord stated their determination to stand upon this basis, and so the effort to institute an Anglican Pope came to naught, notwithstanding that the London Times declared while the matter was being discussed, that "some authority must be created in the Church of England to decide controversies, or it cannot survive, however great may be its growth and wealth."

This discussion has made it clear that there can be no universal unity of faith and government outside of the Catholic and Roman Church where in such unity exists by Divine appointment."—Catholic Register.

The Register's description of the inauguration, etc. of the great Catholic Extension movement in Chicago contains the following;

"The magnificence of the ecclesiastical procession from the Chancery to the Cathedral on Sunday will never be forgotten. Seventy bishops in their purple, twelve mitred abbots, prelates without number, thousands of black robed priests and a whole line of surpliced clerks defiling through ranks of accoutred Knights of Columbus made a picture in the massed streets of Chicago which impressed one's awe even the most casual observer. On the personages in its rear all eyes were centred. There walked the Archbishop of Chicago, with his chaplains, clothed in his great cape, ermined and training through the hands of many bearers; there after him and closing up this long defile, too, was the Apostolic Delegate, Mgr. Falconio, in the Cappa Magna of his Augustinian Order—a dull grey with fur trimmings—attended by two clerics, in vestments of gold, Very Revs A. P. Doyle, of Washington, and Dr A. E Burke, of Toronto.

The grand ceremony in the Cathedral with all these dignitaries in purple and gold, moving in one harmonious, religious action, will never fade from memory. The Archbishop and the Delegate occupied thrones on either side of the sanctuary, the latter being the celebrant of the Mass, which he went through with great dignity and exactness. Of the former it was freely averred that never Roman Prelate on his throne made a more complete apotheosis of all we idolize in model churchman." —The Catholic Register.

We propose to keep in touch as far as we can with all phases of secular and ecclesiastical thought and teaching throughout the world and we shall in pursuance of that resolution give from time to time extracts from our exchanges bearing upon events or conditions of the day in order that some of our readers who otherwise might not have an opportunity of seeing them, may have ample material from which to form their own opinions.

THE EQUALIZATION OF WOMEN

"The more woman has become like to and equal to man, the more has she become separated from him. In Europe the woman from her birth to her death shares the life of the man, be he father, husband or son. In the rural districts of Italy are seen men and women working together in the fields. The same is the case whether a man be a shoemaker, a ropemaker, or what not. In the upper classes of Europe, in science, commerce, literature or politics, the woman mother, daughter, wife, or sister, is the inspirer and associate of the man. A woman governs Holland and in England, Russia, Italy, and Germany, the sovereign is accompanied on great state occasions by his consort. Far different is Argentina thus described by this writer;

"The case is different in Argentina. A sort of reciprocal fear seems to raise an insurmountable barrier between the men and the women. Whether at home, in the street, at banquets and public promenades, in the theatres or schools, the two sexes, as if by a tacit understanding, keep each other at a respectful distance. What most strikes the foreigner who walks in Buenos Ayres whether he traverse the narrow streets where the traffic of foot passengers is more crowded than in either London or Paris, or saunter through the broad avenues where tram-cars, carriages, automobiles pass and repass each other, is the absence of women. She sets not as an associate of the man, but as a rival, and in the same house we find an antagonism existing between husband and wife, mother and son."—Literary Digest.

The most interesting contribution to the discussion of this much-discussed question comes in the above clipping from Buenos Ayres. The Argentenians are a cultured and prosperous people. The rivalry which has sprung up between men and women in Argentina has led to a curriculum to counteract the masculine character of the one lately instituted. We thus see the effect of the equalization of women. This advances that question one degree further forward. It may not seem wise or agreeable that women should rival men, but that is not the question. Have they a right to do so? If so we must admit it.

THE KINGSTON STANDARD

This journal and the Galt Reporter are at loggerheads over the stand taken by the Standard in the name of the Conservative party, on a variety of questions. There can be no doubt that the Standard, however, independent, etc., it may be, is not a strictly Conservative paper. It is not in sympathy with some Conservative contentions and says so. There is no objections to its attitude so long as it does not assume the position of the man who rises in meeting to explain that he had intended to vote this way or that, but under the circumstances and from what he had discovered, etc., etc., he would have to vote the other way. There is no friend so unfriendly and damaging as one who can be quoted most against a man, a cause or a party. It is an excellent dodge for attaining notoriety, if not celebrity, and as a world-wide advertising scheme may do excellent service for a time, but in the end it will be found a poor policy. There is no part of the body politic so unpopular as "your superior person," who knows it all for both parties. The conjoined criticism of the press of both parties strikes about a fair average in the general interest and it might very well be left at that. So long as the party journals try to tell the truth as they see it there is no necessity for an "independence" that exists only in the editor's imagination.

EDITORIAL NOTES

In connection with the various attitudes of religious thought to which of late we have been giving attention, it is interesting to note that in denominational churches, there is a tendency, especially among the young, the inexperienced and the sporty to depose the pastor in favor the young man at the door. The seat of authority has apparently been awarded to the irreconcilables, who will not "tolerate any longer" the stiffness, formality, stupidity, ignorance, callowness, bigotry, etc., of the poor things who having spent their lives in acquiring knowledge and are now found unable to make use of it. We doubt very much if this spirit of youthful intolerance of control would bow even to Christ Himself if He came amongst us again in the guise of a man. In other words the democratic spirit of the young man is in this respect running amuck. There is a widespread desire to correct it. Too much freedom has made them "mad."

$25 Working in a Mine

DO YOU WANT IT TO WORK FOR YOU?

It is not necessary for you to gamble in mining stocks unless you deliberately choose to do so, for there is no lottery or gambling in mining as a business; and, there is no question but what good and substantial returns can be and are being made quickly in mining, but only when the investor's money reaches the treasurer and goes direct for the specific purposes of opening up ore bodies and creating new wealth is this done.

The uncertainty that has in the past surrounded many mining ventures has now been eliminated by science and engineering skill, and the minimum certain value of a mining property can be as accurately ascertained as the size and value of a city lot. Besides, the rules that apply to banks, factories and all commercial enterprises as to capable and honest management and fair capitalization apply equally to mining enterprises.

THE FENTON MINES SYNDICATE is considered the best mining proposition ever offered investors, and there is an opportunity to make big returns in the purchase of its membership shares, with but little of the risk which enters into the conduct of any and every business.

In most of the Western United States mining camps the leasing method of operating properties predominates and many large mines would not be operating to-day if it were not for the adoption of this system. Under it the leasers simply take over the properties that the owners have not the capital to operate, furnish the capital and pay the owners a royalty from the profits. This method obviates the danger of heavy losses and risked expenditures involved in the purchase of properties outright.

The Fenton Mines Syndicate is a co-operative association in which all the members are on an equal footing and participate in every form of profit possible to be made by the miner, prospector and company-promoter. Profits from the properties to be leased where the ore is exposed, can be measured and its quantity and value determined and will be secured to the syndicate.

At the same time a bond or option on the property will be secured at a fixed price, so that if it proves as valuable as it is believed to be, the syndicate will secure the fruits of its money not only during the duration of the lease, but for the future too.

The active management of this syndicate is in the hands of the following men of practical experience in every branch of the mining business:

COMMITTEE OF MANAGEMENT.
(ALL OF TORONTO.)

FRED A. FENTON, Mine Operator.
E. C. SEWELL, Mine Manager.
JOHN GRAY, Miner.
C. W. EVANS, Prospector.
J. MILLAR NEIL, Consulting Engineer.

Treasurer: P. H. DRAYTON, K.C., Official Arbitrator for Province.
Bankers: THE HOME BANK OF CANADA, Toronto.

The executive of the Fenton Mines Syndicate are mine-makers and the money placed at our disposal will be used for development work. The opportunity is given of co-operating with us in acquiring and developing a number of properties in the Cobalt and Montreal River Districts. Among the properties are several that it is believed will develop into good silver mines, because the indications and values already uncovered most unequivocally point that way.

The enormous sums that are being distributed in dividends, from the mines of Cobalt District are going mainly to those who got into "ground floor" propositions like this syndicate. We are satisfied that by placing a part of your surplus money with us and allowing it to work for you, that you will not be disappointed in the outcome.

We are not seeking the support of people who want to "get rich quick," or are looking for profits on their investment by return mail. We want to have associated with us cool, calculating men and women who value their money, know what its earning power is, are also quick to grasp a good money-making opportunity, and know that the aggregate of their small investments is better than the large sums of one big capitalist.

ST. JOHN PROBE IS ENDED; MARINE ENQUIRY OVER THERE

Supplies for Steamers Were Purchased at Handsome Prices and Inferior Goods Often Secured—Resumes at Halifax To-day

St. John, N.B., Nov. 28.—Justice Cassels yesterday morning concluded the Marine investigation and left for Halifax to open court to-day.

Malcolm A. Morris, the engineer on the steamer Curlew, testified that in some cases he thought excessive prices were paid for supplies for the steamers. He said the Department was an easy buyer. Witness said he had received presents of money from McDonald of the St. John Iron Works totalling up to $50, but these had nothing to do with Government work.

Some cotton waste, bought at ten cents, was not as good as other which cost nine. Admiral Kingsmill, to whose attention this was drawn, said it was the buyer's fault. Witness had noticed differences in charges for repairs done by different concerns, but had never called Harding's attention to this, as the prices did not concern him, but he had spoken to the captain about excessive charges. The Department was sometimes an easy buyer. Witness never knew anything about a system of giving presents or exchanging checks. He had received presents of money from Charles McDonald, but this had nothing to do with the Department.

H. Brown, agent, one of Harding's clerks, said he occasionally checked prices for supplies, and thought some of them were excessive. To illustrate this, he explained that in one case seven dollars had been paid where three dollars was the regular price. He had changed the price to three dollars, and that bill had not been paid. The system was for the merchants to charge the Department as much as they could get, and once in a while Harding objected to the prices.

He had also called Mr. Harding's attention to an account of T. McAvity & Sons for cement at $2.20 a barrel, when he was aware that a brand could be procured at $1.80 a barrel.

He had never received any presents from merchants doing business with the Department. He knew nothing of any rake-offs on checks of officials of the Department.

Thomas R. Allan, machinist, was then called. He said he had been working on the steamer Lansdowne and on one occasion he had worked on Mr. Harding's launch for five days. C. B. Allan had paid him.

Mr. Gallagher, superintendent of gas buoys, was called. He said he did not order supplies or fix prices, and had no knowledge of excessive prices or of supplies being misappropriated. He knew nothing of any gifts and had never been offered any.

This concluded the evidence, and Mr. Watson, addressing Judge Cassels, said that after considering the evidence adduced, he and Mr. Perron believed it was all they could profitably use at present. They were not through with New Brunswick, however, but would secure other evidence later. Many matters of detail might be investigated, but he thought the evidence brought out was sufficient to show the general system that was carried on. The enquiry was then adjourned.

DREYFUS CASE IS OUTDONE; MYSTERIOUS CASE IN PARIS

Madame Steinbeil, Who Says Servant's Son Slew Her Husband and Step-mother, is Discredited by Paris Physicians—Profound Sensation is Created

Paris, Nov. 28.—Physicians have declared that Madame Steinbeil, who was arrested Thursday for the murder of her husband, a noted artist, and her stepmother, is suffering from a kind of hysteria peculiar to a certain class of neurasthenics, which manifests itself in the invention of the wildest accusations.

Madame Steinbeil first confessed to two newspaper men, and, at daybreak, to the chief of police, to whose residence she voluntarily went, that the murders had been committed by the son of a servant in the house, who had since terrorized her into silence. She had hidden her jewels to add strength to the story of robbery. She hysterically referred to her own secret passion for "a love she loved," but whom she dare not name.

The police, being convinced that Alexandre Wolffe, whom she named, was not connected with the tragedy, released him last night.

In a later examination before Magistrate Leydette there was a dramatic scene when, after Mme. Steinbeil had insisted again and again that Wolffe was the real assassin, her daughter threw herself on her knees before Mme. Steinbeil, crying out, "Mama, mama, confess all, I implore you." The mother, in a burst of tears, responded, "Before my daughter I swear I am innocent."

The excitement produced by Humbert, Dreyfus and Syveton affairs pale into insignificance by comparison, and the revelations pointing to the possible exposure of a national scandal, promise to attract world-wide attention.

Unprecedented scenes were witnessed at the palace of justice while the woman was under examination, guards being required to restrain the crowds from entering. On the boulevards men fought for special editions of newspapers having in them accounts of the case, while in the lobbies of Parliament the Nationalists created a hubbub by threatening to call the Government to account unless orders were given immediately to probe the scandal to the bottom.

Japan and U.S. Agree.

Washington, Nov. 28.—Despite official reticence, information from reliable sources has been obtained of an agreement of far-reaching importance between the United States and Japan, covering the policy of the two countries in the Pacific.

The agreement is based upon the idea of encouraging and defending free and peaceful commercial development in the Pacific.

Grain Blockade Serious.

At High River 300,000 bushels are stored, with half a million more to market and the same conditions exist all along the line.

The farmers are resorting to all sorts of expedients, staking in bags and open frame bins being favorites. This entails extra hauling, besides exposing the grain to ravages of the weather.

On his return Robertson will face a new difficulty, as the Canadian authorities have an embargo in effect here.

THE PAINS OF SCIATICA

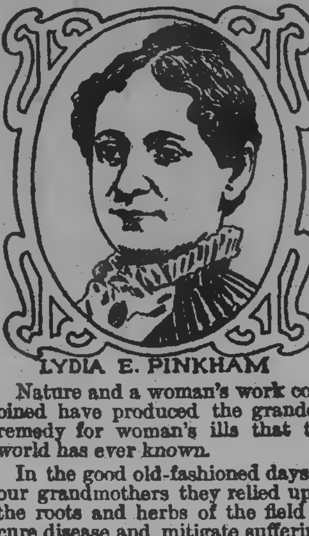
Can be Cured by the Fair Use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills

Fierce darting pains. Pains like red hot needles being driven through the flesh—in the thigh, perhaps down the legs to the ankles—that's sciatica. None but the victim can realize the torture of this trouble. But the sufferer need not grow discouraged for there is a cure in Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These pills enrich the blood, feed the starved sciatic nerve and thus drive out the pain. Mrs Joseph L Brown, Wilmot, NS., was a victim of sciatica and found a cure in Dr Williams' Pink Pills. She says:

"For a year she was laid up with sciatica from my side to my foot. What I suffered was at times awful. I could not touch my foot to the floor and had to hobble about with a cane. My right leg was all drawn up, and I never expected to have the use of it again. I was attended by our family doctor, and tried several other remedies but with no benefit and I felt very much discouraged. One day I read of the cure of a similar sufferer through Dr Williams' Pink Pills and I decided to try them. I got six boxes, and by the time I had taken them I was completely cured, and have not had the slightest twinge of the trouble since. I am therefore a very enthusiastic friend of Dr Williams' Pink Pills and recommend them to all who are similarly troubled."

There is no mystery about the cures Dr Williams' Pink Pills make. They act upon the blood, enriching and purifying it, and in this way feed the nerves and reach the root of the disease. That is why they cure such common ailments as anaemia, pimples and eczema, indigestion, rheumatism, neuralgia, St Vitus' dance, paralysis and the irregularities in health of growing girls and women. Sold by all medicine dealers or by mail at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50, from the Dr Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

NATURE AND A WOMAN'S WORK



LYDIA E. PINKHAM

Nature and a woman's work combined have produced the grandest remedy for woman's ills that the world has ever known.

In the good old-fashioned days of our grandmothers they relied upon the roots and herbs of the field to cure disease and mitigate suffering.

The Indians on our Western Plains to-day can produce roots and herbs for every ailment, and cure diseases that baffle the most skilled physicians who have spent years in the study of drugs.

From the roots and herbs of the field Lydia E. Pinkham more than thirty years ago gave to the women of the world a remedy for their peculiar ills, more potent and efficacious than any combination of drugs.

Mrs. J. M. Tweedale, 12 Napanee Street, Toronto, Canada, writes to Mrs. Pinkham:

"I was a great sufferer from female troubles, had those dreadful bearing down pains, and during my monthly periods I suffered so I had to go to bed. I doctored for a long time but the doctor's treatment failed to help me. My husband saw Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound advertised and got a bottle for me. I commenced its use and soon felt better. I kept on taking it until I was well and an entirely different woman. I also found that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound made childbirth much easier for me. I would recommend your Vegetable Compound to every woman who is afflicted with female troubles."

What Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for Mrs. Tweedale, it will do for other suffering women.

STRUGGLE STARTED

Between Lords and Commons in England—Licensing Bill Turned Down.

London, Nov. 28.—The House of Lords created an interesting political situation last evening by rejecting the Licensing Bill by a vote of 272 against 96.

The Liberals are likely to make this action a rallying cry in their campaign for the curtailment of the power of the House of Lords, claiming that the peers have defeated the will of the people.

They set forth furthermore that the bill, being a revenue measure, is outside the jurisdiction of the House of Lords.

On the other hand, the Conservatives insist that this bill is the most unpopular measure with the country attempted in many years, and that the House of Lord, in rejecting it, has carried out public sentiment. They urge the Government to set the question by going before the country in a general election, but there is very little likelihood of this being done.

Millions For Colleges.

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 28.—Dr. D. K. Pearson, the millionaire philanthropist of Chicago, concerning whom a statement was published recently to the effect that his benefactions had depleted his fortune and left him with a deficit, is quoted yesterday as declaring the story as all "bosh."

Dr. Pearson is also quoted as saying that he has $3,000,000 more to give to educational institutions in this country, which gifts he will begin to bestow next July under certain prescribed conditions.

Sentenced For Fraud.

Chicago, Nov. 28.—William L. Tilden and Chauncey L. Graham, officials of the American Steelball Co., were sentenced yesterday by Judge Chetlain in the Superior Court to serve a term of one to twenty years in the penitentiary on charges of conspiracy, the two men being found guilty of having promoted the steelball company by means of fictitious notes of the bank amounting to $175,000.

A BARNYARD MONSTROSITY

Mr. L. Whitfield of North Monaghan Owns a Three Legged Chicken

A chicken that would stand fine chances of winning the three legged race in the barnyard sports is owned by Mr. L. Whitfield of North Monaghan. It is a "tri-pedded" spring rooster and one of the legs is growing out of the thigh of another leg. The extra one is not as well developed as the other two.

The bird is quite healthy and lively and the third limb doesn't seem to interfere with its progress in any way.

Epworth League Meeting

The meeting of the Epworth League of the Charlotte street Methodist church on Monday evening promises to be of great interest. The subject for the evening discussion is, "Commanding our society by evangelistic zeal." Miss G Christman will preside over the meeting and Misses Higgins and Elliott will read papers on the topic.

There will be a round table conference, conducted by the first vice-President, Mr R J Cox. Every member of the League is expected to be present, and the League extends a hearty welcome to any one who wishes to spend an enjoyable hour.

A Common Mistake About Glasses

Many persons think themselves afflicted with some disease of the eye—believe their eyes need medical or surgical treatment—because they are conscious of physical pain or some impairment of the vision, when their whole visual trouble is caused by some error of refraction, than can be remedied by proper glasses. No medicine or operation can relieve such cases. Being prejudiced against wearing glasses, even rapidly failing vision sometimes fails to convince them of the truth until too late. How often we hear the remark, "I won't wear glasses as long as I can see without." Just such a vow has ruined many a pair of good eyes. Don't be foolish—IF YOU NEED GLASSES, GET THEM.

NEW COLLEGIATE FORMALLY OPENED

the province should be enabled to give half a million each year to the University, and thus people would have the advantage of the higher education. The late Dr. Ryerson, when he was Superintendent of Education, said that every school section was a battle field but there was not many now who would oppose his bill of 1871, making public schools free to every scholar. "Noting the educational changes in other countries we can't still" said the speaker. "The tremeduous changes in educational life are ever before us and we must compete with other countries."

The Honourable Minister of Education again congratulated the citizens on their beautiful Collegiate. Peterborough had the reputation he said of having a strong educational sentiment, and he was more impressed yesterday than ever before of this fact. This city had also had and still had great teachers. It was the teachers that made the school. If they were properly trained they were like an open book to the students. A teacher was not always to be judged by a high percentage of marks but largely by their moral training. Peterborough teachers he said, were highly spoken of. He was pleased particularly to mention Mr. Walker, Mr. Kenner and Mr. Fessenden and an old Peterborough Collegiate boy Dr. Pakenham.

HIS WORSHIP MAYOR RUSH
One of the Speakers at the Formal Opening of the Collegiate.

In conclusion he again thanked the people for the cordial reception accorded him and wished Peterborough continued progress.

MAYOR RUSH'S ADDRESS.

His Worship Mayor Rush spoke as follows;—

Ladies and Gentlemen—I am pleased to be present on this occasion as the head of the City Council to join with the Board of Education in the formal opening of this magnificent educational institution. And I am pleased as I know we all are, to have with us the Minister who is at the head of the educational work of the province, and those officers who are his assistants in that work including our old friend Dr. Pakenham formerly a student in this Institute. The Board of Education is to be congratulated upon the completion of this fine building which is a credit to them, to the architect who designed it, and to the people who, by their votes, authorized its erection. The old school building large as it may have been for the service required at the time it was erected had long ago become inadequate, and the erection of a new building was necessary. Certainly a better site could not have been secured and Peterborough now has I believe, the best Collegiate Institute in the Province, on one of the best sites. The new building has cost considerable money and there may have been, and no doubt was, difference of opinion as to the expenditure of so large a sum for the purpose, but the ratepayers endorsed the expenditure and all are agreed that the Institute is a credit to the city. The Board of Education has a sphere of work and a very important one separate from the City Council but the Board and the Council are at times brought into contact on important educational matters, and it has been a pleasure to see that the two bodies work in harmony, and I think it has always been the desire of the Council to assist the Board to make the schools efficient, so that the children and young people of Peterborough will have the best educational equipment obtainable when they take their place in the world's work. With the excellent staff of instructors that the Institute has and the facilities afforded in these new premises, good work is being done, and we may look forward with confidence to years of successful work in this Institute.

MR. ROBT. FAIR
Chairman of the Peterborough Board of Education.

REV. H. J. KEITH.

Rev. Mr. Keith, President of the Ministerial Association, was one of the speakers of the afternoon. He referred to the occasion as one of the happiest that he had ever attended. He was pleased also to be present with Dr. Pakenham, his old high school master.

The event, Rev. Mr. Keith said, was one of congratulation. It was a happy occasion to the Minister of Education, Board of Education, teachers and scholars. He contrasted the fine new building with the old log school of years ago. But, he added, what grand examples of men and women came out of that humble building. He said that he did not wish to speak by way of criticism, but he thought that there was danger of emphasizing too much the technical and industrial education, and neglecting the ethical and moral sides.

Continuing he said that it was essential that the wisest and best teachers be employed. In Peterborough, he remarked, that the schools had the finest teachers and therefore it was a matter of congratulation to the people of this city that they had such a well equipped building and splendid staff.

REV. FATHER McCOLL.

Rev. Father McColl said that the citizens of Peterborough had every reason to congratulate themselves on the magnificent new Collegiate building that they now possessed. He also added his congratulations to the contractors. The Minister of Education had done everything possible, the speaker said, for the advancement of education in the Province and he hoped that this success would continue. The Minister had made no mistake in giving Peterborough the excellent Normal school. The Collegiate was the stepping stone between Public and University education.

In order to succeed it was necessary to have sound bodies. The various rooms had been furnished with excellent light and ventilation.

"But the education that does not train the mind is not good," said the speaker. "When a student has a trained mind he becomes resourceful." Rev. Father McColl strongly advocated moral training in schools. A man with a trained will had self restraint, but with the multiplicity of religions in a school this was hard. Pupils should be trained in truth, virtue, justice and modesty. The teacher has to be just especially in matters of history, where there is so much religious controversy. He did not approve of teaching the scandals in history. He thought that the principle should be to not let them know wrong, because it served a detrimental purpose. He concluded by thanking the Board of Education for their kind invitation to be present.

DR. PAKENHAM.

Dr. W. Pakenham, President of the Technical School, Toronto, and an old Collegiate boy, was present, and was given a warm reception by his many friends in Peterborough. His remarks were very interesting and his references to the conditions when he attended the local Collegiate were very amusing.

The speaker said that the note which these exercises had struck was a very triumphant one. The Minister of Education was jubilant and so were the Board of Education and the teachers and pupils. Peterborough would be known, he said, as the intellectual centre as well as the industrial centre of the Midland counties. One of the achievements of this school was to devolve the Canadian citizen. A high school training revealed lofty ideals in pupils and equipped for their place in professions and in commerce and industry. Such a school as was being opened should help boys choose their life work, but it must merely choose occupations. It honors scholarships.

The old boys of the Collegiate, Dr. Pakenham remarked, envied the present day pupils. What a magnificent, well equipped building they had now as compared with the one that he had attended. He would give anything to receive his lessons in mathematics and Latin from Mr. Fessenden and Mr. Kenner.

MR. T. E. BRADBURN, M.P.P.

Mr. T. E. Bradburn, M.P.P., was the next speaker who added a few remarks of congratulations. He was glad that Peterborough had got the Normal School. He had done his utmost to get it here and was pleased to see that the Honorable Minister of Education was delighted with the choice he had made.

MR. A. MOWAT
Inspector of Public Schools for Peterborough.

WARDEN THOMPSON.

Warden Thompson said that it gave him a great deal of pleasure to be present as the representative of the county. To succeed in the race of life one more be clean morally and strong physically and he was sure that the pupils in the Peterborough Collegiate would be so trained and that they would be the future men and women of the country.

OTHER SPEAKERS.

Mr. J. A. Sexsmith, M.P., for East Peterborough, and Mr. Clark, of Lindsay, Inspector of Public Schools of Lindsay, Inspector of Public Schools of Victoria County, also made a few remarks.

PRINCIPAL KENNER.

Mr. H. R. H. Kenner, Principal of the Collegiate, was called upon to speak. He was loudly applauded. He said that he had not intended making any address. He thanked the citizens of Peterborough for the honor done him by appointing him, through their representatives, head master of their school. He would endeavor to train the scholars in the best possible manner.

The proceedings were closed with the singing of the National Anthem.

THE FIRST SCHOOL HOUSE IN PETERBORO' ERECTED 1826-27

Was a Log Building with Shingle Roof—Some Interesting Information About Education Here

The following interesting information regarding the early educational history of Peterborough is contained in Poole's history of Peterborough, dated 1867:

The first school house, erected in Peterborough, was in the year 1826-27. It was a log building with shingled roof, of very plain and unimposing aspect, and stood on the ground now occupied by the shed, in the playground in the rear of the present Union School building. It has also been stated that the Rev. Samuel Armour, first Episcopal clergyman in Peterborough, conducted his school, in which the higher as well as the rudimentary branches of education were for a time taught. As the town progressed, other schools, specially devoted to the branches usually taught in common schools, were organized, and then this building was appropriated solely to the purposes of a grammar school; and almost from its commencement, a grant of money from the public funds was made annually to assist in its support.

The writer has been able to ascertain very little in reference to the character of the common schools, or even the names of their teachers, down to the year 1852, at the commencement of which, these were all united under a common school board of trustees, and the vacant church, built and formerly occupied by the British Methodist society, was leased and used for general common school purposes.

Towards the close of the year 1833, the old grammar school building was found to have become so dilapidated, through time and usage, that it was untenable for winter use; and the board of grammar school trustees applied for amalgamation with the already united common schools; a proposal which was finally accepted, and entered upon in February, 1854. John Langton, Esq., was then appointed Chairman, Dr Hay, Secretary, and William Cluxton, Esq., Treasurer of the joint board.

From this period until 1860, the united Grammar and Common School was carried on in the vacant church already mentioned. Early in 1857, in consequence of that building being

FARMER WAS BADLY SCARED

Havelock Man Thought Somebody Was After Him With Gun--The Explanation

Special to the Review.

Havelock, Nov. 28— Firearms are being too freely used around here of late and the habit of firing off guns at all times of the day and night should be discontinued as it is very annoying to certain people. A story that is going the rounds at present is very interesting. A farmer who lives some distance from town was making his way home at a late hour. The roads were very muddy and he was going slow. The night was very dark and still, the kind that makes funny thoughts come into the brain and causes the blood to tingle as if the thermometer was below zero. He has just entered a grove of trees, when the loud and sharp report of a rifle rang out.

Thoughts brought actions and soon he was driving down the road at a 2.10 pace. He stopped, not for stick and he stopped not for stone, but kept the horse running till he reached home. And all the time thoughts kept going and coming, thinking of who was on the war path after his scalp.

The mystery has since been cleared up. A very busy and thrifty butcher found it necessary to kill some cattle during the night to catch up with his work and not liking the idea of knocking them down with an axe, he resulted of the rifle with the result of scaring one man until his hair stood straight up as well as supplying meat for his customers.

GREAT ORATOR TO VISIT CITY

Rev. Dr. Johnston of Montreal to Lecture Here on Tuesday Evening

The people of Peterborough have a treat in store for them on Tuesday evening, December 1st, when the Rev Robert Johnston, DD., of Montreal, regarded as the best orator in the Presbyterian church, will lecture in St. Paul's church. He will speak on "The West and its people." A year ago he visited the West and took the opportunity of securing a number of views illustrative of life among the different communities and classes, having in view especially mission work among these. The lecture, at the same time, however, shows a good deal of the country, the Rockies, and something of the new route of the Grand Trunk Pacific. He will also have a few characteristic views of the Tercentenary celebration at Quebec. The lecture will be open to the public. An offering will be received at the close.

THE P. B. C. TOURNAMENT

The trio of near bowlers designated Hutch's Hams fell down ignominously before the skilful trundling of the B.A.C.'s last night in the ten pin league series at the P.B.C. alleys, though the porcine titled rollers managed by a streak of good fortune to pull out the second game of the series, the other two going to McRae's team by a comfortable margin. The losers were outplayed all along the line, though the Hams resorted to every possible device to avert defeat, Chris. Graham going as far as to run the length of the alleys for a strangle hold on the pins on one occasion. The advent of the Hunter street boniface was hailed with delight by his opponents and he justified their confidence by bowling a great game against his own team. He was ably assisted by Joe Hay who demonstrated the reasons why he had been let out by Lang's team. He has been asked to take a week's seasoning in the Lakefield League before the next game. Bruce Hutchinson and his red vest played a prominent part in the evening's enjoyment and his record of 86 should stand for some time to come.

For the winners Ernie Bruce carried off the high honors with the best single and best aggregate score while McRae was not far behind. Best, too, making a most creditable showing for a new bowler.

The scores follow:—

ROGERS VICTOR

Beat Young Hackenschmidt at Belleville Last Night in Two Straight Falls in 16 Min. and 9 Min.

Special to the Review.

Belleville, Nov. 28.—Yankee Rogers and Young Hackenschmidt wrestled in this city last night before a good sized crowd. Hack put up a good argument but was thrown twice in succession by Rogers in 16 and 9 minutes respectively. Both men made a fine impression and the wrestling game may boom here as a result. Three boxing bouts were put on before the wrestling match came off. The entertainment came off at the Carman Opera House, which was fairly well filled with all classes of citizens.

HERE IS A CHANCE FOR TREMBLAY

Max Brenton Forwards Challenge to Any Lightweight in America

Havelock, Iowa, Nov. 26— Sporting Editor Review; I wish to issue a challenge through your paper to all lightweight wrestlers, and stand ready to defend my title of lightweight champion of America against all comers in that division. I have wrestled over thirty-two States and have never lost to a man whose weight was within ten pounds of the lightweight limit. This is open to all lightweights and a side bet of any amount up to $500 is also open to them. Any one wishing to arrange a match may address me at Havelock, Iowa.

MAX BRENTON,
Champion lightweight wrestler of America.

SPORTING TALK

Bowling seems to be taking pretty well in Lindsay.

Lindsay will enter a team in the junior series of the OHA. Peterborough should get in line.

Mr. Dickson Jewett, of Cannington formerly of Peterborough, is secretary of the Cannington hockey club.

A complete shake-up in the list of officers is promised. Dr. A. W. McPherson, of Peterborough, is slated as the new president; Billy Slee dropping out and Dr. Wood is almost certain to be the vice-president.

The old fighters are coming back to the game again. Kid McCoy, in spite of the fact that he didn't make a very impressive showing against a second-rater, thinks he has still a chance in the roped arena. Then there's Young Corbett, the former lightweight champion, getting into fighting trim again, and Joe Choynski, the former well-known heavyweight. Choynski has expressed his intention of re-entering the ring. And rumor has it that Bob Fitzsimmons will again make an appearance in the pugilistic world. But it seems hardly probable that the Cornishman will do any more fighting.

TOM JENKINS ALSO BEATEN

Exchampion of America no Match for Yussif Mahmout--Two Falls For Turk in 33 Min. and 7 Minutes

New York, Nov. 26.—Tom Jenkins proved no match for Yussiff Mahmout to-night and the Turk defeated the ex-champion of America in two straight falls, the first in 33 minutes and the second in 7 minutes. The Turk threw Jenkins all over the mat. At the finish of the second fall Jenkins lay almost unconscious and had to be assisted to his dressing room.

Yussiff Mahmout and Raoul de Rouen, the new arrival from France, left by the midnight train for Montreal, where they will meet tomorrow, Friday night, at Sohmer Park. They are to wrestle at mixed styles. If each wins the fall the third fall will be the choice of the wrestler who won his bout in the shortest time. The Turk will be a bit tired after his match with Jenkins and Rauel de Rouen will stand a good chance to win. They should make one of the best matches of the year.

Tremblay and Bothner meet in Brooklyn to-morrow.

TIGERS AHEAD OF VARSITY TEAM

At the end of the third quarter in the Hamilton-Varsity game at Toronto to-day, Tigers were leading 19 points to 11.

BASKETBALL

Much local interest is centred in the match at the Y.M.C.A. to-night between Peterborough and the Central Y.M.C.A. team of Toronto. The locals will have a strong line-up and should stand a chance of defeating the Centrals. The game will be called at eight o'clock.

BEFORE TREATMENT

AFTER TREATMENT

Peter E. Summers, of Kalamazoo, Mich., relates his experience:

"I was troubled with Nervous Debility for many years. I lay it to indiscretion and excesses in early youth. I became very despondent and didn't care whether I worked or not. I imagined everybody who looked at me guessed my secret. Imaginative dreams at night weakened me—my back ached, had pains in the back of my head, hands and feet were cold, tired in the morning, poor appetite, fingers were shaky, eyes blurred, hair loose, memory poor, etc. Numbness in the fingers set in and the doctor told me he feared paralysis. I took all kinds of medicines and tried many first-class physicians, wore an electric belt for three months, went to Mt. Clemens for baths, but received little benefit. While at Mt. Clemens I was induced to consult Drs. Kennedy & Kennedy, though I had lost all faith in doctors. Like a drowning man I commenced the New Method Treatment and it saved my life. The improvement was like magic—I could feel the vigor going through the nerves. I was cured mentally and physically. I have sent them many patients and will continue to do so."

LECONTE IS SAFE.

Haytian Minister Escaped Slaughter at Jeremie In Open Boat.

Port au Prince, Hayti, Nov. 29.—Gen. Leconte, who a few days ago was reported killed at Jeremie by the revolutionists, arrived here yesterday. He escaped in a rowboat with four officers and two sailors.

They were at sea for three days without provisions and finally reached land at Petit Goave.

The general declares that there were no executions at Jeremie and that the reports that three men had been put to death there on his orders were incorrect.

Leconte has taken up again the duties of the interior, and Gen. Auguste, who was given this post when Leconte was thought to be dead, has been made Minister of Public Works.

Cholera Grows Worse.

St. Petersburg, Nov. 28.—An alarming increase in the Asiatic cholera has occurred in the last 24 hours, when 27 new cases were reported. The new cases, mostly in well-to-do families, show all the virulence of the early days of the epidemic.

Since the beginning of the epidemic, there has been a total of 8,184 cases, 3,320 deaths and 4,698 recoveries. For several weeks past the daily average of new cases in the capital has been less than 10.

New Pastor For Kingston.

Kingston, Nov. 28.—Rev. T. W. Savary of Winnipeg has accepted the position of vicar of St. James' Church, Kingston, and will begin duty here on Feb. 1.

The Bishop of Ontario has appointed Rev. J. Dumbrill of Iroquois to Kemptville, Rev. Walter Cox of Parham to Wolfe Island, Rev. Dr. Purdy to Selby, Rev. Mr. Morton to Maynooth and Rev. Mr. Hall to Bancroft.

Dr. Leeson, of Beresford, Man., was killed by falling under a load of timber.

WAR CLOUD AGAIN.

Austria-Hungary Is Determined Not to Yield to Turkey.

Berlin, Nov. 28.—The Balkan situation is considered here to have grown more disquieting. The Austro-Hungarian military preparations are taken to indicate that Austria-Hungary is determined to support her claims at all hazards, and that she will promptly crush any attempts on the part of Servia or Montenegro to disturb the peace. In the meantime negotiations for an International Congress drag on.

Paris, Nov. 28.—A special despatch to The Echo de Paris from Budapest says that Servia and Montenegro have concluded an alliance, whereby, unless they receive compensation from Austria, they will declare war against that country immediately.

Acording to this despatch the Servians and Montenegrins will seek to draw the Austrians from the plains to the mountains, and will use every device to destroy the advancing enemy, even to the poisoning of the wells and the burning of the towns and villages.

ONE HUNDRED DROWNED.

Coasting Steamer Ponting Goes Down Off the Philippines.

Manila, Nov. 28.—The coasting steamer Ponting, carrying a large number of laborers from Narvaian to the ricefields in Pangasinan province, struck a rock and sank last night during a storm, off the town of San Fernando, in Union province. It is estimated that a hundred of the passengers and crew of the Ponting were drowned.

The steamer Viscaya rescued 55. A patrol of constabulary, which was established immediately after the accident, picked up fifteen bodies, and many were coming ashore. It is not known whether any Americans or Europeans were aboard the wrecked steamer.

PARDON CAME TOO LATE.

Capt. N. F. Harbottle Dies In Edmonton From Cancer.

Edmonton, Nov. 28.—Capt. N. F. Harbottle, the defaulting collector of inland revenue here, who was serving a two-year sentence, died suddenly in the penitentiary yesterday morning from cancer of the stomach. He had been operated upon and never rallied.

A peculiarly sad feature of the case was the fact that one hour after his death a pardon arrived from Ottawa, which had been granted by order-in-council after the precarious condition of his health was made known to the Government. Capt. Harbottle leaves a wife and four children. He was a brother of the former secretary of the Toronto Club.

ON AND OFF CHAT ABOUT FAT

The society reporter picked up the following gem at Madam Brewster's not twenty-four hours ago. One of her millionaire customers struggling into a new gown asked the famous costumer how she kept her figure in such superb shape. "You habitually eat and drink heartily and even thoughtlessly not to say riotously at times," she complained, "whereas I live like a hermit. Yet I can't keep slim, and apparently, you can't get fat." "Guilty," replied the fashion czarina. "I admit I don't fatten up nor do I thin down, but it is because I have the power, my dear Mrs. —— (the name almost slipped out), to say to my fat 'Thus far and no further.' I don't exercise nor diet nor run any danger of wrinkles or stomach trouble either. Here is the secret." She wrote a few words on a slip of paper and handed it to her questioner. "Get that filled at the druggist's," she concluded, "take a teaspoonful after after meals and at bedtime and you will never get any fatter than you want to be. You can take off a pound a day with this receipt, if you want to."

Being fat herself and fully alive to the tremendous value of these states to fat folks everywhere, the society reporter committed an unpardonable social sin; she peeped over the lady's shoulder—and this is what she saw: For Excess Fat, simplest, safest, cheapest, most helpful receipt of any; One-half ounce Marmola, three-quarter ounce Fluid Extract Cascara Aromatic, four and three-quarter ounces Peppermint Water.

TWO-POWR TOO MUCH.

London "Nation" Opposes Building Fleet Against U.S.

London, Nov. 28.—The Nation publishes a strongly-worded argument against including the United States in the two-power naval standard for Great Britain; in other words, that the British fleet should exceed the strength of any other two powers by 10 per cent.

The paper says that America and Germany are the next two strongest naval powers after Great Britain. America, it explains, has practically to build two navies, one for the Atlantic and one for the Pacific.

"A people of 40,000,000," The Nation continues, "is called upon to provide a force stronger than that levied on 140,000,000 of people. On this proposition we have two remarks to make: the first is that the people of Great Britain cannot do it, and the second, that the Liberal party will not try to do it. They never will consent to build against America; it is hateful of the Liberals even to think of building against the United States.

Warship Ordered to Shanghai.

New York, Nov. 28.—Consul-General Denby at Shanghai has requested Rear-Admiral Harber at Manila to send gunboats to Shanghai to protect American interests. The Helena will steam there to-day.

Representative's Wife Arrested.

Boston, Nov. 28.—After pleading guilty to a charge of shoplifting, Mrs. Milo W. Barney, wife of Representative Barney of Swanton, Vt., paid a fine of $40 imposed by Judge Murray yesterday.

SUFFERED TORTURES FOR 70 YEARS

Wife of a Prominent Physician Tells How She Was Cured.

Mrs. J. R. Flock is the widow of one of the best known physicians in London, Ontario. She was treated by her husband and many other medical men yet never received any lasting benefit. Just by accident, she tried a well-known remedy, and now, after 70 years of suffering, she is well. Read her letter to Fruit-a-tives Limited.

"Dear Sirs,—Since my early childhood (and I am now in my seventy-third year) I have suffered indescribable torment from stomach trouble and indigestion, complicated with liver disorders. Being the wife of a prominent physician (the late Dr. J. R. Flock), I, naturally enough, had a prejudice against proprietary remedies. I was, however, unable to benefit to any great extent through my lifetime, from taking the ordinary remedies of physicians, being constantly in delicate health from stomach disorder and vomiting. Accidentally I came into possession of a sample of "Fruit-a-tives"—tried them, and found myself wonderfully benefitted. I take them now as my only medicine and they are keeping me in the most satisfactory health.

After finding out the wonderful medicinal qualities of "Fruit-a-tives" I have recommended them to many of my friends and acquaintances, who have also had the best results from their use—and one lady friend that I have recently recommended them to, has used them for Sciatica, from which she suffered constantly and was unable to procure any remedy that would relieve her. She is now taking "Fruit-a-tives" and is cured.

I am glad to be able to recommend "Fruit-a-tives" and will be glad if you will use my name in any way that will be the means of bringing your remedy before the public."

Shape Our Own Course.

Detroit, Nov. 28.—In his address before the Wholesalers' Association last night Hon. R. F. Sutherland said he did not come to preach reciprocal trade relations, nor the reduction of the high wall against Canada, but to point out that since Americans had adhered to high protection Canadians had shaped an independent tariff policy calculated to build up their own industries.

DEAFNESS CANNOT BE CURED

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness—caused by catarrh—that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

CONSPIRACY NOT PROVEN.

Jury at Port Arthur Fails to Find Organized Corruption.

Port Arthur, Nov. 28.—After half an hour's deliberation the jury returned a verdict of not guilty in the case against J. W. Armstrong, J. Hubert and R. Lethen, accused of conspiracy in connection with the recent federal election.

Mr. Justice Britton in his charge inclined to the opinion that while one or all might have been guilty individually of wrong-doing, of indiscretion, in this case it was necessary to prove that they had conspired together, which the judge did not seem to think was clearly shown.

The three defendants and Hogarth have still to face charges of subornation of personation, but these charges have been traversed to the spring Assizes at the request of Crown Prosecutor Hodgins.

Soon after the opening yesterday F. E. Hodgins for the crown announced the close of the crown's case, and Hamilton Cassels and W. A. Dowler for defendants asked Mr. Justice Britton to take the case from the jury and dismiss it on the ground that the poll was not a proper one and that no case had been made out against the defendants.

Justice Britton ruled against them, saying he would let the case go to the jury, though the evidence against Armstrong was very weak indeed. He remarked of the case against Lethen and Hubert that he could not say the same.

The defence called Charles Eames, Frank Flanagan and Harry Cahagan, passengers on the election train. They had heard nothing during the trip to arouse their suspicions that anything was wrong.

Five Hotelmen Fined.

Stratford, Nov. 28.—Five hotelkeepers were fined in the Police Court yesterday for not complying with the license laws regarding the uncovering of bar windows during prohibited hours. RELIGIOUS SERVICES TO BE HELD IN McDONNEL ST. HOUSE

On Sunday afternoon at 2.30 o'clock a meeting for prayer for a genuine Pentecostal revival in the city will be held at 176 McDonnel street, in the house formerly occupied by the late John Frise. The front of the house has been fitted up as a mission, and about seventy-five people can be seated there. Rev. J. E. Saunders formerly pastor of Concord Avenue church Toronto, will be here Wednesday evening at 7.30 o'clock, and will continue to hold services every afternoon at 2.30 and every night for a series of meetings. He is more widely known on the American side, and is especially prominent as one of the Pentecostal preachers, and is also editor of a widely circulated paper called the "Latter Reign." He is of the opinion that the Pentecostal work has been misrepresented and is prepared to tell all honest seekers the truth about it, and to teach the truth of the Word of God. He has received the genuine baptism of the Holy Ghost and spake in tongues at that time as on the day of Pentecost. He believes in nothing fanatical, foolish or unscriptural and is an ordained preacher of one of the old denominations. Members of different churches are interested in his work, and no organization is denied. All are welcome.—Com.

MILK WAGGON COLLIDED WITH POST IN RUNAWAY AND MILK SPILT OVER ROAD

A runaway accident that resulted in much damage being done occurred this morning, when the team of Mr. T. Hetherington, drawing a milk waggon became frightened on Brock St.

While Mr. Hetherington was delivering some milk, the horses started on the tear down Brock street toward the railroad track. A double-header train was crossing the street at the time so the team turned down Bethune street. They collided with a telegraph pole on Bethune street, a horse going to each side of it. The waggon was considerably damaged and was taken to a nearby blacksmith shop. The milk was spilt over the road.

THE RAILWAY MUST BE READY FOR SPELLS OF DRY WEATHER

Recent Long Drought Has Proven This at Havelock—Company Making Provision for Future—Building a Seven Foot Dam

Special to the Review.

Havelock, Nov. 28—The dry spell of this fall has shown the C.P.R. that they must do something in order to always have a supply of water on hand. During the dry spell the resources of Plato creek, to the south of the railway, the railay dwindled down to such small proportions that the C.P.R. found it necessary to get their supply of water elsewhere. Thus they were obliged to dam back a larger creek, one mile east of the village. It has already and caused the engines to run down there in order to be filled.

The company decided to mend matters so that they would have a large supply of water for years to come. Accordingly they bought several acres of land to the south of their property through which Plato creek runs. They have now men engaged in building a seven foot dam at the young boys' swimming pond, south-east of the village. It has already caused the water to raise about four feet and up over the pipe directly south of the shops. In the spring a pump will be installed at the dam which will ensure a plentiful supply of water in the future.

SIX MONTHS IN THE GAOL FOR VAGRANCY

John Oakley in Police Court This Morning --- Drunk Was Remanded

John Oakley, who has been a familiar figure on the streets for many months will not be seen again for some time. He was given six months with hard labor in the county gaol. He appeared before the Magistrate on a charge of vagrancy.

Oakley, who was at one time an inmate of the House of Providence, but would not stay there. He has been sleeping out at nights through the summer and fall months. He has no home. He goes about sawing wood, but he never finishes one job before he commences another.

"Give me a chance to go back and finish a job I started in Ashburnham yesterday," he pleaded.

His Worship would not consent to this, and said that he would have lots of work to do at the gaol. He would have three good meals a day and would be kept clean.

FOR BEING DRUNK.

Edward Hill pleaded not guilty to being drunk in a public place. He was remanded until this afternoon at four o'clock, when P C Mebarry, who arrested him will be present.

DELICATE CHILDREN MADE WELL AND STRONG

The little ones are frail. Their hold upon life is slight. At the very first symptoms of trouble Baby's Own Tablets should be given. This medicine cures colic, sour stomach, indigestion, diarrhoea, constipation, the teething troubles and other minor ailments. It is equally good for the new born babe as the well grown child. Mothers have the guarantee of a government analyst that this medicine contains no opiate or poisonous soothing stuff. Mrs Cressman of New Hamburg, Ont., says, "I have used Baby's Own Tablets for stomach trouble and constipation with marked success. I feel that my little ones are safe when I have a box of tablets in the house." Sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from the Dr Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Germany's Army Budget.

Berlin, Nov. 28.—The army budget for Prussia, Saxony and Wurtemberg estimate the expenditures in this direction for 1909 at a total of about $180,500,000, or $6,500,000 less than in 1908. These estimates, however, do not include Bavaria, which will raise the grand total to about $192,500,000.

House Opening Gazetted.

Ottawa, Nov. 28.—The Canada Gazette to-day contains notice of the formal prorogation of Parliament till Jan. 9.

This means that the House will not meet before that date. Wednesday, Jan. 13, will probably be the date.

Friction With Inspector.

FIRST SCHOOL IN PETERBORO' ERECTED 1826-27

found insufficient to accommodate the greatly increased numbers then attending school,—in the instruction of which, a Head Master, two other male and three female teachers were constantly employed, arrangements were commenced for the erection of the noble building which is now not only an ornament to the town, but is amply sufficient and well adapted to the purposes for which it was intended.

Some discussion and deliberation arose as to the proper site for such an edifice and three locations were severally proposed. 1st, a portion of the old burying ground, fronting upon George street; 2nd, the vacant ground fronting on Water street, and known as the Court House Park, and 3rd, the present site.

Preference was given by the majority of the Board to the second of these and, strange to say, the consent of the Town and County Councils, was readily procured for appropriating three acres of the beautiful Court House green to that purpose;—a design, which if carried out would have deprived the citizens of that fine enclosure, left our county buildings in the back ground, and destroyed much of the effect of their position on that commanding eminence. Fortunately neither of these bodies had the disposal of this ground; and it was, ere long, ascertained that a special Act of Parliament would be necessary to divert the property in question from the purposes for which it was originally designed. Petitions were, however, drawn up for signature and a deputation sent to Toronto, then the seat of Government, to secure the accomplishment of the object sought. An influential minority of the Board, however, opposed what would now be regarded as an act of spoliation; and the consent of the Government was consequently withheld.

The beauties and advantages of the present site appear to have then become fully appreciated; and measures were at once taken to proceed with the erection of the building. Mr. Sheard, Architect, of Toronto, furnished the plans, &c.; Messrs. Mitchell, Graham and McDonald were awarded the contracts, and the work was vigorously pushed forward, during the autumn of 1857, and the two following years.

The new Union School building was completed and possession assumed by the Board; at the opening of the school in January, 1860. The following are the names of the gentlemen composing the building committee who were then relieved from their arduous and responsible duties,—Jas. Hall Esq., Chairman; W S Conger, William Cluxton, Thomas Fortye, James Stevenson, Frederick Ferguson, Esquires, and the Rev. Mark Burnham.

In order to provide funds for building purposes, two town lots, originally set apart for school purposes, were offered for sale. These were, lot no. ten, north of King street, and lot no five, south of London and west of George Sts. The former was bought by Mr. John Delaney for £201, and the latter, although nominally sold, never passed from under the control of the Board. The building fund was also largely assisted by the donation on the part of the Town Council, of the entire Clergy Reserve money appropriated to the town for 1856, amounting to £981 8s. 3d., which was placed in the Commercial Bank Agency to the credit of the Board.

The original estimate as to the cost of the new school building was $16,000, and the actual outlay for its completion and furnishing, amounted to $16,258. So trifling an excess over the estimated sum, was a matter for congratulation alike by the Board and the public. To enable the town to meet this large sum, debentures to the amount of $14,000. were issued, bearing interest at six per cent. per annum.

Over 800 Persons There Last Night --- Pupils and Friends Had Enjoyable Time

There were about eight hundred persons who visited the new Collegiate Institute last night, the occasion being the promenade in connection with the formal opening of the new building yesterday. The beautiful building was thrown open to the public for inspection. It was lighted throughout and the teachers of the school were present in the classrooms.

The physical and chemical laboratories attracted a great deal of interest and the splendid manner in which they are equipped was the subject of much favorable comment.

In the assembly hall the promenade was held. Excellent music was provided by an orchestra and the evening was one of great pleasure to all who attended.

ENGINEERS OF HYDRO-ELECTRIC COMMISSION IN PETERBOROUGH TO-DAY

Mr. Botham, of Toronto, one of the electrical engineers of the Hydro-Electric Power Commission, and Mr E. G. Converse, of Niagara Falls, another electrical engineer, are in the city today. This morning they made a thorough inspection of the Canadian General Electric works.

As is generally known the CGE. Co. is likely to be awarded a large contract for supplying certain equipment for the power lines of the Hydro-Electric Commission. It was to assure themselves that the local concern was equipped and able to handle the contract that the engineers of the Commission made the inspection today.

When seen by the Review, the visitors would make no statement, it being necessary for them to report to the Commission before making anything public.

To the Grand Work Dodd's Kidney Pills are Doing.

Garnish, Fortune Bay, Nfld., Nov. 27 —Special— Among the fishermen here who through exposure to wet and cold are subject to those pains and aches which come from diseased Kidneys, Dodd's Kidney Pills are looked upon as a positive boon to mankind. They are never tired of telling how their backaches and rheumatism vanish before the great Kidney remedy.

Among many others, Mr Frank Banfield after years of suffering, has found relief in Dodd's Kidney Pills, and here is what he is telling his friends.—

"I find Dodd's Kidney Pills the best medicine for backache I have ever used. I only used two boxes and they cured me of backache I had had for five years. It started through a strain. My father's back also bothered him, and he got some relief from one pill I gave him. They were too precious to give him more. All persons suffering from backache, should use Dodd's Kidney Pills."

Why do Dodd's Kidney Pills cure backache. Simply because backache is kidney ache, and Dodd's Kidney Pills positively cure all kidney aches and ills. This has been proved in thousands of cases in Canada. If you haven't used them yourself ask your neighbors.

PRAYERS FOR RAIN.

To the Editor of the Review.

Dear Sir,—Allow me to remark through your columns how very strange is the action, or rather nonaction of the ministers of this city in regard to seeking the help of Him who alone can send relief from the terrible drought from which our country is suffering. I only know of one instance in which it was alluded to in the church service, and yet every one who thinks at all about the matter must know that the situation is extremely serious, and is daily becoming more so, as in the ordinary course of events, we may expect the ground to freeze up now any day, in fact I believe it is generally in the grip of jack frost earlier than this. I wonder whether it is thoughtfulness, or indifference, or is it that they do not believe we are any more likely to get it for for the asking. Surely not the latter.

HAS VERY MANY VICTIMS HERE

Reports Many Cases of Rheumatism and Gives Simple Home Recipe

Thousands of men and women who have felt the sting and torture of this dread disease which is no respecter of age, persons, sex, color or rank, will be interested to know that while for many years rheumatism was considered an incurable disease, now it is one of the easiest afflictions of the human body to conquer. Medical science has proven it not a distinct disease in itself, but a symptom, caused by inactive kidneys. Rheumatism is uric acid in the blood and other waste products of the system which should be filtered and strained out in the form of urine. The function of the kidneys is to sift the blood clean and pure. The kidneys however are of sponge-like substance, the holes or pores of which will sometimes, either from overwork, cold or exposure, become clogged and inactive, and failing in their function of eliminating these poisons from the blood, they remain in the veins, decompose and settling about the joints and muscles, cause the untold suffering and pain of rheumatism and backache, often producing complications of bladder and urinary disease, weakness, etc.

The following simple prescription is said to relieve the worst cases of rheumatism because of its direct action upon the blood and kidneys, relieving too, the most severe forms of bladder and urinary troubles; Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces. Mix by shaking well in a bottle and take in teaspoonful doses after each meal and at bedtime. The ingredients can be had from any good prescription pharmacy and are absolutely harmless and safe to use at any time.

ENGINEERS OF HYDRO-ELECTRIC COMMISSION IN PETERBOROUGH TO-DAY

Mr. Botham, of Toronto, one of the electrical engineers of the Hydro-Electric Power Commission, and Mr E. G. Convarse, of Niagara Falls, another electrical engineer, are in the city today. This morning they made a thorough inspection of the Canadian General Electric works.

As is generally known the CGE. Co. is likely to be awarded a large contract for supplying certain equipment for the power lines of the Hydro-Electric Commission. It was to assure themselves that the local concern was equipped and able to handle the contract that the engineers of the Commission made the inspection today.

When seen by the Review, the visitors would make no statement, it being necessary for them to report to the Commission before making anything public.

NEWFOUNDLAND PAYS TRIBUTE

Garnish, Fortune Bay, Nfld., Nov. 27—Special—Among the fishermen here who through exposure to wet and cold are subject to those pains and aches which come from diseased Kidneys, Dodd's Kidney Pills are looked upon as a positive boon to mankind. They are never tired of telling how their backaches and rheumatism vanish before the great Kidney remedy.

Among many others, Mr Frank Banfield after years of suffering, has found relief in Dodd's Kidney Pills, and here is what he is telling his friends.—

"I find Dodd's Kidney Pills the best medicine for backache I have ever used. I only used two boxes and they cured me of backache I had had for five years. It started through a strain. My father's back also bothered him, and he got some relief from one pill I gave him. They were too precious to give him more. All persons suffering from backache, should use Dodd's Kidney Pills."

Why do Dodd's Kidney Pills cure backache. Simply because backache is kidney ache, and Dodd's Kidney Pills positively cure all kidney aches and ills. This has been proved in thousands of cases in Canada. If you haven't used them yourself ask your neighbors.

PRAYERS FOR RAIN.

To the Editor of the Review.

Dear Sir,—Allow me to remark through your columns how very strange is the action, or rather non-action of the ministers of this city in regard to seeking the help of Him who alone can send relief from the terrible drought from which our country is suffering. I only know of one instance in which it was alluded to in the church service, and yet every one who thinks at all about the matter must know that the situation is extremely serious, and is daily becoming more so, as in the ordinary course of events, we may expect the ground to freeze up now any day, in fact I believe it is generally in the grip of jack frost earlier than this. I wonder whether it is thoughtfulness, or indifference, or is it that they do not believe we are any more likely to get it for for the asking. Surely not the latter.

HAS VERY MANY VICTIMS HERE

Reports Many Cases of Rheumatism and Gives Simple Home Recipe

Thousands of men and women who have felt the sting and torture of this dread disease which is no respecter of age, persons, sex, color or rank, will be interested to know that while for many years rheumatism was considered an incurable disease, now it is one of the easiest afflictions of the human body to conquer. Medical science has proven it not a distinct disease in itself, but a symptom, caused by inactive kidneys. Rheumatism is uric acid in the blood and other waste products of the system which should be filtered and strained out in the form of urine. The function of the kidneys is to sift the blood clean and pure. The kidneys however are of sponge-like substance, the holes or pores of which will sometimes, either from overwork, cold or exposure, become clogged and inactive, and failing in their function of eliminating these poisons from the blood, they remain in the veins, decompose and settling about the joints and muscles, cause the untold suffering and pain of rheumatism and backache, often producing complications of bladder and urinary disease, weakness, etc.

The following simple prescription is said to relieve the worst cases of rheumatism because of its direct action upon the blood and kidneys, relieving too, the most severe forms of bladder and urinary troubles: Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces. Mix by shaking well in a bottle and take in teaspoonful doses after each meal and at bedtime. The ingredients can be had from any good prescription pharmacy and are absolutely harmless and safe to use at any time.

THEY'RE SCOTSMEN YET

Today, November 30th, is St. Andrew's Day, and the Sons of Auld Scotia in Peterborough, are wearing a sprig of heather brought from the land of brown heath and shaggy wood." No public function is being held to mark the day in this city, but at Campbellford a banquet is being held tonight under the auspices of the Sons of Scotland. An invitation has been extended to the members of Clan Alpine camp of Peterborough and a number of Scots from this city left for Campbellford this afternoon.

Scotsmen all over the world today are honoring the Patron Saint of the land of their birth or of their forefathers, that land that is referred to in the Memoirs of Sydney Smith as "that of Calvin, oat-cakes and sulphur."

HON. S. A. FISHER IN ROME SPEAKS FOR THE DELEGATES

Rome, Nov. 30.—(C. A. P.)—Hon. S. A. Fisher of Canada, returning thanks on behalf of the foreign delegates for the reception accorded the delegates to the International Institute of Agriculture in Italy, remarked that it was an inspiration to the delegates to do all in their power to establish on permanent basis such great work to which they set their hands.

Many small jealousies are reported amongst the delegates.

After Mr. Fisher's speech King Victor is reported to have declared the conception of a great idea was nothing; the difficulty was to carry it out. The hardest struggle occurred on the language to be used.

Francophiles naturally urged it should be French, but the majority, led by Tavernor of Austria, ultimately defeated them. It is generally admitted that the British Empire sent the most important delegates in the persons of Sir E. Buck, India, being the greatest authority in the world; Sir L. Elliott, head of the Board of Agriculture; Fisher and Tavernor, who are ambitious for modern methods.

HALIFAX INQUIRY

Marine Commission is Sitting There.

The Affairs of Agent Parsons Are Are Placed Under Investigation.

Halifax, Nov. 30.—Cassels' inquiry into the Marine and Fisheries' Department opened Saturday morning at the County Court House. Seventeen witnesses have been subpoenoed.

George Watson, K.C., named the officers of the Marine and Fisheries' staff here and their salaries, with the dates of appointment. In the fiscal year 1904-5 the expenditure of the agency was $559,326, and salaries and maintenance amounted to $199,000 of that amount. In the next, expenditure was $705,000; maintenance $15,600, and salaries $74,000, construction $61,000, apparatus $14,000, fisheries $49,000, fisheries' protection service $90,000, miscellaneous $152,000, Dominion steamers $128,000. The following year the total was $666,000; from the agency $3,800, for maintenance $121,000, salaries $54,000, construction $50,000, apparatus $103,000, fisheries $25,000, fisheries' protection service $82,000, miscellaneous $96,000, steamers $125,000.

The patronage list contains the names of 175 firms, contractors, etc.; prior to 1906 the list was limited to about 65.

A. L. Melvin of Melvin & Co., hardware, took the stand. He meets the Marine and Fisheries' storekeeper not less than once a month. The Department was his chief customer. He always destroyed his checks on getting them from the bank. He destroyed a lot about three weeks ago, but he would authorize the court to communicate with the bank ad examine the checks there.

J. F. L. Parsons, Halifax, agent of the Marine and Fisheries' Department, was called. He did not bring his personal accounts. They were in the hands of his solicitor.

Representatives of many leading Halifax firms were given a preliminary examination only and will be called later on.

Mr. Watson stated that the investigation on Saturday was only of a random nature, and suggested adjournment be made until to-day, and court adjourned.

A FIRE IN THE ROOM

In Which Corpse Was Situated.

Accident Under Peculiar Circumstances at Home in South Monaghan.

An accident attended by peculiar circumstances occurred at the home of Mr. J. H. Isbister, on Friday night of last week. Mr. Isbister's mother had passed away on Thursday and the body lay in one of the rooms downstairs. Friends and neighbors were passing in and out of the room and one of them who was carrying a coal-oil lamp stepped on a stovepipe hole and fell. The coal oil was spilled on the carpet and in a moment there was a big blaze. Mr. Isbister rushed into the room and tried to subdue the flames with his coat. After a hard fight, in which he had to use a blanket and quilt, the fire was extinguished. The carpet, the paper on the wall and the baseboard were badly burned. Mr. Isbister had his hands somewhat badly injured in putting out the fire, but is getting along as well as can be expected.

The coffin was carried from the room as soon as the fire broke out.

HE WANTED TO GO TO GAOL

Englishman in Toronto Deliberately Plays Firebug to Get a Home.

Toronto, Nov. 30.—To get arrested that he might have a place to stop for the winter, John Bradshaw, 25 years of age, set fire to a two-storey roughcast building, No. 8 Hayter street, yesterday afternoon, and then gave himself up to the police.

The building was occupied by B. T. Jenkins & Co., manufacturers of antique furniture. By virtue of a remarkably quick run, the firemen confined the damage to $25.

Bradshaw watched the fun and then told a policeman that he had started it for devilment, as he was out of work and wanted a place to stay for the winter. He further said he had crawled through a window and slept in the place Saturday night. He is an Englishman out from the old country about two years, and has been a bartender in the United States.

"BLACK HAND" IS CAUGHT SENT DEMANDS FOR MONEY

William Gillespie is Arrested and Confessed to Sending Letters to Mrs. Mary Hetherington Insisting on $100 on Pain of Abduction.

Toronto, Nov. 30.—William Gillespie, a painter, 33 years of age, after keeping a widow in constant terror for three days with "Black Hand" letters, was taken after a strenuous chase Saturday morning by Detectives Murray and Moffatt. He admits writing the threatening letters.

Wednesday last Mrs. Mary Heatherington, a widow living with her daughter at 119 1-2 Borden street, went to the bank to draw some money.

Thursday morning she received a letter posted at 4 o'clock the day before. It demanded $1.. which was to be given to a boy who would call. If the money were not given the penalty was abduction and imprisonment in the so-called gang's headquarters.

The letter was signed "Black Hand" in ominous capitals. It is written in ink on poor paper, wretchedly spelt and written.

When she got this letter the woman was nearly mad with fright. She took it to the police and was re-assured by them. Detectives Moffatt and Murray have watched the house ever since till 11 o'clock at night, when one or more of several students rooming at the house were in.

WILLIAM GILLESPIE.

By a strange coincidence Gillespie picked on Detective Mackie's eleven-year-old boy as his messenger.

The lad was riding his bicycle at Borden and Bloor streets Saturday morning when the man stopped him and offered him ten cents to go for a parcel. The lad went. At the house he was detained, and the police notified. When the detectives arrived the boy was sent back to the man. The detectives followed.

They came upon Gillespie and the boy at Bloor street and Walmer road. He ran and Detective Murray threw off his overcoat and followed. The chase led up Walmer road and into a side entrance.

Then Gillespie took to the fences and scaled seven with the quickness of a cat. Finally with Murray at his heels he came out on Lowther avenue, and ran almost into the arms of Moffatt, who had followed on the lad's wheel. Moffatt took up the chase and soon had his man. Gillespie showed fight, but Moffatt floored him and he was taken to detective headquarters.

There he admitted writing the letter, and said that he had also written another to an address in Huron street, which had not, it appears, reached its destination. He denies having written others now in the hands of the police and which are very similar in penmanship to that admitted.

Gillespie is a poor wisp of a man. He lives with his wife and two children at 11 Norwood avenue, just north of St. Clair avenue.

He is a painter, but has been out of work for some time. He is 5 feet 8 inches tall, and has tawny hair and a ragged red mustache.

Mrs. Hetherington is in a serious condition from shock.

The police think that Gillespie is responsible for other threatening epistles.

Some six weeks ago a wealthy factory owner living in the east end received a letter three days after his factory had been slightly damaged by fire. It was in writing very similar to that written by Gillespie to the woman. He turned it over to the police and nothing has since happened.

It was headed "The Black Hand." and read:

"Sir,—Unless you send $500 to 126 York street, Toronto, your factory will be burned to the ground. It will burn down this time."

It was also signed "The Black Hand."

This is not all. Inspector Duncan has a threatening letter written in a like but slightly better hand some months ago to two maiden ladies who own considerable property, demanding $500.

STIFLE SCANDAL

France Aroused Over Steinheil Mystery.

Every Effort Being Made by Dreyfusards to Burke Inquiry Into Case.

Paris, Nov. 30.—The possible developments of the political side of the Steinheil case can best be likened to a powder magazine, and the Dreyfusards are moving heaven and earth to explode it, absolutely regardless of the national scandal that may result.

M. Berry, Conservative, gave notice in the Chamber of Deputies Saturday afternoon, that he intended to present an interpellation on the matter.

The sensational afternoon papers were filled with the wildest rumors and the most minute recitals concerning the death of M. Faure. It has been predicted already that Madame Steinheil will be declared crazy and locked up in an asylum, and that in this manner all further proceedings will be stifled. As a matter of fact, the experts agree that she is to-day a complete nervous wreck, even if she were responsible at the time of the crime.

Several newspaper pretend to know the name of the assassin of Steinheil and Mme. Japy, as well as that of his accomplice.

Magistrate Andre has ordered that an autopsy be performed on the bodies of M. Steinheil and Mme. Japy, on the new theory that they were poisoned before they were strangled.

M. Couilland testified that he saw Mme. Steinheil pour rum into the glasses of her husband and mother on the night of the crime—something which she never done before.

Doctors who took the stand testified to the absence of any evidence that the victims had struggled or suffered during the strangulation, and suggested that a drug had been administered beforehand.

M. Couilland also testified that since the murders Mme. Steinheil had ordered him to destroy various bottles in the family medicine chest.

"Contrary to custom," he said, "Mme. Steinheil's attitude on the night of the crime towards her husband and mother was amazingly amiable."

Maurice Borderel, a rich retired merchant, a widower with three children, described his acquaintanceship with madame. After having yielded to her charms, following an introduction at her own home, he said:

"For a month it was an exquisite idyl. Mme. Steinheil said she adored me, and each meeting she made new avowals and swore I was the only lover she had ever had."

She said she hated her husband and would get a divorce and marry him, but he insisted that Mrs. Steinheil could not have hoped to marry him, as he had distinctly advised her against securing divorce, at the same time declaring that he could never wed her on account of his children.

"It is impossible for me to believe," he said, "that the woman who was so gay and light-hearted over the telephone in the morning committed these atrocious murders at nightfall."

SAW SWEETHFART AT THE MURDER

Young Sweetheart Confesses to Knowledge of Brutal Crime.

Belleville, Ill., Nov. 30.—A new turn was given to the mystery which has surrounded the death of Peter Waelts, 64 years old, whose body, with neck broken, was found at the foot of a stairway here last Sunday, when Miss Nellie Morton, 17 years old, confessed to the police that she sat watching the old man sink into unconsciousness while her sweetheart, Sydney Baker, held a chloroformed handkerchief to his face. Baker is a photographer, and Miss Morton is in his employ. Baker has not yet been found.

Waelts was a well-to-do farmer, and when last seen by his friends had $75 with him.

One of the most unwelcome signs of approaching winter is again in London—the seagulls have come up the Thames.

MONDAY, NOV. 30, 1908.

THE DOMINION GRANGE

The Dominion Grange has placed on record the most scathing condemnation of the recent governmental debauch in the administration of our nation's affairs. It is moved to irritation and anger at the exposure of unscrupulous crookedness and venality as exemplified at Quebec and other places. It expresses a desire for the punishment of the Minister responsible. The farming community as represented by the grange must now be convinced of the rotten condition of the public service if it were not convinced before.

AGRICULTURE

If the farmers of Ontario would only put into operation the improved methods of agriculture and produce [illegible] already known the value of the annual products of the farm could be doubled. This interesting declaration was made by the Provincial Deputy Minister of Agriculture, Mr. C. C. James, in the course of an address before the Canadian Club. Its importance is best realised when it is remembered that there are in Ontario 175,000 farms representing an investment of $1,200,000,000 and an annual output of $200,000,000.

As Mr. James pointed out, could the value of the output be increased the whole community would be beneficial. Already there were abundant signs to prove that farming was being placed on a business basis, and farmers are becoming the producers of surplus cash. It was not, he said, going too far to say that there were many manufacturing interests being carried on in Ontario at the present time simply because the farmers had become producers of surplus cash.

Mr. James gave an interesting review of the work carried on by the Department of Agriculture since its inception in 1888, when $154,000 was expended. Down to the present year, when the appropriations amounted to $747,000. Steps were now being taken to reforest some of the waste lands, and he thought that it should be possible to devise a scheme whereby the few people who were getting a mere existence on those miserable lands of the north.

With regard to agricultural development the chief difficulties which had to be overcome were the supply of labor and the indifference of a large number of the farmers.

WINTER COURSES IN AGRICULTURE

During the months of January and February the regular work of the College is supplemented by short courses intended to meet the requirements of busy farmers who are unable to get away from home at any other season of the year. Last year nearly five hundred men attended these special classes. We invite you to be one of the number to attend next January.

For these short courses there is absolutely no charge and no examination. Each day will be spent in practical work as follows:—Judging the breeds of the principal farm crops; examining and identifying the weeds commonly found in grass and clover seed; judging the various breeds of live-stock, including horses, sheep, swine and poultry; judging, grading and packing apples, pears, peaches, etc.; cultivation, storage and marketing of vegetables; making and packing butter and cheese and testing milk, cream, etc.

There is an illustrated calendar descriptive of the various courses. Drop a post card asking for a copy. It will interest you.

Reduced rates are obtainable on all railroads and the cost of living is extremely moderate. The average personal expense, including travelling and living expenses, should not exceed $12.00 to $15.00 for a period of two weeks. This is an opportunity no enterprising farmer should miss.

EDITORIAL NOTES

A wireless message has been received at San Francisco from Japan—across 4,700 miles of water.

How is this? Mr. Carnegie is giving $50,000 to Fort William for a library.

Mme. Kramers of Rotterdam has a powerful voice and speaks thirteen languages. Is it any wonder that old bachelors are on the increase?

It is a pity that Peterborough has not had an opportunity of hearing the Kneisel quartette. This organization exceeds in reputation and charm even the former justly celebrated Mendelssohn and Beethoven quintettes.

How different the attitude of Liberal papers is towards political scandals now that Sir Wilfrid is in office for another four years. They are quite willing to describe in fitting language the Port Arthur horrors. It is safe to say that the week before election day would have found them deaf, dumb and blind.

At 8.45 p.m. the applicants began to arrive in person and by deputy to wait for the opening, next morning of the box-office in Yonge St., for the sale of tickets for the Varsity-Hamilton football game. Work of this sort in another direction would be written of from one end of the continent to the other as an example of devotion. It helps to a comparison of popular keenness in diverse directions. By their fruits not words are they to be known, surely.

"We hear a good deal about Orange fanatics from the Province of Quebec just now. The Orangemen of the Dominion were generally opposed to Sir Wilfrid Laurier in the last election.

But in 1896, when the Orangemen were supporting the Laurier party they were patriots. You see, it all depends upon the point of view. Orangemen are patriots when they vote for a French-Canadian, and fanatics when they oppose him. This, notwithstanding, that they did not shift their position on the Great Issue, which dominated with them both in 1896 and in 1908."—Orange Sentinel.

The following comment from the Vancouver World is very suggestive:

"The disclosures now being made in the course of the investigation of the affairs of the Department of Marine at Quebec show that the canker of secret commissions was more extensive than anyone had imagined. There is no reason to suppose, however that Quebec is the only port where these practices have prevailed. The enquiry ought to cover every point where officials of the department are to be found and Vancouver among the rest. This would be only fair to those who are entitled to a clean bill of health."

"There appeared last March in Ephemerides Liturgicae, a Roman liturgical periodical, over the signature of C. Mancini, President of the Liturgical Commission, an opinion on the question of allowing women to sing in church. The Ephemerides begins by saying: 'Many are of the opinion that the Motu Proprio forbids women to sing in church. They base their view on the following passage from that official pronouncement of Pius X: "Singers in church have a real liturgical office; therefore women, as being incapable of exercising such office, cannot be admitted to form part of the choir or of the musical choir."'—Catholic Record.

On the introduction of public schools the one great beneficial result that was to be a certainty was that education would eradicate all evil. It was want of education that crowded the jails. Now, statistics show that seventy-five per cent of the prisoners in Sing Sing prison, New York, are boarding-bred. And how many men of higher education are using their sharpened wits in evading jail is another question.—Bobcaygeon Independent.

There is no substitute for morality. Neither an elaborate education nor politics, prowess is any substitute or we may say improvement upon the old homely virtues of honesty and charity.

In the course of its remarks on protests, the British Whig, (Liberal) says that protests should be undertaken from a sense of public duty and not private ill-feeling. This is undoubtly true. The curse of politics has been and is the desire of each side to shield its own at no matter what cost. A wholesale killing, on both sides, if necessary, such as is taking place at Port Arthur will help things in Canada greatly for the future. A few, thoroughgoing exposures will rip the false-front off those of either side who have for too long grinned in the very teeth of those they have deceived, jollied and debauched. It is impossible to evade the Law, although various yarns are started at various times to serve that purpose and probably to hide out a feeling of alarm and shame.

The Catholic Univers of Paris, started the story now going the rounds that Edward VII used his good offices with the present French government to stop the present religious persecution in France and that he required a formal guarantee that the churches in France should not be closed as a sine qua non of the entente cordiale recently established with that country. The editor of Rome, noted for his accuracy and correctness as to his facts, thinks there is some reason to believe that the story is quite true. It is known that at one time the French government had decided to devise clauses of the misnamed separation law which would in a short time have turned all the churches in France over to secular uses. And so it has come to pass that the Protestant King of a Protestant country has entered a protest against the spoliation of the churches in a country reputed to be Catholic.—Catholic Record.

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rambling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by Catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness—caused by catarrh—that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars free.

OF INTEREST

The Imperial Russian Academy sent an expedition from St. Petersburg in February last to the mouth of the Yana River, Siberia, to secure the body of a mammoth that had been found there several months before.

Some of the earth covering the huge body had caved away, disclosing the buried monster. The discoverers knew that mammoth skeletons were very highly prized in Russia, and so they banked up the earth again lest harm should befal their prize. Then they notified the Russian authorities and the scientific expedition was despatched.

The expedition was a great success, for the mammoth proved to be very large and one of the most perfect specimens ever secured. Very carefully the earth was dug away from all sides till the entire animal was brought into view just as it was when it perished in the quagmire ages ago. The earth of the swamp in which the body rested became the pedestal on which the carcass lay as the dirt was dug away. It was frozen as hard as a rock.

Then the photograph was taken which is presented here. Few pictures so curious have ever been made.

It shows the perfect body of a huge animal whose family became extinct many thousands of years ago. Not a sign could be found that the animal had ever received corporal injury. He had simply died of suffocation, and frost had then penetrated every particle of his tissues and turned the body into a chunk of ice till science came to claim it.

This is the picture of an animal whose period of life was ages before Menes was born or any Egyptian history that we know had been written. Science has no exact idea of the time when the mammoth lived, but it is believed to have been at least 10,000 years ago.

Still the mammoth is a recent animal, measured by geological time, for it evidently lived after the ice age and was contemporaneous with prehistoric man. A rude representation of a mammoth carved on a bit of its own ivory was found in Europe under circumstances that proved it to have been the work of a prehistoric artist.

The parts of this specimen that were taken to St. Petersburg were the hide and skeleton. Skilled men were there to strip the fur-covered skin from the body, take the skeleton to pieces and pack it away so that nothing should be lost.

No sledge could carry the whole hide, and it was skilfully cut up so that it might be pieced together again without sign of patchwork. Then the boxes containing the relics were carried on sledges hundreds of miles westward to the Lena River over the tundra snows that lingered till almost June.

The hardest of the work was then over, for a steamer carried the boxes up the Lena to Irkutsk and wagons transferred them to the train for St. Petersburg. At the museum in that city the huge skeleton was wired together, the hide was put in place, and the most perfect specimen of a mammoth yet exhibited to the public is now being viewed by thousands at that capital.

MAGIC IN A SMILE.

A smile is a most magical thing, and yet perhaps many of us do not quite appreciate it at its true value, for often the wonders that are worked by smiles occur deep down in the hearts and souls of those persons upon whom the magic falls. Have you ever watched the people in a car when some tiny baby looks around and smiles at everybody in the most impartial friendly manner? How few human beings, whatever the weight upon their spirits, whatever the problems in their minds, can resist the marvelous appeal of a little baby's smile? And it is a good thing for this old world that in spite of the "whips and scorns of time" there still lives within the souls of most of us some part that makes us thus responsive to the heaven born smile of a tiny, trustful child. Sometimes when we have been weary and sad and our spirits have felt despondent and even dismayed the chance smile of some little baby has fallen like soothing balm upon our dejected minds and we have perhaps found new courage and even a little hope for the future.

Oh, it is a good thing to smile upon the world whenever we can, for we shall then be able not only to get out of life the very best it can give us, but we shall perchance be helping our friends and even unknown passersby (for who can tell?) to a better, surer knowledge that the sun is still shining in the world and that clouds must break and the horizon appear clear and serene once more. Sometimes when we grow a bit dissatisfied with life, a little discontented with our apparently trivial part in the great affairs of the world, we are very prone to feel that we are of small value since we cannot see what we are put here on earth to do. Of course very few of us can accomplish great deeds that will bring applause from our fellows. Not many of us can even climb above the vast crowd that walks only on commonplace levels. But never a one of us is so helpless, so insignificant, so poor, that he cannot give to the world the wondrous gift of smiling cheerfulness. Nor must we for a moment deprecate the worth of such a power. Rather should we believe, as is surely right, that the buoyant person who smiles upon humanity and helps to uplift and inspire even by his simple, unpretentious, honest, cheerfulness is of inestimable value to his fellow creatures. Smiles are well worth while, and often the memory of a trustful, brave and sincere smile has been cherished and treasured in the sad and hungry hearts of some men and women who have for a brief instant basked in the warmth of the heaven sent sunshine of such a smile.

SHIRT SLEEVE MANNERS.

Husbands Who Neglect the Little Courtesies Due Their Wives.

Did you ever stop to realize, says Lillian Bell, that the phrase "company manners" in itself implies that there was such a negligence as "home manners?"

Home manners between husband and wife have in many instances come to be decidedly negligee manners.

"Negligee," said Fields to Weber, "is the French for 'neglected.' But you are worse than neglected; you are forgotten!"

Forgotten manners certainly obtain in many families. I know a man who has delightful "company manners." When we are out together he is the first to see that I am not in a draft, the first to help me with my coat, the first to render me any of the little assistances which make life so smooth when they are ingrained. But his are not. His wife when they are at the theater together carries the opera glasses, folds the programmes, struggles in and out of her coat by herself, sits alone between acts, hands herself into the street car by main force, jumps off alone, while half the time he walks a pace ahead of her instead of at her side.

He summons her by a gruff "Come on!" turns corners without telling her which way he intends to go and signals her with waves of his hand, like a brakeman flagging a freight train.

His wife suffers under such disregard, for she was more considerately treated in her father's house, but she can do nothing with him. When good manners are not born in one they are never the genuine thing, for politeness indicates the measure of your breeding. It isn't just what you call "manners."

Politeness is to do and say
The kindest thing in the kindest way.

I'd rather bring up a child on those two lines than on the Golden Rule. I believe it would work better, more continuously and bring more permanent results.

You forget the Golden Rule sometimes if somebody kicks your ankle bone in the crowded street car, but truly good manners will compel you to accept an apology politely and graciously.

THINGS WORTH KNOWING.

Don't throw away your scraps of velvet. They can be used as cleaners for all sorts of things.

Keep all the kitchen utensils in one place, and a small one at that. It will save time and steps.

Alcohol and whiting makes a good silver polish and is excellent for polishing plate glass or mirrors.

Olive oil will remove tar stains from dress goods. Wash afterward with white soap and tepid water.

A weak solution of turpentine poured down the water pipes once a week will drive the water bugs away.

Saving Uncle Henry.

By Avard Ridgeway.

Copyrighted, 1908, by Associated Literary Press.

Colton caught up the desk telephone that stood at his elbow and smiled as he recognized his wife's voice. One of the arguments in favor of the removal to the suburbs had been that the reduction in rent was vastly greater than Colton's commutation and Mrs. Colton's occasional trips to town. They had not counted on the telephone bill, which more than made up the difference.

"What's the matter now?" he asked good humoredly. "The cook left?"

"That's only part," came the answer "The cook left, and the Nelsons have just had word that his sister is dead, and they can't come."

"That will help some," declared Colton encouragingly. "There won't be so many to cook for."

"But Eleanor will have to get the dinner," wailed Mrs. Colton. "That takes the three Nelsons and you and her away from the table. Don't you see that it leaves just thirteen?"

"Thirteen's lucky," cheered Colton. "You should be glad that Eleanor is there to get the dinner."

"But Uncle Henry is frightfully superstitious," reminded Mrs. Colton. "It's bad enough that you can't come and that my own sister must stay away to get the dinner, and we'll have to tell him that she is out of town, but when we ask him to sit at a table with twelve others—Bob, you must send out some one. Can't that nice looking bookkeeper come?"

"On his vacation—but I'll get some one. Don't worry, Vida."

Colton hung the receiver on the hook, and Mrs. Colton beamed as she turned from the instrument. Bob was dependable, and that worry was off her mind.

It was the first dinner party in the new home, and her uncle was to be the guest of honor. It had seemed hoodooed from the start. First Colton had been compelled to remain in town to attend an important conference of the trade and could not possibly get out.

Her sister, Eleanor Norris, had been called into service to replace the cook, who had left, declaring that she would see her employer and the guests separately and individually condemned before she would cook for eighteen persons, and then at the last moment the Nelsons had sent regrets, cutting the number at table down to the thirteen abhorrent to Uncle Henry, from whom the Coltons had "expectations."

Vida had noticed that her husband's bookkeeper was an extremely good looking young fellow, and she had telephoned Colton to send him out. Probably he would send out the bookkeeper's relief, and Vida gave no more thought to the matter save to offer up a fervent supplication that his table manners should be good.

The others had arrived when there was a ring at the bell, and in her anxiety Mrs. Colton herself rushed to the door. A tall, clean cut young man stood at the entrance, and at his inquiring "Mrs. Colton?" Vida fairly dragged him across the hall and into the dining room, where she carefully closed the door.

"I'm awfully sorry," she began. "Mr. Colton asked you to come out because we wanted to avoid thirteen at the table. But it happens that a Mr. Grimsby could not come either, and so now you would make the thirteenth."

"I see," he said, with a light laugh. "Then I'll head back for town."

"I couldn't let you do that," cried Vida, with a gasp. "There is no train until 9:57. You will not get to town until almost 11. You must stay here and have some dinner. I'm sure you won't mind eating in the laundry."

"I'd rather like it," was the genial response. "If you will indicate the general direction I'll head that way and let you get back to your guests."

Vida pointed to the door to the butler's pantry. "Go through there and tell them who you are," she directed; then she hurried back to the waiting diners. Her uncle was standing by the door.

"Was that another guest?" he demanded uneasily.

"Just a helper that Bob sent out from town," she explained glibly, and Uncle Henry breathed a sigh of relief.

"I'm rather glad that Bob was detained in town," he said. "It will prevent there being thirteen at the table. I'm not superstitious, but I know of two cases where there were thirteen at the table, and each time one died before the year was out. I'm getting to be an old man, Vida, and, while I'm not superstitious about it—well, it's just as well not to tempt fate."

Vida smiled her understanding of the case, and as Norah appeared in the doorway to announce that dinner was served they all filed out.

Vida sustained a shock of surprise when she saw the man her husband had sent out standing ready to serve, but his face was as impassive as though he had been a butler and not a bookkeeper all his life, and it was with a little flutter of pride that Vida realized that the local guests would suppose that they had imported a butler from town for the occasion.

The dinner passed off splendidly. The butler acquitted himself with the greatest credit, and Eleanor did her cooking school training full justice.

Before the coffee was served Uncle Henry was whispering to his niece that he was going to make her a present of the house for Christmas and attend himself to some details of decoration.

Vida had hoped to lead him to the subject of new rugs, and this voluntary promise delighted her. As she led the way back to the parlor she fairly radiated delight.

It was some time before she could manage to slip away from her uncle, and she was just about to go to the kitchen to see how Eleanor was getting along when Norah, the maid, poked her head cautiously between the curtains and made a signal that she wanted to see her mistress.

"I think you'd better come out in the kitchen, ma'am," she whispered. "That strange man and Miss Eleanor do be carrying on something awful. He kissed her when he thought my back was turned, but I saw them in the silver tray. They've been at it ever since he came."

"He is annoying Miss Eleanor?" asked Vida correctingly. It was out of the question that Eleanor should enjoy his attentions.

"Divil a bit she's annoyed," insisted Norah. "She likes it."

With dignified tread Mrs. Colton moved toward the kitchen and threw open the door. Her sister was wiping a huge platter, and the bookkeeper had taken advantage of her plight to steal another kiss. As Vida appeared in the doorway the platter went crashing to the floor.

"I'll buy you a whole set, Vida," cried Eleanor penitently.

"The loss of the china is immaterial," was the austere reply. "What does this—er—flirtation mean?"

The man advanced toward her, with glowing face.

"It means that I've found my little girl again, Mrs. Colton, and this time I've captured her before she could run away, as she did from Newport."

"It's Dick Hempstead," enlightened Eleanor. "Bob sent him out instead of the new bookkeeper, and I just had to say 'Yes' to atone for the cavalier fashion in which you hustled him into the kitchen."

"But he didn't tell me"— began Vida.

"You didn't give me a chance, or perhaps I gave you none. Bob told me that Eleanor was to be the cook, and I was only too glad to come. I have not seen Bob since he was married, and I did not know that he had married Eleanor's sister, or you would have seen me out here before."

"And you want to get married!" exclaimed Mrs. Colton. "What will Uncle Henry say?"

"He'll say 'Yes,'" declared Hempstead, "or at any rate he should. Didn't I save him from the thirteen hoodoo?"

"I suppose that will help some," admitted Vida. "Anyway, I'm glad you two are to be married, for with Eleanor to cook and you to be butler I shan't be afraid of any more dinner parties, only when there are but thirteen at the table."

"To save the day as well as Uncle Henry," completed Hempstead.

An eminent French art collector once bought at the Hotel Drouot a landscape by a noted "impressionist," which he showed, with much pride in his purchase, to an artist friend.

"But I think," quoth he, "that the picture lacks animation; it wants personages. Now, if you would paint for me a man or woman on that road that runs through the middle of the landscape it would greatly improve the picture."

"That is easily done," said the artist. So he carried off the painting and sent it back in a week or two with the figure of an old peasant woman going to market, with her basket and her red umbrella, introduced on the road in question, to the great satisfaction of the picture's proprietor. Meeting shortly after with the "impressionist" who had painted it, the artist remarked:

"I had the audacity to alter a landscape of yours belonging to M. X., the other day. I painted an old peasant woman walking down the road."

"Down the road? I remember no work of mine with a road in it. I should like to see the picture and judge of the effect of your alteration."

So the artist carried him off to M. X.'s, and they speedily stood before the landscape. The "impressionist" turned perfectly green with wrath and horror.

"Miserable man," he shouted, "what have you done? That is not a road that runs through the center of my work. It is a river!"—Exchange.

The Baseball Umpire.

"That gentleman who is to umpire the game today is an old friend of mine," said the mild mannered baseball fan to his neighbor as they sat leaning forward in the grand stand. "He's one of the squarest and finest of men. Yes, sir, he's as nice a fel— Say, watch the graceful attitude of our first batter! He's got his eye with him today, too, for see how he lets this first bad one go. What did the umpire call that?"

"A strike," replied his neighbor.

"Now, what do you think of that? Ball went a mile wide of the plate! Well, umpires will make mistakes. I've seen"—

At this juncture a crack rent the air, and the ball sailed on a line toward the left field fence. The mild mannered man was on his feet in a jiffy.

"Oh, what a swat! Run, run like the dickens! Go on and make it a homer! Look at that cuss go, will you? Make it— What's that?"

"The umpire called it a foul!"

"A foul? He's crazy! Say, Mr. Umpire, put on your glasses. A foul! Say, man, you're the limit! Throw him out! Go lay down somewhere, umpire! You're rotten! Rotten! Rotten!"

And in his disgust the mild mannered fan slapped his derby hat down on the seat and sat on it.—Bohemian.

FACTS ABOUT COLDS.

What a Well Known German Periodical Has to Say.

Wissen fur Alle, a well known German periodical, has recently been discussing a few facts about colds, and perhaps some of us who are afflicted with the uncomfortable summer shneezing and blowing may be a bit interested in part of the article:

"Many people may be surprised to hear that even in this world there are places where it is impossible to catch cold. There are facts, however, which bear this out. Explorers in the arctic regions never catch cold. Their clothes are often saturated with perspiration through their struggles over the ice and are a mass of ice when they retire for the night, and yet despite the fact they often have to sleep out in the open in their sleeping bag and that this is their only means of thawing themselves out their health does not suffer in the least. Indeed, it has been declared that most explorers are physically the better off for their sojourn in the northern regions.

"Then there is the classical instance of the St. Kilda cold. On that rocky, lonely island, lying some forty miles beyond the western Hebrides, there are about a hundred inhabitants who manage by cultivating a little of the ground and by catching sea fowl to keep themselves alive. The coast is so precipitous and the seas so stormy that for eight months out of the twelve they are practically inaccessible. Oddly, whenever a steamer touches at this island all the inhabitants, including the very infants, are seized with a cold."

The German periodical puts down the readiness of the man in the temperate zone to take cold to the coddling habit which fears exposure, resulting in a delicate constitution, more ready to suffer at the slightest change of temperature. It sums up by saying: "Exposure is not the direct cause of colds. It only acts on a lowered vitality. The only safeguard is continued exposure."

"HOODOO" LUNCHEON.

It Should Be Held on the Thirteenth of the Month.

There are few forms of entertainment which afford as much amusement as is furnished by a "hoodoo" party.

The party should be held on the 13th of the month unless it is absolutely impossible. Invite thirteen girls for your luncheon. The invitations may have the picture of a witch in one corner, and seal the envelope with a four leaf clover cut out of green paper.

Use table mats in the shape of four leaf clovers cut from green silk or silkaline and make a centerpiece the same. In the center of the table on the green centerpiece place a black silk cat, such as may be bought in any toy shop.

Charming candle shades may be made at home easily and inexpensively. From nursery books cut pictures of witches on broomsticks and either paste or trace them on white paper. If colored black they will loom up distinctly when the candles are lighted.

Each name card may be made different. One might be a wriggly snake, another a horseshoe, another a broom, a fourth an owl and many other things which represent some hoodoo. A cake in which have been baked different articles which suggest various superstitions, such as a ring, a silver coin, a thimble, a button and a china hare, would afford a great deal of fun.

A rabbit's foot mounted in silver and a brooch in the form of a horseshoe would make appropriate prizes if games or cards are played.

The Comparison.

Towne—Yes, my wife is able to dress on comparatively little money. Browne—Oh, come now! Comparatively little? Towne—I mean a little compared with what she thinks she ought to have.—Exchange.

On a Big Liner.

"Let's go forward to the main deck."

"All right. Steward, call us a taxicab."

Nothing is farther from earth than heaven; nothing is nearer than heaven to earth.—Hare.

LINDSAY MAN WAS ELECTED

The Review desires to extend its congratulations to Mr. J. B. McNellie, of Lindsay, on his election as president of the Canadian Conference of Charities and Correction which held its session in Toronto last week. His election to so honorable a position is a tribute to the ability and popularity of Mr. McNellie. He has taken a deep interest in all questions of a charitable and philanthropic nature and during the convention of the above named organization he was foremost in discussing the many important questions considered, besides giving an able adress on "The feeble minded in our institutions."

PROMINENT LOCAL MAN ON OUTLOOK FOR THIS WINTER

The pickup in business that was spoken of after the elections is not noticeable in local circles according to a prominent Peterborough business man who spoke to the Review on the subject today.

"From my standpoint," he said, "I look for a poor winter and think that all the local business men, or most of them, anyway, will have a backward season. I don't think conditions will improve to a great extent until about March."

"This winter, like last winter," he continued, "will likely be considerable hardship among the poor. Flourishing industrial conditions are not looked for. I think it was a good move on the part of the civic officials to deport the number of poverty stricken English immigrants they did and I wouldn't be at all surprised if severa more would have to be sent back before spring."

MANY MEN HEARD MR. WAITE AT THE OPERA HOUSE SUNDAY

Address on "Par Values" Made a Deep Impression—Many Express the Desire to Lead the Christian Life

Over 500 men were at the Grand Opera House yesterday afternoon to hear the address on "Par Values," by Mr. R A. Waite, Jr, who is here in the interests of the boys' work of the YMCA. The chair was occupied by His Worship Mayor Rush and the meeting was bright and the singing hearty. The Orpheus male quartette sang with splendid effect and their selections made a deep impression.

Mr. Waite gave an excellent address and was listened to with apt attention. He opened his address yesterday afternoon by asking the question. "If all you men were put up at public auction how much are you worth? How much are you worth in the market of public opinion? How much would your wife give for you?" He then proceeded to outline the different classes of men, and placed a value on them. The first class which lived purely for self and who had a big idea of their own importance were worth nothing whatever. Another class which made great promises but failed to live up to them were priced at one cent, while the man who lived the Christian life was valued at $10; He pointed out the weaknesses of the first two classes, and the strength of the third class.

At the close of the address, the speaker asked all those who were Christians and all those who desired to lead the Christian life to stand, and over ninety per cent of the men present rose to their feet.

EIGHT DOLLARS STOLEN FROM THE TILL AT C.P.R. STATION

About midnight on Sunday the office of the CPR. station was entered and the till was emptied to the extent of eight dollars. Two railway tickets were also stolen. The office was locked as the operator was absent at the time

The police station was 'phoned and P C Adams went down but the burglar had got away. Early this morning P C Adams arrested a a young man on the street by the name of Wm Hessel. At the police court this morning he was charged with the theft of eight dollars and two railway tickets. He pleaded not guilty and was remanded for a week.

As he went down to his cell he was heard to remark "That is easy. I only got a week." He evidently did not know that he would be brought up for trial next Monday.

The prisoner is a young man and he says that his home is in Berlin. He had been working for a farmer at Indian River.

MANY OLD COUNTRY PEOPLE SENDING HOME MUCH MONEY

The local Dominion Express Office are selling a large number of foreign money orders these days. English people residing in the city are sending home money to their friends in the Old Country as Christmas gifts. The Chinese are doing the same, sending to China, a large amount of their earnings.

Last week a large number of Old Country men who have been out here during the past year, left for their homes where they will spend Christmas. They had their money changed into express orders, one man taking an order for over four hundred dollars. These fellows have saved their money, instead of spending it extravagantly.

TWO WAGONS COLLIDED IN RUNAWAY ON WATER ST.

A runaway accident resulting in minor damage being done, took place on Saturday evening on Water street, shortly before six o'clock. The team of M. John Knox of Otonabee became frightened and started to run up the street at an awful pace. At Mr Savigny's grocery store it collided with Mann's bakery waggon, which was being driven by Mr Archie Fletcher. The democrat and bakery waggon attached were drawn up the streets, the horses going at an exceedingly fast rate. The driver of the bakery waggon was thrown out and the vehicle was tipped over on its side.

At London street the double runaway was stopped. Mr Knox's democrat was somewhat damaged. The pole was broken. The bakery waggon was also smashed. Fortunately no one was injured.

On Friday she played with signal success before a critical audience at GGewandhause, Leipsic.

Kathleen Parlow is a native of Ottawa, Ont Her youthful genius was so pronounced that at the age of five years she was taken abroad to study under the great masters.

INSTRUCTING IN WOOD-CARVING

Miss Strickland Tully Has Large Class in Victoria, B. C.

Many old friends of the Tully family in Ontario, writes a Western correspondent will be interested to learn that Miss Strickland Tully, the eldest daughter of the late Mr Kivas Tully, is established in Victoria, BC, where she is busily engaged in instructing a large class formed of well known lady residents in the art of wood carving. Under her auspices wood carving has become the rage of the day. Junk shops, and even old ships are being ransacked by her pupils for bits of well seasoned wood, to be converted into chairs, tables and fittings for cabinets, etc. and now it is imperative that every drawing room with pretensions to artistic excellence should become the background for some article of furniture carved by the industrious lady of the household, a fashion which may be traced to England, where several of the female members of the Royal family are famous for their skill with the chisel.

DWELLING FOR STAFF OF BANK

Bank of Montreal May Rent House at Lindsay

Lindsay, Nov. 28.—It was learned this morning that the management of the Bank of Montreal a management that is always considerate to employees has under way an extensive proposition and one which, if it materializes will prove a great benefit to the members of the local banking staff.

It is said that the officials of the bank are considering the advisability of renting or purchasing a large private house in town—suitable for housing a banking staff—consisting of ten or more rooms, etc., the purpose being to use the same as a living house for the members of the Lindsay unmarried staff of the Bank of Montreal.

If a suitable dwelling could be secured complete with all modern conveniences etc., it would be fitted up in good style and in all probability a chef, housekeeper, etc., would be secured to look after the household necessities of the young financiers.

ESCAPED FROM LINDSAY GAOL

Lindsay Nov. 28.—Shortly after two o'clock this afternoon great excitement was aroused among the officials at the county jail, when it was discovered that Brooks had succeeded in making his escape from custody.

Chief Vincent was at once notified, and a systematic search is being made for the missing man, and there are hopes that he will soon be captured.

Brooks was sentenced a few days ago by County Magistrate Moore to eighteen months in Central prison for stealing and cruelly ill-using a horse and he would shortly have been transferred to his new home.

"SCOTLAND YET"

St. Andrew's is Bonnie Scotland's own pet day. It is a long time since we heard the mellow tune of the "Tinkar's Weddin'. At one St Andrew's banquet where we were present some miscreant filled the empty bottle which at a critical moment is swung round the head of the singer in triumph, with beer and as a consequence a second deluge took place to the mingled amusement and indignation of those assembled. The Scotch maintain the even tenor of success without varying and it may be truly said of them that they boast more by their deeds than by their words. The world would be much the poorer without Scottish sentiment and Scottish valor. Scotland as Darwin said represents the very highest standard of civilization. The Scotsman's quiet and enduring sense of duty is his crowning virtue.

CELEBRATED HIS 20th YEAR AS RECTOR

Rev. Canon Davidson Rector of St. John's for That Length of Time

Rev. Canon Davidson yesterday celebrated the twentieth anniversary of his induction into the rectorship of St. John's parish. The reverend gentleman referred to the completion of this twentieth year at yesterday morning's service, noting the progress that had taken place in the parish. He was especially thankful to Almighty God for the many blessings vouchsafed, and with firm hope together they could face the future. He thanked his parishioners for the many kindnesses shown during his rectorship, and hoped that the harmony that now existed would long prevail.

Rev. Canon Davidson commenced his rectorship at St. John's on Advent Sunday, 1888, and yesterday being Advent Sunday completed the twentieth year.

Those Prayers for Rain

Editor of the Review.

Peterborough, Nov. 30th.

Dear Sir,—I read a letter in the Review on Saturday by "A Church Member," in which he suggestes prayers for rain should be offered. It seems to me that prayers of thankfulness for the many blessings enjoyed should suffice without offering suggestions to the Almighty regarding rain or anything else.

Yours truly,
CHURCH MEMBER.

THE HOOK

He was a man of peace and he came upon two youths in a back street fighting. Accordingly he pushed through the crowd and persuaded the combatants to desist.

"Let me beg of you, my good fellows," earnestly besought the peacemaker, "to settle your dispute by arbitration. Each of you choose half a dozen."

"Hurrah" yelled the crowd, "Do as the gentleman says, boys."

Having seen the 12 arbitrators selected—to the satisfaction of both sides, the man of peace went on his way rejoicing in the thought of having once more prevailed upon brute force to yield to peaceful argument.

Half an hour later he returned that way and was horrified to find the whole street fighting while in the distance police whistles could be heard blowing and police rushing to the spot from all quarters.

"Good gracious. What is the matter now," asked the peacemaker of an onlooker;

"Shure, sor," was the reply, "the arbitrators are at work."

THE SWORDFISH.

Overlord of the Sea and the Daintiest Feeder That Swims.

The swordfish is the overlord of the sea. Neither the whale, the shark nor any other giant of the deep can conquer him in private fight or public brawl. Nevertheless he is peaceful in the main and seeks the simple life, amusing himself often with worldwide travel and always with delicate gustatory joys. He is the daintiest feeder that swims, always kills his own game and thereby insures its freshness, wherefore his flesh is a delight to the palate of mankind and wherefore, again, men go forth to kill him for market and thereby at times fall upon adventures that make the hunting of tigers and the shooting of grizzlies pale into pastimes for the weary weakling.

For the bold swordfish is still hunted in mode as primitive as that the Eskimo uses to kill the stupid whale, and often the sting of the harpoon changes this luxurious ocean gastronome into a raging water devil, quick to perceive his advantage, charging with the speed of a bullet and the accuracy of a swordsman up against the lone fisherman in the dory who tries to bring him to gaff. Then must the fisherman measure with exactness the lunge of the monster, avoid it by a marvel of nice sidestepping in a plunging dory, or he will be spitted like a lark.—William Inglis in Harper's Weekly.

CHANCES IN GAMBLING.

The Rule of the Unexpected at the Tables in Monte Carlo.

There are systems, some will say, that will defeat the bank at Monte Carlo. I have not found one. Two factors settle all systems. One is the bank's limit, which prevents the doubling system so often advocated; the second, the extraordinary idiosyncrasies of chance. Red or black will often run in long series. I saw fifteen reds come up in succession on one occasion, seventeen uneven numbers in an unbroken series on another. One evening on a losing day I was playing on the first six numbers and persistently for some hours the last twelve numbers invariably turned up. Once I saw 21 come up four times in succession when mathematically it should have taken 144 coups to make it show that number of times, and still more strange that on this occasion each time it came up a gentleman had staked the limit on the number—namely, 180 francs—winning in ten minutes something over 24.000 francs. One readily sees by these instances the unexpected very often happens—in fact, more often that not.—Arthur Hewitt in Bohemian Magazine.

THE LOCAL BASKETBALLERS DEFEATED BY CENTRAL Y.M.C.A. OF TORONTO BY 48 TO 14

The Central Y.M.C.A. basketball team gave a great demonstration of how the game should be played when they defeated a local five by the large score of 48—14. The visitors from the outset had it their own way and had the Peterborough quintette outplayed. This is not to be wondered at at all, when the fact is taken into consideration that the game on Saturday night is the first one that the locals have ever played together. The Centrals have probably the best team in Eastern Canada and have been playing together for a long time. They were in the best of condition and knew the game like a book.

Peterborough, considering their opponents played a creditable game. Their playing around the baskets was not as good as it might have been, but this like other features in which the visitors were more experienced, may be attributed to a great extent to insufficient work of rehearsal. But in any case the visitors are a wonderful aggregation of basketballers, and any team defeating them will have to be a remarkably fast and well balanced outfit. The Centrals are expert in every department of the game. They are hard checkers, play a great combination and do some very heady and accurate work around the baskets. Their superiority in shooting was another noticeable feature and they let few chances go to waste. The Toronto men shot from close range most of the time and always had some one in the vicinity of the baskets when needed, and as a result many of the baskets were obtained without much opposition, the player securing them often being unchecked while he was shooting and had plenty of time to throw the ball with judgment. But even as quick shooters they had the opportunity to display that they were equal to the occasion. Every man on the line-up played a strong game, and while the Peterboroughs were getting worsted the big crowd that more than took up the seating room were not backward in applauding the brilliant playing. Sievert was the pick of the visitors and played a most spectacular game. He gave a great exhibition of shooting and was Central's principal scorer. Miller also played a fine game at centre, and Britton, Whyte and Swanson did effective service. Fitzpatrick and Best were the choice of the local team. Fitz, who is a star centre, while he played a creditable game, wasn't up to his usual standard, being somewhat fagged from playing rugby in the afternoon.

The game started briskly and it wasn't long before the locals had secured the first point on a foul. This looked good to the crowd and the spectators commenced handing out encouragement to the boys. But Toronto had a great assortment of basket-feeders and at half time had it 29—5.

The second half opened with the homesters playing hard with the apparent intention of keeping down the score, and, while Centrals scored pretty freely, they did not do so as often as in the initial period, but nevertheless had a marked advantage in the play.

Tompkins of the Centrals and Dobson, of Peterborough, acted as referee and umpire, changing positions in the two halves.

THE T.A.S.A.C. WON THE CITY CHAMPIONSHIP BY THE BIG SCORE OF 28-3

The Y.M.C.A. fourteen didn't offer effective opposition to the T. A. S. team in its game on Saturday for the city championship and the latter won by the solid score of 28 to 3. From the commencement the abstainers were on the aggressive, and in three minutes' time had secured their first point on a touchdown, and Y.M.C.A didn't make a tally until after their opponents had run up the big lead of 22 points.

There is not much to say about the game, as it was by no means a revelation in either classy or spectacular rugby. Both teams worked hard, however, and tackled with considerable vigor. A strong and uncertain wind blew during the entire afternoon and this mad ewell placed punting an utter impossibility. Perhaps the only feature was the strenuous play of the teams, for the ground was stubbornly contested in spite of the fact that T.A.S. managed to get through so frequently.

JUNIOR CHURCH LEAGUE TO BE FORMED IN PETERBORO'

A junior church hockey league will be formed in Peterborough, this season. Many of the churches have boys' hockey teams and the formation of the league will be a splendid move. A meeting will be held at the YMCA on Monday evening, December 7th, at 7.30 o'clock, for the purpose of organizing a league. Every church team in the city is asked to have a representation on hand in order that organization will be got well under way.

PETERBOROUGH WILL BE IN NEW BASKETBALL LEAGUE

A movement is on foot to organize an interprovincial basketball league and if the arrangements are carried out Peterborough will be represented in the new organization. It is proposed to have an eastern and western section, the eastern part to be composed of teams from Ottawa, Montreal, Kingston and any other eastern cities or towns that desire to enter. Peterborough will be in the western section.

It was learned from members of the Central YMCA. team of Toronto, who were here on Saturday night, that the league is practically assured. The local basketball players will get down to work at once in order to have a strong lineup when the league opens.

WHITCROFT ARRIVES AT EDMONTON WITH PLAYERS

Edmonton, Nov. 23.—Three of the fastest hockey players in the east who have been signed up by Manager Fred Whitcroft, to play on the Edmonton team against the Montreal Wanderers for the Stanley Cup on December 28th and 30th, have reached the city. They are Bert Lindsay, goal tender from Renfrew; Steve Vair, centre forward from Renfrew, and Harold McNamara left wing from Montreal Shamrocks.

Two other players, Miller, forward man of last year's Edmonton team, and Ross, of Sault Ste. Marie, are already in town, and Gardner, of the Montreal Shamrocks, is expected to arrive to-day.

The players are now up against it for ice. They have three weeks and a day or two in which to train, for it will be necessary for them to leave for the east about December 18th. The Thistle rink managers, who commenced making ice last week, were stalled by the mild weather. The McDougall ring, which boasts a rather sticky sheet of ice, will probably be called into commission for an hour or so a day. The majority of the players are in fairly good training already as far as their wind is concerned, and when ice is provided, it will only be a matter of hard practice till the team leave for the east.

Manager Whitcroft, who returned yesterday, expects to have the team completed shortly, and the players all lined up.

Notwithstanding the job handed out to Edmonton on the dates fo the Stanley Cup games, the executive have every confidence that they will whip a team into shape that will lead the Wanderers a strenuous life.

TREMBLAY WON FROM BOTHNER

New York, Nov. 28.—America lost another championship last night when Eugene Tremblay, of Montreal, defeated George Bothner, champion lightweight wrestler of America, two falls in three, catch-as-catch-can style. The bout, which was held at Prospect Hall, Brooklyn, attracted a big crowd, and was keenly contested. Referee Sommerville awarded the third and deciding fall to Tremblay to save Bothner from possibly serious injury. The Canadian secured a toe hold on his opponent, and bent the leg over until Bothner almost fainted from the pain. In spite of the agony he kept his shoulders from the mat until the referee relieved the situation by declaring Tremblay the winner.

The first fall was secured by the Canadian by a toe hold and barlock hold in 28 minutes 35 seconds, after he had tried a strangle hold and had been cautioned by the referee.

In the second bout Tremblay acted on the defensive until Bothner rolled him over on the mat with a half Nelson and body hold in 4 minutes 15 seconds. The third fall went to Tremblay in 9 min. 4 secs.

A POOR SPORT

Mahmout the Turk Wins From Rouen in an Unsatisfactory Bout.

Last night's wrestling match at Sohmer Park, between Raoul De Rouen, of France, and Yussiff Mahmout, the Turk, turned out to be an unsatisfactory contest, and the crowd that taxed the park to its capacity were sorely disappointed.

The match was practically won and lost on the toss of a coin, in which the Turk had the luck to call the turn. Had the coin fallen head instead of tail, the big Frenchman would have won the money without having to work for it.

The whole trouble arose from the fact that the Turk was no match for the Frenchman at the Graeco-Roman style, and had De Rouen won the toss for the choice of styles for the third bout, the Turk would have given him the match, for both he and his manager, George Harrington, of London, England, admitted he was not a match for the big Frenchman at the latter's favorite style.

Yussiff Mahmout the Turk, won the first fall at catch-as-catch-can style in 21 minutes. He was easily De Rouen's master at that game, although the Frenchman weighed 45 pounds more. De Rouen had no idea of leg holds, while the Turk could use his legs and feet almost as well as he could his arms and hands. It was only by his great strength and weight that De Rouen was able to hold the Turk off for 21 minutes.

When the wrestlers came out for the second bout, and Ald. Gadbois announced it would be Graeco-Roman style, the Turk's manager raised his hand to signal that he had something to say. It was to the effect that the Turk would give the Frenchman the Graeco-Roman fall as he was played out after his match the night previous in New York, with Tom Jenkins, and would toss a coin to decide whether the third bout should be catch-as-catch-can or Graeco-Roman.

The announcement was jeered by the crowd, and the Turk was called a quitter and a few other uncomplimentary names.

Then followed a wrangling conversation between Dr. Gadbois, De Rouen and Harrington, with the Turk breakin into the argument every few minutes.

Finally, it was decided the Turk would go on and wrestle at Graeco-Roman, but it was plainly evident the moment the men came together that he did not relish the style. However, he put up a good defence for the first ten minutes, although De Roun had him in a bad way two or three times.

The big Frenchman was the favorite with the crowd, and when the wrestlers toed the scratch for the second bout his admirers were shouting to him to turn the Turk over quick, as he would have the choice of the third style, it being the general impression that if De Rouen won the Graeco-Roman style in less than 21 minutes it would be his privilege to choose that what the third style should be.

They did not have long to wait for a decision, for almost as soon as the pair came together for the second 10 minute bout Yussiff shoved De Rouen away from him and muttering something in Turkish, walked off the mat to his dressing room. The crowd yelled and hooted at him, but he showed no inclination of returning to finish the bout.

Dr. Gadbois the referee, waited five minutes for the Turk to come back, and when he did not show up the fall was awarded to De Rouen.

It was expected the Frenchman would have the choice of styles for the third bout, but when it was announced that a toss of a coin would decide whether it was to be catch-as-catch-can or Graeco-Roman, more jeering and hooting followed. Whatever admirers the Turk had amongst the spectators went back on him, for they realized that if he lost the toss he would quit and give the match to the Frenchman.

When Dr. Gadbois tossed the coin, De Rouen called the turn wrong and when he did so Yussiff Mahmont chose his favorite style of catch-as-catch-can.

De Rouen showed his gameness by going on and taking a chance, but he was no match for the Turk at that style, and his shoulders were pinned to the mat in seven minutes. His pluck, however, gained him the admiration of the crowd, and although Dr. Gadbois was forced to announce the Turk the winner, the cheers of th crowd weere for the Frenchman.

SAVED THE GIRL.

An Old Time Adventure With Solomon Island Cannibals.

One day on a Solomon beach a little girl ran to me and, before I was aware of it, placed my foot on her neck. One knows what this means well enough. In hot war it means that if a chief allows his foot to rest on the defeated one's neck the man's life is safe, but he is a slave forever, rescue or no rescue. I was puzzled at the child's action. It was soon explained. Shortly afterward down came a lot of villagers and insisted on taking the youngster. I told them what she had done. They said they did not care. Her mother was being cooked in the town, and the child should go to the ovens with her.

"Never!" I said. "What! We, who have eaten betel nut together many times, to quarrel for a mere child to whom I have granted life in your own way!" I swore they should kill me first. They replied:

"Oh, that is an easy thing to do."

A bold front was the only thing now. Luckily I had my sixteen shooter. Springing back and putting a mark on the sand with my foot, I swore I would shoot the first man who crossed it. They knew I could answer for a dozen of them or so, and, although clubs were up and bows bent, they hesitated, as well they might, and I knew I had mastered them. Then one proposed I should buy the child fairly. They cared not to fight a friend. To this I at once agreed, and a muss was thus avoided, and a mission ax worth tenpence made me a slave owner.—"Among the Man Eaters," by John Caggin.

The Century Plant.

The century plant, so named because of the popular idea that it blooms but once in a hundred years, in one sense makes good its name, for it blooms only once, then dies. In the genial climate of southern California it reaches maturity and blooms in fifteen or twenty years, while in colder climates the period may range from forty to fifty years. There are many species of the agave family native to northern Mexico, where it is called the maguey. The plant furnishes "pulque," the national drink of Mexico. At the time of blooming the plant throws up a single stock of rapid growth to the height of twelve to twenty feet, from which the tassel-like flowers sprout forth. This great flower stalk draws all the sap and vigor from the body of the plant, which soon withers and dies.

Apt Pupil.

Captain Jones (giving a short lecture to the recruits of his company on their demeanor in public)—If a civilian should make offensive remarks in a public house and try to induce a quarrel the well conducted soldier should drink up his beer and go quietly away."

After his address Captain Jones questioned his audience to ascertain if they had comprehended his remarks.

"Now, Private Jenkins, what should you do if you were at an inn and a civilian wanted to quarrel with you?"

"I should drink up his beer, sir, and 'ook it."—London Pick-Me-Up.

The English Milkman.

In English towns, a Canadian visitor declares in the London Queen, the foreigner runs out to the pavement just to see that glorious chariot called a milk float go by—that gay bit of a two wheeled thing, white and yellow, white and blue, or red, white and blue, with the shining brass churn erect at the side, the reins coming over the shining brass rail in front, the little square seat inserted at the rear and the charioteer standing at the back like Ben-Hur.

Then comes the English milkman on foot, with a modern yoke on his shoulders and swinging at each side a brass bound tin pail in which is a queer little measuring dipper. Who could wish to have milk delivered in glass bottles, with a paper sealed top, when he can have it measured out at his door into his own jug in this quaintly curious fashion? What do microbes amount to compared with the joy of the mediaeval?

ONE BAD MISTAKE

Its a serious mistake to neglect backache. Backache is the first symptom of kidney ills. Fatal complications may follow. Booth's Kidney Pills act quickly to overcome kidney ills, do not delay until too late, it may mean Diabettes, Brights Disease. Read what a Peterborough resident says:

Mrs. R. Duncan, 115 McDonnel st., Peterborough, Ont., says:—"Some thirteen years ago I suffered with a severe attack of La Grippe that had until this spring left me in a weakened and miserable condition. The kidneys had been disordered through this and became so inactive that doctors had pronounced Bright's Disease and termed my case incurable. My back was very weak and the pains across the kidneys were most excruciating. The urine was highly colored and contained a quantity of whitish sediment. I had become so discouraged through my years of suffering that I had no care for anything. Booth's Kidney Pills were advertised at The Market Drug Store and I tried them. The first box convinced me of their merits. I used five boxes of the remedy and I have been entirely cured. I am like a new person, well and strong and can sleep through the night and awake refreshed and ready for the day."

PETERBOROUGH

A TENDERFOOT'S REVENGE.

Bully of New Mexico Town Had the Tables Turned on Him.

The average tenderfoot is not a coward. He simply lacks ranch experience. An illustration of this fact occurred down in New Mexico several years ago. One day a pale looking thin and sickly young man alighted from the train and put up at the little adobe hotel at Bernal Springs. The tenderfoot walked up to the bar and called for a bottle of soda pop. "'Tain't allowed to drink that sort o' stuff out here," said a toughy. "What you want is a stiff drink o' red liquor. Mr. Barkeeper, set out the pison for this young feller." "You have the best of me," replied the tenderfoot, "and I'll have to drink the stuff, but I hope the time may come when I can make you drink my choice of liquid."

The tenderfoot raised the glass and gulped down the whisky. Sandy had had his way about it, and he made no effort to comprehend the vague remark of the stranger. The tenderfoot left for a ranch down the Pecos the next day after the incident in the saloon, and he was forgotten until one afternoon more than a year afterward a strong, healthy looking young man rode up to the hotel on a broncho, dropped the bridle reins upon the ground and dismounted. He had the appearance of a typical young man of the range. His face was bronzed and his eyes clear and penetrating. "I owe a fellow a debt which I believe I will pay right now," the stranger said.

No sooner had he made the remark than he walked off in the direction of Sandy, who had his gun in his right hand and was firing it into the air every few steps. The stranger approached Sandy, pulled his gun and unceremoniously dragged the bully up to the saloon and led him in that fashion up to the bar. "Get me a pan of water and set it upon the floor," he said to the barkeeper.

The order was complied with, Sandy standing there meekly, wondering what was going to happen to him. "Now, get down on the floor and drink water out of that pan like a dog," the former tenderfoot ordered. Sandy at first refused, but when the stranger began twirling his gun around on his forefinger and said the order must be obeyed the cowed fellow unlimbered and lay down upon the floor and began drinking water out of the pan.

WATERLOO.

The Immutability of the Famous Old Battlefield.

One of the most striking features of a visit to the battlefield of Waterloo today is the immutability of the entire scene in which one of the greatest battles of history took place. Notwithstanding the many years that have passed since the memorable day of June 18, 1815, the entire scene of the battle remains practically unchanged and untouched, and the very buildings around which the tide of battle surged the fiercest, save for the necessary restorations of the damage they sustained in the conflict, remain exactly as they were, nor has any encroachment of building or progress marred the historic field.

The battlefield of Waterloo is an open, undulating stretch of good farming land. On the day of the battle the greater part of it was covered with crops of rye, wheat, barley and oats, and the same crops are still grown there each season. The field is intersected by two highroads branching at Mont St. Jean, the one on the right leading to Nivelles, while that on the left, which lay in the center of both armies, led south to Genappe, Charlerol and Namur. Upon the crest of the ridge which formed the first of the allied positions a crossroad runs east and west. This road, on approaching the spot where the "Lion of Waterloo" now stands, ran through a cut in the crest some twelve to fourteen feet deep, and it was this point that was known after the battle as the Hollow Road. Some 500 yards to the southeast of the "Lion" is the farm of La Haye Sainte, while about 900 yards to the southwest stands Hougoumont, the old chateau, farmhouse, outbuildings, walled garden and orchard, which played such an important part in the fate of the day. These buildings are nearly 300 years old and were built with a view to their defense, as many old stone loopholes still to be found testify. — Robert Howard Russell in Metropolitan Magazine.

Insomnia.

Insomnia is the not uncommon fate of the brain worker who after years of continuous mental strain retires from active life. The reason is that mental activity demands a large supply of blood for the brain, and the blood vessels gradually accommodate themselves to this large supply. But when the hard work is over the brain does not always realize that it needs less nourishment, and hence the condition of excessive mental activity which is what insomnia is.—London Mail.

Stamps

The value of the postage stamps issued by the United States government was the subject of discussion at a New York club recently, and in order to determine a disputed point the following information was obtained through the office of the third assistant postmaster general: "For the fiscal year ended June 30, 1907, the value of 'stamped stock' issued to postmasters was $173,006,476.27. This consisted of 9,331,919,055 pieces of stamped paper and 17,686,800 stamp books. The value of the postal cards for the year was $8,232,119.90 and of the postage stamps $125,310,349. Among the large accounts were: Stamped envelopes, $27,654,983.42; wrappers, $579,883.25."

The Ghost of Lochrain Castle

By Mrs. C. N. Williamson—Author of "The Princess Passes," "The Lightning Conductor," Etc.

COPYRIGHT, 1906, BY MRS C. N. WILLIAMSON

"Don't answer me yet," broke in the young man. "I've often heard that girls always said 'no' at first, especially if they were taken by surprise; and I didn't expect that you could have learned to love me so soon. But wait; hear what I've got to say before you speak."

"I thought you were going to let me 'rest' this morning," pleaded Elspeth. "This conversation is much more wearying, after a bad night, than attending to Mr. McGowan's correspondence. I've a headache, and—and I'm worried about lots of things."

"You need never worry about anything after this if you'll trust yourself to me, and do as I am going to ask you to do, presently. First of all I want you to promise that you will be my wife, by and by."

"Oh, I couldn't!" cried Elspeth. "I am not at all in love with you. I never could be."

"How do you know that?" asked Grant. "Unless there is some other man. Is there—is there? You must tell me that."

"You ought not to ask me such a question, but—there is no one," the girl answered. She spoke the truth. There was no man in her life, and there never had been, except her father and brother. Nevertheless, the color she had lost slowly streamed back to her face, and the image of a man rose before her eyes. She scarcely knew him, and he was as far removed from her as the stars above the earth. Yet she realized that he was her ideal, the man she could have loved if she had been more fortunately placed in the world; and that, compared to him, no man that she had ever met, or was likely to meet, would seem in her eyes worth the loving.

The thought of him, coming to her in such a way, almost frightened the girl, for she had not been aware what a hold he had obtained upon her imagination. She tried to shame herself by thinking. "How surprised he would be if he could dream that the poor little typewriter had such ideas about him in her foolish head"; and it was this reflection that brought the blush, which James Grant was quick to see.

"She is thinking of some one, after all," he told himself. "Who can it be? Oxford, perhaps? Yes, that's the most likely thing. That's why she blushes, for she needn't blush if it were any one who is likely to care honestly, and not just flirt with her to pass the time. That's one more black mark against him. If I had any hesitation before, I've none left now."

"At least, you don't dislike me," he said.

"Of course not," the girl protested.

"Well, then, that is something. Listen to what I have to propose. Be engaged to me—quite privately, if you like; no one need know till you wish it, and help me to carry out a scheme which will make us both rich. Meanwhile I shall be doing all I can to make you care for me, and if I succeed, so much the better for me; if not, no harm will have been done, only a great deal of good, for you to make you independent. Now, isn't that a fair offer?"

"It is fair, but I can't accept it," replied Elspeth.

"Are you so well satisfied with your condition in life, that you are ready to refuse several hundreds of pounds, without even hearing how easily they can be earned?"

"Too well satisfied to be willing to better my condition by being engaged to a man I don't love."

Grant was silent, looking thoughtfully at the girl, evidently undecided what to do. Elspeth felt that he was debating within himself whether or not to tell her something that was in his mind. His lips went down at the corners and suddenly an angry light sparkled in his eyes. "If there were no such conditions—if you hadn't to pledge yourself to me—you wouldn't be eager enough to make the money," he said.

"That depends upon the 'scheme' you spoke of," she retorted.

Again he paused. "I could tell you nothing unless you were bound to me in such a way that my interests were yours," he answered at last.

"Then I am afraid you will have to work alone, or at least without me," said Elspeth, "for I can only be bound to you as a friend."

She spoke decidedly, and a dark flush mounted to the roots of the young man's hair. He was not only deeply disappointed, but embittered by his disappointment, and Elspeth was half alarmed by the angry, thwarted look in his eyes. She could not doubt that he had really been attracted by her, that he fancied himself in love with her, if nothing more; yet she felt dimly that love denied would not be enough to bring that look to his face. Evidently he considered her help very necessary in some undertaking important to his interests, and was almost inclined to ask for it, though she had just refused to be engaged to him.

"I believe you will change your mind yet!" he exclaimed. "I must have you."

"You know, if you are going to persist in talking to me like this," said Elspeth. "I shall be driven away from Lochrain, though I very much wish to stay here. Do be kind and leave me to myself now. You have excited me a good deal and made my headache worse. I must get at my work."

"I told you I wasn't going to let you work this morning," returned Grant, almost fiercely. "Go to your room—or take a walk—do anything you choose except work. I will do everything myself."

"I can't have you doing my work," said Elspeth, "less than ever after what you've said." She would have sat down at the desk, but Grant came between her and the chair, moving it away.

"You want to hurt my feelings, I see," he said. "If you didn't, you'd be willing to accept a small favor like that from me."

It was now Elspeth's turn to hesitate, for, odd as his manner seemed to her, she did not wish to be ungenerous. "Oh, very well," she answered. "I will leave most of it to you, since you are so kind, if you will promise after this to act as if nothing had happened between us."

"I'll do my best," replied Grant.

"Thank you. Then I'll just get things in shape here." She drew toward the desk again, but still the young man kept her back.

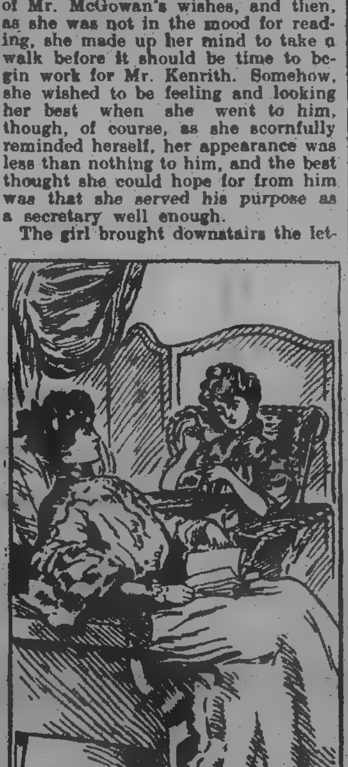
"If you must interest yourself in these things, take a few letters up to your room," said he. "I can work faster if I'm alone."

Elspeth made no objection to this proposal, which indeed was a relief to her, for she was far from anxious to remain in Mr. Grant's society, especially after what had passed. But she was somewhat surprised at the evident satisfaction he felt at being taken at his word. He did not express this, except by his face, yet it set Elspeth wondering. Had his offer to help her, and let her rest, not been made entirely for disinterested reasons then? Did he wish to get her out of the way, and have the room to himself?

In any case, the girl thought, it was not her affair, and she was glad to go, without further argument. She gathered up a few letters, took her own typewriter, which she had brought down as usual, and went away.

It was true, she had been very tired and slack, but the excitement of the little scene she had just now passed through, had stimulated her, and for the moment she felt as fresh as if she had slept well, with never a dream, throughout the night. She typed the letters which she was able to answer herself, through the knowledge of Mr. McGowan's wishes, and then, as she was not in the mood for reading, she made up her mind to take a walk before it should be time to begin work for Mr. Kenrith. Somehow, she wished to be feeling and looking her best when she went to him, though, of course, as she scornfully reminded herself, her appearance was less than nothing to him, and the best thought she could hope for from him was that she served his purpose as a secretary well enough.

The girl brought downstairs the letters she had finished and as she thought by this time Mr. Grant must have finished any work he wished to do alone in Mr. McGowan's office, she opened the door to leave the neatly directed envelopes on the desk there.



"Of course I will." answered Elspeth.

"You must work upon her ambition," where the first words she heard as she entered, spoke in a voice she knew. "Once engaged in the work she daren't"——

Silence instantly followed the opening of the door and Elspeth saw Mr. Trowbridge standing talking with James Grant. The American—if American he was—showed no confusion; but Grant started and frowned.

"There!" exclaimed Trowbridge. "Speaking of angels! Now the cat's out of the bag. Miss Dean will guess that you have confided your troubles to me, my friend, and that I've been trying to give you good advice how to win her. I do hope you don't mind, Miss Dean. You've no idea what an interest I take in love affairs, and yours"——

"I have none," said the girl coldly.

"Well, Mr. Grant here has, and he's an excellent chap. He has done me no end of little favors since I arrived in this hotel, and, by Jove, I'm going to make his fiancee a handsome present, when he gets one. I've more money than I know what to do with, unfortunately, so"——

"Perhaps, when Mr. Grant has a fiancee she will be willing to let you spend some of it on a present for her," cut in Elspeth, "but her affairs and mine have no connection with each other."

She laid down the letters on the desk and without another word went out. But there was a deeper emotion in her mind than vexation with the American millionaire's officiousness, or with James Grant for taking her name in vain.

"What could they have been talking about?" she asked herself. "It must have been of me, or Mr. Grant wouldn't have looked embarrassed; but it wasn't what Mr. Trowbridge wanted me to believe. 'Once engaged in the work, she daren't'——were the words he was saying, and his voice sounded so eager and odd! What work was I to be engaged in, which would prevent me from daring—something? Oh, that 'scheme.' Mr. Grant wanted me to go in with, if I were bound to him, first, so that my interests and his would be the same. Can it be possible that it has anything to do with Mr. Trowbridge?"

This was too intricate a puzzle to be solved easily, and Elspeth thought it over so hard that when she returned from her short walk she was unrefreshed and more nervous than when she had started. She had gone a little farther than she had intended, and consequently was rather late for Mr. Kenrith. To reach the hotel in time, she walked very fast and tore her dress. Altogether, it did seem as if everything was bent upon going wrong this morning, and when she made several mistakes in taking down from Kenrith's dictation, for the first time since she had begun working for him, the last feather appeared to be added to her burden.

She grew red and white, and the tears rose to her eyes, stinging her lids so sharply that she had to bite her lip to keep them back. Then, in the midst of her distress, she saw that Kenrith was looking at her.

"My child," he said, "you are overworked, I have seen it for several days."

How different was his tone from James Grant's! This time, the girl's heart went out in gratitude, though the genuine concern of the man's manner made her long to cry comfortably.

"It's nothing," she faltered. "I'm very stupid."

"You are anything but stupid. You are very brave, and clever, too. I have a great respect for you, Miss Dean."

Now the girl dared not look up at him, the unshed tears hung so heavy in her eyes, and her heart was beating fast. How good he was — how kind, and how far, far away from her in spite of his sympathy and consideration.

"Tell me," he went on, "is anything worrying you? And if there is, couldn't you let me help?"

"I—I am quite happy, thank you, only a little tired," she said.

"Not homesick?"

"I have no home."

"Poor child. You are so young to be fighting your own battles alone in the world. You ought to have companionship and amusement. I don't believe you are out in the fresh air enough. Motoring would do you more good than anything."

Elspeth laughed.

"I'm not joking," Kenrith went on. "Do you like motoring?"

"I've never tried," said the girl. "I am sure I should love it, but I'm not very likely ever to find out by experience."

"You shall find out by experience this very day, if you will, in my motor. Instead of taking your usual walk—I know you do walk at a regular hour, for I've often seen you going out as I sat near my window—you shall have a run in my motor. I have been lending it to Captain Oxford since he has been able to get out, but he has a friend coming to see him this afternoon, it seems, and has just sent word to me that he won't be able to use the car. You shall go instead."

"Oh, thank you!" exclaimed Elspeth. "But—all alone. I"——

"No, not all alone. I'm sure Lady Hilary Vane will be delighted to go with you," said Kenrith, "and in that case I should be able to be of the party."

Elspeth realized quickly that for her sake he could not have gone with her alone, but with the two girls, his presence in his own car as host, could not arouse gossip in the most censorious clique. "It would be too glorious," said she. "But—but I don't think Lady Lambart would allow Lady Hilary to go."

"We shall see," replied Kenrith, with a determined look in his eyes, which told Elspeth that the chances were in favor of the expedition.

She finished her work with no further mistakes and left Kenrith's sitting room, feeling singularly, unexplainably happy.

After lunch a note came up to Elspeth's room from Lady Hilary, with a heavy coat and a thick motor veil. "How nice!" said the letter.

"I am going out with you. Mr. Kenrith suggested that I should look up something warm and comfortable for you, in case you might not have come prepared for motoring and chilly emergencies of that sort. I hope the things I send may do. What a talk we shall have!"

Elspeth's heart was very warm towards Lady Hilary as she read the friendly note and put on the pretty coat, so much handsomer than any she had ever worn. She tied the long chiffon veil over her hat and found the big, fluffy bow under the chin very becoming. "I wonder if he will see me?" she was asking herself as she went downstairs; and was so absorbed in her own thoughts that she had almost collided with the Countess Radepolskoi before she saw her coming up.

"Ah, how pretty you look, my dear!" exclaimed the handsome woman. "You have the air of one who is to go motoring."

"I am going," Elspeth answered.

"I can guess," said the Countess. "You are driving down to the station in one of the hotel motors."

"No," answered the girl, smiling. "I have had a much pleasanter invitation than that and have accepted it."

Suddenly the woman's dark face changed, and her eyes dilated with a look of horror. "It is not—you are not going with Captain Oxford in Mr. Kenrith's car?" she asked, in an odd, low voice.

"Mr. Kenrith has invited me," Elspeth replied; then, remembering the conventionalities she added, "Lady Hilary Vane is going, too."

The Countess Radepolskoi's clear features seemed to freeze, and a curious glitter, like steel, lighted her eyes, bleakly. "Has—Mr. Trowbridge heard that—she is to be one of the party?"

"I don't know, I'm sure," said Elspeth, surprised. "I don't suppose he has. Why should he have been told?"

"Why, indeed?" echoed the Countess. "It—is a matter of no importance. It was only a foolish little joke of mine, as he seemed to be—rather interested in Lady Hilary Vane's movements of late. Let her go. I hope—she will have a pleasant drive. But you—I wish you would give it up, and spend an hour with me instead. I am in one of my bad moods. I am lonely. I should like your society. Make some excuse. Stop with me and I will see if I can't find something pretty for you—some little trinket"——

"You are too kind, Countess," said Elspeth, really grateful, though she would not have given up Kenrith's invitation for anything which could have been offered. "I'm so sorry you are lonely; but you see I've promised, and if I didn't go, Lady Hilary would have to stop behind."

"Oh!" almost whispered the Countess, "Oh—if you didn't go, Lady Hilary would have to stop behind. Of course, in that case—I say no more. Good-bye, child. I wish you luck. It will be a pleasant party; you, and Lady Hilary and Captain Oxford."

"Oh, Captain Oxford isn't going today," the girl explained hastily, for Hilary's sake, lest some trouble should be made with Lady Lambart.

"Not going!" the Countess cried sharply. Then she burst out laughing. It was strange laughter, and Elspeth wondered at it, just as she had wondered at the expression of the woman's face.

CHAPTER VIII.

"My chauffeur has had a slight accident, it seems," said Kenrith, as the two girls in motor veils and coats appeared at the door. "He has hurt his hand and can't drive, so I am going to take you myself. You needn't be frightened. On the whole I think I may say, without conceit, I'm the better driver of the two."

He put the two girls together in the tonneau of the car, which was a fine one of the latest type, 60-horsepower. Having started the motor he took his place in the chauffeur's seat, and in another instant they were spinning away down the long winding avenue which led away from the castle and through the park. They had not gone far when they came in sight of Mr. Trowbridge walking leisurely toward the hotel. He looked up, saw the car, with Kenrith driving, and quickly his eyes flashed over the other occupants. Neither of the girls wore veils heavy enough to disguise their features; they both bowed, Lady Hilary rather coldly and mechanically. Trowbridge snatched off his Panama. But seeing Lady Hilary in the car, instead of smiling in greeting, he grew ghastly pale, and, turning, shouted after the motor as it flew by him.

Elspeth caught the look of horror on his face, which reminded her of the expression she had seen Countess Radepolskoi wear when told that she, Elspeth, was going motoring in Mr. Kenrith's car. A chill crept through her veins, and she wondered greatly; but neither she nor her two companions heard Trowbridge shouting, "Stop—stop!" In the distance, a dog-cart was coming up the avenue, and Kenrith was loudly sounding a warning, so that the voice of the man who turned to run after them was lost in the shrill noise of the horn.

The car passed the dog-cart and sped on, passing through the park gates, and out into the public road.

"I thought of taking you to see the ruins of the old castle of Lochrain," said Kenrith over his shoulder. "It will be a good spin, and there's a little inn close by where they will give us tea. Oxford and I have been there once or twice."

The girls answered that that would be delightful, and Hilary began to tell Elspeth something of the history of the ruin they would see—an old stronghold destroyed in the days of Mary Stuart. But Elspeth scarcely heard the story, which would have held her interest at any other time. She had looked forward intensely to this afternoon's pleasure given her by Kenrith, and enjoyed with him so near her; but now that the experience had begun, it was spoiled for her by the strange thoughts which would come into her head. Why had the Countess looked so startled on hearing that she was to be in the car? Why had she tried to dissuade her from going, and only ceased her arguments when told that if Elspeth stayed at home, Lady Hilary would no doubt be obliged to do so, too? Why had she laughed as if in amusement because Captain Oxford was not to be of the party, and why had she seemed almost savagely pleased to know that Lady Hilary would be in his place?

"The Countess doesn't like Lady Hilary," Elspeth said to herself. "She cares for Mr. Trowbridge, and has the air of considering him her property. Now, he has fallen in love with Lady Hilary. Any one can see that—indeed, every one does see it, and talks about it, much to Lady Hilary's disgust, especially as her mother encourages him, because he is supposed to be so tremendously rich. I believe the Countess would be glad to have some harm come to Lady Hilary. She's a foreigner, and a strange, passionate creature, capable of evil, I believe, if it were to further her own ends or injure an enemy. Perhaps it is horrid of me to think that, as she is so kind, and seems to have taken such a fancy to me, yet I can't help feeling it's true about her. But even if she would like to harm that sweet girl, why should she have been so pleased to know Lady Hilary was going motoring with Mr. Kenrith? I suppose it must have been because she knew that now she'd be sure to have Mr. Trowbridge to herself, even if he had planned to be with Lady Hilary. That must be it. She must have known he had some idea to propose an excuse to be in Lady Hilary's society, and that would perhaps be enough to account for the look on his face when he saw Lady Hilary in the car just now. And yet—and yet—it was more than a look of disappointment. It was actual horror. And then, the chauffeur's accident? Was that a coincidence or—something more strange? What can it all mean? Or does it mean nothing, except that my imagination has grown morbid, and taken to conjuring up sensational things?"

A voice within herself seemed to answer Elspeth's forebodings with a warning. A vague depression fell upon her. She felt a sense of responsibility, as if she ought to say something, do something, while there was time to prevent a calamity. Still, she kept silence. Mr. Kenrith would only think her foolish and cowardly if she said: "Please stop the motor. Because Countess Radepolskoi didn't want me to come out with you, and because Mr. Trowbridge looked distressed at seeing Lady Hilary in the car. I have a presentiment that something dreadful is going to happen."

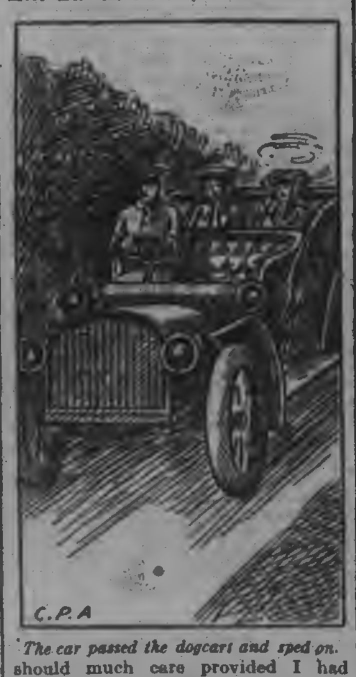
"Perhaps every one feels much the same when they are motoring for the first time," she told herself. "I have the idea that I should be glorying in it if it hadn't been for the Countess and Mr. Trowbridge; but maybe I shouldn't. Maybe this is only part of the experience."

Just at this instant Kenrith half turned his head for a second to ask: "How do you like it, Miss Dean? You're not frightened, I hope?"

Then Elspeth felt that not for anything in the world would she have said "Yes." "I think it's glorious," she answered bravely, though still the inward monitor whispered "Tell him to stop the car. Tell him to stop the car."

Now they were coming to a steep and winding descent, and all Kenrith's attention was needed for his driving. He spoke no more, and the girls were at liberty to be silent or talk together.

"You don't look very happy," Hilary said. "I believe you are terrified, after all. As for me, I don't think I should much care provided I had only myself to think of, if Mr. Kenrith drove straight into that wall of rock just ahead."



The car passed the dogcart and sped on.

"How can you say that!" exclaimed Elspeth. "You, who are so beautiful and young, and so much loved—you have everything of the best that life can give."

"How little you know," answered Hilary bitterly. "What good does it do one to be young, if one has nothing to hope for, of joy in the future? What good to be loved, if one can't hope to spend one's days with those one cares for most?"

"There's always hope," replied Elspeth, "until one is old."

"I feel old, though I'm not twenty yet," Hilary said. "I know I oughtn't to talk in this way to anyone, but I am so miserable, and if it were not for you, I should have no one to confide in. I should really be glad to die, unless—unless——"

"Unless what?"

"Oh, unless I could suddenly come into a lot of money, or—find a few jewels like Mr. Kenrith's, which he showed us the other day. Then—then everything would be different."

"Are things worse than you have told me before?" asked Elspeth, sympathetically.

"A thousand times worse, if that could be possible. Mother and I are in dreadful difficulties. I don't know what is going to become of us. Any day—any hour—the most awful disgrace may fall upon our heads, and we shall be ruined forever."

"Can nothing be done?" implored Elspeth, forgetting all her own anxieties.

"I could do something—something I would far rather die than do."

"You mean"——

"I see you've guessed."

"May I speak out?"

"Yes. We're friends. You have done so much for me. Oh, you can't help me now—except by sympathy. But that's a great deal, when a girl is as wretched as I am."

"Your mother wants you to marry some rich man."

"That would be nothing new. She brought me up for that. Once I didn't mind the thought so much, when—I cared for no one in particular, and—when it was only an abstract idea. But now, mother insists that it is my duty to say yes, at once, to a certain man"——

"Mr. Trowbridge! Has he spoken already?"

"Last night he spoke to mother. She likes him tremendously. He told her all about his circumstances. He is very rich and he as good as told her that, if he once had my promise, he would help her in any way."

"You won't give it to him? You can't!" exclaimed Elspeth.

"I don't know what I shall do. I'm afraid I—must. There seems no alternative. Oh, I would beg or steal, I believe, if I could only get the money which could save us in some other way."

Elspeth would have answered, would have tried to bid the girl have courage, and wait upon events, when suddenly the car swerved; there was a grinding crash of wood, a sensation, as if a wheel were giving way, an instant of cold fear with no desire to scream, and then—a cessation of everything. The world stopped for her.

"Is this death? Have I died, and solved the great mystery? Am I on the threshold of a new life?" Slowly, falteringly, the words formed themselves in Elspeth's brain.

She was conscious of no suffering; she scarcely remembered what she had passed through, yet the impression of some tremendous experience just undergone, floated dimly in her mind. Either her eyes were open, and she saw nothing but a soft green and golden light changing and pulsing, else it was an illusion, a waking dream.

"I must have died, for I seem to have no body," she told herself. "What has happened and what is coming next?"

Then, with a flash, she remembered. Perhaps she was dead; but if she were, the last thing she had done in life was to be in a motor car with Mr. Kenrith and Lady Hilary Vane. There had been no accident. If all had been killed, it was her fault, for she had had a warning, and refused to listen. The thought that John Kenrith was dead, and that she might have saved him, made her conscious that she had still a heart to beat, still a body with warm blood to flow fast through throbbing veins. An ugly aching made itself felt in the back of her head, and she knew that the great mystery was still unsolved to her. She was alive, and lying somewhere by the roadside. The green and golden light was that of the afternoon sun playing among tall fronds of bracken which spread above her like an emerald roof.

"I must find him—I must find Lady Hilary," she whispered brokenly, half aloud, and was glad of the sound of her own voice in the silence, which was like a tragic assent to her fears.

Painfully, she sat up, and would have thanked Heaven that she had the use of her limbs, if she had thought of herself at all now. Her head ached horribly, and she felt bruised and shaken, but there was no unbearable pain to recall her attention sharply to her own needs. She scrambled to her feet, swaying giddily for a moment, with sky and treetops whirling before her eyes, but in a few seconds she was able to walk, though rather unsteadily, and pushing her way through the bracken, crushed by her fall, she came out upon the road, and almost upon Hilary Vane, who was kneeling beside John Kenrith.

ALFRED SHRUBB IS HERE FOR LOCAL ENGAGEMENT

Appears at Roller Rink for Three Nights—How He and Flanagan Stand—A Talk With the Worlds Champion.

Alfred Shrubb, the world's championship distance man and holder of all professional records from 2,000 yards up is in the city to fill a three night's engagement at the Auditorium Roller Rink, where he will appear on Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday nights of this week against local runners and roller skaters. He came here from Toronto where he saw Tom Flanagan, Longboat's manager, with a view to coming to terms with the Indian's man regarding the races proposed between Longboat and himself. Shrubb came from Princeton to Philadelphia, where he ran an eight mile relay against four men and won. This was in the morning. In the afternoon he ran a four mile matched race against Percy Small at Trenton, N.J., beating his opponent handily. He then went to New York, where he ran across Dorando, while he (Shrubb) was having a conversation with Pat Powers in the Flatiron Building. Shrubb stayed but a single night in New York, going from there to Buffalo to Toronto, then to this city. He is registered at the Munro House here.

The chief business of the Englishman in Toronto was, of course, to see Tom Flanagan, with a view of the two coming to a mutual understanding, but no definite arrangements were made.

Regarding the races suggested between Longboat and Shrubb, and about which much has been written lately in the Canadian press, Shrubb says his proposition to his way of thinking are quite reasonable and one would agree with him in the matter when they are explained.

The champion says he suggested to Flanagan to run 5, 10, 15 and 20 mile races against the redman, commencing at the smaller distances. He would be willing to run all the distances indoors with the exception of the 20 mile fixture and this he thinks should be held over until next spring, when it could be run out of doors. Shrubb says he is willing to deposit $1,000 forfeit that if Longboat meets him in the shorter distances he will take him on for the long one, which Flanagan seems so anxious to have arranged. He also states that the final arrangements in the matter may be made by next Saturday.

During the past year Shrubb has been in the Eastern States in the vicinity of Boston largely and has run 34 races, 33 of which he has won. They have been relay races mostly. The one he lost was in Boston when he gave Frank Kenneally 125 yards handicap in a mile and the concession proved too big a one. Besides running himself, Shrubb has been looking after a squad of Harvard runners and he had them at Princeton when he was there as mentioned above.

"What do I think of Dorando," said the great distance man, "I think he is about the nicest little fellow I ever met. He does not do any boasting about his running and is a very pleasant fellow to talk to. His brother is also a fine fellow. Dorando certainly showed that he is a much superior distance man than Hayes and clearly showed this in the race between the two at Madison Square Gardens. I think Longboat would beat the Italian at 15 miles, but think the Marathon runner should beat him at either 20 or 25."

His local appearance will mark his second in Canada, he having made his debut in the Canadian field last year in Toronto. He also ran in England, Scotland, Wales, Ireland, New Zealand, Germany, France and Belgium and has cleaned up the championships in all those countries.

BIG LEAGUE IS BOOMING

Good Sport at the P. B. C Alleys—Great Game To-night

The big ten-pin league fixture scheduled for to-night at the P.B.C. alleys between Mac's Pacifics and the Belmonts is attracting widespread attention among the bowling fraternity and a large crowd will be out to watch the two crack aggregations do battle. Both teams have lost one game so far, and as both are determined to maintain their present position in the league race, the game should be a hard fought one from start to finish. The rivalry between them is intense, while their respective followers are also worked up, and the rooting during the contest will be of the strenuous variety.

Billy Wareham of the Belmonts, is exceptionally good at the moment, while Joe Pollard is always seen at his very best when big scores are needed. Wesley, the third member of the team, is a comparatively new bowler, but he gives every promise of developing into one of the best in town.

McIlroy is just now about the best of the Pacifics, but Lillie should never be overlooked, though at present he is out of practice. Dack Connor, though he has done very little summer, has developed a most effective hook ball, and if it is working right for him to-night, he should have some high scores.

Altogether the game promises to be very bitterly fought, and whichever team wins, their margin should be a very small one.

Land the the Examiner meet on Tuesday night, while the Grays and the Bankers clash on Wednesday. The last named in a practice game against a strong scratch team on Saturday had no difficulty whatever in winning out, and their work stamped them as just about as strong a team as any other in the league. Graham Ferguson has rounded into form, while Barber and Ford are probably the two best of the younger element of bowlers in Peterborough.

The competition will be open early in December for the handsome trophy which has been donated for individual competition, is proving very popular and a large number of bowlers have already signified their intention of entering for the handsome silverware. Entry is free and new bowlers will be allotted generous handicaps over their more experienced opponents.

FOOTBALL

The American football season, that has practically closed, reaped the usual terrific harvest in killed and maimed youths. In all there were 13 deaths directly due to the game, and 132 players seriously wounded. This latter number does not include the scores upon scores of broken fingers, badly cut faces, teeth knocked out, and kindred minor injuries.

The oft repeated defence of the game made by the enthusiasts that it is the boys, the poorly trained athletic club players, or the novice, and not the trained college gladiator that is the sufferer is disputed by the figures. Classifying the victims into the college, high school, and athletic clubs, the tables show that six of the thirteen slain were university students. Of these five were members of the "regular" teams and one was a member of the second team, which is supposed to have the same physical supervision as the regulars.

The list of seriously injured also gives a strong argument against this plea of the college football exponents. There is shown that sixty-four college players were seriously hurt as against forty-nine high school players and nineteen of all others.

The open play game, brought about by the ten yard rule and other innovations supposed to lessen the perils of the gridiron, seems to be a failure as far as any great saving of life and limb is concerned. There was a falling off of eight in the list of dead, between 1905 and 1906, the year the rules were first enforced, but the last two seasons have shown increases over the 1906 list, and the present, before the final game is played, may surpass the last two in details.

The number of seriously injured for 1908 already has climbed near the record for the last four years. The greatest number of seriously wounded in any of these years was 137 in 1905. The wounded the year already total 132, with several games still remaining.

	1907	1908
Broken legs	20	23
Concussion of the brain	14	20
Broken collarbones	11	27
Broken arms	8	8
Broken hands	3	2
Broken noses	4	3
Broke shoulders	10	9
Broken ribs	3	6

SPORTING TALK

Lindsay is to be congratulated upon winning the junior ORFU championship. The victory is even more creditable than usual on account of it being the first time that the Scugog town has had much to do with rugby. MONTREAL DROPS OUT OF LEAGUE

Montreal, Nov. 29.—A sensation was sprung at the meeting of the new Inter-provincial Hockey Association on Saturday, when the Montreal Club, which a couple of weeks ago resigned from The Eastern Canada Association to throw in its lot with the new one, to-day resigned from the new union. The rock on which the slip occurred was the amateur definition. The delegates of the other clubs were in favor of the amateur definition applied by the Inter-Provincial Rugby Union, which prohibits amateurs playing with or against professionals. The Montreal delegates would not agree to this holding that as, according to the constitution of the M.A.A.A. an amateur may play with or against a professional without losing his amateur standing, they could not accept the proposed definition. The meeting was a prolonged one lasting from the afternoon well on into Sunday morning, and every effort was made to keep Montreal in the league.

HOW HE SLEPT.

His Experience With a Noisy and Persistent Cuckoo Clock.

Wertz recently was presented with an old fashioned clock. That evening he hung it on his bedroom wall, wound it up and after admiring it awhile went to sleep. He was drifting into very pleasant dreams when he was startled.

"Coo-coo, coo-coo!"

Wertz sat up with a start, but in an instant recovered his wits and listened to eight more coo-coos with a foolish grin. Then he lay back and went to sleep again.

He had got into a fine doze by the time the thing went off again. This time he didn't grin.

Wertz is a light sleeper, and, though he tried to get used to the thing, he gave up after the cuckoo had announced 2 o'clock and got up and stopped the clock.

Next evening Wertz junior, who had not seen the clock, went to look at it.

"Why, it's stopped," he said. "What is wrong?"

Wertz senior stroked his chin.

"Maybe I didn't wind it this morning," he replied. "Ferd," he continued generously, "if you will promise to wind that clock every morning I'll let you have it for your room."

Wertz junior was delighted, and the transfer was made.

At the breakfast table next morning the heir of the house of Wertz looked tired and somewhat sheepish, but offered no explanation. After considerable general conversation his father said:

"You look tired. How did you sleep last night?"

Wertz junior yawned.

"By the hour," he answered.—Kansas City Times.

SCARLET FEVER.

A Scourge of White Races in All Ages and Countries.

Now that smallpox, thanks to compulsory vaccination, has become a rarity in civilized communities, scarlet fever steps forward as the worst of the eruptive diseases of childhood. It is a malady of enormous antiquity. Thucydides, writing nearly 500 years before the beginning of our era, called it a heritage from the remote past. It has scourged the white races in all ages and all countries, and the physicians of all schools have leveled their heaviest artillery upon it. Yet it remains a puzzle unsolved and an enemy unconquered even today. We are in doubt as to its cause, and there is no drug or antitoxin that will cure it. But despite all this the death rate from scarlet fever is steadily declining, and we may expect it to decline more and more as the years go by. The reason for this, I take it, lies in the fact that the modern doctor is a great deal more sparing with pills and powders than his predecessor and a great deal more lavish with water, air and antiseptics. In the old days it was customary to dose scarlet fever patients with all sorts of violent remedies in staggering quantities, and as a result many of them died. Today medicines are but minor auxiliaries in the sickroom, and both doctor and nurse devote their main energies to preventing a spread of the infection.—Delineator.

USE FOR A TELESCOPE.

Interesting Discovery One Woman Made by Use of the Glass.

"I thought it was a pretty fair sort of telescope for one that wasn't very big," said Uncle Silas. "I rigged it up in the attic by the high north window and had it fixed so it would swing around easy. I took a deal of satisfaction in looking through it, the sky seemed so wide and full of wonders, so when Hester was here I thought I'd give her the pleasure too. She stayed a long time upstairs and seemed to be enjoying it. When she came down I asked her if she'd discovered anything new.

"'Yes,' she says. 'Why, it made everybody's house seem so near that I seemed to be right beside 'em, and I found out what John Pritchard's folks are doin' in their outkitchen. I've wondered what they had a light there for night after night, and I just turned the glass on their windows. They are cuttin' apples to dry—folks as rich as them cuttin' apples!'

"And actually that was all the woman had seen! With the whole heavens before her to study, she had spent her time prying into the affairs of her neighbors! And there are lots more like her—with and without telescopes."—Christian Uplook.

"I am in the game for the love of it, and all the money in Ottawa will not make me turn professional," Herb Clarke is quoted as saying.

Canadian Male Beauty.

An English paper says a Canadian won second prize in a recent Beauty contest at Folkestone. Discribing the competition the paper says:

"Folkestone Pier was crammed in every part recently to gaze on over fifty men who presented themselves as "beauties," to compete for various prizes. When the candidates presented themselves for inspection some onlookers indulged in more or less facetious remarks, but good humor always prevailed. The fact of some competitors entering at all could only be regarded as a joke, but there were several foreign aspirants for awards, including a Red Indian. There was also one veteran of over eighty, who relied largely for votes upon his flowing locks. The ladies present were supplied with voting papers, each being allowed three votes. The competitors were not allowed to derive any advantage by reason of superior dress. Each in turn had to look through a gold frame, and as the face of each appeared there was loud applause or derisive laughter.

"The first prize, a Raleigh bicycle, was won by Mr. W. Weatherhead, a Folkestone lifeboatman; the second prize went to Mr. Brant Sero, of Ontario; and the third to Mr. Whitacre, a comedian, of Manchester."

"Ontario" seems to the editor to be sufficient address for Mr. Sero.

Policeman Shot in Park at Simcoe

And Chief of Police Molone Has Been Arrested—Five Shots Entered Body

Special to the Review.

Simcoe, Ont., Dec. 1—About one o'clock this morning policeman Wilkins was shot while in the park. It is said five shots entered his body from a revolver and that his assailant was so close when the shots were fired that his clothing was burned.

When he regained consciousness Wilkins found his way to the office of Dr. Bowlby and was taken care of and was afterwards removed to the sanitarium.

His recovery is considered very doubtful. Acting on statements made by Wilkins the arrest of Chief of Police Molone was affected, charged with being the assailant and the chief is now locked up in the county gaol.

PANIC FELT IN AUSTRIA

As Result of the Boycott of the Turkish Government--Turkey Urged to Make Concessions.

Special to the Review.

A widespread commercial panic is threatened in Austria to-day as the result of the Turkish boycott. The seriousness of Turkey's prohibition against all Austrian goods is just beginning to be felt and scores of business failures are being recorded. From all over the country are pouring in for the Government to make concessions to Turkey necessary to restore business relations.

HOW ABOUT 1908 COUNCIL?

Although it is less than three weeks till nomination day there is very little activity in municipal circles as far as aldermanic candidates for 1909 is concerned. It is generally conceded that Mayor Rush will have a second term and so far none of the aldermen who have declared whether they will be in the field again or not.

PIONEER OF SMITH DIED YESTERDAY

Death of James Northey in His 89th Year — Funeral To-morrow

One of the oldest residents of Smith passed away yesterday afternoon at two o'clock at his home on the fourteenth concession in the person of James Northey. The late Mr Northey was in his 89th year and had been in excellent health until last Tuesday when he was seized with an affectation of the heart which resulted in his demise. His wife predeceased him a year ago.

The deceased was born in January 1820 in Devonshire, England. He came to Canada in 1842 and settled in Port Hope where he resided for six months. He then removed to Bridgenorth where he lived until 1852 when he was married to Mary Jane Rosborough and moved to Smith. He was widely known and highly respected for his many estimable qualities. He was a member of the Methodist church.

Five sons and two daughters are left to mourn his loss. The sons are Messrs W J., John, T H and S A. of Smith and Alex. of Peterborough. The daughters are Mrs Geo Preston of Smith and Mrs Cyril Preston, of this city. Mr Thos Northey of Bobcaygeon is a brother and Mrs Chas. McCall of Douro and Mrs McClarke of Collingwood, are sisters of the deceased.

The funeral will take place on Wednesday at two o'clock to the Lakefield cemetery.

VESSELS COLLIDE

And All on Board are Reported to Have Met Death.

Special to the Review.

Dover, Dec. 1.—Two vessels are reported as having collided to-day in the dense fog in the vicinity of West Bay with the loss of all on board. Life boats are now searching the scene, but owing to the fog have not been able to find any sign of the wrecks.

MAGISTRATE IN HAVELOCK.

Magistrate Edmison is in Havelock today where he is holding court.

NICHOLLS HOSPITAL IS FILLED WITH PATIENTS

Sickness is evidently very prevalent in the city, as is noted by the fact every bed in the hospital is filled. Last night when Brakeman Irwin, who was injured in the C.P.R. wreck, was taken there, it was found that there was no room for him and the ambulance had to turn around and take him to St. Joseph's Hospital.

There are a large number of typhoid fever cases in the city, the hospitals each having several patients suffering from it.

THE LINDSAY GAOL-BREAKERS STILL ENJOYING THEIR LIBERTY

Lindsay, Nov. 30—From the time that Brooks and Mallory made their daring escape from the county gaol at 2.15 o'clock Saturday afternoon last, while sawing wood in the county gaol no trace has been found of either.

All day yesterday a sharp lookout was held in the villages north of the town and up till this afternoon no further word has reached Chief of Police Vincent.

An exciting rumor was about town on Saturday evening that Mallory, one of the convicts, was seen in the swamp north of the town by a farmer who was coming to town and from this the rumor started that Mallory was caught by one of the local constables in the before mentioned swamp. Chief Vincent on being questioned this morning on the rumors stated that they were without foundation.

DESCRIPTION

The following is the description of both men:

FRED. MALLORY.

Height 5 ft. 7 in. slight of build, aged 40 years, thin, pinched face, hair somewhat thin on the top of the head, complexion fair, and somewhat stooped.

WM. BROOKS.

Height 5 ft. 9 in. stout of build, age 29 years, dark complexion, black hair.

At time of escape both were wearing prison clothing—yellow and black.

LATER INFORMATION

This afternoon, County Constable Foster, who was out after the escaped convicts, returned to town. He had found some trace of the men but as yet had not secured them. On Saturday Mallory and Brooks made tracks for the Goose Lake district. They arrived at the Indian encampment at Goose Lake and tried there to secure a boat to take them across the lake. They were refused a boat and eventually went off north and are likely hiding in some farmer's woods or out-buildings.

LORD STRATHCONA'S TITLE WILL GO TO DAUGHTER'S CHILDREN

The question is sometimes raised as to whether Lord Strathcona's title will be perpetuated after his death, but nobody seems to have any very precise information on the subject. When Lord Strathcona was in Canada recently the subject was introduced in the course of a chat with his lordship, and he said that provision had been made to insure the permanency of the title.

"But after my death," said his lordship, "the title will not be continued exactly in its present form. As a matter of fact, there have been two letters patent in regard to it. The first, which was issued by the late Queen Victoria, gave me the title of Baron Strathcona and Mount Royal of Glencoe, in the County of Argyll, and of Montreal, in the Province of Quebec and Dominion of Canada. The second letters patent, which was issued by the present King, gave me the title of Baron Mount Royal and Strathcona. It is this last named form of the title which will be handed down to my successors, the Canadian part of the title coming first, you see, and the Scottish part second."

Lord Strathcona has only one child—a daughter, who is married to Dr. Bliss Howard, a Montreal doctor now settled in London. The title will descend to her and to her heirs male.

The first mark of royal favor which Lord Strathcona receivtd was in 1886, when he was created a Knight Commander of the Most Distinguished Order of St. Michael and St. George for his services in connection with the building of the Canadian Pacific Railway. It was in 1897, on the completion of the 60th anniversary of her reign, that the late Queen Victoria included him in her honors list as the Baron Strathcona and Mount Royal.

ANOTHER FREIGHT WRECK ON C. P. R. NEAR PETERBOROUGH

Two Freights in a Smash-up Three Miles West of Cavanville About Seven O'clock Last Evening---Engineer Kirkby and Brakeman Irwin Seriously Injured.

AN ENGINE AND NINE CARS WERE BADLY SMASHED

Nine cars and an engine were smashed and two men injured in a wreck on the C.P.R. about three miles west of Cavanville at seven o'clock last night.

The injured are Ernest Irwin, of Ottawa brakeman and Reuben Kirkby, engineer, residing at 141 Mulock street, Toronto. Irwin is in St. Joseph's hospital, Peterborough, suffering from a compound fracture of a leg and other injuries of a less serious nature. Kirkby was taken to Toronto. He was cut about the head and neck and considerably shaken up. He received his injuries in jumping when he noticed the danger.

The wreck was caused by a freight train going west which was making a switch three miles west of Cavanville not being clear of the main track before a double-header freight from the west came along.

The freight going west was what is known in railroad circles as a "drag." It was in charge of Conductor Joe Parker. It turned out on the switch to allow the double-header from the west to pass and it is said that the double-header was given the signal to proceed as the "drag" was on the siding. Seven or eight cars, however, were still on the main track and the double-header crashed into them. The latter was travelling at a rate of about ten miles an hour. If it had been moving faster the destruction would have been much greater.

The engineer, fireman and brakeman on the double-header noticed the danger in time to jump. The brakeman Irwin, was in the front engine with the engineer and fireman at the time. Kirkby, the engineer, was injured in jumping. The fireman, Thompson, was fortunate, escaping without mishap. Irwin jumped and would have been all right, but for the fact that the tender of the engine landed on his leg when the engine turned over as it crashed into the cars. The engineer and fireman on the second engine, whose names are unknown, escaped without injury.

The front engine of the double-header was knocked into a bunch of scrap iron by the force of the collision. It will be unfit for further service. The second engine, although somewhat damaged, will be able to go into commission again. Two of the box cars were smashed into kindling wood and the others were more or less damaged. Some of them can be repaired.

The noise of the collision attracted a large number of people from the countryside and the injured men were looked after by their fellow trainmen and others. Dr. Gray, the C.P.R. physician at Peterborough, was sent for and arrived as soon as possible and looked after Irwin's and Kirkby's injuries. Irwin was taken to Peterborough to-day and placed in St. Joseph's Hospital. Reports from there to-day are to the effect that he is resting easily. Kirkby was taken to Toronto. Irwin is about twenty-two years of age.

The local C.P.R. train from Toronto last evening had to stop at Manvers and after several hours later a train was made up at Peterborough and went out, the passengers transferred onto it and were brought to Peterborough.

The midnight express from Toronto came around by Port Hope, arriving at Peterborough about 2.30 o'clock this morning.

The noon train today, due at 11.38 had not reached Peterborough at four o'clock.

As far as blocking the line is concerned, the wreck is the worst in this locality for a long time. The wrecking crew from West Toronto and the auxiliary from Havelock were hurried to the scene of the wreck and worked all night trying to get the track clear.

The line was still blocked at noon today, the noon train being unable to get through.

"DOOR PORCHES" FOR FIRE ALARM BOXES IN THE CITY

Every Box Will be Equipped With One and it Will be Impossible for the Keys to be Stolen—Will Also Protect Boxes From Sleet.

The Fire, Water and Light Committee, at the suggestion of Fire Chief Howard, has taken steps to prevent the stealing of keys from the fire alarm boxes. This is going to be done by the installation of what are known as "door porches" on the boxes. They cost $1.50 each.

This matter was taken up at a meeting of the committee last night when a letter was received from Fire Chief Howard stating that some person or persons were making a practice of removing the keys from fire alarm boxes Nos. 52 and 53, Ashburnham.

Ald Johnston asked Mr Howard had there been any recent complaints about there being no keys in the boxes in question.

Mr. Howard said that no keys had been removed since he wrote the letter referred to above but he had nine keys in box 53 since he took charge of the brigade on July 1st, and four in box 52. Mr. Howard further stated that if all the boxes were fitted with "door porches," as a few of them were, the keys could not be stolen. The door porches would also protect the boxes from sleet. The door porches would cost about $1.50 each

Ald Johnston said there had been some complaints about sleet freezing up the boxes last winter.

It was moved by Ald. Buller and seconded by Ald. McIntyre that the Chief be authorized to purchase the number of door porches required.

FIRE BRIGADE MATTERS DISCUSSED BY COMMITTEE

A number of matters relating to the welfare of the fire brigade were discussed at a meeting of the Fire, Water and Light Committee last night, when there were present Ald Johnston, chairman; Mayor Rush, Ald. Buller, Ald. McIntyre and Fire Chief Howard.

A statement of the financial condition of the committee prepared by City Treasurer Adams, was read, and it was decided to put the brakes down on expenditure, and the chief was instructed to hold close to the lines laid down in the rules and regulations governing the fire hall.

Chief Howard explained why there had been one or two dismissals from the fire hall staff and the committee concurred in the judgment he had exercised.

LARGE INCREASE IN MEMBERSHIP

Reported at Meeting of the Board of the Y.W.C.A.

The regular meeting of the Board of the Y.W.C.A. was held yesterday afternoon. The reports were encouraging. The membership roll has been increased by 666 new names and the classes are growing in number and interest.

The offering taken for the foreign work in Japan has amounted to $45. Already the "mile of copper" cards are being returned. We hope for a general response, and that everyone interested in the public work of the Y.W.C.A. will contribute towards the raising of this mile ($633.00.). The work of the Domestic Scient Department will be closed for this season on December 18th, when there will be a large and valuable exhibit in domestic arts and crafts, as well as a most interesting programme. HAMILTON WANTS THE BIG TURK

Offering Him $300 to Appear in Handicap Against 6 Men Including Yankee Rogers

The Hamilton Herald says: — The secretary of the Olympic Club last night telegraped to the manager of Yussiff Mahmout, the giant Turk, who defeated Tom Jenkins in New York on Thursday night, offering him $300 to come to Hamilton and appear in a handicap wrestling match. Mahmout is asked to throw six wrestlers in one hour, actual wrestling time. The six proposed are Yankee Rogers, Charlie Conkle, Artie dEmunds, Chrysler, Jamieson and Fitman. If the Turk accepts the bout will be the biggest thing of the kind ever pulled off in Hamilton, if not in Canada.

HAVE NO PLACE IN WHICH TO KEEP GOODS

Tennis and Cricket Players Have Now no Quarters at Nicholls Oval

Dissatisfaction is being expressed by members of the St John's A.Y.P.A. Tennis Club and the Nicholls Oval Tennis Club because they have now no accommodation for their nets, racquets, etc. at the oval. In the past they have been allowed to use a couple of the rooms at the house on the grounds but repairs have recently been made to the house and orders have been given that the tennis clubs and the cricket club no longer have the use of any rooms at the dwelling.

It looks as if the clubs in question would have to put up a building or give up the Oval as a place for their games.

GREAT ORATOR IN THE CITY

Rev. Dr. Johnston of Montreal to Lecture Here This Evening

The people of Peterborough have a treat in store for them this evening, when Rev Robt. Johnston, DD, of Montreal, regarded as the best orator in the Presbyterian church will lecture in St Paul's church. He will speak on "The West and its people." A year ago he visited the West and took the opportunity of securing a number of views illustrative of life among the different communities and classes having in view especially mission work among these. The lecture at the same time, however, shows a good deal of the country, the Rockies and something of the new route of the Grand Trunk Pacific. He will also have a few characteristic views of the Tercentenary celebration at Quebec. The lecture will be open to the public. An offering will be received at the close.

HOLDING INQUEST

Dr. Grey is at Young's Point this afternoon holding an inquest in connection with the death of Roland Ayotte, who died as a result of being shot in the head a short time ago. The coroner was accompanied by Dr Young, who is assisting him in the investigation.

High County Constable Cochrane went to Young's Point yesterday to look up evidence in connection with the shooting and to exhume the body in order that it might be viewed by the coroner's jury.

A Serious Operation

An operation known as laminectomy was performed upon John Lingard this morning by Dr W W McKinley assisted by Drs W F Clemesha and L D Powers. It was a major operation and took nearly an hour. An incision about six inches in length was made in the back of the neck and two pieces of bone were removed from one of the segments of the spinal column. This was to relieve any possible pressure on the spinal cord and although the patient is still paralyzed he is feeling much better since the operation. —Port Hope Guide

STRUCK BY TRAIN

Accident at Crossing in the City

Horse Belonging to Fuel & Cartage Co. Was Severely Injured.

There was a narrow escape from a serious accident at the corner of Brock and McDonnel streets about 5.45 o'clock last night. One of the teams of the Peterborough Fuel & Cartage Company, driven by Mr. Jas. Hoar, was going west along McDonnel street. It was very dark and the driver did not notice the approach of the Grand Trunk train going out of Peterborough. The horses were on the track before Mr. Hoar was aware of the danger. He turned the animals quickly, but the engine struck one of them and injured it severely. The horse was knocked down and severely cut on the shoulder and on the fetlock. The latter was cut to the bone. A veterinary surgeon was called, and the horse was got up and managed to walk to the Fuel & Cartage Co's. stables. It will recover.

It was a narrow escape for the driver, and if the train had come along a second later the waggon would have been directly on the track. If this had been the case, Mr Hoar's chances of escape would have been very small.

The crossing where the accident took place is regarded as a dangerous one.

MUCH WRESTLING IN ENGLAND AT PRESENT

London, Nov. 14.—At the Stoke Newington Palace yesterday a special wrestling matinee was held on the occasion of a JuJitsu match between two Japs, Taro Myaki and one Keio Kato, who had agreed to wrestle for $250 a side and the championship. Myaki, the holder of the title, would appear to be very generous towards his challengers, as only ten days back he met and defeated another Jap named Toberi in Belfast, after a contest lasting 30 minutes. The present was the outcome of a challenge made late Saturday night, after Myaki had concluded his usual turn at the above Palace. From the outset it was seen both were in earnest. Myaki forced the exchanges, and twice appeared likely to get a winning hold on his opponent. Kato, however, proved a tough customer, and in turn got Myaki in trouble. The last-named stayed the best, and wearing his man down won with an arm-lock after 30 minutes 13 seconds.

A match has been arranged between Zbysco, the Galician, and Raicevich, the Italian, for the Graeco-Roman championship and one thousand dollars a side; the winner to take 65 per cent. and the loser 35 per cent. of the receipts. The match is to take place between the 7th and the 15th of December.

FINAL REHEARSALS FOR THE "MIKADO"

The final rehearsals of the Mikado are as follows;

Wednesday at 7.15 p.m., for all the company, including orchestra in the Grand Opera House. Members of the company only admitted.

ANOTHER MAN WHO THINKS THE WEST IS ALL RIGHT

In spite of some occasional rumors to the contrary, Mr. James Henderson, of Keene, is of the opinion that the Canadian west is a fine country. He has returned from a six weeks' visit there during which time he visited Moosejaw, Regina, Brandon, Souris and other places. The crops were good and general prosperity prevails.

Mr. Henderson saw acres and acres of magnificent wheat and says he is of the opinion that the wheat is not frost bitten, as it has been stated, it is in some districts, but that the wheat affected is suffering from a blight. However, this is not very widespread although quite prevalent in some districts.

While away Mr. Henderson saw several old boys from this part of the country and they all liked the prairie country. Mr. Henderson looked over some land with the idea of buying it, if it suited him, but did not make any purchases, although he may yet secure some.

THE RACE FOR WEALTH THE WORK OF PROSPECTORS

To say that a prospector has an easy life is a mistake. An illustration of his work was given a few days ago when two parties of prospectors raced from Elk Lake to Miller Lake, a distance of between 40 and 50 miles, to restake a property that was thrown out that afternoon.

On July 15, Geo. Stephenson and C. E. Smith, two well-known prospectors from Cobalt, were in the rush to the Miller Lake district. One of them staked a claim over the other and a dispute was promptly filed by the other party. The claim is known on the maps as M.R. 1101. An inspector was sent to the claim in question, and as neither party had a discovery, Mining Recorder Thos. Torrence, at Elk Lake, threw the claim open at 2 o'clock on a Tuesday afternoon. Both parties, as soon as they heard it was thrown open, left to restake the claim. Stephenson was accompanied by Billy Kirkpatrick, while Smith hired an Indian. The former had a ten-minute start, but at Stoney Creek portage, 10 miles up the river the two parties were together. From there the race started in earnest, as it is one of the worst water-routes in the country. There are twenty portages, which aggregate nearly six miles, while for paddling there is over thirty-five miles.

Stephenson has men working on some properties in that section, and when he arrived at Everett Lake, four miles from the claim in question, he gave a signal to his men by firing dynamite. This was at 10 o'clock on Tuesday night and they had made the trip in less than eight hours. The other two were about an hour's journey behind them, and when they got to the claim they found it staked, and the parties on their way to Elk Lake to record it.

"THE QUEEN: GOD BLESS HER"

To-day the gracious "Queen of Great Britain and Ireland and of the British dominions beyond the seas," celebrates her 64th birthday. If we judge by Her Majesty's appearance she has not reached her fortieth year, but if we judge by her place in the affections of the people, it may be safely said that she has long since passed that age. If to be beautiful and good is the sum of human happiness, then Queen Alexandra must surely have attained it. "Long live the Queen!"

OUT OF HIS OWN MOUTH

One would have thought that the Examiner would have had enough of this mouthing business after the last election, but apparently it has not. By a series of ill-directed attacks upon Mr. Burnham's veracity it tries to make out that the Review and Mr. Burnham or both asserted a falsehood when they said prior to the election, as Mr J. R. Stratton did in the case of the T.V.C. the Beaufort bridge, etc., which statements of his are not included in the Protest, that a Hydro-Electric contract had been awarded to the CGE and that Mr. Burnham with others was entitled to much credit for it. The contract was let as asserted to the CGE and the CGE have it. The news item in the Review which the editor of the Examiner gloats over was in error. But it must be remembered that the item was not written by or on the authority of Mr. Burnham. Mr. Burnham has nothing to take back. The Examiner is grasping at a straw. The letter of a news editor to that journal in reply assumes full responsibility for the trifling mistake.

ON THE MEND

It does not follow that once a bankrupt always a bankrupt. Spain is an example of the exception. Sunk from the condition of a first-rate to the condition of a fifth-rate power, this ancient giant among nations is rising out of her misfortunes and her sloth. Her natural resources have long since been depleted. But in agriculture, manufacturing and commerce all three dependent upon her physical energies and not upon a speculative or unhealthy craving, she is rising again into prominence. Barcelona, the seaport of Catalonia has outstripped Marseilles and Genoa, surely a notable and significant achievement. Castile, Estramadina and Galicia are fast becoming great agricultural areas. Andalusia and the whole of southern Spain almost without exception is given over to cattle-raising. Her people are ceasing to leave her shores and are finding employment and hope at home. The consequence of all this activity and renewal of youth, is the rising credit of the ancient monarchy upon the Exchanges of Europe. Her people have changed also. Although still proud, revengeful and taciturn, they have become more republican than monarchical in their tendencies with a consequent impatience of control by any but their own popular will.

SHRUBB IN THE CITY

Shrubb, the great English professional long distance runner, is in the city. Dorando, Hayes and Longboat to the contrary notwithstanding, Shrubb is the greatest distance runner of the day. A man who can run eleven miles and a quarter is both fast and furious. It is doubtful if there ever was a distance runner up to 25 miles who could beat him. Over that he may be beatable, but under that he has demonstrated his superiority time and again. In ancient Greece he would have been honoured by a reception by the mayor and entertainment at the city's expense, but times have changed. In Britain he is looked upon with scarcely less admiration than King Edward, and it is doubtful if the Premier would attract equal attention at a watering-place. But he is more than merely fast. He is sure. His reputation for honesty and square racing is above reproach. He is both strong and swift. The race and the battle are both his. Therefore he is worthy of our admiration.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Bryan wants to try, try again.

Southerners are angered over the bad name given the south by the Carmack shooting case.

The lenient treatment of those found guilty at Port Arthur is a mistake. It provides a bad example for the future. A suspended sentence is no punishment. The mere fact of proving guilt will not excuse the mistaken leniency of those concerned.

The trust evil in the United States is a revival of the old mediaeval spirit of monopoly, which the guilds, etc., of that period developed to such an extraordinary extent. History is a record of the struggle for liberty in every branch of life.

German loyalty to the Kaiser has turned into gall and bitterness. The leading Prussian papers are enraged beyond measure at the Kaiser's apparent friendliness to Great Britain. It is this feeling and not his talkativeness that has uncovered the slumbering fire of German hatred. The new Britain diplomacy is about to produce a general smash-up instead of a general peace. Grandmotherly sentiments do not befit modern conditions anymore than ancient. At the same time the idea that "what you can't steal, buy," is also going the way of other forms of crookedness. Canadians are described as a little weak on the flesh-pots question, but there is moral fibre enough yet in Canada to gain the mastery.

That the Hindoos and Mohammedans in India have laid aside their prejudices and united in a gigantic conspiracy to wipe out British rule in that country in one bloody stroke is the sensational story which is told today by Miss Helen Wilcox, a medical missionary, who returned from the Orient on the steamer Mongolia yesterday. Miss Wilcox says that the manufacture of bombs by the revolutionists is a well known fact, the women being as active in making these infernal machines as are the men. Wholesale arrests have been made by the British authorities but the purpose of the natives is not broken Miss Wilcox says that for a while every British resident in India feared assassination dynamite outrages being of almost daily occurrence. But, she says, the natives are now thinking of wider ranges of activity, and have decided that it will be easier to wipe out, the British race in India at one sweep, instead of wasting time on petty outrages.

"The story of Willie Law, as told by the Woodstock Sentinel-Review, is worth re-telling. Willie won the Oxford Marathon, a ten-mile race, a few days ago. As they were nearing the end, his chief competitor was seen to be in distress. Without hesitation apparently, Willie handed over to him an extra wet sponge, which he had brought along in case of need, his competitor having neglected this precaution. Here is an act which exhibits the spirit of the true sportsman

The writer was once watching a game of cricket at Lord's, London. A batter had reached 97 when his side needed but one run to win. The opposing bowler could have given a wide ball that would have provided the necessary run and deprived the batter of the chance to complete his century. Instead he bowled a leg ball which could easily be hit to the boundary and thus count four runs for the batter, and bring his total to 101. Unfortunately the batter missed the easy chance. The bowler still did not feel that his duty was fulfilled. He laid down a second leg ball and this time the necessary hit was made, and another "century" went into the official records. Here again was the true spirit of the sportsman.

It is unfortunately true that there is too little of this spirit in Canadian games. Too often it is "win fairly if you can, but win." Let us hope that the example of Willie Law will be emulated by hundreds of other young Canadians."—Canadian Courier.

Yes. But let us hope that the example of the bowler will not be followed by any honest man. The Courier's comment upon the bowler's chivalry (sic) reads uncommonly like nonsense or a little worse. Surely it is patent to the least scrupulous that a record not properly earned is worse than none. A sensitive man had he divined the bowler's intention should have drawn himself up and administered a reproof. This act was pure child's play.

Backache, Gravel and Rheumatism Vanish Before Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Proved Once Again in the Case of Mrs. Fred Kreiger, Who Suffered From the Worst Forms of Kidney Disease.

Palmer Rapids, Ont., Nov. 30. (Special.)—The thousands of Canadians who live in daily terror of those terror of those terrible forms of Kidney Disease known as Backache, Gravel and Rheumatism will be deeply interested in the story of Mrs. Fred. Krieger, of this place.

"I was for years a great sufferer from Kidney Disease, Gravel, Rheumatism and Backache," Mrs. Krieger states. "It all started through a cold, but I got so my head ached, I was nervous, my limbs were heavy, I had a dragging sensation across my loins and I was totally unfit to do anything.

"Reading about wonderful cures by Dodd's Kidney Pills led me to buy some. After using a few I found they were doing me good and this encouraged me to continue their use. Eight boxes made me well.

"I have since been able to do my own work ever since and to-day I am completely cured. Dodd's Kidney Pills gave me health and I feel like a new woman."

If you keep your Kidneys strong and healthy you can never have Backache, Rheumatism or Gravel. Dodd's Kidney Pills never fail to make the Kidneys strong and well.

THE HOOK

The last awful weeks —the week before Christmas.

Having a girl on one's knee is something of a hold-up game.

Two prisoners escaped from the Lindsay gaol. Wonder was it the gaol or Lindsay they wanted to get away from!

Who fixes the front door?

Who hauls the coal up to the range?
Who shakes the furnace down?

GIVE THE CHILDREN PLENTY OF FRUIT

It Helps to Keep Them Well.

In a growing, active child the cells of which the body is composed are being worn out—and replaced — very rapidly. This dead tissue must be gotten rid of somehow, and the danger is that the eliminating organs—the Bowels, Kidneys and Skin—may not do their work well enough. Then the blood becomes poisoned and the child does not thrive.

Nothing has such an invigorating effect on these organs as ripe fruit juices. Apple juice increases the action of the kidneys; other fruit juices stimulate the liver to secrete more bile, and bile produces easy and regular movements of the bowels; others stir up the glands of the skin to throw off more waste matter.

The difficulty is that to get these effects a great deal of fruit must be eaten, and the excess of pulp and woody matter may upset the digestion. The better way is to give the children "Fruit-a-tives", which are tablets made of concentrated fruit juices with valuable tonics added.

"Fruit-a-tives" have the combined effect of the different fruit juices, helping all the eliminating organs to work properly, curing Constipation, toning up the system, and keeping the children plump and rosy. 25c. for a trial box. 50c. for regular size—6 boxes for $2.50. Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

A Correction

Editor of the Review.

Sir,—Your reference to Rev. Canon Davidson's completion of his twentieth year as rector here is a slight mistake. The Canon's remarks were very modest and in the best of quiet taste. They were made on Sunday morning as a subdued and becoming reference just before the sermon. While your item does not convey any more it conveys a slightly different impression which it might be as well to correct.

Yours truly,
ONE WHO WAS THERE.

The Patronage List

Editor of the Review.

Sir,—The Examiner makes quite a fuss over the fact that the Government has abolished the patronage list, and claims great credit for the Liberal party. The Examiner conveniently forgets the long fight waged by the Opposition in the Public Accounts Committee during the last two or three sessions.

The Examiner conveniently forgets the denials made by itself and all other organs of the government that any such abuses existed. The Examiner conveniently forgets the sustained efforts made by the "blockers," in the Public Accounts Committee in their attempt to withhold all such evidence. The Examiner conveniently forgets how Judge Cassels was held back in his work until after the elections, so that the denials that were made throughout the campaign could not be officially contradicted by sworn evidence.

The Examiner conveniently overlooks the evidence of the Agent at Quebec who swore that, although certain orders were given in writing by the department to do things in a certain way, it was well understood that the letters were for the official files only, but that the agent would do what was best for the party under the circumstances.

Is the Examiner willing to pledge its political faith that the patronage list is abolished, and will stay abolished, or was the lately issued order given just to take the sting out of the sworn evidence?

Yours truly,
OBSERVER.

THE GHOST OF LOCHRAIN CASTLE

BY MRS. C. N. WILLIAMSON

Author of "The Princess Passes," "The Lightning Conductor," Etc., Etc.

Copyright, 1909, by Mrs. C. N. Williamson.

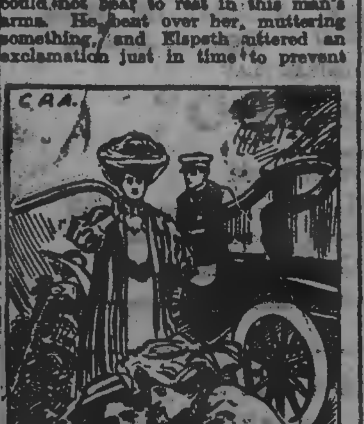
As she knelt there in the dust the girl's back was turned toward Elspeth, and she was so absorbed in what she was doing that she did not hear the rustling of the tall bracken. She had opened the coat of the unconscious man, who was lying close to the big, broken motor car, with his face stained with blood. Busily her little hands were searching, searching for something, and her whole heart was in the work.

Elspeth stood still, unable to speak, unable to move. But the spell was broken by the stealthy whirr of an electric car coming along the road by which they had traveled from Lochrain. It was close upon them, and, as Elspeth turned with a start, she saw Trowbridge stop the automobile and leap out.

Beside him the Countess Radepolskoi was sitting, but when the car had come to a rest she left it quickly and ran forward. Seeing Hilary kneeling beside Kenrith she gave a low cry which sounded strangely in Elspeth's ears. There was, or she fancied it, a ring of anger and the bitterness of disappointment.

Trowbridge sprang to Lady Hilary, and, as she struggled to her feet, he caught her in his arms. With a moan she let her head fall limply against his breast, and Elspeth saw that she had fainted.

Quickly the thought flashed through her mind that if Hilary knew she could not bear to rest in this man's arms. He bent over her, muttering something, and Elspeth uttered an exclamation just in time to prevent him from touching the beautiful disordered hair of the girl with his lips.



"Miss Dean will not leave Lady Hilary."

"Give her to me," she commanded peremptorily. Trowbridge and the Countess saw her now for the first time, and without a word the man obeyed. He laid Hilary down on the crushed bracken by the roadside and Elspeth knelt close to the white, still figure.

"Mr. Kenrith—he is not dead?" she stammered.

Trowbridge gave her no answer, except to stoop over the motionless body of the man. The Countess, too, bent down, half kneeling, and as the two were between Elspeth and Kenrith, she could no longer see him lying beside his broken car.

It seemed many moments before Trowbridge spoke, though perhaps not twice sixty minutes passed.

"No, he's not dead," the answer came at last. "I can feel his heart beating. If only I could have made you hear in the avenue, as you drove out, this needn't have happened. I saw that the near driving wheel was out of shape, as the car went by, and called out; but I could make none of you hear, though I took a short cut through the park, and ran after you until I saw there was no hope of catching you up. Then I hurried back, thinking to get one of the hotel motors, to follow, but luckily Lady Ardcliffe's electric car was at the door ready to take her out with the Countess. I've driven the same same kind, and she let me take it, though she wouldn't come, and I don't think she half understood what I meant. The chauffeur—a stupid young animal—stood by like a stock, staring as if he thought me mad, as I spun off with his auto. I hoped to overtake you before anything had happened, but I was just too late. he wheel is matchwood and the car badly smashed. It's a miracle you weren't all killed."

"Mr. Kenrith's head is bleeding," said the Countess. "You had better try to lift him into Lady Ardcliffe's automobile, Mr. Trowbridge, and get him home, where he can be taken charge of by the doctor. Miss Dean could hold his head on her lap, for he oughtn't to be left alone, while you drive; and I can stay here with Lady Hilary till you come back for her. She doesn't seem to be hurt at all."

To Elspeth's surprise, Trowbridge laughed, a singularly hateful laugh. "Oh, you are very kind," he said, "very unselfish, but I will not trouble you, thanks. Miss Dean will not leave Lady Hilary."

As he spoke Elspeth saw his eyes and those of the Countess meet with a look of defiance and understanding.

"I hope," said the Countess with deadly politeness, "that you will not repeat your decision." Her voice and her eyes were like steel. For the moment, she was no longer beautiful, but hideous, though she had evidently remembered Elspeth's presence, and was striving for self-control.

"She has some plan," was the thought that flashed through the girl's head, "some plan by which she means to make him repent."

Trowbridge, however, no longer looked at the Countess. He bent down and lifted Kenrith's shoulders from the ground, exerting so much strength in the effort to raise the unconscious man that the clasp of the strange bracelet Elspeth had once before noted on his wrist, snapped open as his sleeve was pushed back, exposing the arm.

CHAPTER IX.

Before Trowbridge was aware of the thing that had happened, the bracelet had fallen from his arm to the ground, which it struck with a delicate metallic sound, then rolled away into the bracken by the roadside. Elspeth saw him start, but his eyes did not follow the bracelet. They darted to the exposed wrist, and what they must have seen there hers saw at the same time.

The band of white kid, resembling the top of a long glove from which the hand has been cut off, or another like it, still covered the arm tightly and smoothly, but the heavy band of gold which had masked the end above the wristbone had hidden the ragged edge of a curious scar. Elspeth now saw that the flesh was inflamed and that just above the wristbone was a deep red mark.

Instinctively she turned her eyes, that Trowbridge might not be aware of her discovery. She felt that he glanced quickly at her, to see whether his secret—whatever it might be—was at her mercy; but her face betrayed nothing. As he was in the act of lifting Kenrith's shoulders from the ground he could not pull down the cuff and coat sleeve which had been pushed back; but he turned in such a way that, if Elspeth had not already seen the scar, she would be unable to catch sight of it. His change of position must have exposed the scar to the Countess Radepolskoi's gaze, but Trowbridge either did not care, or considered her knowledge of his secret a lesser evil. Half lifting, half dragging Kenrith toward the electric car lent by Lady Ardcliffe, he had almost reached it when the unconscious man showed signs of coming to himself.

He sighed, opened his eyes, and met those of Elspeth, who had risen and was watching him anxiously. Instantly he seemed to have remembered all that had happened, for looking straight at her, he said, "Thank Heaven, you're safe! And Lady Hilary——"

"Doesn't seem to be much hurt, though she has fainted," Trowbridge answered before Elspeth could speak. "Don't worry. We hope you are going to be all right, too. Better not try and help yourself, for fear you may have a bone broken, or a sprain somewhere. I'll lift you into this car——"

"There's nothing the matter with me. Give me a hand and I'll get to my feet," said Kenrith. "No"—as he staggered up supported by Trowbridge. "I'm all right. No bone broken evidently." He passed his hand over his forehead, where a few drops of blood trickled down over his eyes, "Just a cut on the head. It's nothing at all. You're sure you're not hurt, Miss Dean, or Lady Hilary"——

"She was up and bending over you when we came," said the Countess, somewhat sharply. "It was only when she saw us that she fainted. There, she's coming to herself now. One might almost fancy she heard us speaking about her."

There was nothing actually offensive in the words, yet they gave the impression that Lady Hilary had feigned unconsciousness to draw attention to herself, or for some other reason. Elspeth felt an impulse of anger, and would have defended the girl, but it was scarcely a moment for argument. Besides, the color was coming back to Lady Hilary's face, and the long dark lashes were quivering. A moment later she was looking up into Kenrith's anxious eyes.

"I—I—how stupid of me!" she murmured, trying to sit up, and sinking back on the shoulder of Elspeth, who had bent down again to help her. "I'm not a bit hurt, only jarred, I think. At first I was up, looking for Miss Dean, and trying to find out if Mr. Kenrith was alive; but then, suddenly, my heart seemed to stop beating. I suppose it must have been the shock and then the reaction. When did you come Countess—and Mr. Trowbridge?"

"I thought you saw us arrive in Lady Ardcliffe's electric car," said the Countess, with an odd emphasis. "You appeared to before you—fainted."

"No, I didn't see you—consciously," Hilary replied.

"I called after you all, as you drove past me in the avenue," Trowbridge repeated. "I saw one of the driving wheels was out of shape, and followed as quickly as I could, with Lady Ardcliffe's car, in which the Countess was just going out with her. She thought that she might be needed to give some assistance; but fortunately you are all able to help yourselves. Even your car has apparently escaped any very serious damage, Mr. Kenrith; and now, if you feel up to the effort, I can get you all back to the hotel."

Involuntarily Elspeth glanced at the place where the bracelet had fallen, and where the heavy band of gold had been visible at the side of the road, its pearls and turquoises gleaming out among the grass. Would he leave it lying there? she wondered. But already it was gone.

It could not have been he who had reclaimed it, for he had not once moved away or stooped down since Kenrith had recovered consciousness. But for a moment or two Elspeth had lost sight of the Countess Radepolskoi's movements, and now she quickly decided that while she had not been looking, the Countess must have picked up the bracelet.

"Will she keep it, or give it back to him?"—Elspeth asked herself curiously, as she stood aside while Trowbridge helped Lady Hilary into the car. It was then the Countess's turn to take her seat, and Trowbridge's assistance was given to her also, notwithstanding the bitter words, and defiant looks which had passed between them a short time ago. "Now, Miss Dean," said Trowbridge, when the Countess was seated beside Lady Hilary in the large tonneau. But he did not come forward to help her. He let Kenrith give her a hand, as she mounted the step, turning his back for a second or two. Then, with Kenrith was also in the tonneau, Trowbridge closed the door; and Elspeth had a fleeting glimpse of gold and turquoise under his cuff as he did so.

"She has given it to him—quite quietly and stealthy," the girl thought. "Then she must have known all along why he wears it; there could have been no secret about it for her, or she would have said something. Now I'm certain that there's an understanding of some sort between them. She's furious with the man, on account of Lady Hilary. He knows that, but he's defying her; and for some reason or other she dared not fail him when he needed her help, in spite of all."

Elspeth felt that she was surrounded by an atmosphere of mystery. Something very strange was going on around her—something so intricate, so many-sided, that she could as yet lay her hand on no clew to the puzzle, though she could dimly see her way toward more than one, as, half bewildered, wholly frightened, she groped in darkness toward the light.

There was a great sensation at the Lochrain Castle Hydro, when it was known that there had been an accident to Mr. Kenrith's magnificent automobile.

Fortunately for the victims of the disaster, there were few people about when they arrived at the hotel in Lady Ardcliffe's electric car. Dusty and disordered, they were able to escape to their own quarters without being seen by more than three or four persons; but the story of the accident spread through the house like wildfire. Groups assembled in the great hall to talk it over. Those who could say that they had seen the electric car come home suddenly found themselves extraordinarily popular with all their acquaintances, and were besieged for details. How had Lady Hilary looked? Was it true that Mr. Kenrith's head was terribly cut? And had they really had that pretty little typewriter person in the car with them?

The Countess Radepolskoi kept her room, and Mr. Trowbridge also hid himself, therefore Lady Ardcliffe was overwhelmed with callers in her private sitting room. It was her car which had gone to the rescue, therefore it was thought that she must have more information to impart than any one else.

On the contrary, however, she had very little. All she knew with certainty was that she had been on the point of taking Countess Radepolskoi out for a spin in her car, when Mr. Trowbridge had rushed up to ask if he might borrow it in a great hurry. He had said something was wrong with Mr. Kenrith's car, and he wanted to follow it. As he knew how to drive, he had preferred not to take the chauffeur, but the Countess had insisted on going. As for herself, she had been so upset by the fear of some terrible accident that she had been obliged to come back to her room and lie down, with her maid to fan her constantly, and hold her smelling salts, or she should certainly have fainted. Neither the Countess nor Mr. Trowbridge had visited her since bringing the others home, though she had expected them to do so, and she had now sent for Miss Dean to tell her everything exactly as it had happened. The young person, it seemed, was slightly shaken and bruised by her fall from the car, and was changing her dusty things. She might not be well enough to act as secretary for a day or two, as she had wrenched her arm, but she would be able to come to Lady Ardcliffe's room and tell the story of the accident.

As a matter of fact, poor Elspeth's experience after reaching home was scarcely conducive to the restoration of shattered nerves. Pitying Lady Hilary's weakness, she had gone with the girl to her room, as poverty compelled Lady Lambart and her daughter to travel without a maid, and Hilary, utterly broken and inclined to be hysterical, was in need of help.

"I'll stay with you, dear Lady Hilary, till the doctor comes, unless Lady Lambart has returned from the walk you say she'd gone out to take," said Elspeth.

"I don't want a doctor. I'm perfectly well," replied Hilary. "I'm only rather shattered. I can't help trembling, but I'll lie down and be perfectly fit again by dinner time."

"You must let me help you undress," pleaded Elspeth.

"You need help yourself," Hilary said. "You are as pale as marble."

But Elspeth only laughed and insisted that she had not even a headache. She made Lady Hilary sit down, quietly removed her hat, which was crushed into shapelessness, and began to open her dress. She had unfastened several buttons, when something tied up in a little lace handkerchief dropped from Lady Hilary's bodice and fell to the floor.

Elspeth would have stooped to pick it up, but with a low cry and a burning blush, Hilary slipped from the chair to her knees, grovelled for a few seconds searching for the thing she had lost and, having reclaimed it, grasped the knotted handkerchief tightly in her hand, as if determined that Elspeth should have no chance to guess at its contents.

The other had no wish to pry into Lady Hilary's secrets and was conscious of no curiosity; but she could not help thinking that the thing tied up in the lace handkerchief had looked like a piece of jewellery—or perhaps more than one. The cambric was so delicate that a glint as of gold had shone through; but Elspeth did not even wish to know what Lady Hilary desired to hide, or why there should be a necessity for hiding it.

Neither of the girls spoke of the little incident, and Elspeth continued to help Lady Hilary. She had taken off the dress, which was torn as well as dusty, and put her beautiful friend into a dressing gown, when Lady Lambart came hurriedly into the room.

Elspeth had just stepped to a wardrobe, which was in an alcove, and though she heard the door flung hastily open the new comer could not see her.

"Hilary!" exclaimed Lady Lambart, who entered with an open letter in her hand, "the end has come unless you will consent to marry that man. To-morrow some awful person is coming to serve a summons upon me, and"——

"Hush, mother, we're not alone," said the girl in a distressed voice. "There's been an accident. I'm not hurt, but a little upset, and Miss Dean, who went out with Mr. Kenrith and me for a spin in his car, has very kindly offered to help me to get rid of my dusty things."

At this Elspeth moved forward, put down the slippers she had just brought for Lady Hilary, and walked to the door. "I'll leave you now," she said. "I think I've done everything I can do."

With a slight bow acknowledging Lady Lambart's presence, she would have gone quietly out, but the elder woman stopped her.

MAY BE THREE TEAMS IN CITY

Lady Basketballers Taking Interest in Game This Season

The basketball team of the Peterborough Collegiate Institute made application for the use of the Y.W.C.A. gymnasium and this was granted them yesterday. Another team of young ladies in the city have also been granted the use of the gymnasium. The Y.W.C.A. is not represented by any team although quite an interest is taken in the game by the pupils of the gymnasium class and they hold practices. There is some talk of forming a team, however.

Its regular use soon shows surprisingly satisfactory results and there is not one drop of injurious matter in its composition.

RUGBYISTS MEET AND MAKE PREPARATIONS IN GOOD TIME

Annual Meeting of Peterborough Rugby Club Last Night at the Y.M.C.A.—The Election of Officers for Next Year Took Place—Useful Discussions.

In order that things might be on a good basis when the season opens next year the annual meeting of the Peterborough Rugby Club was held last night and election of officers and the appointment of committees took place at the meeting. The place of meeting was the Y.M.C.A. and twenty-five were in attendance. The gathering was a most enthusiastic one and heartily entered into the discussion of various matters brought up. The advisability of holding the meeting at the close of the season was unanimously endorsed and with the important work disposed of that was settled last night and a good working organization effected, there is no doubt that full preparations will have been made when the season opens next year.

The president, Mr. R. F. McWilliams, occupied the chair and opened the meeting with a few remarks, expressing his approval of holding the meeting in good season and also referred to the different matters before the meeting for discussion. Mr. McWilliams spoke of the necessity of having a clearly defined constitution to go by, such as the club had in the days when the older heads were playing.

Dr. MacPherson, who has always done much for the active promotion of the game in Peterborough, spoke next and outlined the system as employed by Varsity in having the different college teams under the control of a main executive and stated that in his opinion this would be practical here in looking after a senior team and a city league. This would have a unifying effect. Dr. McPherson offered many valuable suggestions which came in for the consideration of the meeting. His idea regarding the control of the team was seconded by those who followed him. Others who spoke were Messrs. Kenner, Hurtubise, O'Connor, Dennoard, Sisson, McDonald and Turner. They approved of having the senior and city teams under one main managing committee.

THE OFFICERS.

The election of officers resulted;

Patrons and Patronesses—Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Patterson, Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Morrow, Mr. and Mrs. B. Morrow, Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Stratton.

Hon. Pres.—H. R. H. Kenner.
Pres.—Duncan Walker.
1st Vice-Pres.—R. F. McWilliams.
2nd Vice—C. E. Sisson.
Secretary-Treas—F. D. Craig.
Official Coach—Dr. MacPherson.

Dr. MacPherson was chosen manager but had to decline the office on account of other duties.

The secretary is privileged to choose his assistant. It was decided to leave the election of manager of captain over until next fall. The executive will be composed of the president and secretary and a representative from each club in the city league.

A committee of three was appointed to look after affairs of the club, in conjunction with the other officers between now and next fall. It is composed of Messrs. Claude Rogers, Geo. Armstrong and Geo. Lundy. The executive was empowered to resurrect the old constitution or frame a new one as conditions called for.

The Lindsay club came in for congratulations for making such a fine showing for the first season in the game and the junior O. R. F. U. trophy and the secretary was instructed to forward a letter of congratulation on behalf of the local club.

The rugby team representing Peterborough was not given the generous public support it deserved, but nevertheless it is pleasing to note that there is no deficit this year. The players deserve much praise for the splendid way in which they turned out in view of the slight encouragement given them. With the club organized so early and the committees at work and with so much enthusiasm displayed, the prospects appear bright for next year.

TURF CLUB DOESN'T WANT TO CONFLICT WITH LINDSAY

The Lindsay Post says:

Printed notices have been issued, announcing the winter meet of the Peterborough Turf Club, on the same date as the Lindsay racing association had picked on and made public. Why Peterborough horsemen should do such an unsportsmanlike action is hard to understand. However, the local association will stick to their dates.

Mr E. W. Jones, secretary of the local turf club told the Review today that the dates of the Lindsay association were unknown to them until he saw them the other day in the Canadian Sportsman. The Peterborough horsemen have had their meet arranged for some time and had their literature in circulation a considerable time ago. Although the races of the Peterborough club will be held on the 12th and 13th it is not the intention of the local body to conflict with Lindsay in the matter of dates and it is no more unsportsmanlike than the one in the neighboring town The Post is consequently somewhat hasty and ill-advised in making its remarks.

THE FORMATION OF GENERAL ATHLETIC ASS'N CONSIDERED

The proposal to form an amateur athletic body to govern all branches of sport in the city was brought up at the annual meeting of the rugby club last night and was almost unanimously approved of by those in attendance at the meeting.

However the meeting was of the opinion that nothing could be done in the matter yet but expressed a willingness to extend a practical aid in the formation of the association, should the time arrive when it should be felt most desirable in the interests of local sports form one. Before this could be accomplished however a general meeting would have to be called at which the hockey, baseball, lacrosse and other interests could be represented and the views of the representatives of these games could be known.

MEETING OF JUNIOR CITY LEAGUE TO-MORROW NIGHT

All teams intending to enter the Junior City Hockey League are reminded of the necessity of sending representatives to the meeting tomorrow night at 7.30 in the Y.M.C.A. All fees must be paid into the treasurer at this meeting.

Five teams are expected to enter the league viz., The Chieftains, Y.M.C.A., Otonabee A.C., George street and All Saints'. Any others who wish to become connected with the league are requested to have representatives present.

The matter of securing the rink for playing games and other business will be considered. A full attendance is looked for.

RUNNING

The Toronto Star says;—Tom Longboat has not raced since the event in Fall River, owing to indisposition. He has two on for next Saturday, afternoon and night at Philadelphia; he then rests and trains till Dec. 15, when he goes against Dorando Pietri at Madison Square, the Marathon distance. Manager Flanagan reported that the contract between the Indian and the Italian was signed on Saturday. Alfred Shrubb was here on Saturday and agreed to meet Longboat on Flanagan's own terms, first race 20 miles, second 10 miles, and third 15 miles. No dates were settled, however. There will be a side bet of $1000 on each race.

According to Shrubb who is in town at present, the Star is in the wrong in this matter. For the Englishman says nothing has been decided upon. He says he is willing to deposit $1000 forfeit that he will meet Longboat at the 20 mile distance, provided the Indian takes him on at his.

SPORTING COMMENT

The following high sounding note appeared on the sporting page of the Lindsay Post:

Here's to those who, throughout the rugby season, came out and with a willing hand, cheered the boys on to victory until they stand as champions without a defeat.

As a matter of fact not one player has yet signed an Eastern Canada league contract.

Shamrocks, it is rumored, are negotiating with Wanderers for the release of Jimmie Gardner.

BASKETBALL

The Toronto Star says:

The Central senior basketball team defeated Peterborough YMCA. team at Peterborough on Saturday after a good game, by a score of 48-14. This trip is always looked forward to by the Toronto boys, as in previous years they have been treated royally by the Quakers.

"Ches" Tompkins who had not yet recovered from the injury received in the Hamilton game of a week ago, went along as a spectator.

Miller played centre in his place, the rest of the team being intact.

Peterborough has a good fast team who are improving all the time and on their showing Saturday will likely make some of the best of them hustle to win. Their forwards found it pretty difficult to score on Centrals strong defence, but at that they got away often enough to make things exceedingly interesting.

The visitors were entertained at a banquet after the game.

J. J. M. MacLeod, physical director of the Central YMCA, who was in Peterborough with the team, interviewed the YMCA officials there regarding the placing of a team in the proposed interprovincial league. They were enthusiastic over the idea, and promise that if they enter a team, it will be fast enough to make them all hurry.

This league, when all arrangements are completed should provide some very fast ball with Hamilton senior team, Brantford, London, Central and West End YMCA, and possibly Peterborough in the western series.

A local lady has suggested to the Review that a game be arranged to be played here between the ladies' team of Brookville and one composed of Peterborough players. Enquiries concerning the probability of such a game being arranged were made this morning but no arrangement, it is understood, can be made at present. Shrubb will

Len Stanley, the Montreal pitcher drafted by Cleveland is spending the winter acting as manager for welterweight wrestlers.

Apparently there is no more to be heard as to why Fred Taylor and Fred Lake were banished from the Pittsburg league.

Cliffsides started their training last Friday. A large number of the players were out and it was certainly a good beginning.

Dennis Daly Charged With Being a Vagrant---Remanded a Week

Dennis Daly was charged with being a vagrant at the police court this morning. City Clerk Armstrong presided in the absence of Magistrate Dumble. He pleaded not guilty and was remanded for a week.

"You are charged with having no visible means of support," said His Worship to the prisoner.

"I have been staying with Mr. Croft," he answered, "working for him in the ginger beer business."

Chief Rozel said that Daly had no money. Mr. Croft told him that he had been sleeping in the barn and that he was afraid that when the weather became colder he would freeze to death. He had his doubts about Mr. Croft owing him any money. It is about two weeks since Mr. Croft first complained. Daly was arrested in front of the City Hotel last night.

"I have been sleeping in the barn," said Daly, "and have been sleeping there since the 8th of August. There was no room in the house. I have been a long time in town and never did anything wrong in my life."

FINED FOR BEING DRUNK.

Matthew Wright was fined two dollars for being drunk and disorderly at the C.P.R. station last night. He is not a resident of this city.

YOUNG PEOPLE'S SOCIAL EVENING

Y.P.S.C.E. of St. Andrew's Church Had Enjoyable Time Last Night

St Andrew's Day was duly commemorated by the young people of St Andrew's church last evening. The affair was given by the social and literary committee of the Young People's Society and it was thoroughly interesting and enjoyable.

The chair was taken by the pastor, Rev J. G. Potter, who conducted the opening devotional exercises.

A spelling match was the first item on the evening's programme, Mr. Cornish of the Normal School having charge of it. Another entertaining feature was a social trip from Peterborough. At North Bay the excursion was stopped for refreshments and then the journey was continued to the Western metropolis. Upon arrival there the passengers were informed that the treasury had become exhausted and that they would have to walk home. Consequently "Auld Lang Syne" was sung and a very pleasant evening was brought to a close.

During the evening a number of vocal and instrumental solos were given.

LUMBER JACKS REPORTED SCARCE

Employment Agents Report Difficulty in Getting Good Ones

Employment agencies this year have experienced the greatest difficulty in obtaining really good men for the lumber camps. With the great amount of unemployed labor at present one would have expected that the opposite would be the case, and that employers would merely have to pick the best men and pay them whatever wages they chose. But the good men seem to be scarcer than ever. Inexperienced men have been employed at low wages and in almost every case they have proved themselves an expensive form of labor. Good men are easily worth two or three times the price of others. The advantage in actual work may not be very apparent but the results show a great benefit from the employment of experienced men at higher wages. The only men who are really worth their pay to-day are native Canadians and Swedes. They can be depended upon to earn their wages well. Employers who wish to obtain good men and to keep down expenses will be quick to recognize this. But they have been brought so suddenly face to face with the problem of scarce labor that they have been compelled to accept whatever offered. Wages today however, are not what they were a year ago and it looks as if employers will have to offer better wages, watch more carefully for good men and take the utmost care that they receive the best treatment during employment. Unless such a course is taken it will not be long before the good old camp days are gone when a lumberjack took a pride in his work and the camps will be managed by foreigners who have no interest in their work and never become expert.—Canadian Lumberman.

OFFICIALS PAY VISIT TO THE LOCAL ASSOCIATION

Of Master Painters and Decorators' Association—What the Official Organ of the Craft Says of the Meeting Here—Local Speakers' Opinion.

The November number of the Canadian Painter and Decorator contains a lengthy and comprehensive report of the visit here on Nov. 3rd to the Master Painters and Decorators Association of Peterborough by Mr. Stewart N. Hughes, ex-president of the International Association, and Mr. Jas. O'Hearn. Space will not permit the publication of the report in full, but it is in part as follows:—

FRATERNAL VISIT TO PETERBOROUGH.

The newly organized Master Painters and Decorators' Association received a fraternal call on the evening of November 3rd from Mr. Stewart N. Hughes, ex-president of the International Association of the United States and Canada, and Mr. James J. O'Hearn, chairman of the Committee on Furtherance of Organization of the Canadian Association. The visiting friends were met at the station by President Cook, and other members of the Peterborough Association, and escorted to their hall Simcoe street.

President Cook occupied the chair and after briefly expressing the pleasure it afforded him on behalf of the Peterborough Association to welcome their friends from Toronto, called upon Senator O'Hearn as the first speaker.

Senator O'Hearn congratulated the master painters and decorators of Peterborough on having formed an association and said it was a pleasure for him to meet President Cook, who was an old friend. He was pleased to be present, although he had to leave other important engagements in order to do so. He was always willing to do what he could in order to benefit his fellow craftsmen.

In concluding an excellent and inspiring address the Senator spoke of the great educational factor of conventions and expressed the hope that Peterborough would be well represented at the Canadian convention next summer.

Mr. Stewart N. Hughes, of Toronto, ex-president of the Master House Painters and Decorators' Association of the United States and Canada, was next called upon.

Mr. H. G. Hawkins, of the Canadian Painter and Decorator, assured those present that the aim of the official organ was to elevate the standard of the painting and decorating trade.

Mr. W. Edwards, seconded by Mr. J. P. Shevlin, moved a hearty vote of thanks to the Toronto friends for the able and inspiring addresses which they had delivered. The motion was carried amidst applause.

A number of Peterborough friends spoke of the difficulties which confront them, but they were all quite sanguine that the association would aid very much in bringing about better conditions of affairs in the painting trade.

President Cook said he was delighted with the meeting of that evening and was quite sure that the local association would reap great benefit from the fraternal visit of the Toronto friends.

Mr. W. Edwards said the facts presented by the visiting brethren had been a revelation to him, and although they may not have the same advantages as those which obtain in the larger cities, yet he was convinced that the association would have a most beneficial effect upon local conditions.

Mr. Shevlin said that the local painters were at the mercy of the general contractors. He could not see why a carpenter should be asked to look after the painting. Painters are almost forced to be dishonest in order to come within the figures forced upon them. A job that is worth $150 could not be done for $100, and yet they were expected to do it. The painter's profits have not increased in ratio to the increased cost of living. Mr. Shevlin spoke of other difficulties with which they had to grapple, and he was a firm believer that if the members of the association put their foot down on the present methods of doing business that a much better state of affairs would speedily be brought about.

Mr. G. H. Duncan expressed his delight at being present, and regretted that there was not a larger attendance. He would do all in his power to make the association a success.

Mr. J. N. Watson was of opinion that if each member put his shoulder to the wheel the association would be a success. He was delighted with the addresses to which he had listened, and was quite sure they would inspire those present to give their best efforts to the upbuilding of a strong association.

After a pleasant half hour spent in social chat over general trade conditions, the meeting adjourned.

TRAVELLER'S VALUABLE FIND

Travelling on the ICR. Mr. Harry Towers, St Paul, Street, St John N.B. found a box of Zam-Buk, the great skin healer. He was suffering from badly chapped hands at the time so applied the balm. He says; "Zam-Buk eased the pain and smarting, healed the cracks, and made my hands quite smooth. Finding it so good, I kept a supply handy, and have since proved it a really wonderful healer. It cures, cuts, sores, or burns equally well, and I would not like now to be without a supply."

Mr. Towers is only one of thousands who are glad they heard of Zam-Buk. There is no skin disease it will not relieve and cure. Its fame is spreading everywhere, and it is now regarded as Nature's great "first aid," in workshops, on the farm, or in the home. No traveller should be without it. Every home should have its box always ready for use. A little Zam-Buk, rubbed regularly on the hands and face before retiring each night will keep the skin soft and free from chaps cold sores, or disease.

If you have a cut, a bruise, or some irritating skin disease, which has defied all ordinary remedies apply Zam-Buk. It first cleanses a wound by killing off all harmful bacteria. Then it builds up new tissue cell by cell—just as a bricklayer lays row after row of bricks. Then it covers the wound with new healthy skin, and the cure is effected.

Zam-Buk is also a cure for piles. It gives speedy relief and ends the throbbing, burning pains. Skin diseases, such as eczema, itch, ulcers barber's rash, rashes due to blood-poison, etc., cannot resist its powerful healing virtues. Purely vegetable, it is an ideal combination of power and purity. 50c. a box of all druggists and stores, or post free from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price. Reject cheap, harmful and dangerous substitutes.

ABOUT SHOPPING FOR CHRISTMAS

There are only three Saturdays now before Christmas. The Christmas buying has already begun. But many people who might just as well buy now seem to have no thought of beginning. The merchants are all ready with their Christmas goods. Early buying means best choice for the customer. And every early purchase means so much less strain upon the merchants and their helpers in the last days before Christmas. Old and young alike should make a point of getting their Christmas buying over as soon as possible.

COUNTRY LIFE VS. THE CITY LIFE

Subject of Debate at Knox Church Last Evening

The Young People of Knox church held a literary meeting last evening. A large number were in attendance, and a very profitable evening was spent. The chair was occupied by Mr. Kenneth Denoon, who conducted the opening devotional exercises.

The subject of the debate, which was the principal feature of the evening's programme was, "What advantages has the City Life over the Country Life?" Messrs. Maybee, McCannan and Stewert spoke for the city while Messrs. Hall, Menzies an Patton upheld the country. It was the unanimous opinion that country life was the better.

The Mandolin Club rendered several selections, which were much enjoyed. On Monday, December 7th, Miss E. Warner will speak on the subject, "Commending our Religion by Consistent Living."

CROUP QUICKLY CURED

Don't Let the Child Choke to Death While Waiting For the Doctor.

Hyomei, the miraculous, antiseptic dry air treatment, will cure croup in either the first or second stages. Easily inhaled, even when the breathing is irregular, it reaches more promptly than any other remedy the terribly inflamed membrane of the windpipe. Its soothing balsams act immediately, the inflammation is allayed and the swelling reduced.

George H. King, of 22 Willington South Woodstock, says: "We would not think of keeping house without Hyomei. It has warded off colds, croup coughs and sore throats for all of our three children many and many a time. When a child breathes badly and through the mouth and the glands around the eyes and nose commence to swell, then is the time that we find the Hyomei quickly relieves the trouble and gets the bronchial tubes, lungs and throat cleared up."

Hyomei (pronounced High-o-me) is guaranteed by Wm. Madill, druggist, Peterborough, to cure catarrh, colds, coughs, asthma, bronchitis and croup, or money back. A complete outfit, including a neat hard rubber pocket inhaler, costs only $1.00 An extra bottle of Hyomei, if afterwards needed, costs but 50 cents.

McILROY'S WINNERS

Beat Belmonts at P. B. C. Alleys Last Night in Tournament Games.

McIlroy's Pacifics were victors in last night's great ten pin struggle at the PBC. alleys, winning two of three games from the Belmonts after one of the most stubborn battles ever witnessed on Peterborough or any other alleys. The game was won in the last minute of play and was decided by the goddess of luck, who obtruded herself at the final minute and handed the game over to McIlroy when victory was in the grasp of his opponents and it looked as it it was only a question of how many pins the Belmonts would win by.

The Belmonts had lost the first game, but bowled better together in the second and won easily. In the third it was nip and tuck, all the way, but on the last frame Belmonts had the game cinched apparently and the Pacifics conceded the victory to their opponents.

Wareham was the last man up and was rolling on a strike on his final frame. He cleaned up six pins with his first ball and left up a hard four pin spare. Being told on all sides that he needed the spare to win, Bill went after it, but got only the outside pin.

Had he been aware of the fact that he required only three pins it would have been an easy matter to tear into the cluster for the necessary number, but unfortunately the people on the side lines had informed him wrong, and he fell trying to follow out their advice.

The result was that the Belmonts lost by two pins and while everybody present was amazed at the outcome of the game, the Pacifics being about the most surprised people on the alleys.

However, the Belmonts took the reverse in their characteristic sportsmanlike way and hoped for a more even break of luck next time.

Tonight's league fixture will be between the Examiner and Lang's team. Rolly Glover will be on the Exam. line-up and he should greatly strengthen the team, while Lang will have Hemstead and Hoolihan.

Last night's scores follow;

McILROY.

HOCKEY

PHILIPS OUT.

Ottawa, Nov. 3— The first direct word received from Tom Phillips by the Ottawa Hockey Club this season reached the city this morning in the shape of a letter in which the famous player announces he is through with the game for keeps. Reading between the lines, however, one would infer Phillips would like one more season of hockey and the Ottawa club will consequently renew its efforts to bring the Kenora star to the Capital for the winter.

INQUEST OPENED INTO THE DEATH OF ROLAND AYOTTE AT YOUNG'S POINT TUESDAY

Suspicion That He Did Not Meet Death Accidentally—Jury Empanelled and Remains Viewed—Drs. Young and Boucher Will Perform Postmortem.

There is suspicion that Roland Ayotte, the 10-year-old boy who met his death in Harvey township on the afternoon of Thursday, Nov. 12th, was not killed accidentally, as was reported at the time. It was said he shot himself accidentally, but the boy's mother and his uncle, Mr. Ayotte, are of the opinion that his death resulted from different causes than those stated, and Coroner Gray, after careful investigation by himself and High County Constable Cochrane, decided that it was necessary to hold an inquest. The inquest was opened yesterday at the Lakeview Hotel, Young's Point. A jury was empanelled and went to the Young's Point Catholic Cemetery to view the remains of the boy, the burial taking place on Saturday, Nov. 14th, two days after the death. The evidence of Dr. Young, who made an examination of the body, was heard, and he decided it was necessary to make a post-mortem examination before he could report satisfactorily. He will be assisted in this by Dr. Boucher. The remains when viewed by the jury, were in a decomposed state. The post-mortem examination will be made on Thursday, and Coroner Gray has issued an order for burial after the post-mortem has been held.

ALLEGED CAUSE OF DEATH.

The death of Roland Ayotte is a mysterious one, inasmuch as the rifle with which he is supposed to have shot himself, could not be found after the accident.

He was out with Tommy Gordon, 12 years of age, at the time he was killed. Young Gordon says he was carrying the rifle and stopped to tie his shoe, giving the gun to Ayotte to hold while he did so. He claims the gun was accidentally discharged. He then ran to the home of Mr. Wea-

POLICE CHIEF IS GAOLED BIG SENSATION AT SIMCOE

A. W. Malone of Simcoe, Charged With Trying to Kill Constable—As Result of Affray in Which Night Officer William Wilkins Received Four Bullet Wounds and is in Critical Condition.

Simcoe, Ont., Dec. 2.—Charged with attempting to murder Night Constable William Wilkins, who is lying dangerously wounded in Lynwood Sanitarium, Chief Constable A. W. Malone was arrested early yesterday morning, and is confined in the jail here.

Wilkins' left eyeball was pieced by a bullet, while three other bullets were fired into his back.

At 9 o'clock last night Dr. Stanton and a specialist from Hamilton made a search for the bullets, without result. They could not locate the bullet which entered the eye anywhere near the brain, and it appears that it must have taken a downward course and is located somewhere near his cheek bone.

They were also unsuccessful in their search for the bullets in the back. Wilkins is resting as easy as can be expected since the operations and further treatment will be decided on today.

Chief Malone has engaged W. E. Kelly of the law firm of Kelly & Porter, to look after his interests. He stoutly denies any knowledge of the shooting and is in a gloomy mood in his cell, declining to hold any conversation. His summary hearing will likely be postponed until further developments take place.

Malone was arrested on the statement of the wounded man that the chief constable was his assailant. The motive is not clearly known, but it is thought that Malone may have been apprehensive that Wilkins would make disclosures regarding his conduct. When taken into custody Malone had two revolvers and a flask of whisky in his possession.

The shooting occurred in a lonely spot in Lynwood Park, about 12.45 a.m. Several young men who had spent a social evening were passing near the park at this hour and heard revolver shots. Running in the direction of the reports, they were guided by hearing groans and found the night constable lying on the steps of Dr. Bowlby's residence, too weak to drag himself any further. Wilkins' face and clothing were wet with blood.

Dr. Bowlby being away, Dr. Stanton was summoned, and the latter had him removed to the sanitarium. On the way Wilkins said that Malone, while drunk, had shot him. At the sanitarium, it was found that one bullet had entered above his left eye, and three were lodged in his back. The assailant must have stood within a yard of his victim, as the powder from the revolver scorched Wilkins' face and the back of his coat was burned. Five shots were fired, the first taking effect over the eye and the second going wide, while the three following were evidently fired after Wilkins fell. He was too weak to permit of probing for the bullets.

A number of townsfolk were aroused and several hastened to Malone's house and pounded on the door, but there was no response. A telephone call was more successful, Malone being told that a negro had shot Wilkins, and that he (Malone) was wanted to assist in the capture. He was met on the street by Constable McQueen and taken to the sanitarium, where he was placed under arrset. On a brace of loaded revolvers and whisky being found, he was taken to the county jail.

It was learned later from Wilkins that Malone had made an appointment to meet him in the park about one o'clock in the morning.

A bullet was taken out of the wall and is apparently the second fired. There are houses within a few yards. Gas lights are usually kept burning in the park, but they were turned off Monday. Lynwood Park is a couple of hundred yards north of the business portion of the town. The River Lynn flows along the edge of the park.

No further light has been thrown on the motive, but it is understood that Wilkins made a statement concerning the shooting yesterday morning. Malone persisted in saying that he did not know why he was arrested.

Chief Malone was employed for some time as a police officer on the London, England, force, and served during the South African war. His home is in Strathroy, and he has been in Simcoe only about a year. He is Irish by birth and has a wife and family of four children.

Little is known of the past history of Wilkins, who is an Englishman, with wife and family of small children. He has been in Simcoe only a short time.

The scene of the tragedy has been visited by streams of people all day long and all the talk of the town is of the shooting. The date of his hearing depends upon Wilkins' condition.

MARATHON LODGE "AT HOME" TO GATHERING OF FRIENDS LAST NIGHT

Smoker Was Most Enjoyable Event—Grand Lodge Officers Present—An Excellent Programme Was Given—Many in Attendance.

Marathon Lodge, Knights of Pythias, scored a distinct success last night in connection with their smoker held in their hall on Simcoe street.

MR. M. BLEWETT

Past Chancellor of Marathon Lodge, Knights of Pythias and One of its Most Active Workers.

The attendance was large, the programme excellent and as one man put it, "he had the best of a good time." The arrangements for the function were excellent and everything passed off in the most harmonious manner. There was a plentiful supply of pipes and tobacco and good cigars were passed around frequently.

A primary reason for holding the smoker was to have the hall dedicated by a number of the grand officers of the Knights of Pythias, but owing to a belated train service the visitors did not arrive in Peterborough until 9.30 o'clock and consequently there was not enough time to have the dedication ceremony, which is said to be of a very interesting nature, and is open to the public.

In their hall on Simcoe street, Marathon Lodge has one of the best fraternal gathering places in this part of the province. It is large, but cosy and the decorations are most artistic. The walls are finished in red of a very pretty shade and numerous pictures add to the general appearance.

The gentlemen's coats and hats were checked in an ante-room last night and the arrangement, which prevented inconvenience and confusion was greatly appreciated.

The programme was splendid. His Worship Mayor Rush, occupied the chair and made a neat opening address in which he welcomed the Grand Lodge officers to Peterborough. The National Anthem was then sung."

After a brilliant piano solo by Mr. Nichol, Mr. F. C. Freeland sang "Big Ben" and his excellent bass voice was heard to advantage. For an encore he sang "Old Black Joe," with quartette accompaniment for the chorus,

GIFTS WERE FREQUENT SAYS MARINE INQUIRY WITNESS

He Tells of Gratuities Received—First Engineer of the Lady Minto Received Many Valuable Presents.

Halifax, Dec. 2.—The third session of the Marine enquiry opened yesterday morning. The usual crowd of spectators and witnesses filled the court room long before the opening hour.

W. S. Davidson of the Halifax Salvage Co. was on the stand most of the morning. He said the company had paid Captain Johnson, formerly of the steamer Lady Laurier, $400 in connection with the floating and salving of the steamer Mount Temple last spring. Payment to Johnson was in the nature of a gratuity. The Government steamer Lady Laurier had rendered valuable services to the company in connection with the Mount Temple job, but only such as would be expected from a Government vessel under the circumstances, and the firm would have resisted any charge for such services even if made by the Department.

In answer to Judge Cassels, Davidson admitted the Laurier had, when passing, run into Ironbound to see how the work on the Mount Temple was progressing.

William Merlin, an employe of the dockyard, as general messenger, proved the most difficult witness yet examined. His answers were so unsatisfactory at both sessions of the court that he was repeatedly warned by the judge. It is generally believed that Merlin can give sensational evidence in connection with dockyard stores, which are alleged to have been taken away by employes and others. He said that "most everybody around the yard" had the privilege of going into the stores to get small items such as rails, etc. The stores were wide open and all could go in and help themselves to nails and other things.

He handed in a list of seven names of those he had seen taking stores. He had spoken of fifty persons. After being on the stand a short time in the afternoon Merlin was excused and ordered to be ready to-day to answer questions properly.

First Engineer Ferguson of the Government steamer Lady Minto, on the route between Pictou and Charlottetown, was examined. He admitted receiving "presents" from firms doing work for his ship at both places. Those presents ranged from $20 to $50, received at various times. He thought it not wrong to take these presents, as it was the practice, especially on British ships.

Keefe's New Job.

Washington, D.C., Dec. 2.—Daniel J. Keefe of Detroit, Michigan, was yesterday appointed U. S. Commissioner-General of Immigration to succeed the late Frank P. Sergeant. Mr. Keefe is president of the International Longshoremen's Union.

During the recent election campaign it was stated that Keefe had received a "promise" in return for breaking loose from Gompers in the latter's support of Bryan as the candidate of the A.F. of L.

Escape In Night Clothes.

Syracuse, N.Y., Dec. 2.—Shortly after midnight the clubhouse of the Anglers' Association of Onondaga, at South Bay, on Oneida Lake, was burned to the ground. The building and contents were valued at $100,000. The insurance is nearly $40,000. There were 14 persons in the building, including seven women. All made their escape down fire ladders in their night clothes. Officers of the club believe that the fire was of incendiary origin.

Fourteen Million Bushels.

Kingston, Dec. 2.—The season of navigation is practically over. During the time some 14,766,664 bushels of grain were hauled here from western points and transhipped into barges for Montreal. This is but 500,000 bushels less than in 1907, and regarded as a fine record in view of the very dull marine season. Coal received here from New York ports reached 37,833 tons.

Poisons Self and Daughter.

Memphis, Tenn., Dec. 2.—A woman believed to be Mrs. Nicholas Errington of Chicago was found dead, and her seven-year-old daughter dying, from carbolic acid poisoning in a hotel here yesterday. She had an insurance policy in the name of Teresa Errington, Toronto, Canada, jewels worth $500 and $620 in cash.

Woman Mangled by Train.

Moosejaw, Dec. 2.—The outgoing east way-freight made a horrible discovery yesterday morning about three miles from Moosejaw, when the mangled remains of a young woman were found scattered behind the track, the lower portion of the body being found yards away from the track, while the head and trunk had been carried 28 paces from the rest of the body.

Twenty Below In West.

Winnipeg, Dec. 2.—Clear, frosty weather has followed the fierce storm which raged over the west Monday, and the thermometer has suddenly dipped to 20 below. The snowfall was unusually heavy, over an inch having fallen.

Rich Vein of Zinc.

Kingston, Dec. 2.—A rich find of zinc is reported at the Richardson Mine, Long Lake. The vein is 800 feet long and from twelve inches to four feet wide.

Was Editor of Globe.

London, Dec. 2.—John Cameron, postmaster of London, dropped dead at 8.45 last night, in the banqueting room of the Y.M.C.A.

After the death of George Brown, in 1882, Mr. Cameron was editor and general manager of The Globe, a position he retained till 1890. He had been president of the Canadian Press Association, and was an officer of the Lord's Day Alliance.

Will Enter Orillia.

Orillia, Dec. 2.—The Canadian Northern Ontario Railway has filed plans with the clerk for an entrance to the town. The railway will come in at the foot of Mississauga street.

The C.P.R. will also come into the town, running parallel to the C.N.O. Railway.

Both lines are expected to be in operation in the spring.

12 Below In Port Arthur.

Port Arthur, Dec. 2.—The thermometer dropped Monday night to 12 below zero, varying forty degrees in 44 hours.

Heavy wind and snow prevailed on lakes Monday night and boat movements were light. The Turret Court arrived yesterday morning and reports many sheltering in Whitefish Bay.

Postoffice Site Chosen.

Fergus, Dec. 2.—A public meeting of local Liberals was held last night for the purpose of recommending to the Government a site for the proposed postoffice. Four sites were voted upon, the final vote giving the Munro property a majority of six over the Walt property.

No Protest Yet.

Berlin, Dec. 2.—W. M. Reade, K.C., of Waterloo, informed a reporter last night that no protest had been lodged against W. L. M. King, member-elect for North Waterloo.

It had been persistently rumored about town yesterday that a protest had been entered.

Reduction In Kingston.

Kingston, Dec. 2.—The City Council will be asked to submit a license reduction bylaw to the people.

Improving the Rural Delivery.

Washington, Dec. 2.—Touching the heart of the agricultural communities in every state of the union, the annual report of Fourth Assistant Postmaster-General P. V. De Graw recommends rural delivery of packages of eleven pounds maximum at a special postage and the uniforming of rural carriers.

The Stove Exploded.

Port Arthur, Ont., Dec. 2.—Mrs. C. A. Cunliffe narrowly escaped death and her house from destruction yesterday morning by the explosion of the stove, when fire was put in it while the water pipes were frozen. The stove blew into a hundred pieces.

Airships Must Go Higher.

Berlin, Dec. 2.—Experiments have been going on here for some time and have shown that it is almost impossible for derigible balloons to escape from the fire of field pieces and rifles on the ground by going to high altitudes.

It is the opinion of experts that dirigible balloons will have to rely solely upon their own speed to escape the fire of a properly equipped enemy.

Laurier's Choice.

Ottawa, Dec. 2.—It is learned that Sir Wilfrid Laurier will sit in Quebec East, thus involving a bye-election in Ottawa.

Those for the Liberal nomination prominently mentioned are Auguste Lemieux, Emmanuel Tasse and Dr. Chevrier. An Independent-Conservative candidate may take the field, but it is improbable that the Conservative party will undertake to nominate a candidate officially.

Appeal Allowed In Part.

Ottawa, Dec. 2.—In the Supreme Court yesterday morning judgment was rendered in the Copeland-Chatterson v. Business Systems. The appeal is allowed in part, that is, the "loose" tools, 88 in number, delivered by order of the court to appellants, are to be declared the property of the appellants, and be retained by them, but the appeal is otherwise dismissed, each party to pay their own costs. The cross-appeal also is dismissed.

Changes In C.P.R. Montreal Office.

Montreal, Dec. 2.—John Leslie, auditor of disbursements of the C.P.R., has been made assistant controller, F. E. Shrimpton, his assistant, having been advanced to his position.

W. J. Moule is made assistant of disbursements. All are old employes. Paul Earle of Toronto, formerly secretary to G. M. Bosworth, and latterly export agent, has retired to enter into the grain business.

Killed Falling Tree.

Breslau, Dec. 2.—R. Giese was killed while falling a tree on his bush yesterday morning.

With his son Bruno he was chopping a tree, when the high wind caused it to fall in his direction and he was hit on the head.

Lawyer Reinstated.

Calgary, Dec. 2.—At a court en banc yesterday morning Jos. Hicks, a MacLeod lawyer, was reinstated to the Alberta Bar. He said he had made restitution of funds.

The McGillicaddy case is not on the list of appeals.

Dead Number 135.

Pittsburg, Pa., Dec. 2.—The death list of the Marianna Mine now numbers 135. It is believed only a few more bodies are still in the mine, and that these are buried under debris.

CONSERVATIVES TO ENTER A PROTEST IN THE CAPITAL

Will Attempt to Unseat Sir Wilfrid—His Disqualification Will be Asked on Score of Famous Letter.

Montreal, Dec. 2.—There is going to be war to the knife in the matter of contestations, one of the features being that the unseating and disqualification of Sir Wilfrid Laurier will be asked for in the legal proceedings which are in progress against the leader of the Federal Government as regards the Ottawa seat.

It was semi-officially announced last evening that by the evening of the fifth of the present month, which is the last day papers of contestation can be presented by Conservatives, the constituencies of Argenteuil, Charlevoix, Sherbrooke, Jacques Cartier, Soulanges, Quebec West, L'Islet and Terrebonne will have been formally contested.

No less than thirty-three of the Government supporters elected on Oct. 26 last in the Province of Quebec will have to fight for their seats, and already the Conservatives declare information against them is of so important a character that in most cases disqualification is asked for by the counsel for the petitioners. It is stated that the series of contestations now about to be entered upon will be the most interesting since confederation.

The news from Ontario, according to information at the Conservative headquarters, is also of a very important nature. The statement is made that the Conservatives alone will contest thirty-three out of the thirty-seven seats won by supporters of Sir Wilfrid Laurier in that province at the recent election in Ottawa.

The Prime Minister's disqualification is being asked for on account of the letter which Sir Wifrid wrote promising an increase in salary of the members of the civil service.

WEDS HIS FOURTH WIFE SWIFTWATER BILL'S NEW BRIDE

Spokane, Wash., Dec 2.—"Swiftwater Bill" Gates, whose spectacular mining and matrimonial adventures in Alaska, Puget Sound, California and Nevada, have been the talk of the northwest the last ten years, has taken unto himself wife No. 4. The bride is Sadelle Mercier, 18 years old, daughter of Mrs. Violet M. Erickson, manager of Hotel Webster in Spokane. Gates and his bride are now on the way to New York, whence they will sail for Liverpool to pass a year in England. "Bill" cleaned up a fortune in Nevada a short time before coming to Spokane.

The bride came from New York two months ago, about the time Gates returned to Spokane from Nevada. She is a graduate of Villa Marie Convent, Montreal. They met two weeks ago. Gates came into public notice a dozen years ago, when he gave Gussie Lamore of San Francisco her weight in gold to marry him. She discarded him soon afterward, and he married her sister Rose, divorcing her after a honeymoon of six weeks. Then he eloped with Bera Beebe, 16 years of age, at Skagway, who committed suicide early last month, after separating from Gates and marrying Harry Cook. "Bill" arranged for the burial and paid the bills.

LOSES BYE-ELECTIONS GOVERNMENT WEAKENED

St. John, N.B., Dec. 2.—The Hazen Government sustained two reverses yesterday, when bye-elections were held in two constituencies owing to the resignation of the members to contest the federal elections.

At Woodstock George W. Upham, Liberal, was elected over W. F. Owens, Conservative, by a majority of 193. The contest was bitterly fought, and the result is a decided blow to the Hazen Government.

Hon. John Burchill was elected in Northumberland County over James Swim, Conservative candidate by a majority of 190, with two small places to hear from. The situation in this county was peculiar, Burchill receiving the hearty support of Hon. John Morrissey, chief commissioner in Premier Hazen's Cabinet, while Swim was strongly supported by Hazen and the other members of the Cabinet. Burchill, however, pledged himself to give the Hazen Government his independent support.

TOO LATE TO TAKE VOTE

Brantford Local Option Measure Will Probably be Too Late For Vote.

Brantford, Dec. 2.—The local option bylaw, legal authorities claim, is tied up in technical difficulties and cannot be presented to the ratepayers.

When the temperance aldermen left the council chamber Monday night the council was in committee of the whole to "reconsider and amend" the bylaw. The point has been raised that council when it reassembles two weeks hence must go back into committee and dispose of the issue. It will then be too late to advertise the bylaw sufficiently.

A special meeting is proposed, but it is doubtful if the local optionists can secure a quorum, the vote being very close.

At Assembly Hall.

Mr. Robt. Salter will give an address on "The Great Tribulation, will the church pass through it," tonight at eight o'clock in the Assembly Hall under the old opera house. All welcome. No collection.

REVERT TO WARDS

In the Election of Aldermen

Petition to This Effect Being Circulated in the City.

A petition is being circulated in the city with the object of reverting to the ward system in the election of aldermen. It is the intention of the petitioners to present the petition to the City Council at the first meeting of the civic legislators in the hope that a by-law may be introduced at once to revert to the ward system in order that the vote may be by wards at the coming municipal elections.

The petition has the names of many prominent citizens and is being largely signed.

CHILD WAS CREMATED

Two Year Old Dies in Fire at Frankford, on Trent Canal.

Frankford, Dec. 2.—Mrs. E. Gamble was seriously burned and her two-year-old daughter was cremated in a fire which destroyed their shack at Glen Ross, and which was used as a boarding-house for the construction gang at this point on the Trent Valley Canal.

Mrs. Gamble received her injuries in an effort to rescue her baby. The heavy gale fanned the flames into a fury, and several other small buildings were destroyed.

LET US BE REASONABLE

From one end of Canada to the other there is positive grief over the horrors of Port Arthur. It is merely, however, the latest on the list. It would seem as if those who talk so glibly of foreign missionary movements must be blind to the fact that stare them full and defiantly in the face. Is it treasonable or we ask, right that we should go far afield in a sort of dream of ecstatic question when nothing that we know of in foreign lands equals under the circumstances, the crimes which we ourselves commit at home. The command to go into all the world does not under any pretence excuse the lamentable failure at home. Surely it is time for less bombast and greater heart-searching here amongst ourselves. A more indecently corrupt country never existed than Canada. Have the preachers of the Gospel failed of their mission? Something must be wrong. We have listened to the strange, weird optimism as it is euphemistically called of those who persistently cry "All is well!" while the courts cry relentlessly and continually "All is rotten!" until the former cry has got to ringing in our ears like the Siren's fatal music of the ancient fable. It has lured us on to our destination. It is plain that as has been done in Great Britain and as Mr. Aylesworth has remarked, must be done in Canada we must make people self-respecting, moral and just by legal enactment. This would seem to be the only effective remedy. The law is more effective it would seem after all, than the Gospel. Whose fault is this? At whose door must the plain failure of our morality be laid.

INCONSISTENCY

Another Liberal provincial administration is in danger. The Hazard Government of Prince Edward Island should have gone to the country early this year, but postponed the elections till after the Dominion contest. Only the success of the Laurier Government saved its provincial allies, and even with this advantage the success is doubtful. Returns show 16 Liberals to 14 Conservatives with one minister defeated, a great change from the last House with 21 Liberals and 9 Conservatives. With the Conservatives in control of provincial administrations of Ontario, Manitoba, British Columbia and New Brunswick, giving greatly improved administration compared with the machine governments which have been turned out, it is a pity that the people of Prince Edward Island had not been allowed to settle this question without federal interference. In that province voting is open and no federal employee or elector under federal influence can give an independent vote. Hence, two seats in Charlottetown, where there is a large railway vote, were allowed to go to the government without opposition.

Three years ago it was decided that Parliament should meet thereafter in October or the beginning of November. To make this possible the fiscal year was closed in March instead of June. In 1906 Parliament met November 22. In 1907 it was not called until the end of November. Now we are informed that the next session will begin about the 20th of January. So the country is back where it was before the fiscal year was changed. It is no excuse that an election was held. The election might have taken place a month or two earlier, or after the next session. In any case it is not necessary to postpone the meeting of Parliament three months after an election. The last time the late Conservative Government summoned parliament for the session following an election was in 1891. The election was held in March and the House met in April.

But nothing is ready. The public accounts of the year which closed eight months ago are not yet issued. In fact none of the blue books of the year are out, though the late Government in November and December gave out reports of the years closing at the end of June.

Nor is any Government legislation ready. The Insurance bill, which was supposed to follow the inquiry of 1906 was not even introduced in the following session. After waiting another year the Government brought down a crude sort of measure which was kept before the House and the committee for months, and then dropped. It is understood that a new bill will be introduced next session, and that it is not yet prepared. Only two other measures are yet mentioned. One is to create a new department for Mr. Mackenzie King, and add another to a list of portfolios, already too large. The second is to abridge the freedom of debate and enable the Government to force a measure through the House with a limited amount of discussion. No great statesmanship is involved in these measures, but it is the way that Sir Wilfrid is finishing his work.

Meanwhile Mr. Fielding is off for London. Anyone who watches public expenditure knows his errand. He is trying to borrow more money. Old obligations are falling due and new ones are incurred with frightful rapidity. A few weeks ago the Government offered in London a loan of $25,000,000 but the investors did not take it readily, and the bonds remained with the underwriters. This time it is necessary for Mr. Fielding to take up the matter seriously, as the banks have already made large advances. Larger sums must now be obtained at once than have ever been sought in the money market by a Canadian Government.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The Vancouver World is one of the best newspapers we know of. It is up-to-date in the highest class of world news.

With the advantage of the Balkan entanglement and the violent racial struggles which threaten Austria with actual civil war, Hungary is openly preparing to attempt to swallow, the dominant country.

As a seat of government, it is admitted even here that Buda Pest has already become more important than Vienna. The Hungarian leaders propose to make Austria's formal acknowledgement of the transfer the price of their support in the Balkan struggle.

They intend that the successor of Franz Josef, whose death is considered a matter of no more than months shall be King of Hungary and the Emperor of Austria, just as Edward is King of England and Emperor of India; not Emperor-King of Austria-Hungary as at present.

If Francis Ferdinand, the present monarch's heir, cares to accept the throne on these terms, the Hungarians will crown him. It is no secret that they mean to have someone else.—Vancouver World.

OF INTEREST

William M. Chase, the painter, has just revealed the fact that the model for his famous picture at the Academy of Fine Arts in Philadelphia was the original of the famous "Gibson Girl." The model is of great consequence, writes the artist in the Delineator (December.) "It is the personality that inspires and which you depict upon the canvas. . . . To make a vivid personality glow, speak, live upon the canvas—that is an artist's triumph." The great English portrait-painters, he explains "make pictures as well as portraits; hence their work will live and be lauded in every age and generation. They are faithful to the objective sense, but the subjective—the greater sense—is subtly interwoven and predominates. These are the paintings that live." Mr. Chase tells us that his best models were found by a trusted negro servant, Daniel, who "became quite adept at judging them and was something of an art connoisseur as well." Mr Chase writes:

"One morning, while I was at work upon some pastels of the nude—which Daniel, by the way, called 'nakedtives'—the ingenious negro came tiptoeing in, his eyes bulging with excitement and his hands making mysterious signs. 'She's here!' he whispered.

"'Who?' I asked.

"'A model,' he said, solemnly, 'what is a model!' And he motioned me to the waiting-room.

"Daniel was right. She was a model—and more. As she arose gracefully and stood smiling before me I knew at once that fortune had sent me the very subject I had long hoped to find—a pretty type of American womanhood.

"A clear-cut, classic face with splendid profile—a steadfast expression of sweetness, loveliness, womanliness—and, above all else, dignity and simplicity, these two greatest elements of successful portraiture.

"She was dressed in a plain black gown, just as I should have wished. But just a touch was lacking. A white crepe shawl was hanging near, and I took it quickly and draped it about her shoulders. That was sufficient. The picture was complete!

"A word about the model. She was Mrs. Clark, the original Gibson girl. I mention this point particularly because there have been so many claimants of this identity. Mrs Clark was the model who made Charles Dana Gibson, the creator of the Gibson girl, known all over the world. I wish also to speak of the very high regard in which Mrs Clark was held by Gibson, Beckwith, myself, and the other artists for whom she posed.

"I did the painting neither on commission nor for exhibition, but for the love of the work purely. And a very pleasant task it was, made doubly so by my subject's congenial and keen appreciation of art. This painting should have been—indeed could have been—done by an American artist, and I am very proud of having had the opportunity. This painting, called 'Mrs. C.,' is hung in the Philadelphia Academy of Arts—"—Literary Digest.

NEAR DEATH'S DOOR

Mi-o-na cures dyspepsia. If any of the readers of the Review are suffering from stomach trouble of any kind Wm. Madill, druggist, Peterborough, will sell you a box of Mi-o-na for 50 cents with an absolute guarantee of relief or money back.

Neil Murray, of Huron Road, Goderich, Ont., says;—"I suffered with indigestion for over four years and had been given over as incurable by many doctors. I had become a nervous wreck through loss of sleep, and whatever I did eat did not remain on my stomach for over two hours. I would suffer with vomiting spells that would almost kill me, perspiration as large as beads would break out all over my body and leave me in so weakened a condition that I would be unable to stand not a night's rest in over six months and was so weakened and run down that my family thought I would die. My heart was greatly weakened and would flutter and a sharp pain would come through me and cut off my breath. I was reduced in weight from 150 to less that 110 pounds. Doctors would give different causes for my trouble, yet none of them gave me the slightest relief. I commenced treatment with Mi-o-na and when one-half of the first box was used I could eat my meals without suffering the dreadful vomiting spells. I used about ten boxes in all, and am entirely cured. My stomach is as strong as ever, and there is not the slightest trouble with digestion. I have gained about 40 pounds in weight, am strong and like a new man. I will always speak highly of Mi-o-na, as it cured and I believe kept me from sure death when all else had failed."

A CHRISTMAS MAGAZINE

The Christmas number of the Canadian Magazine contains a more than usually long list of good things.

When the late William Henry Drummond was perhaps at the zenith of his powers as a poet, seven years ago, he visited Winnipeg, for the purpose of attending the medical convention there. During his stay in the western metropolis he delivered a lecture one evening, and afterwards was entertained at supper by Mr W E McPherson, General Passenger Agent of the Canadian Pacific Railway. A number of prominent gentlemen, mostly of the Scotch persuasion, were present. The supper lasted until the "wee sma' hours" and must have been a most enjoyable occasion, because it inspired the poet to write on the fly-leaf of a presentation copy of "Johnnie Courteau" the following poem, which is addressed to Mr McPherson. —The poem, as it appears in the book in Dr Drummond's own handwriting is reproduced on the opposite page from this:

Hoich, agus Hoich galore,, fan MacCrimmon,
Son of the pipes. Let your war notes be hushed;
Well do I know that we battled with women,
When by Inverlochy the Campbells we crushed.

Tell me no more how the race of MacDonald
We gave to the foxes and birds of the sky, —
Bloody the tartan we spun for Black Ronald,
Betrayer of princes, four Pickle, the spy.

A thousand long years the Camerons fed us,
With cattle we received from the herds of Lochiel.
Little we reckoned the wild chase they led us,
When Cluny's proud children craved for a meal.

Hoich, agus Hoich. O, it's weary rehearsin',
The deeds we have done and the deeds we can do,
But tonight let the fiery cross of MacPherson,
Blaze out on a mission all bloodless and new.

Summon the clans from the banks of the Garry,
Carry the message to far St Laurent,
Uisebae, wassail, them. all they can carry,
For the dirk of MacPherson is now laid awa'.

They came, conquered clansmen, and gillies and vassals,
But warm was the handclasp they met at the door;
And scatheless they drank to each other's tall castles,
For Cluny repentant, his foes were no more.

—William Henry Drummond, in the Christmas Canadian Magazine.

Servant Electrocuted.

Syracuse, N.Y., Dec. 1.—Mary Maloney, 20 years of age, a domestic, was electrocuted yesterday while dusting the electric fixture. Her employer at the risk of her life, pulled the girl from the fixture to which she was clinging.

The coroner believes that Miss Maloney's shoes were wet, and that standing on a register a complete circuit was made when her hand touched the fixture with defective insulation.

Fired at Woman.

Montreal, Dec. 1.—An attempted hold-up was made on De Lisle street, St. Henri, last evening. Mrs. Arthur Thibaudeau, the victim, was nearing her home when a man confronted her with a revolver in each hand and ordered her to give up her money. She turned and fled, with the man in pursuit. He fired one shot at the fleeing woman, and then made good his escape. The woman was uninjured.

Tom Flanagan says that Dorando is a much better runner now, than when he ran in the Olympic Marathon at London.

EXCESSIVE PRICES PAID BY MARINE AGENT PARSONS

Halifax Marine Investigation Reveals Fact That Merchants Gave Graft Money to Government Officials and Secured One-Tenth Above Retail Rates.

Halifax, N.S., Dec. 1.—Interest in the Marine enquiry here is intense, and the court room was crowded at both sessions yesterday.

Two important points were brought out in evidence. It was shown that hardware and ship chandlers supplied the Department by firms here was 10 per cent. higher in every case than the local retail price.

It was also shown that Longard Bros. had done jobs for Marine Agent Parsons on several occasions, amounting to several hundred dollars, and although some of the work had been done several years ago the bills had never been collected.

The enquiry promises to extend over the whole week.

W. G. Robertson of Wm. Robertson & Son, hardware merchants, was the first witness at the afternoon session. The sales to the Department during the three years amounted to $55,000. There had been no written contract for these goods.

"Have you any knowledge of any others tendering for orders?" asked Mr. Watson.

"There must have been, but I don't know; about one-third went without tender at all."

"Upon the whole, the prices charged by your firm to the Department have been at about 10 per cent. above the ordinary retail prices."

"I will not admit this."

A. L. Melvin was then called. He described himself as a retail merchant. The Marine Department was his chief customer. He got his orders by telephone or written order and had no personal interviews with Mr. Parsons. Once in a while Storekeeper Macnamara would come along and pick out something. He had an account with Mr. Macnamara. There was an item of $2.25 in 1901, for which an account was never rendered and never paid. The second was $10.64, never rendered and never paid. The third was in 1907 for $30.03, never rendered and never paid. Nothing was said as to this accounts, whether they were to be paid.

"What was your business reason for not collecting the account from Macnamara? Was it that you thought that it would be better with you in your dealings with the Marine Department?"

"Yes, that's about it."

"How would your prices compare with these of Robertson, for insurance, about the usual ten per cent. above ordinary retail prices?"

"They ranged about there."

C. C. Longard of Longard Bros., the next witness, said during the three years his account amounted to about $56,000, all for mechanical engineering. The firm's total amount standing against Mr. Parsons, the agent, was somewhere in the vicinity of $300. It was for putting a hot water boiler in his house, five or six years ago and some plumbing since.

It was shown that on Jan. 1, 1904, there had been an account against him of a couple of hundred dollars not yet paid. Mr. Longard tried to get the money, but failed.

"And yet with this bad account you turned round and did further work for Mr. Parsons."

"Yes, against my will."

At the morning session R. G. Beasley of Beasley Brothers, testified to his firm having done a limited amount of work for the Marine Department, and to having given money to Mr. Johnston of the Department.

Beasley referred to a payment of $100 to Capt. Johnson as a loan on a payment of $400 by the Halifax Salvage Association to him for advice and assistance in connection with the stranding and floating of the C.P.R. liner Mount Temple.

THE OPTIONISTS WIN OUT BY-LAWS PASSED BY COUNCILS

Woodstock Reconsiders its Decision and Local Option Measure Will be Subject to Popular Vote—Sensational Attempt to Strike Out Brantford By-law—Other Places Consider Legislation.

Woodstock, Dec. 1.—A local option bylaw will be submitted to the electors in January, the city council last night reversing its decision of last week, when, by a vote of 5 to 4, the aldermen declared against putting the question up to the people.

Action was threatened by the local optionists. The petition was proved to be sufficiently signed, and the aldermen last night were unanimous.

This makes two cities—Brantford and Woodstock—that will vote on local option in January. There will also be voting on bylaws in about 70 towns, villages and townships.

To Kill Bylaw.

Brantford, Dec. 1.—A sensation was sprung last night at the council meeting, when a determined effort was made to strike out the local option bylaw which two weeks ago secured the necessary two readings by a vote of 8 to 7, to go to the people.

The attempt failed because the temperance supporters in the council left the council chamber in a body, before the vote was taken, thus leaving no quorum.

Ald. Wright introduced the question when he moved that the council go into committee of the whole to have names submitted for three deputy returning officers who had resigned. The move proved a feint, as a motion followed to strike the bylaw out. A hot debate then ensued, several aldermen switching. There were four absentees, including Ald. Andrews, Rastell, Blakney and Minshall. Had a vote been taken the bylaw would have been quashed by 6 to 5. Ald. Draper, who seconded it at the last meeting, refused to vote.

An uproar followed in the council chamber, when the local option aldermen withdrew. Hundreds stood around the city hall awaiting developments. Mayor Bowlby finally called the police to clear out the chamber, as he stated that other business had to be transacted. The crowd refused to move.

A. L. Bayard and Rev. W. B. Caswell, prominent local option supporters, urged citizens' rights in being allowed to remain. On the arrival of the police, however, withdrawal was made under protest.

St. Kitts Passes It.

St. Catharines, Dec. 1.—Despite protests from Messrs. Ingersoll and Kingston, on behalf of the License Holders' Protective Association, the city council last night unanimously passed the first reading of a bylaw providing for the reduction of hotel licenses from 19 to 12.

It will be submitted to the electors. The action was taken in reply to a request from the Citizens' League.

Brampton, Dec. 1.—The local option bylaw made no progress at the council meeting last night.

The town clerk, to whom was referred the validity of the bylaw, reported that it was not prepared in proper form.

After a long discussion the first clause of the bylaw was defeated in committee.

It is probable that the local optionists will ask the courts to compel the council to act upon the petition. Of the 970 names on the voters' list, 348 signed the petition.

Ottawa, Dec. 1.—That a railway company cannot be punished for refusing commutation tickets to a town when such action is taken at the request of the town itself is the effect of a judgment handed down by the Railway Commission in the case of Wegenast v. the G.T.R.

The complainant, who is a resident of Brampton, is a student at Osgoode Hall, and he complained that while residents of Oakville were able to purchase reduced rate tickets he could not do so because he lived in Brampton.

The commission decided that since the reduced rate was discontinued at the request of Brampton it could not be considered a case of "undue discrimination."

TREATY WITH HOLLAND

Great Britain Will Make Alliance With Netherlands.

Work of Isolating Germany Progresses Apace and Agreement With Little Kingdom Is Intended to Keep the Kaiser From Securing Control—German Cabinet Ministers Boycott the Reichstag.

London, Dec. 1.—The Pall Mall Gazette announces a forthcoming treaty and alliance between Great Britain and Holland, and predicts that other Governments will soon arrange treaties for the protection of the Netherlands.

If this is true, it is another step in the diplomatic isolation of Germany, and the possibility that Germany might acquire Holland had long been regarded as a menace in England.

Reichstag Boycotted.

Berlin, Dec. 1.—Eager interest is being shown everywhere in the debate in the Reichstag this week on constitutional amendments to bring about the responsibility of Cabinet Ministers to Parliament. No person, however, is particularly optimistic regarding the outcome.

Angry disappointment has been caused by the announcement that Prince Buelow and other members of the Government, for alleged reasons of propriety, will not appear there while the debate is in progress. Their abstention is interpreted as an insolent manoeuvre to reduce the discussion to unimportance, because the deliberations of the Reichstag without the participation of the chancellor or the other Ministers are notoriously impotent in themselves and wholly without effect upon the country.

TELEGRAPHIC BRIEFS.

Before Magistrate Carroll, an Escott farmer named Slack was fined $20 and costs for supplying family milk to the Tilley cheese factory, of which he is a patron. Hair Raising Talk

We claim that Dr. Norvall's Hair Restorer is easily the best requisite of its brand on the market

Those who have used it enthusiastically say it is. It cleans and envigorates the scalp, it prevents dandruff and stops the hair from falling out.

Its regular use soon shows surprisingly satisfactory results and there is not one drop of injurious matter in its composition.

COMMITTE ON APPOINTMENTS

In accordance with the resolution of the board at its last meeting your committee on appointments advertised for a teacher for the public school staff.

Before the selection was made Miss Coveney resigned from the East City staff your committee advertised for two teachers and recommended the appointment of Miss Persie G Meadows of Courtland, first class professional certificate and has had three and a half years' experience.

Miss Minnie E F. Mann, Peterborough, second class professional certificate and has had three years' experience engaged at initial salaries as per schedule of Board.

Upon motion the report was adopted

MISCELLANEOUS.

Dr. Morrison took occasion to compliment the Principal Mr. H. R. H. Kenner on the high average attendance. He thought that 326 was exceptionally high for an enrolment of 340.

Mr. W. S. Robinson brought up the matter of having porches placed on the south and north entrances of the King Edward School. The wintry winds blew exceedingly severe against these doors and he moved, seconded by Dr. Burnham, that the matter be referred to the Property Committee.

The meeting then adjourned.

"THE WEST AND ITS PEOPLE" A LECTURE OF MUCH INTEREST

Large Audience Heard Rev. Dr. Johnston of Montreal, at St. Paul's Church Last Night—The Great Work in the Canadian West.

In his address on the "West and it's People" at St. Paul's church last night, Rev. Dr. Johnston, of Montreal imparted to his audience some of the fine sentiments of Canadian nationalism, with which he showed himself to be deeply imbued. Dr. Johnston is the pastor of the American Presbyterian church in the Canadian metropolis and is one of the most noted orators of the Presbyterian church. He was formerly pastor in Lindsay, and during that pastorate he had spoken before a Peterborough congregation, hence was not an entire stranger to those who enjoyed his talk on the great mission work that lies at the very threshold of the doors of the Canadian churches and in the hands of the people of this grand country. Dr. Johnston held in no uncertain manner that the future of Canada will be insured with the enrolling under the banners of Christianity all the people of different nations who are being fused together under the broad principles of Canadianism.

Rev. Robert Pogue introduced the speaker in a few brief remarks, after which Rev J. R. Webb led in prayer. The attendance was large and the splendid stereopticon views were thoroughly enjoyed. Rev. Dr. Marsh had charge of the machine with the result that all the slides were brought out to their best effect.

A GREAT WORK.

The work that Canada is called upon to perform is one of the greatest that a nation has ever found itself tasked with. Rev. Dr. Johnston said that her protection must be in God. He referred to the many different classes of people who are coming to our shores, making their way into the interior, and especially into the broad west, where they are settling and building up homes to become in a few years citizens with the rest of the population. Not a few of them are without the religion of Christ, and the safety of the country requires within within its boundaries a transforming power that will make them citizens of Heaven, a transforming power in which the unity of these races will be wrought out, making them one in Jesus Christ.

The trip as planned by Rev. Dr. Johnston began at Montreal, where the majority of the immigrants first put foot upon Canadian shores. It continued through to the vast prairie lands of the west, where these people are working out a livelihood. The scenes vividly emphasized the opportunities that this country enjoys in its industrial possibilities, in the wealth of arable land, the vast ranches on which thousands of cattle have replaced the countless buffaloe that once roamed the rich prairie lands, the great supply of valuable timber, and finally, the unlimited mineral resources. This natural opulence is attracting the people, and as they gather to take advantage of all this wealth, the religion of Christ should go with them. Rev. Dr. Johnston brought out the duty of the people in an interesting manner, and at the same time in a way that was convincing. He spoke from a strong patriotic standpoint, the importance of which he seemed anxious to impress upon his audience. The realization that everybody had something which he and she could do in the Christianizing of Canada was what one would gather to be the main point of his address. It might be said that he specially laid stress upon this idea "Canada united in Christ will be her strongest bulwark" and it is the importance of this thought he stated, that was bringing about the great evangelization movement that was being evidenced by the men from one extremity of the country to the other.

The final rehearsal of the Mikado will be held in the Grand Opera House at 7.30 p. m. this evening.

The former Emmett men now playing at Pittsburg will not be eligible for the city league when they return.

Instead of giving the usual mayoral breakfast, the Mayor of Maidstone will hand a cheque to the local distress committee.

One of the most unwelcome signs of approaching winter is again in London—the seagulls have come up the Thames.

Goal-Breakers Have Been Captured.

They Were Rounded up at Pefferlaw in York County.

Lindsay, December 1—Chief of Police Vincent received a message last evening about nine o'clock from Constable McCauley, of Blackwater, to the effect that the two escaped prisoners, Mallory and Brooks, who "parted company" with Turnkey Andrews at the jail on Saturday had been captured at Pefferlaw, a small hamlet in Georgina township, in York county.

The chief immediately notified the jail officials and it is needless to say joy reigned supreme in that institution.

This morning Chief Vincent took the Grand Trunk flyer for Blackwater where, it is understood, Constable McCauley had a rig in readiness. The two officials drove to Pefferlaw, a distance of about 10 miles. It was thought by a great many that Chief Vincent would arrive with the prisoners on the 10.45 o'clock G. T. R. train and as a result there was quite a gathering of curious citizens at the station when the local steamed in. They lined up on either side of the platform in order to get a good view of the two men, but they were doomed to disappointment. The Chief could not possibly take the ten mile drive, secure his prisoners, and reach the nearest station in time to catch the train. It is likely, however, that the Chief will arrive with his "birds" on the 8 o'clock train this evening.

ver and he and his two sons went and found Ayotte but could not see any trace of a gun. In fact, outside of Tommy Gordon nobody can be found who saw either boy with a gun on the afternoon of the accident. When the inquest is resumed the evidence of those above mentioned whose evidence could possibly be of value, will be witnesses.

YESTERDAY'S SITTING.

The following was the jury empanelled yesterday;—Andrew Allan, foreman; Joseph Walsh, Wm. John Bullock, W. E. Young, Josiah Bullock, Wm. Lane, Robert Freeburn, Ambrose Davis, Peter Bullock, Jas. Kearney, Frederick Young, Ed. Young, Matthew Young.

Dr. Young sworn, said; "I viewed the body of the late Roland Ayotte and I saw a wound on the chest but I could not tell what caused said wound on deceased's chest. I also saw marks on the face, but I could not tell what caused those marks and I could not tell unless by post-mortem examination nor could I tell the cause of deceased's death except by a post-mortem examination."

It was moved by Juryman Fred. Young and Juryman J. F. Kearney that Dr. Young have an assistant on post-mortem to be held over the body of the late Roland Ayotte.

There is great interest being taken in the inquest by those dwelling in the vicinity of Young's Point and throughout the northern part of the county.

the quartette consisting of Messrs. Greenslade, Cutting, Freeland and Pratt.

Grand Chancellor A. R. Whyte, of Hamilton, gave an address in which he congratulated Marathon Lodge on its splendid progress and the excellent quarters that had been secured. He also dealt with the many good points of Pythian Knighthood.

A duet, "Italia," by Messrs. Cutting and Mortimer Johnston was enthusiastically encored. Mr. Greenslade sang, "For the King," in excellent voice and was encored. An address was then given by Supreme Representative W. C. MacDonald, of Toronto, and was followed by Mr. Fred Clarke with a banjo selection. For an encore he sang "The Water Melon on the Vine," with banjo accompaniment. The Mandolin Club made a great hit as also did Mr. F. Pratt, who sang, "Goodwin Sands." For an encore he gave "Eileen Allanah." Mr. Chas. Barber was heard to excellent advantage in a vocal solo, "Genevieve." For an encore he sang "Uganta." Mr. Chas. Coleman gave a comic song and had to respond to an encore.

Short addresses were also given by Grand Prelate F. Hubert, of Hamilton, Grand Keeper of Records and Seals, Alex. Coulter, of Toronto, and Grand Master of Exchequer, Burns, of Hamilton. The visitors had all nice things to say about Marathon Lodge and wished it every success.

Short addresses were also given by several local gentlemen, including Messrs. T. E. Bradburn, M.P.P., J. H. Burnham, A. P. Poussette and F. H. Dobbin. All congratulated Marathon Lodge on the success it had achieved.

The accompanist of the evening was Mr. Nichol, whose services were everything that could be desired.

HAVELOCK ACCIDENT

Young Man Struck by Train

Fred Bennet, C. P. R. Brakeman the Victim—Will Likely Recover.

Special to the Review.

Havelock, Dec. 2.—Fred Bennet, a young man of town, while working at the C.P.R. yards last night was struck by an out-going Toronto-Tweed local train and severely injured. The unfortunate man was one of the night switchmen in the yard and was very busy last night as the C.P.R. are exceptionally rushed just now. He was switching train No. 52, which was to follow the local east. He was busy and as there are many lights from engines in the yards and a great deal of noise he did not notice the train approaching, he threw a switch near the main line and turned suddenly round. The engine was already close upon him and the great light from the electric headlight seemed to daze him and before he could get out of the way he was struck by the buffet beam and knocked several feet to one side. The beam struck him square in the right side of the stomach with great force so that he was knocked over on his head cutting his face and head.

The local train at once stopped and the injured man was carried to the station and a doctor summoned. Up to the present it cannot be ascertained how badly he is hurt, but as the train was going at full force at the time it is very likely he was very badly hurt internally. Mr. Bennet is a young married man and has lived in town for some time and last year obtained employment with the C.P.R. as brakeman.

Come and see Mr. John King as Pooh-bah (Lord High Everything Else) in the Mikado.

"MESSENGER BOY NO. 42"

Of all attractions that will appeal, especially to ladies, children and all lovers of animals, the new melodramatic novelty "Messenger Boy No. 42" which comes to the Grand next Saturday, matinee and night, undoubtedly stands supreme from the fact that the chief players are a group of beautiful Landseer dogs which have been trained, and their instinct fully developed by the world's greatest trainer, Mr. William T. Stephens, whose reputation in his calling stands alone. Supporting the canine thespians, a cast of unusual excellence and a number of high grade vaudeville specialties have been engaged. The scenery, especially that of "The Old Mill" and "A gigantic corn cutter on a farm in full operation is constructed with the chief aim in view of complete realism.

KAISER WANTS ANOTHER MATCH WITH HURTUBISE

Challenge Received From Him by the Review This Morning—Chris. Graham Has Accepted on Behalf of the Peterborough Heavyweight—Match Here in 3 or 4 Weeks.

Charlie Kaiser wants a return match with Hurtubise. Kaiser defeated Gene in Hamilton and after the bout it was explained in the papers that the local heavyweight was not in condition to do himself justice on account of the fact that he was suffering from boils. The American grappler apparently resents these statements as robbing him of some of the credit of the victory and is anxious for another crack at Hurtubise. This morning the following letter was received from him by the sporting editor;—

Sporting Editor of Review.

Dear Sir,—I would like to issue a challenge through your valuable sporting columns to Eugene Hurtubise, of Peterborough, to meet me in a catch-as-catch-can style wrestling match, best two in three falls, to a finish, for any amount he cares to wager. I wrestled Hurtubise at Hamilton on Oct. 17th last, and defeated him fairly. He returned to Peterborough, claiming he was in poor shape and was not given a fair deal by the referee.

If he thinks he has a chance and really wants to wrestle me, I will give him a match in Oswego, and the Oswego Athletic Club will offer a $500 purse, winner to take all or 75 per cent. to winner and 25 per cent to loser, or, if he is afraid to meet me in Oswego, I will come to Peterborough and meet the lion in his own den; the only difference there will be is that I will defeat him much quicker than I did in Hamilton. Thanking you in advance for space in your valuable paper, I am, yours truly,

CHARLES KAISER.
Champion welterweight wrestler of the world.

Mr. Chris. Graham, Gene Hurtubise's manager, said he would take Kaiser's challenge, Gene to meet his challenger here in three or four weeks' time.

ALFRED SHRUBB WON HIS RACE FROM THE LOCAL RUNNERS

Wonderful English Runner Made His First Local Appearance at Roller Rink Last Night—Meets Runners and Roller Skaters To-night.

It was a convenient victory that Alfred Shrubb won over a local relay team of three men at the roller rink last night. The distance covered was a mile and a half, thirty laps to the mile, and the trio that competed against the champion were Bert. Russell, Charlie Webb and J. E. Collins. During the race Shrubb got a lap on Webb who was the second man to go up against him. In spite of the size of the track the distance was covered by Shrubb in 6 minutes and 59 seconds.

The audience were greatly taken with the performance and expressed their admiration of the celebrated Britisher. They also gave the local boys encouragement to give him a go. The former ran in good form and showed evidence of training for the contest but of course they knew they could not win from the brilliant visitor but gave the best opposition they could.

Shrubb's running is a treat to the connoisseur. He carries himself with wonderful ease. His step is short and this is admitted to be the most effective stride for distance men. Unlike many of the world beaters among cross country and distance men there is nothing loose about his style.

The opportunity to witness in action the world's champion and most talked of runner today, will no doubt be taken advantage of by a large number of Peterborough enthusiasts and besides his appearance here is one of general public interest.

Tonight he will run against relays of roller skaters and runners and will provide splendid sport as the distances will be longer than those of last night. Shrubb's engagement here will be concluded on Thursday night.

FOUR TEAMS FOR LOCAL CHURCH HOCKEY LEAGUE

All interested in the formation of a City Church Hockey League are requested to be in attendance at the meeting for the purpose of organizing the league to be held at the Y.M.C.A. next Monday evening at eight o'clock. The election of officers will take place at the meeting and affairs in general will be discussed.

So far there are prospects of four clubs entering, in fact it is practically certain that the following clubs will be represented;—St. Andrew's, Knox, Park street and George st. There is also a possibility of All Saint's having a team in the league.

All teams wishing to join are asked to have representatives on hand.

JUNIOR CITY LEAGUE MEETS THIS EVENING

A meeting of the junior city hockey league will be held tonight at the YMCA at 7.30. Each team entering must have a representative present and the fees must be paid to the secretary.

A California soccer team will tour British Columbia in the spring.

Longboat has been showing better form than ever in his relay races.

EXAMS. HANDED THEM A LEMON

Lang's Team Beaten by Newspaper Trio in P.B.C. Tournament Match

The Examiner handed Lang's championship aspirations a rude jolt in last night's ten pin league fixture on the P.B.C. alleys, the moulders of public opinion taking two from Peter's Pets. The bowling was hardly up to the mark that either team is capable of, Lang's trio particularly being off color.

Huston of the Exam. was the best in the second contest. He was closely followed by Hemstead who was only three pins away at the finish. Harry Lasher was next in line.

The scores, taken on the whole, were small, but enthusiasm ran high throughout.

The closeness of the totals in all three contests adding interest to the match.

Tonight's game will be between the Greys and the Bankers and the dope favors the Bankers for at least two of the three games.

Secretary Martin this morning received the application of two more team, for admission to the league and both applications were acceppted.

The first team is captained by Cyril Geroux and will be known as the Midgets, the personnel being Geroux, Carol Hayes and Maynard Brown.

The other trio has been entered by the Examiner, making two entries from there, to be known as the Exam A and B teams.

The scores last night follow.

A bowling tournament open to "Y" teams will be commenced at the YMCA. bowling alleys on Monday. Three men teams will play in the tourney and those desirous of entering are requested to leave their names at the office with the secretary.

Suitable prizes will be given for the winning teams and a special prize will be donated to the bowler making the highest individual score during the tournament. A good entry list in anticipated and some lively bowling is looked for before the series is fought out.

Since the alleys opened at the YMCA. a short time ago the game has been immensely popular, and the alleys have been in great demand. Some good bowling has been done and good players are developing.

The high score for November is held by Mr S. Laing who has the creditable mark of 181.

RUNNING

Tom Flanagan left for New York this morning to straighten out matters in connection with Longboat's engagements at Trenton and Philadelphia next Saturday. Flanagan wants to call off these races in view of the Indian's race with Dorando, but the promoters won't have it that way. They want Longboat or damages.

Templeman to Stay.

Ottawa, Dec. 2.—The Free Press, Liberal, says in yesterday's issue: "The statement published both in and out of Ottawa that Hon. Clerk Armstrong thought that he should go back or else to Central prison.

"I would rather go to Central prison than back to the House of Refuge" replied Cooper.

"Well, you ought to know," said the Chief, "you have tried both of them."

Record Shipments.

Winnipeg, Dec. 2.—The extraordinary mild weather last month led to record grain shipments.

The daily shipments from Winnipeg to Fort William averaged 541 cars, or over half a million bushels daily, the total shipments for the month approximating fifteen millions, which ranks as a record for wheat shipments for any month in any year.

The Canadian Pacific is endeavoring to create a new record for the present week, but the heavy storm may interfere. The big outward grain movement leaves farmers in excellent position this winter.

POLICY AGREED ON.

Japan and the United States Exchange Diplomatic Notes.

Washington, Dec. 1.—United States Secretary Root, on behalf of the United States, and Kogora Takahira, ambassador on behalf of Japan, yesterday afternoon exchanged diplomatic notes defining the policy of the two Governments in the Far East.

The exchange of notes is based on the idea of encouraging and defending free and peaceful commercial development in the Pacific and to this end the signatory powers have prepared a series of articles expressive of their intentions in the matter.

The declaration is not a treaty, simply a reaffirmation of what both Japan and the United States have stood for in China and in the Far East generally. It has no legal standing, but its greatest benefit will be that derived from the moral effect it will exercise in the future diplomacy governing the Far East. In this respect it has been likened to the Monroe doctrine in American history.

Apart from the reiteration of the attitude of the two Governments interested on the subject of China, the exchange of yesterday's notes is very timely and useful, according to the State Department. Yesterday's newspaper publications abroad, while expressing generally a favorable degree of satisfaction over the step taken by Japan and the United States, at the same time show that there is still some misconception of the real attitude of the two countries. America and Japan understand very well what the attitude of the other is, said a prominent official yesterday, but there are a number of people in various parts of the world who do not seem to understand, and for this reason a re-statement of the attitude of both Governments was deemed a wise step.

Just Postpones the War.

St. Petersburg, Dec. 1.—The Russ, discussing the U.S.-Jap compact, says it merely postponed the inevitable struggle until the end of William H. Taft's term of office. The outcome of a naval conflict to-day between the two countries would be uncertain, it contends, but under cover of this new agreement each will push its war preparations to completion.

Shortly afterward Drabeburg appeared at the federal building with his two prisoners, Gustav Bayer and Henry Michaels. They said they had grown tired of trying to elude the detectives.

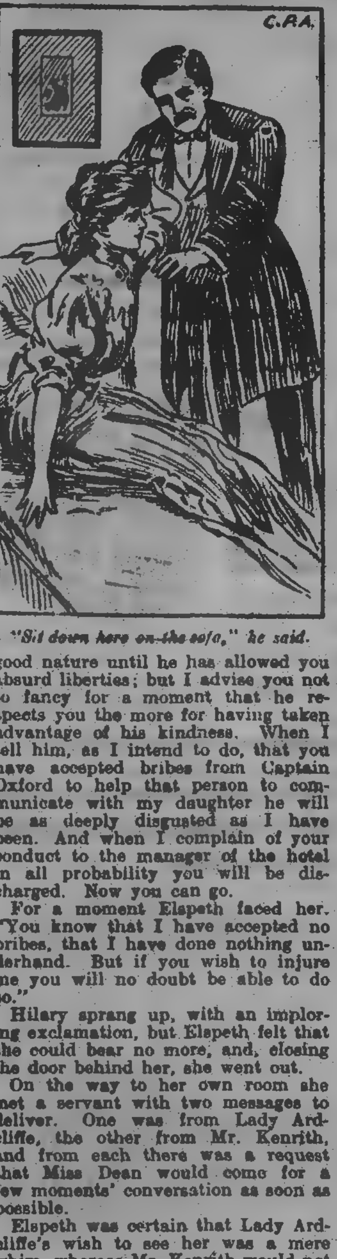
The Ghost of Lochrain Castle

By Mrs. C. N. Williamson—Author of "The Princess Passes," "The Lightning Conductor," Etc.

COPYRIGHT, 1906, BY MRS. C. N. WILLIAMSON



"Sit down here on the sofa," he said.

"It is an impertinence your having come into this room; your helping my daughter is a mere pretence. You have worked upon Mr. Kenrith's good nature until he has allowed you absurd liberties; but I advise you not to fancy for a moment that he respects you the more for having taken advantage of his kindness. When I tell him, as I intend to do, that you have accepted bribes from Captain Oxford to help that person to communicate with my daughter he will be as deeply disgusted as I have been. And when I complain of your conduct to the manager of the hotel in all probability you will be discharged. Now you can go.

For a moment Elspeth faced her. "You know that I have accepted no bribes, that I have done nothing underhand. But if you wish to injure me you will no doubt be able to do so."

Hilary sprang up, with an imploring exclamation, but Elspeth felt that she could bear no more, and, closing the door behind her, she went out.

On the way to her own room she met a servant with two messages to deliver. One was from Lady Ardcliffe, the other from Mr. Kenrith, and from each there was a request that Miss Dean would come for a few moments' conversation as soon as possible.

Elspeth was certain that Lady Ardcliffe's wish to see her was a mere whim, whereas Mr. Kenrith would not have sent for her in this way unless he had some reason of importance; therefore she said that she would be with him in twenty minutes, as soon as she could change, and that she would go to Lady Ardcliffe in a little more than half an hour.

Now she began to feel stiff, and her head ached furiously; but she told herself that the hot throbbing of her nerves was more through indignation against Lady Lambart than in consequence of her fall.

She was pale to the lips when, in a fresh white dress, she presented herself at the door of Kenrith's sitting room. He was alone, and rose on her entrance. Although he too had changed his clothes, there were traces of the accident to be seen in one or two small cuts on his face, which the resident doctor of the Hydro had now closed up with strips of plaster.

"Forgive me for sending for you, but there was no other way of getting at you. My poor child, you are white as a lily and look almost as frail. How can I ever pardon myself for making you suffer?"

"You have not made me suffer," Elspeth answered softly, but she hardly trusted her own voice. "You are very good to me and that is why I wish I could do something for you. Did you send for me to tell me that there is something? I hope so."

"Sit down here on the sofa, among these cushions," he said, making a place for her on the sofa, where she had first seen Captain Oxford. "There is a thing I want to tell you, and then a question I will ask. You remember the blue diamond and the black pearl I showed you the other day, when Lady Lambart and Lady Hilary were here? Well, they have both been stolen this afternoon."

"What, you left them in this room when you went out, and they were taken while you were gone?" gasped Elspeth.

"No. I had them about me. I always carry them so. Didn't you see where I kept them that day?"

Elspeth shook her head. "I wouldn't look. I didn't want to know, somehow. I heard Lady Lambart cry out, 'Who would have thought of your keeping them there?' and I supposed you had had a safe concealed in the wall."

"No. I carried them in a belt. I had them as usual, when I went out motoring to-day. When I came back they were gone. The belt had been cut with a sharp knife. The question I want to ask is, 'Did you see any tramps or suspicious looking persons hovering near us when you came to yourself after our accident?'"

CHAPTER X.

All Elspeth's blood seemed to rush back upon her heart, and her throat contracted so that she could not answer.

Again, she could see Lady Hilary eagerly bending over John Kenrith's still figure as he lay unconscious on the ground. Again, she could hear the girl saying that the only thing which could make life tolerable would be money. Again, she saw the knotted handkerchief fall from Hilary's bodice, with a glitter of gold through the cambric. Could it be possible that, driven half out of her mind by misery—but no; Elspeth would not tolerate the thought, and felt a traitor because it had passed swiftly through her mind.

"When I came to myself," she said when she was able to speak, "there was no one in sight except you and Lady Hilary. Poor girl, she fainted away only a very few minutes after that, almost immediately after the Countess and Mr. Trowbridge arrived, you know."

"Thank you," Kenrith answered thoughtfully. "But of course, you may have lain there stunned for some time."

"No. Lady Hilary didn't lose consciousness at first, and she said it was only a few minutes after our accident that the others appeared with Lady Ardcliffe's car!" Elspeth replied impulsively, then half wished that she had not spoken, for she would have died rather than put a doubt of Lady Hilary in Kenrith's head.

"Then it is a very great mystery," returned Kenrith.

"You are sure that you had the jewels in your belt when you went out?"

"Sure," Kenrith answered. "The reason I am so certain is because I had a queer dream about the diamond last night. I dreamed that it had been stolen by a masked woman that crept into my room in the night; and the dream was so vivid that I opened the belt in the morning before putting it on, to be sure that it wasn't true. Since then, there has been no chance for a thief to rob me, except when I lay unconscious this afternoon."

"What a pity you brought such tremendously valuable things to Scotland with you!" Elspeth could not help exclaiming. "If only you had left them safely in the bank."

Kenrith smiled. "They were new toys," he said. "Perhaps you may have heard that rare jewels are a weakness of mine. Besides, I had half promised to show them to Captain Oxford, who happened to hear that the Radepolskoi diamond would be on the market; and therefore it was indirectly through him I got the chance to buy it before it went to Christie's."

Elspeth shivered a little. Suspicious people, who knew of Captain Oxford's love for Lady Hilary and their common poverty, might suspect a plot if they should hear this story, especially should they find out the sequal to it, which she knew. But she did not intend that any one should find out that sequel through her.

"Shall you send for a detective?" she asked.

"I suppose so," he answered. "But now you tell me you saw no one near; and as Lady Hilary did not lose consciousness at first, she must have known if anybody had approached me. I must confess that to me the mystery seems beyond the skill of any detective less clever than we read of in impossible novels."

"I think," said Elspeth quietly, "that the detective would turn his attention to—me."

"What do you mean?" exclaimed Kenrith.

"I mean that he would consider it very likely that I had taken the jewels."

"That is nonsense," Kenrith said, almost angrily. "A man who saw you, and yet made such a suggestion as that, would be discharged as soon as he made it."

"Thank you," Elspeth answered, laughing faintly. "After all, perhaps a very clever detective would know that most women would be too cowardly to attempt such a crime as that in open day, even if they had the will to do it. But, indeed, I should have no right to be offended if a suspicion of that sort did come into a detective's head."

"If you say such things I shall not send for one, but will let the jewels go."

"No, no!" exclaimed the girl. "I shall feel terribly if you don't do everything you can to get them back. I wish I could help you. I shall think and think with all my might. Who knows but I may have an inspiration."

"You are clever enough to have one," said Kenrith, "if you put your mind to it, so do try. Of course, all that I've told you is between ourselves. I don't want my loss known and discussed in the hotel. But I'm sure I don't really need to say that."

"No, I would not think of speaking to any one," replied Elspeth. "And I shall try very, very hard for that inspiration though I'm afraid it's too much to hope for that a really helpful one will come. Now, if you have no other questions to ask me, I must go, for Lady Ardcliffe wants me to come to her room, and I'm keeping her waiting."

"I hope I haven't worried you." Kenrith said. "I'd much rather lose the jewels than do that. Naturally, I should like to solve the mystery of their disappearance, and still more to get them back, if I can; but if I can't, it is not going to disturb me seriously, and it certainly must not distress you. Remember, I took you out this afternoon by way of trying to bring back the color to your cheeks. Instead of doing you good I threw you out on the road, came near killing you, shook you up terribly and bruised you a good deal, I'm greatly afraid, though you are too brave to complain. So you see, I've enough responsibility already. If you are going to worry about a comparatively small misfortunte that's happened to me it will make it a lot worse"——

"I won't worry then," smiled Elspeth. "I'll save myself up for the inspiration. But now may I ask you one question; what about your chauffeur? Do you trust him entirely?"

Kenrith looked surprised. "I've always found him a good driver and a particularly fine mechanic," he replied. "I've had him in my employ ever since I took to motoring, nearly two years ago. I've never had any serious accident until to-day."

"But what about that wheel? Oughtn't he to have known there was something wrong with it?"

"He's been ailing for a day or two; some trouble with his eyes. He told me, when I sent word at what time I wanted the car to-day, that he would hardly trust himself to drive, if I were willing to do so instead. Of course I was willing—indeed, I generally do drive, and put him in the tonneau. But I must say that the wheels and everything else appeared to be all right before we started. I looked the car over myself, but I see now it must have been superficially. As Dubois wasn't well, I ought to have made a more thorough examination, so I fear I have myself to blame, rather than the chauffeur."

"He's a Frenchman?" asked Elspeth.

"A Belgian."

"Well, I must go," said the girl, scarcely daring to suggest that the chauffeur might have pretended illness by way of an excuse to absent himself when he knew that an accident was sure to happen. If the man were innocent, it would be cruel to plant an unjust suspicion against him in his master's breast. If he were guilty of connivance in some horrible plot, then let the detective Mr. Kenrith was going to send for find it out; for in the meantime, there was no further danger from harm that he could do, as the car was badly broken and could not be used for many days to come.

The girl supposed that Lady Ardcliffe wanted her, to talk over some new poem about to be begun, therefore she was surprised to find a number of people in the sitting room.

"We want you to tell us all about the accident," Lady Ardcliffe said. "Begin at the beginning, from the time you went out."

There was no reason why Elspeth should not obey, still she was reluctant to speak, and would have made some excuse to refuse could she have thought of one; but she was very weary, and not as fertile in expedients as if her vitality had not been at a low ebb. In a dull, tired way, she told how the automobile had started, how Mr. Trowbridge had tried to stop it, and all that had happened afterward. Lady Ardcliffe began by asking questions, but presently she relapsed into silence, looking so pale and angry that Elspeth wondered if inadvertently she had said anything to give offense.

The change in Lady Ardcliffe's manner was felt by every one in the room, and when Elspeth had told her story, they rose, one by one, and went away. Elspeth would gladly have gone also, but Lady Ardcliffe laid a hand upon her arm. "Wait," she said. "I wanted to speak with you alone. That is why I pretended to be tired; I meant to get rid of them all. Now, tell me, how did Mr. Trowbridge act when he came on the spot where the motor had broken down? Didn't he seem particularly anxious about one person in the party? I was sure from something you inadvertently let drop just now that he did. You needn't look so obstinate, as if you had made up your mind to say nothing, Miss Dean. He did show that he was desperately anxious about Hilary Vane, I'm sure."

"A week ago, Lady Ardcliffe, you asked me whether I thought Mr. Trowbridge cared a great deal about Countess Radepolskoi."

"Ah, but that was before he met Hilary."

"You must think him very changeable."

"I only fancied that he cared about the Countess. I feel that he is in love with Lady Hilary. You know it, don't you?"

"It is not my affair," said Elspeth, prudently.

"That is just the same as if you said 'yes.' But of course, it is not my affair either, except that I am a friend of Mr. Trowbridge's, and I should be very sorry to see him sacrificed by a designing woman."

"Oh, Lady Ardcliffe, you can't call Lady Hilary a designing woman!" cried Elspeth.

"I call her mother a designing woman, and Hilary Vane must do as Ida Lambart bids her. They are wellborn, of course, but the mother has been hideously extravagant and now she is reaping the reward of her folly. I believe that Mr. Kenrith is beginning to see her as she really is. She is losing hope where he's concerned, and everything depends upon Hilary's marriage. If something isn't done, Mr. Trowbridge will fall into the trap they've laid for him."

"He may be a millionaire, but all the same Lady Hilary Vane is a thousand times too good for him," Elspeth retorted loyally. "I do hope she won't marry Mr. Trowbridge."

Lady Ardcliffe's eyes blazed. "She shall not marry him," she cried viciously. "That must be prevented somehow. I don't quite see how, yet, but it must be done. It would be too great a sacrifice."

Elspeth was growing more and more angry with this foolish woman who wore her middle-aged heart on her sleeve. No doubt Trowbridge had amused himself by flirting with her, for some reason that the girl could not fathom; still, she ought to have sense enough to see that a man of his age could not possibly be really in love with a woman of hers. Elspeth longed to speak out her scorn, and warn Lady Ardcliffe that Hilary must not be injured in any way, or even annoyed. But she told herself that anything she could say on such a subject would only make matters worse; indeed, she had spoken too much already. So she held her tongue, and merely said, when she could put in a word, that she must go and see whether Mr. McGowan had come.

"After all," Elspeth thought a few minutes later, as she was on the way downstairs, "I don't see how she can possibly harm Lady Hilary. Malicious as she may be in her stupid jealousy, what can she do—or the Countess, either?"

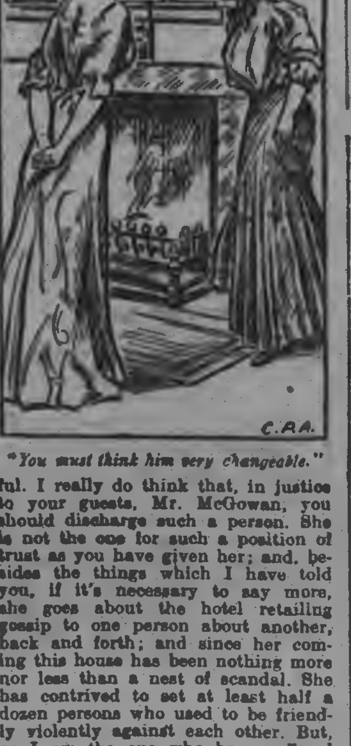
Yet the girl was vaguely uneasy, for she knew that Hilary had now two enemies in the house—two women who, though as different one from the other as Summer from Winter, hated their young and beautiful rival for the same reason; because, all against her will, she had found favor in the eyes of a man they both loved.

Elspeth went straight from Lady Ardcliffe's room to Mr. McGowan's office, where she wished to explain—if he had come—why her duties for the afternoon had been neglected. Perhaps he would blame her for having gone out with Mr. Kenrith in the motor car, she thought; yet he could hardly do that, as she had gone in her free hour, and could not possibly know that an accident would happen to delay and incapacitate her for her duties.

Still, she rather dreaded seeing the manager, and her heart began to beat fast when she heard his voice on the other side of the door. So he had returned.

"Have you any proof of this?" he was saying.

"It was my daughter herself who told me," replied another voice, which Elspeth knew too well. It was that of Lady Lambart. "It is disgraceful. I really do think that, in justice to your guests, Mr. McGowan, you should discharge such a person. She is not the one for such a position of trust as you have given her; and, besides the things which I have told you, if it's necessary to say more, she goes about the hotel retailing gossip to one person about another, back and forth; and since her coming this house has been nothing more nor less than a nest of scandal. She has contrived to set at least half a dozen persons who used to be friendly violently against each other. But, as I am the one who has suffered most, I consider that I have the right to ask you to send her away."



"You must think him very changeable."

"I will at least think it over," replied Mr. McGowan. "If you have not been misinformed, Miss Dean must certainly go. But, of course, she must be given a chance to defend herself. I will send for her presently.—"

"She is here now, Mr. McGowan," said Elspeth at the door. "I couldn't help hearing the last few words."

"It is just as well," returned Mr. McGowan rather coldly. "Did you hear that Lady Lambart accused you of accepting bribes from Captain Oxford to give notes from him to Lady Hilary Vane?"

"I knew she accused me of something of that sort," said Elspeth, looking at Lady Lambart, who held up her lorgnette and stared superciliously.

"Have you ever assisted the Captain to communicate with Lady Hilary?"

"Yes. But—" began Elspeth, and faltered painfully, as she realized for the first time that she had no answer to give which could be truthful and at the same time no incriminating to herself.

Mr. McGowan, who evidently had expected an indignant denial, looked very grave.

CHAPTER XI.

"You see, I was right," exclaimed Lady Lambart. "Now, what do you intend to do?"

"I must talk over this matter with Miss Dean alone, your ladyship," said the manager.

"What! You still refuse to believe her guilty?"

"I must know from her own lips what to believe, and it would be distressing for every one concerned if the matter were discussed in public."

Discomfited, Lady Lambart swept out of the room with an air of injured dignity, and Elspeth, though deeply grateful to Mr. McGowan for giving her the benefit of the doubt and sparing her a public inquisition, trembled inwardly. She could not tell lies, yet she must not compromise Lady Hilary in any way. She must keep that idea before her, whatever happened.

"Now, Miss Dean, you have your opportunity to explain," began Mr. McGowan, "I must say that I am dismayed and annoyed to have such a story thrown at my head on the moment of my return from a business journey. You must, to say the least, have acted with imprudence, and gone out of your place in this house, or such a suspicion against your prudence and good sense could not have arisen."

Until this moment Elspeth had received nothing but praise from Mr. McGowan, and nervous and worn as she was, this rebuke seemed almost beyond bearing.

Tears sprang to her eyes, but she choked them back, determined that the manager should not see her crying like a scolded child. In spite of her efforts at self-control, however, the girlish face betrayed something of the heart's distress, and Mr. McGowan, who was an extremely kindhearted man, though a disciplinarian as a manager, repented his harshness.

"You had better tell me everything," he said.

"I—don't think I can do that, though as far as Lady Hilary Vane is concerned there's practically nothing to tell," replied Elspeth.

"What! You refuse to speak?" Mr. McGowan exclaimed, his vexation rising again.

"I once took a message—an absolutely insignificant message—from Captain Oxford to Lady Hilary, whom he has known for a long time."

"Is that all—on your word of honor?"

"Practically all."

"That is not a satisfactory answer."

"I'm very sorry, but I'm afraid it's the best that I can give."

"Then, Miss Dean, I must say I am very much disappointed in you."

"Would you prefer to have me go away?" the girl asked, trying with all her might to steady her voice.

Mr. McGowan had not intended matters to touch this extremity. Elspeth's work was excellent beyond his expectations, and she was well liked by every one in the hotel to whom her services had been given. She was a lady by birth and in manner, charming in appearance, and altogether the manager of the Lochrain Castle Hydro feared it would be impossible to obtain another stenographer as desirable. Still, discipline must be maintained in the hotel, and this girl must not think she could go out of her place, mix herself up in the love affairs of the guests of the house, and after behaving with grave indiscretion, escape with a mere reprimand after refusing to defend herself. He valued her services too much to have dispensed with them lightly on his own ninitiative, but as she had practically tendered her resignation, he did not think it compatible with his dignity or her offence to say that, in spite of all, he wished her to stay on.

"I must of course ask that you will either explain satisfactorily or else resign your position here," he said at last. "But I still hope that you will explain, and I give you till to-morrow morning to think it over."

"That will do no good, Mr. McGowan," said Elspeth, sadly. "I know myself; and I know that I can say no more to-morrow morning than I've said already, except that I did nothing which seemed to me to be wrong."

"Ah, but I must be allowed to judge whether it was wrong or not," he returned.

"Then—I see that you mean me to go. Shall it be at once, or——"

"Certainly not," Mr. McGowan cut in decidedly. "I cannot be left without any one to fill your place in the high season. Grant already has all that he can attend to, or more, and my hands are over-full. I will let you be the one to give me notice, Miss Dean, as you have been satisfactory in your work, and I do not wish to injure your future career any more than I can avoid doing. You had better give me a fortnight's notice. In that time I can get some one else; and meanwhile I expect you to be absolutely discreet in your intercourse with the guests of the hotel. Now, I shall require nothing further from you to-day. Good, evening, Miss Dean."

"Good evening. And—I suppose I ought to thank you. I believe you mean to be kind," said Elspeth.

"I should like to be so, if you had made it possible for me," returned the manager.

There was nothing more for her to say or do, and bowing her head to hide the tears, she left the room.

After all, Lady Lambart had scored. A sudden flash of enlightenment told Elspeth that the elder woman could not forgive her the kindness and consideration with which Mr. Kenrith had treated her. From the very first, when she had been compelled to take a seat in the railway carriage which Lady Lambart had wished to keep for her own party, she had been unjustly disliked. Mr. Kenrith's kindness to her as his secretary and her association with Capt. Oxford had increased the feeling against her; but the climax had come to-day with the invitation from Mr. Kenrith to go out in his motor car as his equal and Lady Hilary's equal. That had placed her on a different footing. She was no longer only the secretary; she was the friend as well, and Lady Lambart had stopped at nothing to be rid of her.

In a way the enmity of a woman of the world for a humble typewriter was a compliment, but Elspeth was in no mood for that point of view. She was bitterly unhappy, horribly humiliated, and could not bear to look forward to the future.

She had been allowed, by Mr. McGowan's courtesy, to resign, but it was almost as bad as if she had been discharged after a week's trial at the Lochrain Castle Hydro, for after what had passed the manager would certainly not give her an unqualified recommendation. To-morrow, in all probability, he would write to the agency, from which she had been sent to him, say that Miss Dean was not satisfactory, and ask for some one else in her place.

What a downfall, after her high hopes, and the encouraging opinion Miss Smith had had of her ability. To be sure, she had been told that she was too young, but she had meant to show that that opinion was a mistake. Oh, she had meant to do so well, and she had believed that she was succeeding. She had borne herself as bravely as she could, through strange and trying experiences, in the hope of obtaining the success for which she strove, and this was her reward for everything.

All these thoughts rushed through her mind as she left Mr. McGowan's room. She walked with her head down, hoping to meet no one she knew, and hurried through the hall, almost deserted now, as people were preparing for dinner. Suddenly turning into one of the many intricate corridors, she stumbled against some one who had just come down the stairs she was about to ascend. "I beg your pardon!" she exclaimed hastily, and involuntarily looked up.

This corridor was dimly lit, but at the foot of the stairs stood a bronze figure in armor, holding a lamp, and the light from the lamp struck full upon the face of the person with whom she had collided. With a little cry Elspeth started back, for the face was the same that she had seen in her room, framed in the white mystery of moonlight.

For a second the eyes, the too brilliant eyes, gazed into hers with an intent and strangely piercing look, almost an anxious look, it seemed. Then the tall man bowed slightly, murmured something in response to her request for pardon, and passed on.

Elspeth stood still, watching, half inclined to follow, yet not daring to do so; for there could be no doubt that this was a man of flesh and blood, and no ghost. He was in modern dress, and did not vanish by apparently melting through the wall, but walked quietly, if somewhat hastily, round the corner into another corridor.

The features were as like as before to Captain Oxford's, but now that she had seen them in a fuller light Elspeth told herself that it was difficult to believe the man was wearing a disguise. The short, pointed beard looked absolutely natural, and the face seemed much older than that of Captain Oxford.

"Who can it be?" she wondered. "Is it a guest of the hotel? Extraordinary, if so, that I've never seen his face before—almost impossible. Yet he must have been in the house, or staying near by for some time, because it's almost a week since that night when the ghost-figure stepped out through the wall into my room. Now that I've seen him again—for it must be the same; I can't be mistaken—it makes that apparition all the more mysterious. I must find out who this person is."

SCHOOL BOARD MAKES GRANT TO CADET CORPS

The Collegiate Institute Cadet Corps is to have a fund for the purchasing of bugles for a band and other stores and equipments for the corps.

At the Board of Education meeting last night it was moved by Mr. L. M. Hays and seconded by Mr. W. H. Hill, that the government grant of fifty dollars be given the principal, Mr. H. R. H. Kenner to be the nucleus for a fund for the purchase of stores and equipment for the Cadet Corps. This motion was unanimously carried.

Mr. Hays in making the motion said that the Collegiate Corps deserved great credit for the splendid showing they made in the recent inspection. He referred especially to the good work of Lieut. Hodgson, in introducing the boys.

Mr. W. H. Hill in seconding the motion said that he felt that the cadets should be encouraged.

DEPARTMENT INCREASES GRANT FROM $1,500 TO $2,250

At the Board of Education meeting last night, Mr W. H Hill, chairman of the committee on appointments, read a report re training school grant. The department has increased its grant from $1500 to $2250.

The report is as follows;

When this board first entered into an agreement with the Education Department to provide a suitable training school for Normal students, it was not then anticipated that more than a ten roomed school would be necessary. When in August as the principal of the Normal asked for seventeen rooms for observation purposes, members of the board made representations to the Education Department that the annual grant of $1500 first agreed upon would not be sufficient inducement for capable teachers to offer their services, as the extra work entailed by the Normal students is very heavy and exacting. The Education Department considered the matter carefully, and as a result this this annual grant has been increased to $2,250.

It now becomes the duty of this board to apportion this grant among the teachers in the training schools

Your committee has consulted Dr. Merchant, inspector of the Normal Schools, and Mr. Walker, Principal of the Normal School and as a result propose that the grant be apportioned as follows for the year, 1908-09.

a—To each of the two principals schools, $150 per annum—$300.

b—To each of the fifteen assistant teachers, $100 per annum—$1500.

Thus leaves a balance of $450, which your committee considers the board is entitled to use in order to defray certain expenses that were incurred in providing suitable accommodation for the Normal students.

The terms of payment of this grant to the teachers and the amount of each payment will depend upon the method of payment of the said grant by the Education Department.

I would therefore move the adoption of this report.

A prominent scientist and hair specialist emphatically states, and has proven, that any man or woman can have luxuriant, lustrous hair, by using a famous prescription called Parisian Sage.

Parisian Sage is now made and sold in Canada. Wm. Madill, the druggist, is the agent in Peterborough, and the readers of the Review can buy from him for only 50 cents a large bottle.

Wm. Madill knows that Parisian Sage will beautify the hair, cure dandruff and stop falling hair, and that reason he sells it under a guarantee to cure or money back.

DAM BLOWN OUT AT HEAD OF KOSH LAKE TO INCREASE WATER SUPPLY

Electric Light Service is Resumed at Havelock—Town Has Been in Darkness—Other Late News.

The recent rains have enabled the Havelock Electric Light Company to start again giving part of the electric lights. Last week the C.P.R. were given electric lights and on Wednesday the street lights were turned on. On Monday of this week the stores were also illuminated with the power and although the lights are not as yet very good the company expects to give better services in a short time as they have blown the dam out at the head of Lake Kosh and this will make a good deal more water. As soon as the store lights become good and bright, the dwellings will also be given them.

Business at nights was somewhat slackened while there was no street light, as the residents of town were a little scared "to go home in the dark." The citizens have lately had a taste of what life was like before the enterprising Electric Light Company took it into their heads to develop Burns Dam, and when the stores were lighted with oil lamps which threw only a ghostly light and when the people were afraid to venture out in the dark.

ST. JAMES' S.S. SCHOLARS TO MEET IN KING EDWARD SCHOOL

At the meeting of the Sunday School Board last night a communication from Rev. H. M. Manning, pastor at the St. James' church, was read, asking that permission be given to conduct Sunday school in the King Edward school building on Sunday afternoons in the hall on the first floor. It was moved by Messrs. W. H. Hill, and seconded by Dr. Burnham, that the request be granted.

Mr. Hill said that this was really against the rules of the Board, but owing to this case specially demanding assistance he was favorable to granting the request.

The new church will be ready for occupancy at the beginning of March.

BILL METHERAL INJURED AT PORT COLBORNE; FELL 25 FEET FROM A SCAFFOLD

Port Colborne, Dec. 2.—W. J. Metherall, a young machinist, of Peterborough, while working at the Government elevator this morning fell from a scaffold on the tower, a distance of 25 feet, to the dock, landing on his feet. It is thought that with the exception of being badly strained and the shock to his system, Mr. Metheral will suffer no serious results because of the accident.

"Bill" Metheral's friends in this city, where he is widely known, will regret very much to hear of the accident to him. Considering the fact that he fell such a distance he was very fortunate in not meeting with serious injuries. His home is at 474 Aylmer street and he is a son of Mr. Joseph R. Metheral.

CIVIC SERVANTS CASES BEFORE COURT OF APPEAL

A Court of Appeal was held last night to consider appeals against the judgments of the Court of Revision. His Honor Judge Weller presided, the court being held at the city hall.

Mr. G. N. Gordon appeared for fourteen civil servants who are objecting to the income tax levied upon them by the assessors. The case was not concluded and was adjourned until Tuesday evening, December 14th.

The assessor shad an appeal against the action of the Court of Revision in striking off the business tax on J. and W. Metheral's blacksmith shop, and on a part of A. Comstock's property. The judge concurred with the assessors and nullified the action

OFFICIALS WERE GENEROUS TO FIRMS THAT GAVE HELP

By Donations to Campaign.

Marine Inquiry Shows That Profits of Contractors and Dealers Were Large.

Halifax, Dec. 3.—That sensational extravagance characterized the operation of the Marine Department here was the gist of the evidence adduced before Mr. Justice Cassels yesterday.

W. W. Howell & Co., charged the Government 25 per cent. more than other customers. The firm contributed to the political campaign, but the bookkeeper said it was not on that account that they got fat jobs.

They made overcharges because they had dull times during the year, "and when the Government comes along with a job we charge heavily in order to make it pay for the poor times."

Another witness, Hoben, said his profits on Government jobs were sometimes up to 100 per cent.

It also developed that in October about 100 useless employes were taken on because it was always the custom "to put on extra men at election times."

Charles Longard, of Longard Bros., engineers, said;

"The firm's account with the Department amounted to $56,000 for three years. The fact of Agent Parsons not having paid his account had no connection with the Government account, which was their largest."

He had seen Halifax M.P.'s about getting Departmental orders. The firm was on the patronage list.

The firm had done a large amount of work on the steamer Lady Laurier. Prices were fixed after the work was done. He could not say whether the profits would not be 50 per cent. Asked whether they would be 100 per cent. in some cases witness said "No."

Arthur Stevens, bookkeeper for W. W. Howell & Co., marine engineers, was the next witness. Their account was over $28,000 for repairs, etc., to the Lady Laurier. There was no contract. The fixing of profits was left to him as manager and bookkeeper.

Asked whether Parsons had left it to him to fix prices, witness replied he never had any dealings with Parsons except to kick about not getting more work. The Marine and Fisheries Department was their largest account.

Asked how much more was charged the Government than ordinary retail customers, witness replied it was not less than ten per cent. more. It was never to his knowledge more than 25 per cent. more.

The first witness in the afternoon was Capt. C. T. Schmidt. He admitted he got $1,770 from Mr. Drolett for certifying work.

He got a dollar from Longard, as he was "too stiff with him."

He caused one firm to lose a $50,000 job, and they were still friendly.

Mr. Stevens, bookkeeper with W. W. Howell & Co., was called. He told how Mr. Howell had a contract on the Lady Laurier. They did work on the recommendation of the members.

Judge Cassels: Did you pay the members or anybody for the members, or into any fund

"We contributed to a political fund for legitimate purposes."

"Did the people who got these subscriptions from you for the party fund help you to get jobs?"

"I don't think they did. I doubt if they could, or would do much if they could. They got the money and that was all they were interested in."

The members did not know the prices they were to ask.

"Did you get those fat contracts with the fat profits you have spoken of in consideration of the subscriptions to the party fund?"

"I don't think so. We were the only Liberal firm, and with the recommendation of the members were independent."

"What is your reason for making overcharges?"

"We have dull times during the year, and we must make one job pay for another. When the Government comes along with a job we charge heavily in order to make it pay for the poor times. A jobbing shop is a charity shop, and it's only by overcharging on some jobs that we make the whole year pay."

TWO ARE CENSURED

For the Wreck at Bethany—Investigation Has Been Completed.

Toronto, Dec. 3—C.P.R. officials have finished their investigation into the Bethany wreck and have disciplined those who were responsible.

Superintendent Osborne declined to give the names of those to whom blame is attached, but said the men acknowledged their guilt and had been severely dealt with.

It is learned that Conductor Parker and Engineer Johnson of the west bound (extra) crew had each been credited with a portion of the blame and were either dismissed or suspended.

The brakeman who signaled the double-header ahead before the west bound train cleared the siding, it is understood, was exonerated, because he was acting under orders from his conductor.

REAR WHEELS TORN OFF

Runaway on Alymer St. This Morning—Two Waggons Collide.

An exciting runaway took place on Charlotte street this morning about eleven o'clock, when one of Curtis Bros' teams became frightened at the G.T.R. station and started to run. The driver had been unloading bricks on to a train. The infuriated team tore up Almer street and at Charlotte street dashed into a waggon going south and which was owned b Mr. Johny Mervin, and driven by one of his employees.

The rear wheels were torn completely from the waggon, and one wheel was rendere dunfit for further use. The team continued up the street, but was finally stopped at McDonnel street.

PETERBORO' MAN WAS DROWNED

Committed Suicide at Campbellford This Morning by Jumping into Trent River

Special to the Review.

Campbellford, December 3 — This morning between 6.30 and 7 o'clock, Augustus Sawyers, Jr., of Peterborough a hydraulic engineer employed on the canal here disappeared. He was staying at the Queen's hotel and walked out of the front door and to the river's bank. A resident of Campbellford saw him making towards the river which runs just at the back of the hotel. The body has not yet been recovered.

SCARCITY OF WATER STOPPING FACTORIES

The Ottawa River is Lower Than Ever Before in the History of the City.

Peterborough is more than fortunate in that the flow of water in the river, while below the average for this time of year, has not reached such proportions as exists at other points. The river fed by the water stored in the lakes to the north, affords a supply of power that is exceedingly creditable to the arrangement made. At Ottawa, which is the centre of large industries and particularly of the paper trade matters are serious. The river is lower than ever before known in the history of the city. The large paper mills are crippled most seriously and are shut down, so far as water power is concerned. Several of the mills have auxiliary steam plants, but only to such extent as to furnish a partial supply of power. The Review is supplied with paper by Ottawa makers, and in common with others, orders are held up, for want of power to fill them. The paper man writes, over date of yesterday;

"We cannot promise to make shipment for conditions here are extraordinary and unusual, as you will see by the public press. The water is lower than it has ever been known before and power limited.".

The Review has an ample supply of paper of the size known as six pages but very little of that used for eight pages. Under the circumstances subscribers will, until a fresh supply comes in, receive a six page paper instead of the eight pages with which they are familiar. We hope to be supplied early next week with rolls of the regular size.

Along the St. Lawrence River, from which many large factories, power and lighting plants are situated, things are very little different. The flow, fed by Lake Ontario, is gradually falling in volume, and in Montreal the harbor is shallower than for many years. Fortunately the shipping interests will not suffer so seriously as the winter season is at hand, and the close of navigation may come any day.

MUST BE CUT DOWN

Trees in North Country That Were Injured by the Bush Fires.

Special to the Review.

Norwood, Dec. 3.—On account of the recent fires in the northern country, resulting in a large quantity of trees being burned out by root, hundreds of cords of wood must be cut and large quantities of logs taken out for lumber this winter, so as to avoid further serious loss. Already contracts have been let and large numbers of men are, and will be engaged to get the stuff in a marketable condition.

STEAMER HAD A HARD TRIP

St. Catharines, Dec. 3.—The steamer A. D. Davidson, Capt. Sloan, of the Wolvin Line, arrived at Port Dalhousie about 7.30 o'clock yesterday morning, after a hard battle with the elements. A tremendous sea was running all the way up. The trip up occupied 33 hours, while it is usually made under ordinary circumstances in about 12.

When she arrived at Port Dalhousie she was completely covered with about six inches of ice up as high as the pilot-house, and, owing to the heavy coat of ice, was drawing over 15 feet of water forward, and the hot water hose had to be used in order to get rid of it before she could enter the lock.

New York, Dec. 3.—A cable despatch to The American from Glasgow says: Invited by English and Scotch prohibition societies, Mrs. Carrie Nation has taken up quarters in a modest hotel here, preparatory to a campaign of "smashing the drink evil" in the principal cities of the United Kingdom. She expects to make a systematic campaign, beginning with the cities of Glasgow, Dundee and Aberdeen, and embracing Edinburgh and London.

The police have warned Mrs. Nation's friends that she will not be allowed to offer any violence to saloon property or customers.

The express came along and was derailed, and ran off into the switch and collided with a number of flat cars. Engineer H. Crouch was badly bruised and his leg was hurt. Fireman J. Cummings struck a telegraph pole and his left arm was broken. The engine was completely demolished. Two of the flat cars were knocked off the track and demolished by the impact.

ANNA GOULD GETS BACK LAWYER FLAYS COUNT BONI

Paris, Dec. 3.—The Princess de Sagan, who was Miss Anna Gould of New York, had her innings in court yesterday in the hearing of the case brought by her former husband, Count Boni de Castellane, to have the three children of the union placed in the custody of his mother, the Marquise de Castellane.

Without essaying the impassioned oratorical role played by M. Bonnet last week, M. Clemenceau yesterday coolly and calmly, but with cutting irony and keen ridicule, met the accusations brought against the Princess de Sagan, whose character, he insisted, was blameless. He mercilessly scored the reputation and character of Count de Castellane, and said he was wholly unfitted to have the custody of his children. He charged that the real purpose of the count was to raise money and satisfy his vengeance on the Prince and Princess de Sagan, even at the expense of the interests of his children, whose minds he had continually tried to poison.

MANY CANADIANS HONORED BANQUET TO HON. R. LEMIEUX

BUSY TIMES FOR COAL MEN

The coal men are wearing the smile that will not come off. The cold snap of last night made a rush for hurry-up orders this morning, and the coal dealers had no time to talk to any person to-day, and their staffs were kept on the jump all day long. "Hurry up there, don't let your horse's feet touch the ground." one dealer was heard to remark to his teamster. "The rush is on, get busy." It is certainly an ill wind that blows no person good.

GOING TO FIGHT TO THE DEATH

Quebec Liquor Trade Taking Steps to Strengthen Itself.

Montreal, Dec. 3.—At a meeting of the Licensed Victuallers' Association yesterday it was admitted that the temperance campaign in this province had made great headway, and caused a big loss to the trade in Montreal. Prejudice against the liquor trade was on the increase, it was declared, and the association must strengthen itself for protection. Fred Morneau of Windsor, withdrew his plea of not guilty, as an accomplice and pleaded guilty. Sentence was deferred.

Interesting Function a Old London.

Sir Frederick Borden, Hon. Sydney Fisher, Hamar Greenwood and Lord Strathcona Present.

London, Dec. 3.—(C.A.P.)—The Canada Club dined Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux at the Ritz Hotel, under the presidencey of Sir Charles Rivers-Wilson last night.

A distinguished gathering was present, including the Duke of Argyll, Hon. Sydney Fisher, Lord Strathcona, Henniker Heaton, Postmaster-Genera Buxton, Col. Seeley and many othe notable men.

Sir Charles Rivers-Wilson proposed the toast to "The Dominion of Canada," remarking that if the mothe country continued to refuse to mee the advances of Canada in respect to the preference, circumstances migh compel the Dominion to look in another direction, a statement to which there was some dissent.

Lord Strathcona, responding, said he trusted and believed that Canada would never look elsewhere. (Loud applause.)

Sir Frederick Borden, in a happy speech, declared there was no fea that Canada would step aside from her present path of trade. (Hear, hea and applause.)

"We claim the right to dictate and control our own trade policy, and w concede to the statesmen of the mother country the same right. We did not give the preference for the purpose of making a bargain. (Cheers.) Canada had defied her neighbor and conquered. (Loud applause.) Canada's heart was with the mother country and Canada knew if the United State lowered her barriers it would be only for her own convenience." (Hear, hear.)

Going to the question of imperial defence, Sir Frederick asked if Canada was not doing her duty by building up the material for an army while the mother country did that which she was much fitted to do, namely maintaining a navy equal to the two power standard, plus 10 per cent (Applause.)

Mr. Lemieux said happily many things which people did not even suspect came under the observation of traveler.

Lemieux referred to the "intellectual preference," and predicted a volume of British periodicals read in Canada in the near future would reach far greater proportions.

"Let us correspond fearlessly. The imperial penny postage was established for that very purpose.

"We must trade with each other We in Canada have given you the preference. It was a free gift." That policy had benefitted the Canadian consumer. It encouraged trade with Canada's best customer and money lender, and it offered an inspiring example to the rest of the empire. (Loud cheers.)

Mr. Lemieux concluded: "If you come to Canada, by all means come to Quebec, or else you will not have seen Canada. Jean Baptiste is happy, is free. Therefore he is loyal. Nothing could swerve his loyalty to his king. (Cheers.) He values his British citizenship and knows what an asset in his national life is the prestige of the British crown. I conclude in the words of Sir Wilfrid Laurier: 'Between two races old enmities have ceased to exist, now there is nothing more than a spirit of emulation. We are, loyal to the great nation which gave us our life; we are faithful to the great nation which gave us our liberty.'" (Applause.)

Hamar Greenwood proposed the guests, Col. Seely responded, paid a tribute to the services of Lord Strath cona, Hon. Mr. Lemieux and W. L. Mackenzie King, the Empire.

Alexander Bartlett, Windsor's veteran magistrate, has sent in his resignation.

HAYTI'S CHIEF IS BEATEN REBELS TAKE THE CAPITAL

Amid the Jeers of the Populace, President of West Indian Island Takes Refuge on Board a French Training Ship and Revolutionists Are Supreme.

Port au Prince, Hayti, Dec. 3.—President Nord Alexis has been deposed and Port au Prince is in the hands of the revolutionists.

Gen. Antoine Simon, the leader of the insurgents is marching upon the peninsula with an army of 5,000, and Gen. Legitime has been proclaimed the new President.

At the last moment, President Alexis yielded to the urging of those about him and decided to take refuge aboard the French warship. At five o'clock a salute of 21 guns announced his departure from the palace. Thousands had gathered there early in the day and had surged around the entrance threatening to tear down the walls to drive out the President and his loyal followers. As the hours passed, the great mob became infuriated, shouting for him to leave the country. The mob was armed and men and women, beside themselves with rage, heaped curses on the head of the aged man, who had been deposed from the Presidency of the republic, but who had fiercely expressed his determination to fight to the last.

So serious was the situation that the French Minister, M. Carteron, and other foreign representatives, together with members of a specially appointed committee, forced themselves upon the President, who finally consented to withdraw. Shouts greeted him as he stepped from the precincts of the palace and into a carriage, which had been provided. M. Carteron, carrying the French tri-color, sat beside him, and the Minister threw the folds of the flag over the shoulders of the deposed President, to protect him. An immense crowd of men and women had assembled at the wharf, and the arrival of the Presidential carriage, escorted by infantry and a squadron of cavalry under command of Gen. Hippolite, was the signal for wild tumult and riot.

All along the route, the people who lined the streets shouted, jeered and cursed at the fallen President, but when the landing stage was reached, the mob lost all restraint. The scene was tragic and shameful. Infuriated women broke through the cordon of troops and shrieked the coarsest insults into the very face of the President, who strove bravely to appear undismayed.

HELPLESS 3 WEEKS

HANDS COVERED WITH ECZEMA

AMPUTATION FEARED, BUT ZAM-BUK SAVED

"For three long months I was not able to attend to my own needs; and for three weeks the eczema on my hands was so bad that I was unable to feed myself. I had to be fed as one feeds a baby, because I could not hold knife, fork, spoon or cup." So says Miss Violet McSorley, of 73, Gore Street, Sault Ste. Marie, in telling how Zam-Buk cured her of eczema. She adds: "Hands, wrists and arms up to the elbows were covered with eczema. The itching and the soreness were nigh unbearable. As the disease developed, the skin actually peeled off leaving raw sores. The palms, fingers, backs of my hands and wrists were all in this shocking state, and I was forced to sit in agony all the while."

"The raw sores were soon in a foul condition, and my finger nails, all except two, fell off. During the different stages of my trouble, I sought the advice of three different doctors and received treatment, but although getting slight relief at first there was no cure. Amputation was at one time thought necessary but the timely introduction of Zam-Buk prevented this fearful ending."

"Zam-buk was recommended by a friend and we bought a supply. The first few applications gave me a little ease, but it was not until I had continued with it for some time that I felt a decided improvement. After that my cure went on quickly. Zam-Buk did what everything else had failed to do. Now my hands and arms are quite freed from the terrible eczema."

Are you suffering from skin disease? If so, take Miss McSorley's advice and try Zam-Buk.

Zam-Buk cures eczema, ulcers, piles, bad leg, ringworm, festering sores, cuts, bruises, burns, stiffness, poisoned wounds of all kinds, pimples, face and lip sores, bed sores, diseased ankles, and all itching, irritation, and inflammation. Of all druggists and stores, 50 cents a box, or from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for same price. Refuse all cheap and worthless substitutes of the "just as good" type.

THE WARD SYSTEM.

A petition containing a very large number of names is being circulated asking the Council to submit a by-law to the people on January 1st, 1909 respecting a change from the present general system of electing aldermen back to the old ward system. The petition is a long one and contains the signatures of a large proportion of prominent citizens. The arguments against the present system are said to be that a much larger number are nominated by the old way and that better men are therefore available. The present Council is also alleged to be entirely reckless in the matter of going into debt although how this would be changed by a different manner of electing councillors is not furnished.

A BISHOP'S IDEA

"In a sermon preached at St. George's church, Guelph, Bishop DuMoulin spoke strongly against the granting of the voting franchise to women. "Men," said the bishop, "face the sword and pay the taxes. It is fitting that they should control legislation and make laws. Men are needed for all enterprises requiring determination, strength and mental capacity."—Hamilton Herald.

History reveals the fact that women have gained their present liberty by very slow degrees. It has been customary not to regard them seriously in the world of politics, civil strife, mentality or religion. Voting means the entire independence of the voter as an individual. While women apparently in the mass, do not wish to vote, if they realised that voting means at any rate, the right to vote and think and act for themselves, they would change their tune. If women are regarded by men as under their dominion and control it is because women resign themselves to that fate. Not to yield gracefully is therefore to be obstreperous and not to be logical. Women must do one of two things. They must either take an interest in the world's affairs or not. Even if the affairs of the world in the last analysis do depend on force many women could hold their own at that game also. But the proof that women should not vote lies in the fact that they do not appear ready for it. Nevertheless it is a one-sided condition of the body politic which even, if women do not realise it, must receive from men whatever consideration it on its merits deserves. At present women are not the equals of men before the law. Men are as yet, largely their natural as well as legal guardians. Halfway to individual liberty they have faltered and if we are to judge by the pronouncement of Bishop Dumoulin they must stop there.

CANADA'S TRADE

Year by year as a young and enterprising country must, Canada is increasing her productiveness and trade. The following table gives an idea of the trend of that trade.

There is a notable change in the destination of the exports. Great Britain takes the greatest amount with the United States second, and reducing the British lead. The distribution last year is given as follows:—

Great Britain	$134 468,056
United States	113 516,600
France	1 806,732
Germany	2 374,607
Spain	106 594
Portugal	46 665
Italy	349,839
Holland	855 085
Belgium	3 377,479
Newfoundland	3 408,518
West Indies	4,543,889
South America	4 467,584
China and Japan	1 705,901
Australia	2 873,461
Other countries	6 085,396

The value of goods entered for consumption that is passed through the customs into the control of importers, is slightly less than the total reported as imports. The figures by countries are;—

Great Britain	$ 94 959,471
United States	210 652,825
France	9 901,909
Germany	8 163,047
Spain	1,126,977
Portugal	147 256
Italy	781 497
Holland	1,426,335
Belgium	2 380,649
Newfoundland	1,777,649
West Indies	8 300,501
South America	3 068,060
China and Japan	2 905,298
Switzerland	2 734,779
Other countries	10 062,543

THE GLOBE'S CHARGE.

"Conservative newspapers that affect to sneer at the abolition of patronage lists by Liberal Ministers at Ottawa would show sincerity were they to demand the abolition of the extreme patronage system worked under the Whitney Government in Ontario. Never in the whole history of this Province was the power of Government patronage used for party purposes as systematically and as insolently as by Cabinet Ministers in the present Ontario Government.

"As never before the licensing power is used wholly for party purposes and holders of liquor licenses are coerced into doing campaign service. As never before the power of the Crown in the matter of mining claims and timber limits is exercised with party ends in view. As never before the civil service is made part of the campaign machinery. As never before the administration of justice, the most sacred obligation of the Government, is under the gravest suspicion, and the action of the Attorney-General's Department during the recent Dominion elections in responding to a demand for organizers and polling-booth helpers from party friends in Northern Ontario gave just ground for that suspicion. Indeed were protests filed and prosecuted in at least a dozen constituencies there could be revealed a system of coercion and a prostitution of the offices of the Provincial Government in the Federal elections, involving Cabinet Ministers and Conservative candidates and members of Parliament, such as might surprise and possibly shock even the smug hypocrisy of the Toronto Conservative journals.

"From what is known of the facts in several constituencies not even partisan administration of Ontario justice could hide the corruption and criminality in which some Conservative and party leaders were involved in the recent Dominion elections."—The Globe.

If there is one thing more than another that we admire it is a man or a journal that has convictions and is not afraid to express them. If one-tenth of what the Globe sets forth in the above leading editorial of that journal is true, the government of Sir James Whitney is a very breeding-ground of moral leprosy and political crookedness. The Globe's attack leaves no doubt as to the Globe's meaning and in the case of a journal of the Globe's standing and importance demands an effective reply. As for ourselves we do not believe one word of it but we do believe that the Globe is sincere in its denunciation and is worthy of reply. That journal may well be taken to represent the Liberal party in Ontario if not in Canada and since the Liberal minority in the present legislature is not large enough even to make itself heard, the demands of a more powerful representative should be acceded to. There is hardly a doubt that Sir James Whitney will feel insulted by the inclusive and violent character of the Globe's charges. It is true that the Globe offers no evidence. It is even open to the counter charge of seeking to draw a herring across the scent in the Judge Cassels' inquiry which shows how bad the Laurier administration really can be, and in the case of the horrors of Port Arthur where a tram-load of young men appear to have been drugged into a condition of moral insensibility and then conveyed to the poll. But that is neither here nor there. The Globe is violent but explicit. It should be required to be specific also and to furnish particulars at least to some extent and then a commission should be appointed, for if the Ontario Government is half as bad as the Laurier government it should be wiped out of existence. We have a right to expect more and better of it than from the aggregation at Ottawa. In this district there is no ground for the Globe's charges. That we can say with positiveness but what the Globe knows might, if it were revealed, shock us. At any rate a true Conservative has an open and a just mind. There must, as the Globe demands be no compromise with wrong-doing anywhere, at any time or on any pretence. In itself such a proceeding is worse than anything that could be alleged against it. Does the Globe seek a Commission?

AN OUNCE OF EXPERIENCE.

"All land reformers should note what the Globe calls 'a great and peaceful revolution which is about to take place in Russia.' It is no less than a revolutionary change from land held in common by the villages to individual ownership. In England, the tendency would seem to be the other way. The Globe gives the main points thus:

"The Duma has just begun to discuss a Bill brought forward by the Government for the abolition of the landed property held in common by the villages and for the emancipation of the Russian peasant from the 'mir.' The present system dates from 1861, when the Czar Liberator, Alexander II abolished the serfdom of the peasants, and made them proprietors of village lands held in common. The plan had no doubt much to recommend it, but in practice it has proved less satisfactory than in theory, and therefore the Duma has greeted with enthusiasm M. Stolypin's scheme for the abolition of the 'mirs,' and the creation of agriculture based on personal property.

"A very large number of speakers took part in the preliminary debate, and the general opinion is that collective property has had its day in Russia, and must now be replaced by private property. It was pointed out that it is not the size of an estate, but consciousness of individual ownership and the consequent pride of effort which makes a rural population get the best out of the land. While the village fields were held in common it was no man's business to do his utmost in them. Each did what he was forced to do and no more.

"This far-reaching and revolutionary proposal seems to be accepted by all classes in Russia as affording the best hope for the rural population, whose sullen discontent has been a very principal cause of the unrest in Russia. The great reform of the Czar Liberator has served its purpose, and now the Duma is about to carry the liberation of the peasant a step further by making him the individual proprietor of his holding."

The preceding extract from the London (Eng.) Globe contains material of considerable significance. The socialistic idea is in reality the managing of everything within the State by the State. Its war-cry is the suppression of the individual as such. Russia has tried the alleged remedy and found it impossible. Russia is unique in that she has had an autocracy and socialistic democracy at one and the same time. Beyond all doubt the moral qualities of an individual are not negligeable quantities. It is impossible to affirm that only the physical or the communal are worthy of notice. The moral is really the most important of all by far, even on material grounds as the Russian case shows. The last battle fought on the globe will be for the liberty of the individual.

EDITORIAL NOTES

The sale of Cochrane town site lots have brought the Ontario Government a nice little nest egg of $50,000, which shows what the people gain by having a government that plays the people's game instead of the speculators'.—Exchange.

The local customs authorities are not inclined to give out the amount of the customs receipts at the local port of entry. The excuse for this "patriotic" line of conduct is understood to be that the said receipts are enormously low. Of course, if they are so low as that the less said about them the better. But we doubt its wisdom all the same.

The resolve of the Central Conservative Association at Toronto to enter 36 protests in Ontario and an equal number elsewhere is a good one. The people can never be supposed to have given expression to a free choice in the late general contest. Nothing but a wholesale investigation will ever satisfy the people of Ontario at least.

We would suggest to the president of the Canadian Club, Mr. Daniel O'Connell, the entire fitness of his giving the public an address over the banquet-table, himself, this winter. He is a man of altogether exceptional ability as a speaker and one who has ideas. We know many who would welcome an opportunity of hearing him. If we were pressed for a subject we would suggest "Law and Life" being an explanation of the working relationship of our daily life and the laws that we have made to govern it. "The new cosmic theory of the Deluge" is so wonderful as to excite intense admiration and so educative as to form an easy basis of considerable geological knowledge. We are in need of a brain tonic in Peterborough and the president can very easily give us one.

FRUIT JUICES CLEAR THE SKIN
The skin mirrors faithfully the state of the blood, and the blood shows how well—or how badly—the liver, bowels, kidneys and the millions of tiny glands in the skin are doing their work. If these organs are not properly clearing out the waste matter, the blood will be poisoned and the skin sallow, "muddy" and sprinkled with pimples.
Plenty of ripe fruit helps more than any other food to cure this condition, but even more effective, as well as less expensive, are "Fruit-a-tives." These are little tablets of concentrated fruit juices, combined in such a way as to many times increase their action on those organs that eliminate impurities. One or two "Fruit-a-tives" a day will keep the blood pure and give the skin the clear glow of health. 25c for trial size box—50c for regular size—6 for $2.50. Dealers everywhere should have both sizes. If you are unable to obtain "Fruit-a-tives" in your neighborhood, they will be sent on receipt of price. Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

SPORTING NEWS

SHRUBB DID THE MILE AND A HALF IN 6 MINS. 45 SEC.

Alfred Shrubb was the winner last night again in his relay race against local men at the roller rink. He ran a mile and a half, 30 laps, against a field of three and won by a lap, gaining it on the first man he started against, Dick Webb. The other starters were W. J. Montgomery and Fred Hatcher. Shrubb made the distance in faster time than he did the night before, negotiating it in 6.45.

To-night he makes his last appearance here and he will run against a relay again. Manager Genne, of the roller rink, is trying to get several men to start against him. Quite a number are expected to be in attendance as quite a percentage of the public will probably want to see the world's champion at work before he leaves the city.

CONSTITUTION ADOPTED FOR THE JUNIOR CITY LEAGUE

A meeting of the Peterborough Junior City League was held last evening in the YMCA. parlors with the following teams represented:

The Chieftains, by Harry Munroe; the Otonabee Athletic Club, by G. Harris; the PCJ., by Harry Hall, and the George street Methodist church, by Stanley Wade.

Secretary-Treasurer J. D. Clarke, occupied the chair.

The constitution of the Senior City League was adopted with the erasing of a number of the clauses, viz.,

First, that any player eligible to play in the Junior City League will be allowed to participate in two Junior OHA. games and that the Chieftains be allowed to graft players from the league.

Second, That the players be allowed to play in the Church League.

It was also decided that the Senior League be approached as to whether they will allow the Junior League to use the rink the hour preceding the senior games, and the juniors in return must sell 100 tickets for the Senior League to defray the expenses.

Another meeting will be held on the 15th when a schedule will be drawn up.

Each team must have it entrance fee paid before the next meeting.

THE BANKERS TAKE THREE STRAIGHT FROM THE GREYS

The Bankers last night defeated the Greys three straight games at the Peterborough Ten-Pin League, and now have a clear lead in the race for the silverware with six games won and none lost. The Bankers were up all the way and at no stage was the result in doubt until the last game, when the Greys worked better together and gave the Bankers a hard run for the odd contest, losing out by fifteen pins only.

Ferguson once more carried off the high single and high total with Ford a good second.

Owing to the admission of the Exam. B. and Midgets, the schedule has been re-arranged and the Look Works will meet the Midgets tonight instead of Hutch's Hems. Their game with the latter will be played off next week. To-morrow night a double-header will probably be played, Martin meeting B.A.C., while the Hems and Exam. B. will fight it out. On Saturday night Exam. B. will meet the Midgets.

Last night's scores follow:—

ANOTHER TURK AT MONTREAL

Manigoff Will Meet de Rouen Tomorrow Night at Graeco-Roman.

Montreal, December 3— Manigoff, the Turk, who will wrestle Raoul de Roue at Sohmer park, Montreal, tomorrow night, arrived here Tuesday and will thus have four days in which to rest up after his long trip across continent. Manigoff looks promising and his record is a good one. Like all the Turks he is first of all a catch as catch can man, but several years in Europe gave him opportunities to learn the Graeco-Roman and now he has no preference as to the style at which he wrestles. He is an Asiatic Turk, a class which has sent better men to the big wrestling centres than European Turkey whence came Yusaiff Mahmout. The match tomorrow night will be at Graeco-Roman best two out of three falls to a finish, and the new Turk is not likely to repeat the trick of the other fellow in refusing to go through with the match.

SPORTING TALK

Lindsay is now thinking of having a junior town league.

The tournament at the Majestic Bowling alleys will be completed tonight.

Perhaps no game has grown more popular in the past year than bowling has. In fact it seems to take well in all parts of the province. It certainly is a splendid game and deserves prosperity.

When Longboat marries Miss Marsels, of Deseronto, he will marry into a family that numbers well into the hundreds. Relationships on the Mohawk Reservation are counted to the tenth and twelfth cousins, and nearly everyone on the Reserve is related to everyone else. Tom will have a number of loyal rooters.

RUNNING

NEW YORK'S CHOICE

New York, December 3—When Longboat and Dorando meet in their twenty-five mile (26 miles 385 yards) race at Madison Square Garden, December 15 speculative talent will be out in full force. Longboat has been looked upon as the greatest distance runner in the world. His failure to win in London, would, it is said make an interesting tale if the facts could be learned.

But since the London race Longboat has turned professional and with two weeks' training he should take the measure of the Italian.

INDIAN FAVORITE

Longboat is a natural runner. Indians have been known to run for days at a time. And this young redskin has inherited the speed of his forefathers. Consequently it is predicted that if Longboat, Hayes and Dorando were to run twenty-five miles across country the Indian would win by at least five minutes.

If there is any betting on the coming event it is believed Longboat will be the favorite.

London Daily Mail.—The Amateur Athletic Association, in view of the unfair and untrue statements published in a section of the American press concerning the conduct of the Olympic games, have issued a statement answering in detail the matters complained of.

A number of specific charges were made by J. B. McCabe. In the first place, he said that the heats were drawn to suit the English competitors, who thus got walks-over; when the Americans protested no attention was paid to them. He further added that some of the officials actually swore at the Americans. The reply to both these charges is an absolute denial. The heats were drawn in the usual way.

With regard to the disqualification of Carpenter in the four hundred metres race, the opinion of the judges that Carpenter should be disqualified for wilfully obstructing Lieutenant Halswell in the course was unanimous.

A statement made by Mr. McCabe that at the conclusion of the Marathon race two of the officials hit Hayes as he was coming up to the tape is characterized as "a disgraceful falsehood," and a denial is also given to the assertion that the English team in the tug-of-war had specially prepared shoes with prongs at the toes and heel plates like small horse-shoes in the heel.

As to Mr. J. E. Sullivan's charge that the officials were the most prejudiced and unfair in the world, an ample and sufficient reply, in the A. A. A.'s opinion, is the fact that no protest or objection as to the conduct of the games was made by any of the other twenty nations, while, on the contrary, very many letters have been received congratulating them on the efficient manner in which they were carried out, and expressing thanks for the generous treatment accorded to the competitors.

A number of minor complaints were made by Mr. Gustavus T. Kirby in a pamphlet published in New York. He complains that in the pole vault a hole was not allowed for the pole, to which the reply is that this is contrary to our rules and also to the rules of other nations competing.

Another complaint is that the officials refused to permit Sherman to compete in the broad jump because he was not present at the roll call, when during roll call he was actually running in the 200 metres dash. It is now stated, however, that Mr. Sherman was informed that if he had notified the judges that he was competing in the 200 metres he would have been transferred to another section in the jump.

THE GHOST OF LOCHRAIN CASTLE

BY MRS. C. N. WILLIAMSON

Author of "The Princess Passes," "The Lightning Conductor," Etc., Etc.

Copyright, 1908, by Mrs. C. N. Williamson.

Slowly the girl went on toward her own room, wondering how she was to accomplish what she wanted, now that she was no longer on pleasant terms with Mr. McGowan, and now that her odd friendship with Mr. Grant was at end. Suddenly, however, she thought of Mrs. Warden, the housekeeper. Perhaps if she described the man she had just met (she did not mean to refer to the stranger meeting) the old woman would know whether or not there was such a guest in the Hydro.

She turned back, therefore, and found her way to the housekeeper's room, which she had had occasion to visit once or twice before.

Mrs. Warden was there, and as she had heard of the accident, Elspeth had to tell her all about it, before she could hope to obtain any satisfaction on another subject. Indeed, the old housekeeper flattered herself that Miss Dean must have come to her room for the express purpose of giving the details. Elspeth gathered this from Mrs. Warden's naive thanks, and it was not worth while to hurt her feelings by disabusing her of the impression. Accordingly the girl did not contradict her, but merely said, "By-the-bye, I just met in the hall a middle-aged man with a short, grizzled beard, wonderfully brilliant dark eyes, and features rather like Captain Oxford's. I never met him before, and I wonder if he can be stopping at the hotel. Can you tell from my description of him?"

Mrs. Warden looked puzzled and shook her head. "Indeed, I can't, Miss," said she. "There are plenty of gentlemen with short, grizzled beards, but I don't remember any one with particularly brilliant eyes."

"You would remember, if you had seen his," broke in Elspeth.

"Perhaps I should, Miss," said Mrs. Warden. "But as for his looking like Captain Oxford, I don't think I've ever yet seen that young gentleman, though I've heard plenty about him from one person or another."

"Surely you must have seen him," Elspeth persisted. "He's extremely good-looking."

"Then I'm sure I haven't. I don't call any of the young gentlemen in the hotel extremely good looking, though some of them are well enough in their way. But you see Captain Oxford arrived only a day or two before you did, Miss, and almost ever since he came he's kept in his room, or maybe been in Mr. Kenrith's suite, except when Mr. Kenrith's had him out in the motor car. I've never happened to be anywhere about, when he was on view, as you might say, and I don't know that I've had any particular curiosity, though the gossip of the servants' hall is that he's dead in love with that beautiful young lady, the Countess of Lambart's daughter."

"Well, I'm afraid you can't tell me any thing about this mysterious newcomer then," said Elspeth, disappointed; "for the only way in which I can describe him accurately is by saying that he looks something as Captain Oxford may look, twenty-five or thirty years from now."

She rose, and Mrs. Warden, who fain would have kept her for a pleasant little gossip, could not persuade her to stay.

This evening the tower room seemed gloomy, as it had never seemed before, even during the ghastly experiences which had so severely tried Elspeth's nerves. It would be hers but for a fortnight longer. She must go, and she did not know where.

How she had admired this room a week ago, and how proud she had been of it! How she had enjoyed the thought of all the nice books whose gilded covers winked at her from behind glass doors. How her courage had risen to the task of finding a solution for all the mysteries unassisted by any one. Now she would go away and never know the explanation.

Worst of all, what would Mr. Kenrith think when he heard, perhaps from Mr. McGowan, that she had behaved so foolishly that she had been asked to resign.

She had not dared let herself dwell upon this thought before, but now it overwhelmed her, and the long restrained torrent of her tears burst forth. She could eat no dinner, nor could she sleep that night, though she was undisturbed by any influence outside her own mind.

Her head ached when she rose in the morning, and she was glad to hear the knock which told her that the servant had arrived with tea and breakfast. She was not hungry, but the tea would do her good, she thought.

The man came in and placed the tray on the table, but having done so, he lingered. "There's been a terrible thing happened in the night, miss," said he, with that unctuous enjoyment of the sensational so often seen among persons of his class, "Lady Ardcliffe and Countess Radepolskoi have both been robbed of all their jewels."

CHAPTER XII.

Had Elspeth herself been in the plot and learned thus suddenly of its discovery she could hardly have been more startled than she was by the news of the robbery.

Yesterday Mr. Kenrith had lost his jewels in the most mysterious circumstances; and now Lady Ardcliffe and Countess Rodepolskoi had been robbed. It was at least a strange coincidence that these events had followed so quickly one upon the other.

Elspeth felt as if she were groping in the dark for a master key which could open all doors and lead her at length into the hidden place where the secret of these mysteries lay. It was as if she caught a glimpse of that key, shining through the twilight, and then, just as she put out her hand, it vanished again.

The servant could embroider his story with very few details. He knew only that the robbery had not been discovered until morning. The maid of the Countess and the maid of Lady Ardcliffe had given the alarm, and it was said that the two ladies must have been chloroformed, as the atmosphere of their rooms was still heavy with the drug.

When Elspeth discovered that the man had little real information, she did not encourage him to stay and gossip, but hurried through her breakfast, and went out to learn what she could for herself.

She was scarcely surprised to see Lady Ardcliffe and the Countess both in the great hall, talking earnestly to Mr. McGowan. No one else had appeared as yet, for it was very early, and there had scarcely been time for the exciting news of the robbery to spread through the hotel.

Charles McNeil, of Gananoque, was fined $15 for shooting a neighbor's dog.

CURLERS HOLD FIRST MEETING IN THEIR FINE NEW RINK

Mr. T. F. Matthews Elected Secretary—Bonspiel May be Held Here Soon—Ladies Will be Allowed to Curl This Winter.

The first meeting of the Peterborough Curling Club in the new rink was held last night, the most important business being the election of a new secretary. There was a good attendance of curlers.

The lighting system has been installed and splendid illumination provided for every portion of the rink. The light is a clear white one, and will no doubt give the greatest satisfaction. The heating plant at the rink is also an excellent one.

President C. N. Brown was in the chair, and Secretary Waddell read the minutes of the last meeting.

NEW SECRETARY.

Mr. Waddell stated that he would not be able to accept the office of secretary again, as he had that office for three years.

Much regret was expressed at Mr. Waddell's retirement from office.

On motion of Mr. T. F. Matthews and Mr. W. E. Talbot, Mr. Harry Foote was nominated but he could not accept. Several others were nominated, but all withdrew.

Gerald Rackham, J. H. Ferguson, George Giroux and Dr. Wightman were all nominated.

Mr. J. H. Ferguson was finally elected secretary of the Peterborough Curling Club.

SELECTION OF SKIPS.

It was suggested by the President that a committee be appointed to nominate the skips.

Mr. Matthews suggested that the skips be selected in open meeting and that a committee from those skips be appointed to arrange the rinks and to be be very careful that all the old players are not put on the same rinks. This was also adopted and also the skip will choose his own vice-skip.

Moved by R. Hicks, seconded by Mr. Brightman that all the skips who were elected last year and who are on the membership roll this year be re-elected with power to add to their number.—Carried.

The suggestion that the ladies be allowed to curl met the approval of the meeting. The fee was fixed at a dollar, and ladies wishing to curl will have the use of the ice in the mornings and afternoons.

A letter was received from the secretary of the Belleville Curling Club asking for the views of Peterborough on the proposal to form an Eastern Ontario Curling Association with Port Hope as the western limit, Lindsay the northern, and Prescott as the eastern, and that annual bonspiels be held. He is communicating with the other clubs in the district.

On motion of T. F. Matthews and Mr. Brightman, the communication was received and action deferred to another meeting.

SCHEDULE COMMITTEE.

The following were elected as a Schedule Committee;—Messrs. Giroux, Foote and J. H. Ferguson.

PETERBOROUGH BONSPIEL.

Considerable discussion was aroused when the Peterborough bonspiel for this season was mentioned. It has been the desire for a long time to hold a big bonspiel here, and especially now that the curlers have such a handsome rink. No doubt it would be quite an attraction and many outside clubs would no doubt be glad to receive an invitation to take part in it.

On the other hand it was pointed out that as there were a great many new members this year who would wish to practice for a year before entering a bonspiel, and also that as many were obligewd to pay an increased fee for membership and to buy a new pair of stones, that they would not be willing to stand the expense.

Some thought the club should be content this season to work up enthusiasm in the local club and to interest as many outside towns as possible to come here for friendly games. That would introduce the rink and go a long way towards advertising the next year's bonspiel. As a matter of fact, with some thirty local rinks a very good bonspiel could be held here without the additional expense.

There were many in favor of the bonspiel idea, so the matter was laid over until another meeting.

The Ontario District Tankard Cup won last year by H. F. Foote's rink, was presented to the club, along with a framed photo of the rink. The presentation was made by Mr. W. H. Ferguson on behalf of the skip, and it was acknowledged by the President, and by a motion moved by Mr. H. R. H. Kenner.

The members of the successful rink were Messrs. M. G. Tooley, D. Hall, R. M. Waddell and H. F. Foote, skip. The trophy is a very handsome one and will be a very valuable addition to the club's collection.

A case will be purchased by the club in which to keep the trophy.

A meeting of the skips will be held next Wednesday night.

FOUR NEW MEMBERS WILL HAVE TO BE RE-ELECTED

There are four members of the Board of Education who will have to be re-elected at the coming January elections. They are Messrs. Robert Fair chairman of the board, B F Ackman and W S Robinson and Dr. Morrison. With the exception of Mr Robinson these men have served long terms on the school board, and all four have done splendid work in the interests of education in the city.

It is not known definitely whether they will stand for re-election or not but it is rumored that there will be severa aspirants for school board honors.

"Somebody must have doped me," he said "because I went to sleep and knew nothing more until I woke up in the cell."

HAVE YOU DECIDED?

ON what you are going to give him for Christmas. Say he is your son—perhaps he is your big brother—or he may be your father—there is a chance too that he is your lover—never mind who he is, you want to give him something on the "One Day of The Year" that he will appreciate, something that will be a lasting remembrance throughout 1909 and even longer. Let us suggest something that we know a man, no matter what his tastes may be, will be pleased with and will make him carry pleasant thoughts for an unlimited time of the giver. FATHER GALVIN AT PORT HOPE

Lectured on the Greatness of the Roman Catholic Church—A Large Audience Heard the Address.

The Port Hope Guide says:

A large audience assembled in the CMBA hall on Monday evening to listen to the address delivered by Rev. Father Galvin of Peterborough. The duties of chairman were ably performed by Mr John A. Breen, who introduced the speaker of the evening.

The Rev. lecturer, after having dwelt upon the pleasure and profit to be derived from the study of history, pointed out the important role played by the Roman Catholic church in the history of mankind. He cited several authorities, among others, Macaulay, Gladstone and Johnston, showing that her influence had been paramount not only as regards her special mission, but in all those matters that tended to the enlightenment and material well being of men. In the first ranks of the army of the church were the monks, men who hearkening to the words of their Divine Master, "If thou wilt be perfect, go sell what thou hast and give to the poor, and come follow Me," bound themselves by the triple vow of poverty, chastity and obedience. He traced the growth of the monasteries from the hermit's cells of the second century to the magnificent structures that in the days of St. Bernard, dotted every country in Europe. The rule of St. Benedict then exercised a greater influence on the policy of Europe than the constitution of any civil government.

What the monks have done in teaching the science of agriculture to the peasantry in the education of youth, in the domains of art, science and mechanical invention and in the preservation of the classics of Greece and Rome, and especially of the Written Word of God, was briefly considered. Special emphasis was laid upon the fact, that while there was laxity in some quarters among them, no men had so illustrated in their lives the science of self-sanctification, or had left to posterity so many illustrious examples of sanctity. The monasteries were the asylums of the poor, and their wanton destruction has added to the miseries of the class the one ones of whose care, as is the care in England today, has been thrown upon the government.

A hearty vote of thanks to Father Galvin for his eloquent and instructive address was moved in a few well chosen words by Mr Alick Gordon and ably seconded by Mr. James McBrady.

The injured man was conveyed to the house and Dr White was summoned. The wound required ten stitches and today Mr Thornton is resting comfortably, although suffering somewhat from the blow received.

A girl who was guiding a party through the Pennsylvania mountains, lost her way. She came upon some cows, and knowing the cows must be somewhere near human habitations she twisted their tails and followed them home safely. Now if these cows had been mules and she had twisted their tales, there would eb a very different story to tell.

Lindsay Has Hopes of Securing Such an Institution

Lindsay, Dec. 2.—The Board of Education will hold a meeting at four o'clock this afternoon to confer with Mr. Merchant, a government school inspector, on the advisability of instituting a permanent model school in Lindsay.

The model school if the suggestion is acceptable to the board, will probably be taught by Principal Broderick of the Public schools, and will be for the purpose of preparing teachers for a third-class certificate. The demand for teachers has raised the wages and graduates from the model school would not receive as high salaries as a Normal School graduate. The system would be advantageous to the poorer school sections in one way at least, viz., that a high salary would not have to be paid for a teacher.

POST WRONG AGAIN.

The Lindsay Post says;—The Peterborough Review, accuses the Post of being hasty and unwise in accusing the electric city turf club of arranging the date of their winter meet on the same dates as the Lindsay races. Not a bit hasty, dear Review. The date of the winter races had been announced in the Toronto papers a week ago and there was no mention of the Peterborough meet. Three years ago Peterborough, it is claimed, tried to take the dates of Port Perry and Lindsay and held out inducements to horsemen to come to Peterborough but they were beaten out on that game. Lindsay and Port Perry are on the racing circuit and Peterborough knows it and they are now knocking at the door for admission. Lindsay racing association will stand by their dates and already a great many communications have been received from well known horsemen. Three fast ones from Pennsylvania are already booked.

The Post should take an eye-opener. It says the Lindsay races were announced a week ago in the Toronto papers. The Peterborough races were announced three weeks ago or more not in the Toronto papers, it is true, but newspaper writers in Peterborough, and not the Turf Club, are correspondents for the Toronto dailies.

THE RETIREMENT OF DR. DAWSON

From Office of King's Printer---Is Father of Peterboro' Lady

In connection with the retirement from the office of King's Printer, of Dr. Dawson, who is the father of Mrs J. H. Larmonth of this city, the Globe has the following editorial comment today;

The retirement of Dr. Dawson from the office of King's Printer at Ottawa, is an event of some public interest. He was for many years engaged in the bookselling trade, and in that capacity he enjoyed the friendship and esteem of the litterateurs of Canada, of whose charmed circle he was himself a member. He published, while still following his early calling, a critique and appreciation of Tennyson's "Princess." This little volume is unique in its way, its aim being to set forth the merits of that curious but beautiful poem, and to reveal its philosophy so far as there is one traceable to its text. Some remarks in the first edition elicited from Tennyson the well-known letter which has been embalmed by the poet's son in his biography, and which was first published by Dr. Dawson in his second edition.

INJURED MAN WILL RECOVER

Simcoe Constable's Injuries Not Likely to Prove Serious.

Simcoe, Dec. 3.—Constable Wilkins, who was murderously attacked in Lynwood Park early Tuesday morning, is holding his own and Dr. Stanton, who is attending him said last night that he would likely recover. There is the danger, however, that blood poisoning may set in.

Chief Malone, who was arrested for the shooting, made a statement yesterday, declaring that he was at home when the shooting occurred. He stoutly maintains his innocence.

Malone's hearing takes place Saturday. So far as can be ascertained, no bail has been asked for.

His defence will evidently take the form of an alibi.

Charred Bones Found.

Brockville, Dec. 3.—Crown Attorney Brown was communicated with yesterday by the reeve of the Township of Augusta as to the advisability of holding an inquest on a charred skeleton found in the woods by James Vout, near Algonquin.

A coroner of the vicinity was called, and an inquest was not thought to be necessary, in which the crown attorney concurred.

Many years ago Mrs. C. Bolton, an elderly resident of North Augusta, mysteriously disappeared from her home, and, though diligent search was made no trace of her could be found. The story goes that she was last seen in the vicinity of Vout's woods, which she is supposed to have entered and died from exhaustion, having then traveled many miles. The portions of the skeleton found have been accepted by relatives as those of Mrs. Bolton, and they were buried yesterday in the family plot at North Augusta.

Galt, Dec. 3.—The first meeting in a campaign conducted by Dr. Geo. W. Porter, under the auspices of the Canadian Association for the Prevention of Tuberculosis, was held yesterday afternoon at the City Hall.

Pugsley of Montreal, for the organization of the Canadian Palace Car Co., with a capitalization of $1,500,000, to manufacture in Canada parlor, dining and sleeping cars, on rights obtained from the American Parlor Car Co. of New York.

Read Is Elected.

Charlottetown, P.E.I., Dec. 3.—At Summerside yesterday on the casting vote of the sheriff as returning officer, Capt. Joseph Read was declared elected for the fourth division of Prince. The election was a tie.

This makes the standing of the parties as follows: Liberals 17, Conservatives 12, with A. A. Arsenault claimed to be disqualified.

Alleged Forger Arrested.

Montreal, Dec. 3.—W. J. Wilds is under arrest, charged with forgery. He has been acting as agent for the Imperial and other insurance companies, and as such had as partner a young man named Albert Chartier, 24 years of age. The charge is that Wilds forged the name of his partner's mother to a check for $816.21.

Find Body In Shed.

London, Dec. 3.—The body of an unknown man was found by the mourners at the funeral of Jacob Swartz in a shed at the Jewish cemetery Tuesday.

It is thought that the man was a tramp, and becoming exhausted had gone into the shed to die, and had locked the door after him.

Public Utilities Board.

Montreal, Dec. 3.—There was a conference at the mayor's office yesterday over the establishment in Montreal of a public utilities board.

Difficulties have arisen between the city and the Montreal Light, Heat & Power Co. over the contract for the lighting of the streets.

Schoolboy's Modest Request

Washington Star.

Secretary of the Navy Metcalf recently received a letter from an active and interested member of a schoolboy debating society in Washington modestly requesting a few little bits of information to help him out. Here's the letter:—

"Having a small school debate to prepare for Friday, Nov. 20th. the subject being one on which you could give me a few strong points. It is: 'Is it the interest of the United States to increase their navy?' I am on the negative side.

"If you would kindly send me a list of the battleships and the cost of each, and how this money could be otherwise used to better the welfare of the United States and if you don't think they have enough battleships already built to protect the coast because they have not much commerce to protect.

"And if you think of any strong points which would be on the negative side if you would kindly mention them, I will be very much obliged for your trouble."

ANARCHY FOLLOWS FLIGHT OF THE HAYTIAN RULER

Looting and Disorder Now Prevail.

Robbery and Violence Perpetrated---Twelve Killed in Rioting.

Port au Prince, Dec. 4.—For many hours during the night following the flight of the President, Nord Alexis, riot and pillage prevailed in Port au Prince.

The populace, maddened by the spirit of revolt, gave full vent to their passions. They looted stores and residences and fought among themselves over the booty, and were only held in check by the armed forces hastily gathered together by Gen. Perdevin, which fired a volley into the mob, and finally drove the rioters into seclusion.

In all 12 persons were killed and many wounded before order was restored. A committee of public safety placed scores of citizens under arms yesterday and comparative tranquility now reigns.

American, French and German ministers have jointly given notification that if disorders commenced again they would land forces from the warships. Those already here were reinforced at daybreak by the United States gunboat Eagle and British cruiser Scylla.

Nord Alexis, the deposed President, spent a restless night on board the French training ship Duguy Trouin. He has been the object of much consideration on the part of the commander of the ship and other officers. There is something in the wonderful virility of the fallen President that holds the admiration. Past 90 years—now many years beyond that mark nobody knows—Nord Alexis faced his foes with the strength and determination of a man in the very prime of life.

The sentiment of the people is strong in favor of Gen. Simon, and he will probably be elected President, if the chambers can be assembled without delay. Gen. Simon has arrived at Greasier, which is only about 12 miles distant. He has a strong army under him, and will enter the city on Friday morning.

A great quantity of stolen articles have been taken to the central police station, and about 150 looters, men and women, have been arrested. The last body of troops which were stationed at the cross-roads, the division under Gen. Milionaird, passed through the city yesterday, with their arms, munitions and several heavy guns, on their way to the south. The authorities did not dare to disarm them, fearing they would resist. Three divisions were at one time entrenched at the cross-roads for the purpose of checking the advance of the revolutionists from the south, but they were greatly depleted by desertions, until there remained only a fraction of the original army.

Ald. Bradburn reported to this effect at the meeting of the City Council last night, and recommended that the offer be accepted. On motion, the recommendation was adopted.

SHE MUST GIVE BACK THE RING

Windsor, Dec. 4.—Ferdinand C. Bellemore, manager of a local drug store, alleges that on Christmas, 1903, he became betrothed to Miss Whitely, and bestowed upon her a diamond ring as a sign of the contract. Miss Whitely is said to have hypothecated the ring to wipe out an obligation, and when the engagement was broken off Mr. Ferdinand was told to get his ring the best way he could. He decided to sue for recovery. Yesterday Mr. A. R. Bartlett, acting judge in the Division Court decided that the ring must be returned to Bellemore. It is said the judge found a precedent for his decision in a similar case brought during the reign of Charles II.

WILKINS IS IMPROVING

Barring Unforseen Accidents Injured Simcoe Officer Will Recover.

Simcoe, Dec. 4.—Constable Wilkins, who was murderously attacked in Lynwood Park early Tuesday morning, is reported as resting easily, and is able to turn in his bed. The bullet wounds in his back are progressing nicely and no danger is looked for from these unless pus should form.

Dr. Edgar of Hamilton has been communicated with as to whether it is advisable to remove the left eye immediately or if the operation should be delayed for a few days. If no poison is communicated from the wounded eye and no inflammation of the brain results from the operation, there is hope of Wilkins' recovery.

GREAT LIBRARY ON SALE LORD AMHERST'S RARE BOOKS

London, Dec. 4.—The dispersal of the famous library of Lord Amherst of Hackney, one of the greatest book sales of modern times, began in London yesterday afternoon and attracted biographers and collectors from all parts of the world.

This magnificent collection was brought together during the past half century, at a great cost in money and labor, and it is being sold in consequence of the heavy financial losses entailed by Lord Amherst through an attorney who got away with a trust fund, of which Lord Amherst was trustee, to the extent of $1,250,000.

At a private sale on Wednesday 15 fine Caxtons were disposed of, supposedly to J. Pierpont Morgan, but numerous treasures still are left, and the bidding yesterday was spirited. The celebrated Mazarin Bible was sold to a London dealer for $10,250, while the "Apocalipsis Scannis," an original block book of the Low Countries, brought $10,000. This same volume was auctioned at the Crawford sale in 1887 and brought $2,500.

King Charles' copy of the Cambridge Bible brought $5,000. A total of almost $50,000 was realized yesterday from the sale of 150 lots.

THE WRECK AT PEMBROKE

One Killed and Three Hurt—Some Later Details.

Pembroke, Dec. 4.—A head-on collision yesterday morning at 8 o'clock on the C. P. R. main line one and a half miles east of Pembroke, one man was killed and three injured, viz.:

Fred Rowe, Ottawa, C.P.R. engineer, instantly killed.

R. Crawford, Ottawa, fireman, leg injured.

Baggageman, sprained knee.

Engineer Nagle, Smith's Falls, bruised.

A locomotive in charge of Nagle and Fireman Patton of Carleton Place was running light easterly, while the passenger train was westbound, both at about 40 miles an hour. They were almost together before the danger was noticed. Rowe was killed as he sat in the cab, after reversing and thus warning his fireman, Crawford, whose left ankle was sprained from the jump. Both engines were demolished.

Nagle was caught under the coal from the tender after the upset, but was soon freed. Patton was hurled out just as he prepared to jump.

SEVERAL DROWNED

Terrible Storm Sweeps the Coast of Newfoundland—Ten Fishing Sloops Smashed.

St. John's, Nfld., Dec. 4.—Seventeen persons perished in a storm which has lashed the Newfoundland coast during the last forty-eight hours. In all ten fishing vessels have gone ashore, most of them breaking into fragments on the rocks. The victims of the gales were members of the crews of three of these craft. The fishermen were all residents of Newfoundland fishing villages.

The storm began Tuesday evening and developed into a blizzard. A northerly gale caught many small schooners and sloops off the coast, and in scudding for harbor before the blast many of them lost their bearings in the thick snowstorm.

SCANDAL FROM CIVIC JAUNT

Montreal, Dec. 4.—Evidence was concluded yesterday in the Supreme Court in support of the action to disqualify the seven aldermen of the finance committee for alleged illegal expenditure of the city's money during a civic jaunt to Europe by Mayor Payette and daughter, and the assistant city clerk and Madame Beauset.

It was demonstrated that six steamship fares had been paid for the European trip and that the money had been taken out of the city funds. The evidence on behalf of the aldermen went to show that the finance committee had passed a resolution authorizing the mayor's trip and granting him $1,500. The mayor testified that he had paid his daughter's expenses.

LINDSAY WANTS NEW COLLEGIATE

Present One is Not Large Enough for the Town

Lindsay, December 4— There has been some talk of building a new Collegiate Institute in Lindsay and using the present building in place of the union school.

The Collegiate building is not at present large enough for the purpose and the forms are overcrowded entailing a considerable amount of inconvenience. After New Years it is probable a new form will be needed for the agricultural class and in such a case the overcrowding would be aggravated.

THREATS AND BRIBERY SAYS "SPOTTER" WHO DISAPPEARED

SUBMIT BY-LAW

To Raise $30,000 to Purchase Fair Grounds for Peterborough.

A by-law to raise $30,000 for the purchase of the Driving Park, to be used for exhibition and park purposes, will be submitted to the ratepayers of Peterborough in January. A resolution to this effect was passed at the meeting of the City Council last night. The understanding is that the Exhibition Association will erect new buildings on the grounds if the city purchases them. The conclusion has been reached that Peterborough can have one of the best fairs in the province if the exhibition has a permanent home and suitable buildings are erected.

The following motion was passed last night;—

Moved by Ald. Buller, and Ald. Tovey, that the council submit a by-law to the people in January for the purchase of the fair grounds for fair and park purposes. The price to be $30,000 and an option to be secured. —Carried.

Owen Sound Has a Sensation.

Private Detective Stewart Says He and Companion Were Bribed to Stay Quiet.

Owen Sound, Dec. 4.—Evidence of a sensational character was given in the Police Court yesterday afternoon in connection with the charge of having sold liquor, brought against Chas. Crook.

The raid on the hotels was conducted by three "spotters" from Toronto, who attended court here on the 25th of last month for the purpose of giving their evidence. At that time the court adjourned till the following day, and that some night two of the detectives disappeared. One of them, C. F. Stewart, was discovered at his home in Toronto. The other missing man has not yet been discovered.

The first witness called was Eudo Saunders, chief of the License Department, Toronto, who declared that Stewart had visited his office and handed over to him certain documents which he had placed in an envelope and sealed in the presence of Stewart and Provincial Detective Miller. Mr. Saunders produced the envelope.

Stewart declared in evidence that a C.P.R. driver named George Pumple had bribed him and his companions, Alexander Coorien and Claude Pownall, to leave town. Pownall had approached witness in the hotel on the night of their disappearance from the town and said that he had been told they could get $500 or $750 if they left the town, and if they remained they would be shot. Witness was frightened for his life and agreed to skip. In company with Pownall he met Pumple and on the same night they also met H. G. Tucker, solicitor, who is defending all the accused implicated in the liquor raid. Mr. Tucker offered to give the man additional $5 if they would hand over to them their notes concerning the times and dates of their visits to the hotels.

They accepted the offer and got the money.

Witness then went on to relate how he and Pownall boarded a freight train at Owen Sound, of which the driver was George Pumple. During portions of the journey to Orangeville, there they got off, they had at times ridden on the bumpers, on the top of an open car containing stones, on the platform of the caboose, in the caboose itself and on the engine.

While they were riding on the engine Pumple handed a roll of bills to Pownall, who had counted them and handed witness $50 in the form of four $10 bills and two $5 bills. That money he handed over to Mr. Saunders in Toronto.

In cross-examination witness declared that no sooner had he reached Toronto than he made up his mind to return to Owen Sound and give evidence. He was sorry that he ran away.

MARINE INQUIRY AT HALIFAX WILL COME TO CLOSE TO-DAY

Halifax, Dec. 4.—The Marine Department inquiry is nearing its end and the rush at the Court House is not so great as in the sessions of a week ago. Little that was sensational was adduced at yesterday's session, most of the evidence lacking the interest of the earlier testimony. The greatest portion of the afternoon was devoted to the examination of the prices of beef and fish and grocery supplies. The inquiry will, it is expected, be concluded this afternoon, and if there is no more startling evidence to come Halifax will not have made a bad showing for a supply port, so far as the transactions shown are concerned.

A number of dealers who furnish provisions and other supplies were called and stated that prices charged were ordinary. One dealer said he sold halibut to the Government ships three cents per pound cheaper than he did to his customers.

Howard Wentzell, head of the wholesale grocery firm of Wentzell & Co., said that in three years his firm did $5,000 business with the Department. His goods were sold mostly by contract. The members for the county did not intervene in his behalf.

All the dealers called stated that they granted no favors, made no presents, and were under no obligation to any official of the Department. The inquiry will resume to-day.

Jr. Department of the Y.M.C.A.

The Boys' Cabinet meeting called for last night was postponed until to-night at 7.30 to give all the members a chance to be present.

The skating rink is being put in shape and will be ready as soon as the weather will permit.

FOUR MEN SHOT IN CAMP IN TOWNSHIP OF WAINWRIGHT

Dryden, Dec. 4.—A terrible and evidently unprovoked and cold-blooded shooting occurred in a lumber camp out in Wainwright Township, two miles from here, about midnight Wednesday night, in which four men were wounded, one of whom will die. The shooting was done by a young Canadian named Joseph Milroy, and his victims are Richard Denna, shot in the pit of the stomach; Daniel Foy, shot in the neck and right side; K. Stanton, shot in the knee, and an unknown man, shot in the thigh.

There were fourteen in the party in camp, and all were quietly sitting around the room, according to reports which have been received from the scene, when, without a moment's warning or provocation, Milroy jumped up and shouted: "Stand back; I am going to shoot." He was flourishing an automatic revolver, and before anyone could escape he fired five shots in rapid succession, every one of which took effect. Milroy then made his escape, but was captured yesterday morning about a mile from the scene of his crime by Constable Rollo. He expressed no regrets, and after inquiring how many of his shots had taken effect, he observed that he would have shot the lot if he had had time. Milroy was an employe of the G.T.P. and the three men who were seriously wounded are teamsters in a lumber camp.

The wounded men were taken to Kenora yesterday morning. Denna is not expected to live, but the others will recover. Milroy will be up for preliminary hearing on Saturday.

Denna came to the west from London, England.

Port Arthur, Dec. 4.—Owing to drought causing a scarcity of water to run the city power plant, a new 4,000 light generator is being purchased.

Will Be Blocked.

Brantford, Dec. 4.—City Solicitor Henderson has informed the city clerk that another meeting of the council is necessary before the local option bylaw can be voted on. Mayor Bowlby has called a special meeting for Monday night, but the hotelmen say the issue will be blocked by a vote in the council.

City Clerk Leonard was yesterday threatened by the local option supporters that if he failed to publish the bylaw court costs would be asked for against him.

Hits Merchants.

Windsor, Dec. 4.—The quarantine against any animals coming into Canada through this port is proving to be disadvantageous to many local merchants. Under the present circumstances no hay, straw, or fodder can come into Windsor. Many merchants buy goods in Detroit and other American cities, which comes packed in straw or hay. Such goods are now being held up on account of the straw packing in the boxes.

To Go to the Penitentiary.

Brantford, Dec. 4.—Joe Gillies, aged 60 years, who has a long criminal record for house robbery, was yesterday afternoon sentenced to five years in Kingston Penitentiary.

Four years' penalty was also given Fred Douglas, Six Nations Indian, who stole several horses.

Two Barrie Bylaws.

Barrie, Dec. 4.—Two important bylaws will be voted on by the electors next January. One is for $15,000 for a water front park, the other $12,000 for electric light works. It is likely both will be defeated.

Daring Jewel Thief.

Pittsburg, Dec. 4.—While the principal business street of the north side, near the Pennsylvania Railroad station, was crowded with people, a robber fastened the outside door of Theodore Frey's jewelry store, imprisoning the proprietor and his clerks, smashed the plate glass show window, secured two trays of jewelry valued at $12,000, and ran away. A boy kept him in view until officers arrested him.

Diphtheria Among Mennonites.

Winnipeg, Dec. 4.—An epidemic of diphtheria has broken out among the Mennonite settlers around Steinbach, and has been permitted to run unchecked for some time, as the people were absolutely ignorant of the nature of the disease. Twelve deaths have occurred to date.

Scotch Machinists Deported.

Winnipeg, Dec. 4.—Eighteen Scotch machinists, who were brought out to act as strike-breakers, were deported last night at the expense of the C.P.R.—the men having been found to be undesirable citizens.

Several applications were received for the position of principal of St. Peter's school for the year 1909.

On motion of Mr Primeau, seconded by Mr Lynch, the application of James E. McDonald was accepted.

The special report of Inspector O'Brien's visit to the several schools of the city were read and received.

On motion of G M Lynch, seconded by Mr. Goselin, the secretary was instructed to make the necessary arrangements for the nomination and election of trustees for 1909.

The board then adjourned.

BOARD OF WORKS PREPARING FOR NEXT COUNCIL MEETING

Cleared up Several Matters at Meeting Last Night—Sewer Wanted on Aylmer Street North.

The Board of Works held a meeting last night, when several matters were dealt with in preparation for the Council meeting on Monday night.

SEWER EXTENSION.

Mr. Taylor was present and asked to have the Aylmer street sewer extended north of Smith street. He had a couple of new houses there and as there is only a stretch of about 150 feet, he thought it could easily be done.

The chairman stated that if the council could get the assurance of the water commissioners that this water would be laid the Council would lay the sewer.

The clerk was asked to write the commissioners and see what they were intending to do.

S. Hartley wrote the committee in reference to supplying stone for crushing. No action was taken on this item.

Clause two of the building by-law will be amended, cutting out the word iron and substituting the word concrete. Thus the by-law will read brick or concrete walls inside the fire limits.

The Peterborough Light & Power Company was granted permission to erect three poles on the west side of Donegal street north of Murray street.

The by-law for $21,000 to pay for the extension of streets will be increased by $500 to provide for the purchase of a strip of ten feet on the street at the Normal School.

It was moved by Ald. Bradburn and Ald. Morgan, that Father Kielty be offered $10 in settlement of the damage sustained by his pony some time ago in Ashburnham.

A letter was received some time ago from Wm. Logan, claiming damages to his blacksmithing business while the Brock street bridge was being built.

There was no cause of damage to Mr. Logan's business as he had access at all times to his blacksmith shop. The city solicitor stated that there was no legal claim against the council. The committee therefore decided to take no action.

M. MARCIL'S VIEWS

Hon. Charles Marcil, deputy-Speaker of the House of Commons, spoke at Guelph before the Canadian Club recently. He said amongst other things, as reported in the Guelph Herald that;—

"At present the speaker could see no reason why Canada should help to support the navy." Canada was not receiving any preference from the navy and was not benefitting by its protection any more than was the United States or the Argentines. It is often said that Canada is doing so little for the great Empire to which she is so fortunate to belong, but this was only a mistaken impression. All the railways and canals that were beginning to form a network over the country were all Imperial works. Canada formed the connecting link and in the building of transcontinental railways and telegraph lines as well as contributing toward the building of cable lines she was really accomplishing an Imperial work of great magnitude. People did not generally appreciate as fully as they should the importance of the works that Canada had accomplished already, though so young a nation."

We do not agree with this view. Canada accepts the protection of the British navy abroad and at home. Wherever Canadians go they are protected by the queen of the seven seas. No doubt Britain will continue to protect us as a hen protects her chickens, but then if we are no more than chickens why make such a fuss about being a nation? Paying our share may make for closer union within the Empire. Surely it is not to be deemed objectionable on that account. Or does Mr. Marcil think that Canada is an exception to the law of events and that the Canadian merchant marine and its attendant commerce are wholly without need of protection. The position is illogical, if not foolish.

THE SENTINEL'S RETORT

The following interesting retort upon the Liberal press of 1896 by the Sentinel, (Orange) in its issue of December 3, 1908, shows how sinister in their designs those Liberal papers are that "continually do cry" out against the intolerance of Conservatives. In 1896 the Conservative party stood for the British Privy Council's interpretation of the Law, and it may ever be proud of its firmness and loyalty in so doing. It did so on principle. It expected no reward and it got none. In 1896 every mean advantage that could be taken to express hatred of that party by the Liberal press was taken by it. Every expression that could be fastened upon that party as objectionable was glued, nailed and rivetted to it by those whose memories were as short as their tongues were long. The only party in Canada religious or political that has pursued its policy consistently and with the highest regard for the maintenance of the British constitution and the freedom of the people is the Conservative party whose principles will triumph again in the future as they have done in the not-forgotten past. Now is the time just after an election to get all these things threshed out and not during the heat of a campaign. There is nothing like a thorough understanding of the positions of all parties. It has been a matter both of surprise and comment that ridiculous stories should during elections gain such an amount of credence and headway. The way to overcome this difficulty and to put every elector in the position of giving a fair and reasonable judgment where he really wants to get it without his being led "by the ear," by those whose function in a party is to circulate disturbing stories and generally to do scavenger work for their employers, is, we are persuaded to give the opinions and abiding principles of both sides as history shows them to be. It is easy to make charges of intolerance as of other things, especially when they suit the purposes of those most interested. It is time that all parties should have the right of free speech without being singled out for so doing. For our part we see many faults in that regard on all sides. It is better, surely to know early from their own lips what people think than to have it covered up and kept warm until it can be effectively made use of without warning or risk of failure.

"THE CHANGE FROM 1896

The Sentinel has been roundly abused by the Liberal press during the last few weeks for drawing public attention to the apostacy of Sir Wilfrid Laurier on the school question. It has been treated by the Government press as a crime to tell a few plain truths regarding the attitude of the Roman Catholic Church towards Sir Wilfrid Laurier on account of his submission to the wishes of the bishops. No paper has been more violent in its condemnation than The Moncton Transcript. An examination of the columns of that paper prior to the election of June 23rd, 1896, shows that it teemed with appeals to vote against the Conservative Government because it proposed to pass a similar measure —the Remedial Bill. On that occasion the Transcript attacked the Roman Catholics, their bishops and their priests in nearly every issue as recently pointed out by The Moncton Times, which paper says;

In its issue of June 19 it represented a Roman Catholic priest in Quebec as "telling his congregation from the pulpit that they might be struck dead at the polls if they voted Liberal, or buried alive by a landslide."

In another issue it accused a bishop of referring to Protestants as "hell inspired hypocrites." What was this for but to "stir up religious strife," as The Transcript now regards it.

On June 22nd, the day before the election The Transcript quoted an article that Protestants in Quebec did not have equal rights with Roman Catholics, that "all school matters, in Quebec, are controlled by Roman Catholic bishops," that Protestants in Quebec being members of joint stock companies are obliged to contribute to the support of schools "which use the Roman Catholic Catechism as a chief text book, and teach that Protestantism is false and blasphemous." This article concluded as follows;

"The Roman Catholics claim that they want the same rights in Manitoba that the Protestants have in Quebec. How would they like it if they were compelled to submit, in Manitoba, to the injustice which they inflict on Protestants in Quebec.

"How would they like to have all the schools in Manitoba under a council controlled by Protestant pastors, while the Roman Catholic clergy were ignored, yet this would be the rights they grant in Quebec?

"How would they like to be compelled to pay taxes to schools whose chief object was to make good Protestants, and where Romanism was denounced as false and ruinous; yet, to a similar injustice many a Protestant in Quebec to submit.

"Let them not suffer in Manitoba. Let them have equal rights, but no more. These rights they now enjoy there."

The Transcript followed up the same day by the following large type editorial paragraphs;

"Don't vote for Powell and betray your brothers in Manitoba."

"Stand for the British principle of equal privileges to all and special favors to none, and vote against Powell."

"Electors of Westmoreland. Remember the patriotic song. Britons never, never shall be slaves. Don't by your votes endorse Tupper's sale and barter of your civil and religious liberties."

"A vote for Robinson is to stand by the traditions of our forefathers, who won the battle of civil and religious liberty in Britain. A vote for Powell is a vote to betray these interests in Manitoba and afterwards in New Brunswick."

This seems to be quite as strong as anything that has ever appeared in the Sentinel. And while these appeals were being made to Protestants Laurier appears to have been able to get three-fourths of the Quebec delegation at his back."

EDITORIAL NOTES

In the course of time the names of Shrubb and Longboat will get into the newspapers and then there will be doings.

A branch of the Roman Catholic Church Extension Society has been founded in Toronto for the Dominion of Canada. This is probably a result of the removal of Canada from the merely missionary list of the Vatican to the regular list. The recent great Catholic Congress in Chicago indicates the new and important impetus given to the work of Roman Catholic extension.

In Quebec the friends of the Laurier Government seem generally to have been content with a 5 per cent. graft in connection with the dealings of the Department of Marine. This rate, also, is what Mr. Mayes alleges he had to pay to get a New Brunswick dredging job. In Halifax the rate was 10 per cent. That superior intellectuality the Nova Scotians tell us they are endowed with shows itself everywhere.—Montreal Gazette.

The Examiner permits itself to quote and comment rather freely concerning the local protest proceedings now before the court, and therefore subjudice. There is a limit to the action of journals that seek to influence public opinion without observing the law in that regard, to say nothing of the well-defined course prescribed for journals otherwise intimately connected with the proceedings in question. For ourselves, we deprecate invidious insinuations respecting parties to the suit who may have gone abroad on business or through illness who are not under any obligation to wait for documentary information which had not been asked for by them.

"Some alarming statements were made by Dr. C. K. Clarke, Superintendent of the Toronto Lunatic Asylum, at the conference on Charities and Correction last week. As the head of this great institution, with 850 patients, Dr. Clarke must be assumed to have very accurate information upon the subject with which he deals. He told the assembled delegates that fifty per cent of all the insane patients in the Toronto Hospital for the Insane at the present time are foreign born, and most of them recent arrivals. Sixty-five per cent. of these are afflicted with dementia peracox. If the people of the province have to care for these in addition to the provision that must be made for the care of the criminal class, we have a very serious problem."

"The Toronto Globe publishes a despatch from Sault Ste. Marie to the effect that the steel plant will probably close down next week because of lack of orders. But the Government must want rails for the section of the National Transcontinental Railway it is constructing from Winnipeg eastward. That being so, it should now have at its disposal sufficient rail orders to keep the company's 1,500 hands busy throughout the winter. When the works were reopened before the election the public were given to understand that there was to be plenty of Government business for them. Surely the company and its hands are not to be penalized because the constituency in which the works are did not return the Government candidate." — Mail and Empire.

OCK WORKS DROPPED THREE TO THE MIDGETS LAST NIGHT

Charlie Westbrooke explains that Lock Works came along with ...es arms last night prepared to ...e mince meat of the Hams, but in the meantime the schedule had been arranged and owing to the admission of two new teams to the league a couple of days ago and the result was that LePlant and his worthy associates found themselves backed up against the Midgets.

The result was a complete reversal of the score of the last game the Works took part in, the Midgets capturing three straight games, the first two by a comfortable margin. The third, however, was closely contested all the way, the Midgets finally winning out by seven pins. A spare by either one of the Lock Works team in the eighth frame would have altered the result, but a succession of splits intervened, and the Midgets fell by the wayside.

The scores in all three games were small, the Midgets exceeding the four hundred mark only in the two games, while the Lock Works failed to pile up the coveted figure in any one of their games.

A double-header is scheduled for to-night, when Hutch's Hams will meet the Examiner B. trio, while Big Chief Martin's Iroquois Braves will go after the scalps of the B.A.C. To-morrow night the Exam B. will play their second game against the Midgets.

The scores last night follow;—

O SOUND THE DEATH KNELL

Of Hockey in West Says an Ottawa Despatch

An Ottawa despatch says:— "Edmonton will have a great hockey team this winter, all right," said a western hockey fan who was registered at the Russell House last night. "But Whitcroft and the men behind him are going to sound the death knell of hockey in the west."

And it appears to be the same old story. Edmonton, like Renfrew got the Stanley Cup bug and commenced importing players with the result that the other clubs are afraid to compete with them. Renfrew got too strong for the other clubs in the Upper Ottawa and the result was the collapse of the Upper Ottawa League. The Alberta teams claim that they will not be in a class with Whitcroft and his pals and the Alberta league may also prove a fizzle. It has not yet been organized. Strathcona, Calgary and the other teams in it being unable to put up the cash like the Edmonton teams backers.

"Whitcroft may land the Stanley Cup," continued the western man, "but what good it will do Edmonton I want to see, for when they get back they will find no teams to play against the other side of Winnipeg."

THE TRENT VALLEY HOCKEY LEAGUE

Annual Meeting to be Held at Havelock To-night

Havelock, Dec. 3.—The annual meeting of the Trent Valley Hockey League will be held at the Dineen House, on Friday night of this week, at eight o'clock, when the business of last year will be wound up and the officers elected for the coming season. Madoc, the winners of the league last year, and Marmora, Stirling, Warkworth and Norwood Clubs will be represented at this meeting. It is not yet known whether Havelock will enter a team this season or not.

PREPARING FOR NEXT OLYMPIAD

Canada Will Likely be Represented—Smaller Team Talked of

Will Canada be represented at the next Olympic games?

The next series of international athletic competitions will be held at Athens and although the events are two years away, many Canadian athletes are already looking forward to having a chance to wear the Maple Leaf in Greece. A member of the Canadian Olympic Council was asked the question.

"That is hard to say at present," was his reply. "But the chances are that Canada will send a team to Athens. However, it is certain that the team from Canada will not be nearly as large as that which we sent to England this year. Now that the London Olympic games are over, it is easy to see or tell what we should have done, but we have gained by experience and will have a better knowledge of how many and what kind of athletes we should send to Athens."

"How many would you think it would be advisable to send?" was asked.

"Well, not more than six or eight," continued the Olympic committee man. "I should think it would be enough to send two sprinters, two middle distance men, a couple of Marathon runners, one pole vaulter, and one jumper. We have not in Canada good enough athletes to warrant our sending more than eight or ten across."

Nothing official as yet has been announced with regard to it, but it is understood that the appeal for subscriptions to wipe out the $1500 Olympic deficit is meeting with a fairly generous response. —Toronto Star.

T. J. McAughey, who dislocated his toe a week ago, soon found after he started on his long run from Toronto to New York and was compelled to quit at Oakville, announced that he would try it again commencing Monday at City Hall.

SPORTING TALK

Lindsay is talking of a new Collegiate Institute. If it is built the sporting writers of the Post and Free Press should take a ten year course in grammar.

It does not look as though Peterborough will have an intermediate hockey team this year. The once great hockey town will apparently be content with a junior team in the OHA.—Belleville Intelligencer.

SPEAKERS AT BANQUET

Laymen's Missionary Movement Banquet Next Tuesday Evening

Extensive arrangements are being made for the Laymen's banquet to be held next Tuesday night in the George street Methodist Sunday school. A meeting of the committee in charge will be held to-night at 8 o'clock to complete the final arrangements. It is expected that the banquet will be largely attended, there being so many tickets apportioned to each church, according to the size of the congregation.

The banquet will be given at seven o'clock, and during the supper the George street Methodist church orchestra will provide music. Two laymen from Toronto will be the special speakers. They will be Messrs. N. F. Davidson, K.C., a brother of Rev. Canon Davidson, of this city, and J. A. Patterson, K.C., also of Toronto. Both these gentlemen are prominent laymen in the church and are interesting speakers.

To the Charitable

To the Editor of Review.

Dear Sir,—Enclosed find $1 towards the subscription being raised by your effort to send home to England a distressed Englishman. I cannot understand why the necessary amount has not been raised to send this poor fellow to his native land. Surely a more Christian act could not be done by a Christian people than to help him. It makes me ask myself the question, "Is our Christianity only skin deep?" A man dying with that dread disease consumption, wishes to return to his native land, but owing to the lack of funds cannot do so. An appeal through the newspapers is raised on his behalf and in answer to the appeal we notice a few, perhaps two dozen people, contribute a few dollars. I wish Sir I could send you $50 instead of one, but I am as I have to sign myself,

A POOR ENGLISHMAN.

PRINCE RUPERT HARBOR

It was erroneously reported in a recent press despatch that the surveys made by HMS. "Egeria," last summer indicated that the Brown Passage between Dundas and Stephen Islands, the most direct entrance to Prince Rupert harbor, is so studded with reefs as to make safe navigation impossible. This is emphatically contradicted by Mr W. F. Anderson, the Chief Engineer of the Department of Marine and Fisheries, at Ottawa, who was on board the "Egeria" last month and saw the captain's plans of the survey of the passage. There are reefs on each side of the passage, but the passage itself is clear for a width of between two and three miles. Stenhouse shoal and Hammer Rocks mark the northern limit of clear water and the North Breaker, which shows well above the water, is the southern boundary of the clear passage. When these points have been marked by lights, there will not be the slightest difficulty or danger in entering through that approach. A gas buoy has already been moored on Stenhouse shoal just outside of the passage; with that aid alone and with the North Breaker showing, the largest sized vessel can now go through in perfect safety day or night. It is the opinion of the Chief Engineer that Brown Passage presents as clear an approach as any vessel need desire.

THE GHOST OF LOCHRAIN CASTLE

BY MRS. C. N. WILLIAMSON

Author of "The Princess Passes," "The Lightning Conductor," Etc., Etc.

Copyright, 1908, by Mrs. C. N. Williamson.

Elspeth had to pass near the group, on her way to the manager's room, and the three were so deeply absorbed in their conversation that they neither heard nor saw the young typist. She had no intention of eavesdropping, but some words uttered by Mr. McGowan reached her ears, and startled her so much that it was all she could do to suppress a cry of distress.

"I do beg that you will help me to avoid a scandal," the manager was saying. "If you publicly accuse Lady Hilary"——

He lowered his voice, and Elspeth heard no more; but it was enough. A glance at the Countess's hard, handsome face showed her that it would take persuasions more powerful than Mr. McGowan's to induce her to relinquish so choice a revenge. Both women hated Lady Hilary Vane, and though it was impossible — Elspeth told herself—that she could be guilty, circumstantial evidence must somehow point to her as the thief, or they would not dare threaten to accuse her.

Elspeth grew cold with fear at the sight of the pitfall prepared for her friend by these two jealous women. Even if Lady Hilary could prove her innocence, she would be made to suffer, and Elspeth could not bear that it should be so. How could she save the poor child? She asked herself.

Then, suddenly, she thought of Trowbridge and his passion for Lady Hilary Vane. From it had sprung the malice of these who would ruin the girl; but through it she might yet be rescued.

There was not a second to spare, if Mr. Trowbridge were to be summoned to this task; and without an instant's hesitation Elspeth sped through corridor after corridor on her way to his sitting room. She had not had time to knock at the door, when it opened and he came out. "Miss Dean!" he exclaimed in surprise at the sight of her flushed face.

"I've come to ask you to save Lady Hilary," she burst out abruptly.

"Save Lady Hilary?" No one who saw him then could have doubted the sincerity of his love.

"From Lady Ardcliffe and the Countess," Elspeth went on, breathlessly. "All their jewels have been stolen in the night. For some reason or other they suspect Lady Hilary and are going to accuse her as a thief. They hate her, you know. They are downstairs in the great hall now, talking to Mr. McGowan, who is trying to dissuade them; but I know he cannot. You, perhaps, may. I think it's the only hope. Oh, do make haste. If Lady Hilary should come down, as she generally does about this time, there will be a horrible scene, unless you prevent it"——

The look on his face frightened Elspeth. "I will prevent it," he said. "Go to her. Keep her in her room if you can. Make any excuse. Give me a little time, that's all I ask."

Then he was gone, and Elspeth did not stop to look after him. She flew off in the opposite direction, which was that of Lady Hilary's room, but she had not gone far when she saw the girl approaching with her mother.

Elspeth paused, bewildered. What could she do now? After the miserable scene yesterday, when Lady Lambart had done what she could to ruin her, how would it be possible to accost the ladies and prevent them from going downstairs? Yet somehow the object must be accomplished.

Lady Lambart saw her from afar off. Elspeth could see the handsome face freeze into haughtiness. Though she could not hear the words, she knew that Lady Lambart was forbidding her daughter to speak in passing, and it did flash through Elspeth's head that, if she were revengeful, she could satisfy all cravings by letting the two go on to their fate. But at this moment she would not only have sacrificed a thousand revenges, but her hopes for her own future happiness, to save Hilary Vane, and careless of consequences to herself, she stepped forward, saying, "Don't go downstairs just yet, I beg, Lady Hilary. I can't tell you why, but—but if you'll wait—if you'll breakfast in your room, I hope you may save yourself and—Lady Lambart—a very disagreeable experience."

Elspeth expected an insulting answer from Lady Lambart, but, to her surprise, none came. Mother and daughter stopped abruptly, the girl turning pale, the woman flushing scarlet under her rouge and powder.

"Oh, mother," exclaimed Hilary. "It has come."

Instantly Elspeth guessed the thought in their minds. She remembered the words she had overheard yesterday, when Lady Lambart had said to her daughter that "to-morrow a summons would be served." They thought now that this dreaded thing had happened, and that, if they obeyed the warning she had given, they might somehow hide from disaster. Elspeth decided that, for Lady Hilary's sake, the best thing she could do would be to let the impression remain undisturbed for the present.

"I told you what would happen, but I didn't know it would come quite so soon," half whispered Lady Lambart. "Now, will you be sensible and save us both in the only way you can? [illegible]

"I must—I see now that I must," said Lady Hilary. "If I could see him, I would say"——

"You can't see him now. You must write a note, and quickly," replied Lady Lambart, in the same low tone she had used before.

Hilary turned to Elspeth. "Miss Dean, will you come to my door for one moment, while I write a line, and then—as a great favor to me—take it immediately to the person it is intended for?"

As her daughter made this request without waiting for an answer in the affirmative, Lady Lambart turned and walked rapidly ahead of the others, in the direction of her own room.

Elspeth read her thought accurately and scornfully. In spite of her cruelty the day before, she was willing that its victim should be made use of, though she would not seem to notice the girl she had so deeply injured.

Hilary and Elspeth walked together along the corridor, but the one was too miserable, the other too anxious, to speak.

"Come in and wait," the former said when they had reached her room. "Sit down a minute, and the note will be ready."

Elspeth knew without asking what the note would be, and she was sick at heart. The door was open between this room and the adjoining one, where Lady Lambart could be heard moving restlessly about, therefore she dared not cry out as she longed to do. "Don't write to Mr. Trowbridge that you'll marry him. Perhaps it won't be necessary. Perhaps you may be saved in some other way."

Lady Hilary seated herself at a small writing desk in the window and began to write. As she did so Elspeth watched her wistfully, when suddenly with a start, her gaze focussed on something bright which sparkled in a lace frill of Hilary's dress. Quickly she took a step forward and bent down to see what it was which had caught her attention. Then she could hardly keep back a cry of astonishment, for tangled in the lace was a ruby and diamond hoop earring, which she had often seen the Countess Radepolskoi wearing.

For a second or two an odd giddiness came over Elspeth, but it was gone as soon almost as it had come, and she felt cold and calm, as if in the face of a great danger requiring all her reserve force and presence of mind.

"Look, Lady Hilary," she said, drawing no nearer, lest Lady Lambart should enter, "Look at that thing caught in your frill. How very odd that it should be there."

Surprised, the girl stopped in the midst of her note, and following with her eyes the direction of Elspeth's

Brakeman Had Peculiar Experience Near Madoc Junction.

Madoc, December 4— When the G. T.R. express from Belleville pulled in here on Thursday evening last, the brakeman, who is a new man on the run, was noticed to be "out of sight." Much consternation was caused by his absence and it was feared that something serious might have happened. The engine was detached from the train and the officials went down the line in search and found him much to their relief alive, Madoc bound, near West Huntingdon. He had fallen from the train shortly after leaving Madoc Junction and although somewhat shaken up was not seriously injured.

MISSION BOARD HEARS REPORT

St John, NB, Dec. 4—At a meeting of the Maritime Mission Board of the Baptist church held here yesterday letters from the field in India were read and contained reference to political unrest in that country. The missionaries intimated that the Imperial Government had taken measures to punish some of the leaders in the sedition but everywhere, things has a threatening and ominous look. The hope was expressed that no open outbreak of rebellion would take place.

Some mention of the famine was made by the missionaries. From their reports it would seem that it is confined to two or three districts and it is not as severe as anticipated. No mention of cholera was made, and it is presumed by the board here that the scourge has died down.

THE PRESENT CONDITION OF LAW FOR ELECTING ALDERMEN IN THE CITY OF PETERBORO

The following extract from an Act of the City of Peterborough of the last session of the Provincial legislature gives the present condition of the law in that respect;

"Unless and until changed as hereinafter provided the council of the city of Peterborough shall continue to be composed of a Mayor and twelve Aldermen to be elected by general vote and beginning with the municipal election for the year 1909, the six aldermen who obtain the highest number of votes at the said election shall be elected and hold office for a term of two years and the six aldermen who obtain the next highest number of votes shall be elected and hold office for a term of one year and thereafter one half the aldermen composing the council shall be elected each year and shall hold office for a term of two years, provided however, that the said council may, by bylaw to be hereafter passed, provide for the election of two aldermen for each ward instead of by general vote but such bylaw shall not be finally passed or become operative until it shall have been submitted to and received the assent of the majority of the electors of the said city voting thereon and upon a petition signed by at least 20 per cent of the said electors being presented to the council on or before the first day of November in any year asking for the submission of a bylaw to provide for the election of aldermen by wards, it shall be the duty of the council to pass such bylaw and to submit it to the said electors at their next annual municipal elections and provided the said bylaws receive the assent of the majority of the electors voting thereon to finally pass the same and at the next annual municipal election after the final passing of the said bylaw, two aldermen shall be elected for each ward in said city, and the alderman who obtains the highest number of votes in each ward shall be elected and hold office for a term of one year and thereafter one alderman shall be elected annually for each ward, and shall hold office for a term of two years, and the provisions of the Consolidated Municipal Act, 1907, and any amendments thereto or of the Municipal Act, shall not apply to the corporation of the city of Peterborough. Chap. 104, Section 1.

From the above it will be seen that any change that may be desired, in the manner of electing aldermen must in all probability be brought forward and acted upon in the regular way as defined herein which will mean that no petition can alter the present system for 1909 except as allowed by the Act.

POULTRY ASSOCIATION IS PREPARING FOR WINTER SHOW

The Peterborough Poultry Association is making preparations for the big poultry show to be held under its auspices in the market hall on December 5th, 6th and 7th of January, and from all indications it will be an unqualified success. A large number of birds for the various classes will be entered and the secretary has received inquiries concerning the show from Brockville, Bracebridge, Toronto and several other places. At the meeting of the Association last night it was decided that Mr. J. E. Bennett of Toronto, should be the judge. He is well known throughout the province as an expert judge, and authority on poultry matters, and the association has made a splendid choice.

Treasurer Kelly reported that 63 new members had joined this year 58 of whom had not been members last year. In addition to the old members the membership, it is expected will reach 125 or 150. Committees were appointed for various branches of the work.

A special meeting of the Association will be held in the Bank of Montreal Chambers on Tuesday, December 8th.

BY-LAW FOR $49,000 FOR NEW SMITH ST. BRIDGE

This Amount Will be Required to Build Structure to Accommodate Street Car Track.

Plans have been prepared for a new bridge to span the Otonabee River at Smith street. They provide for three spans of ninety-four feet each. As to width an estimate has been prepared for an eighteen-foot roadway with two sidewalks each six and a half feet wide and also for a twenty-four foot roadway with similar sidewalks. The twenty-four foot roadway provides for a street railway track. The city engineer's estimate for the eighteen foot roadway is $40,000 and for the twenty-four foot roadway, $49,000.

Ald. Phelan, chairman of the Board of Works brought up the matter at the council meeting last night, and wanted to know what sum was to have been placed in the by-law.

It was moved that $49,000 be asked for, and if the Council decides to build the smaller bridge, the extra money will not be needed. The motion carried.

PREPARATIONS TO BE MADE FOR HANDLING XMAS MAILS

The rush of mail for Christmas distribution is not being felt at the local post office yet, but nevertheless the work of the postmen is already becoming heavier, but not to a great extent, however. The real rush commences about Dec. 20th and continues till the first of the year.

On December 15th two extra men will be placed on the post office staff for inside handling of the mails, and when the rush is on locked mail bags will be sent to stores in different sections of the city from the post office. They will be carried by express, and left at the stores for the postmen to call for, as the quantity of mail will be too great for the postmen to handle direct from the post office. The bags will be very securely locked.

CHRISTMAS GIFTS SHOULD BE SENT EARLY

Postmasters are urging people to send their Christmas parcels early, and to see to it that they are fully and properly prepaid.

Their postage on parcels to Canada and United States ports is a cent an ounce, and on printed matter a cent for two ounces. Parcels to Great Britain and foreign countries must be taken to the post office in order to get rates and make the declaration of contents, etc.

FIRST SESSION IN JANUARY

Parliament Will Likely be Called to Meet on Jan. 13th.

Ottawa, Dec. 3.—It is probable that Parliament will be called to meet on January 13th. The exact date for the opening of the session has not yet been fixed, but it is the Government's desire to make it as early as possible in January, and if the Auditor-General's report and other matters of detail can be got ready in time the opening of the House will not be later than the 13th, and may possibly be in the first week of January. The date will be announced definitely in a few days.

WEDDING BELLS

PAKENHAM—BUCK

Norwood, December 3.—The residence of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. T. Buck, Asphodel, was the scene of a very pretty wedding this afternoon, when the marriage of their youngest daughter, Miss Lillie B. Buck, to Mr. Wm. E. Pakenham, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Pakenham of this place, took place.

Only the relatives of the contracting parties were present. The marriage was solemnised under an arch of evergreens and white flowers the Rev. W. H. Andrews, pastor of the Methodist church, conducting the ceremony. The bride, who was unattended entered the parlor leaning on the arm of her father to the strains of the wedding march played by her cousin, Miss Ruth Buck. She wore a beautiful gown of white lace over silk and carried a shower bouquet of white roses and lillies of the valley. After the ceremony and the receiving of congratulations the party repaired to the dining-room, where a sumptuous repast was served the tables being decorated with pink carnations, smilax and evergreens. Mr. and Mrs. Pakenham left on the afternoon express for Toronto, the bride travelling in a green ladies' cloth suit with hat to match, and wearing a set of beautiful mink furs, the gift of the groom. The guests present from out of town were Mr. and Mrs. Pakenham, Peterborough; Mrs. D. Sanders, Mrs. Parsons, Mr. F. H. Buck, Toronto; Miss Hewitt, Brighton. On their return Mr. and Mrs. Pakenham will reside on Belmont street.

ALLOWED TO GO ON THEIR PROMISE TO LEAVE THE CITY

James Smith and John Burns were allowed to go at the police court this morning on their promise to leave the city at once. They pleaded not guilty to be vagrants. They were arrested at the CPR station a week ago and appeared before the Magistrate and were remanded for a week. They had only arrived in the city and were sleeping in the waiting-room of the station.

The night operator, Harry L. Grerar, in the witness box, said that he told them it was against the rules to hang around the waiting room, but they refused to leave. Witness told them that he would call the police but they replied that they did not care. He did not hear them say how they came to town. He called the police.

P. C. Adams testified to having made the arrests in company with P. C. Meagher. He did not search them and did not see them searched at the gaol.

Both prisoners went into the box, and told hard luck stories. They had been working at Depot Harbor on the steamboats. Work had been slack and they had not made any more than enough to pay for their board. They had no money but were trying to get to Ottawa where one of them said that he had a cousin with the cement works at Hull.

"How did you get here," asked His Worship.

"We walked most of the way and got a ride on a waggon when we could," said Smith.

"We will get right out of town Your Worship if you will allow us to go," he added, whereupon Mr. Armstrong complied with his request.

Mrs. Thomas Marsh, of Portsmouth, is dead, after a long illness.

CITY MAKES GRANT TO HOUSE OF PROVIDENCE

Milk Vendors Make Kick to Council About Milk Tests—Other Matters Considered by the City Council.

The city council met in committee of the whole council last night when several important matters were considered in preparation for the regular meeting on Monday night. Mayor Rush presided.

The sub-committee appointed to consider the request of the House of Providence for a grant, reported that they held a conference with Rev. Father McColl and learned that there are fourteen adults and five children in the House of Providence from the city and that of these only one is being paid for, by the Charity Board. The city has, through the Charity board, been paying the Protestant Home for the maintenance of several inmates and they were of the opinion that the two houses should be treated alike and recommended that a grant of $250 be made to the House of Providence up to the end of 1908.

MILKMEN KICK

Mayor Rush stated that some of the milk vendors in the city were greatly incensed over the publicity given the milk tests. They wished him to ask the council to have the publicity discontinued as the milk, after being carted around all day, would not test the same.

Ald. Gillespie stated that that was all nonsense. Milk will last exactly the same no matter how long it had been carted about, so long as it was not sour or the cream was not floating.

The aldermen were all opposed to the publicity of the tests being discontinued, as the milk now being supplied was the best that had ever been supplied.

Ald. Bradburn stated that his committee had not yet done anything towards the erection of an isolation hospital. He stated that a report had been submitted to the council but it was sent back.

The council considered that it was very desirable to have something definite done this year.

Ald. Bradburn stated that he would call a meeting of his committee Friday afternoon and make a report to the council on Monday night.

This action was made more urgent owing to the prevalence of fever in the city at the present time, and also to the fact that Kingston has had to pay $14,000 already this year on account of smallpox.

POLLING PLACES

The committee took up the question of arranging the polling places and officers for the coming election in January. There are fourteen polling stations this year, while there were only eleven last year. The three additional are all on this side of the river. All the places and officials who are available were selected again this year.

The city clerk brought up the matter of paying the officials. He said that for years they had been paid as follows;

Deputy returning officer. $4, poll clerks $2, police officers $1. Last year they were paid this, but afterwards applied to the council and got a bonus. The clerk asked that a paragraph be inserted in the by-law setting this matter.

It was moved and seconded that the deputy returning officer and poll clerks be paid the same amount and that the police officers be paid $1.50—Carried.

Moved by Ald. Morrow and Ald. Young that the city clerk write to the proper authorities re the Aylmer street crossing on the CPR tracks.

The comic opera that will always be new with its entrancing melody and mirthful times—The Mikado—was given its first presentation of a two night's season, at the Grand Opera House last night. It was sung by a cast of local amateurs and their work was most entertaining and commendable. Including the principals and chorus there were sixty in the company and their excellent work bespoke much for their individual abilities and the splendid direction of Mr. R. J. Devey.

Gilbert and Sullivan's masterpiece is always welcome when cleverly presented and in spite of the fact that a large portion of last night's audience was probably quite familiar with the opera it still held a charm and freshness for them and the applause that greeted several of the numbers was very enthusiastic and well deserved. To give a synopsis of "The Mikado" or a review of its book would be unnecessary as the plan of the piece is so well known by the intelligent public at large and any person of reasonably mature years that doesn't know it in this enlightened period is probably beyond redemption and the story of the opera would in that case not be of interest.

As a vehicle for professionals and amateurs alike it is probably the finest light opera ever written in the English language and from the number of times it has been presented appears to have an almost everlasting worth. In contrast with the average "musical play" that is seen here the refinement and brilliancy of the Mikado puts the work in a distinctly higher class than contemporary musical productions and the opera appeals to the intelligent and critical public. That class of audience was largely in evidence last night at the Grand and their generous applause showed their thorough enjoyment and appreciation of the Mikado as given by the capable local company, which Mr. Devey had rehearsed to the attainment of such high merit.

In all the phases of their work they were good. The leading characters were capably sung while the large chorus was strong and true in both the mens' and ladies' section. The picturesque and tasteful attires of the singers lent an attractiveness to their work and the stage dressings were artistic and appropriate. The company knew their lines thoroughly and there were none of those embarrassing pauses caused by any lapses of memory on the part of members of the company. In spite of its clinging tunefulness the Mikado is quite difficult to act much more so than the average company opera.

The songs to be appreciated, must be sung in good voice and spirit and some of the heavier numbers are very exacting. The soloists, however, acted and sang with confidence and ability and were given able support by the chorus. The opera as a whole was quite a triumph and Peterborough is to be congratulated on having such talent. The painstaking efforts of the producer, Mr. R. J. Devey, also come in for great praise, as do also those of Mr. D'Oscar Waring, the stage manager, who handled his big share of the work like an old time professional. In fact Mr. Waring has had considerable experience with professional companies of standing and has a wide knowledge of stage technique.

THE PRINCIPALS.

The principal comedy part of Ko Ko, the Lord High Executioner, was humorously played by Mr Ernie Dalton who has some experience in acting this eccentric comedy role. His extravagant and amusing gesticulations gave an elaborate expression of the moods of the highly strung and altogether funny character he was portraying.

Mr W Greenhalgh was a dignified and self-contained Mikado. He has a splendid physical presence and a good voice. Miss Florence Lancaster (Yum Yum), Mrs W A Greenslade (Pitti Sing) and Mrs Armstrong (Peep Bo), were the "three little maids from school," and appeared to great advantage both individually and in a captivating trio. Miss Lancaster as Yum Yum was excellent, her rendition of the "Fan Song," being one of the artistic successes of the evening. Mrs. Greenslade made a natural and vivacious Pitti Sing and was always popular with the audience. Mrs. Armstrong was the other little maid and most acceptably completed an attractive three.

Mr John King made a decided hit as Pooh Bah. His clear and dramatic bass voice was well adapted to singing the several numbers allotted to the Lord High Everything Else.

Mrs R. J. Devey could'nt have been improved upon as Katisha doing particularly effective work in that difficult role.

Nanki Pooh is not a new role to Mr George Chandler. He has a pleasing tenor voice and impressed the audience by his fine singing. He also acted splendidly.

Pish Tush was in the capable hands of Mr. Avan. He was original in the part and possesses a good voice.

This is the second time Mr. Devey has favored Peterborough with the Mikado and he shows skill and judgment as a manager and musical director. It is his intention to take the Peterborough operatic company in "The Mikado," to Montreal to compete there in the Earl Grey Dramatic competition and the money raised at last night's performance and tonight's will be used to cover the expenses of the trip. The opera tonight will be even better than it was last night on account of the improvement that will necessarily be given to the company's work by the appearance in public last night and should attract a very large audience.

AUSTRIA-HUNGARY LOOKING FOR FIGHT WITH TURKEY

Troops Are Being Mobilized.

Two Ships Loaded With Soldiers Leave Fiume Under Sealed Orders.

Vienna, Dec. 5.—Two steamers of the Hungarian-Croatian line with troops aboard left Fiume yesterday under sealed orders. Two other steamers will follow to-day. It is supposed that their destination is Cattare, a seaport of Austria on the Adriatic contiguous to Montenegrin territory. Warlike rumors continue in circulation, but on official denials yesterday prices on the Boerse advanced considerably and an optimistic feeling prevails in official circles.

With reference to a reported frontier fight between Hungarians and Montenegrins at Bilek, in which it was alleged that a Hungarian, Lieut. Treitler, had been killed, the Government last night made absolute denial of the report. It explains that Lieut. Treitler committed suicide owing to a love affair.

Sixty Thousand Reserves.

New York, Dec. 5—A cable despatch to The Herald from Berlin says: Austria-Hungary is preparing for all emergencies. The papers yesterday published the fact that a large number of troops are being sent from Budapest to Bosnia, while the latest bit of news is that 60,000 of the reservists of the first-class have been called to the colors, showing clearly that Austria is under no illusion as to having only to do with Servia and Montenegro.

Austria can afford to snap her fingers at both of those powers, but she knows that Turkey is behind them.

All this goes to show how true it is that Austria foresees that serious coercive measures will have to be taken should the Turkish Government persist in its policy of inactivity as regards the boycott.

M. Von Szoeigenyi-Marich, Austro-Hungarian ambassador at the German Court, has just had an audience of the Kaiser, whose health is almost restored. Despatches were afterwards sent to Baron Von Aehrenthal to the effect that Germany stands firmly by her ally.

A despatch to The Herald from Constantinople tells that the assassination there of Ismail Pasha, aide-de-camp and personal friend of the Sultan, has caused an immense sensation. The Minister of Police declares the crime was not political, but the public is of a different opinion. The assassination has caused an immense sensation.

The Balkan situation is unchanged. The boycott continues, and Marquis Pallavicini, the Austro-Hungarian ambassador, has made fresh representations to Kiamil Pasha, but his efforts have been neutralized by the influence of the Young Turks committee.

ARE SKATING AT HAVELOCK

Havelock, Dec. 4.—The young folks enjoyed their first night's skating on Thursday evening on the old skating rink back of the park and which was in first class condition. The rink is on a small pond in a small valley and is easily flooded by damning back the creek. This year the rink is under the management of Messrs. D. Vansickle and Tomlinson.

DISASTROUS FIRE VISITS PORTLAND

Damage of $500,000 is Done by Blaze in Grand Trunk Docks.

Portland, Me., Dec. 5.—After the firemen had brought under complete control the fire which destroyed two of the eight docks of the Grand Trunk Railway here early yesterday, the flames, which had communicated to the Dominion line steamer Cornishman alongside, broke out with renewed vigor, and before they were subdued they caused damage estimated at about $200,000 to the vessel and her cargo.

Officials of the Grand Trunk stated that the loss on the docks, with the contents of the burned sheds, would reach perhaps $300,000, making the total loss caused by the fire approximately half a million dollars.

The vessel and cargo are fully insured, while the dock losses are covered by blanket insurance by the Grand Trunk Co.

POLL OFFICERS ARE SENTENCED

Hamilton, Dec. 5.—William Lawson, who was appointed as deputy returning officer in the provincial elections, was sent down for two months, and Harry Dillabaugh, his poll clerk, was sent down for four months for tampering with ballots. It was the first case tried under the new Controverted Elections Act passed by the Legislature last session, and was heard by Justice Anglin and Justice Clute.

The evidence showed that Lawson allowed Dillabaugh to have a book of ballots, and that Dillabaugh took them to W. S. McLaughlin, Liberal chairman in Ward 5, and offered to sell them for $100. The defence was that the whole thing was a joke, and that the act did not apply.

Diphtheria has broken out in the lumber camp around Prince Albert, Sask.

IS STEAMER WRECKED? FLOTSAM WASHED ASHORE

St. John's, Nfld., Dec. 5.—It is believed here that the steamer Soo City bound from Chicago for Texas, foundered with all hands in the Gulf of St. Lawrence during the blizzard which raged off the coast of Newfoundland early this week.

Wreckage, apparently from the Soo City, has been picked up near Cape Race. Lifebuoys, deck boards and other gear washed ashore bore the name Soo City.

The names of the crew, in addition to Capt. Dillon, are: Second mate, Angus McIntyre, Chicago; first engineer, Chas. Warwick, Michigan City, Ind.; second engineer, N. J. Duncan, Chicago; purser, James Anderson, Montague, Mich.; oilers, Frank Kelly, Alpena, Mich., and George Brown, Chicago; firemen, Frank Schwirm, Michigan City, Ind., and Samuel Olebsky, Chicago; coal passers, F. L. Weaver, Dowagiac, Mich., and another man, name unknown to Mr. Greenbaum, who shipped at Ogdensburg, chef, Max Standers, Chicago, and second chef, Charles Warnock, Chicago.

STORES PREPARED

Merchants Ready for Holiday Trade

Business is Reported Good—Stores and Shops Handsomely Decorated.

Peterborough merchants are ready for the Christmas trade. Ever see a lot of nicer stores and shops? Local merchants have a reputation for having attractive premises all the year round but they excel in this respect at Christmas. And this year is no exception to the rule. Already the stores have been "fixed up" for the holiday season and they are "things of beauty and a joy forever," or if not forever, until the holiday season is over at any rate.

The stores are now stocked with Christmas goods and the windows have been attractively decorated. Many novel effects are seen and there will be more before the season is over. Goods are arranged in a tempting manner in the windows along George and the other business streets and so beautiful are some of the displays that one would fain linger long gazing upon them.

Peterborough merchants report business excellent. The people, they say, are doing their Christmas shopping earlier than in past years and for this merchants and clerks are alike duly thankful. Goods are being bought and stored away until Christmas week. As the result of this early buying the rush and congestion on "that last awful week" will be somewhat relieved. The grocers report an active business.

THE "GIFT OF TONGUES" FOR THOSE WHO ARE CONVERTED

Pentecost Mission Now Being Held in Peterborough—Review Has Interesting Interview With Leader of the Sect Who Tells of Some Unusual Cases.

That the members of the newly established Pentecost mission which meets every afternoon and evening at 176 McDonnel street are thoroughly sincere in their convictions is most evident to anyone who attends their meetings.

The gathering last evening consisted of Rev. J. E. Sawders, of Watertown, N.Y. and a congregation of five—three men and two women. The reporter was informed that the congregations on the two previous evenings had been larger, on Wednesday evening there being twelve present. It was a particularly unusual kind of service and was most extensive, embracing many hymns, which were sung with a vim, and also several periods of prayer, in which, as is customary in the Holiness movement services, each person prayed aloud, practically irrespective of the other.

The reporter had an interesting interview with Mr. Sawders regarding the Pentecostal mission. The mission started in California two years and a half ago and since then it has become widespread throughout the world and 50,000 persons have received the Pentecostal conversion or in other words the gift of tongues.

"It is today just like the day of Pentecost," said Mr. Sawders. "As the apostles then spoke in different tongues so now do converts." He told of how members of congregations had received the gift of tongues and spoke in different languages as the spirit gave them utterance so that foreigners present in the audience could understand them. He referred to an interesting episode in his experience. In a mission in Los Angeles, Cal. a little girl while in fervent prayer, suddenly began to speak in Hebrew. An Hebrew infidel lecturer was present and she immediately began to address her remarks to him, telling him his name and that he was an infidel. On interviewing the child's parents, the Hebrew learned that their little girl had never studied his language. He believed and was converted.

Another incident he related was a case of where a Jew went into a meeting to get out of the rain and while he was there he was spoken to in his own language.

Mr. Sawders, remarked that he, himself when he had received the spirit spoke in Japanese. His wife, he said has spoken in several languages.

When one received the gift of tongues they retained the different languages but some only speak as the spirit allows them. He added, in conclusion, that the Pentecostal mission was being scorned by professional Christians but the wonderful effects of it was gradually being felt.

A WINTER CARNIVAL

Montreal Will Hold One Bigger Than Ever Before.

Montreal, Dec. 5.—At a meeting last night it was decided to hold a winter carnival in Montreal, Feb. 10 to 20.

It was determined to hold the carnival despite the opposition of railways and Board of Trade who contended that the ice palace advertising hurts immigration.

Merchants and hotelmen say that Canada has outgrown such prejudices and they have already subscribed $10,000 for the celebration. Ed. Sheppard, president of the arena was made chairman of the committee to conduct the event, which is intended to be made a more elaborate affair than was held in Montreal 18 years ago.

It was decided to have an ice palace.

WOMAN HAD TO TAKE THE ROAD

Collided With Another One at Corner of George and Hunter Sts. This Morning

This morning an amusing collision took place on George street at Simcoe, in front of Barrie's store. A woman was walking southward on George street and another one east on Simcoe. Both were travelling at a lively pace and apparently not noticing each other collided.

The lady coming down the main parade was bumped off the sidewalk and fell on to the road. A market basket she carried was overturned in the confusion and two or three towels and a shoping bag were spilled out on to the road. The lady on recovering her feet reproached the other woman telling her to "be careful where she was going." The latter seemed somewhat embarrassed by the publicity she was getting for quite a crowd began to gather and apologized abundantly for her innocent part in the catastrophe.

MR. R. L. BORDEN WANTS OPINION

Will Not Take Seat Until the Leadership Has Been Approved.

Ottawa, Dec. 5.—It is understood that R. L. Borden will issue a circular letter to the Conservative members-elect of the new Parliament, asking them to decide as to the leadership.

It is also stated that he will not appear in the House until this matter has been passed upon by the party.

It is not likely that anyone will oppose Mr. Borden, but there may be an effort made to postpone any action until the second session of the new Parliament, so as to enable the Conservative members to consult their constituents before taking a vote.

LATE TICKS FROM WIRES

The London (Ont.) Conservative Association last night elected William Gray president.

Charles Stern of Windsor, who was robbed of $150 last March in Detroit, yesterday identified Fred Lewis on the street in Detroit as the thief.

Alex. P. Gilbert, assistant general freight agent of the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway, was acquitted of a charge of unlawful rebating.

Right Rev. George Holmes, D.D., Bishop of Moosonee, has resigned his position owing to ill-health. He will, however, accept a similar appointment in Athabasca.

"SAW OFF" IS TALKED OF

Ontario Leaders May Make Peace and Wipe Off Slate.

Toronto, Dec. 5.—On both sides at the official "saw-off" meeting in Toronto yesterday, there was a general consensus of opinion that the best thing told was to "wipe off the slate." It would have been "wiped off" yesterday but for Centre Toronto and South Ontario. Mr. Robinette has blood in his eye, and Peter Christie has put up his ante of $1,000.

A prominent M.P. said at noon yesterday: "The whole matter is hung up till to-morrow, when the Liberals will hear from Ottawa. No petition will be filed till then on either side."

Peter White, Jr., sized up the situation thus: "We are trying to settle in two days' time what heretofore has always taken from three to four weeks."

The general impression last night was that if Peter Christie and Tom Robinette would lie down there would be no contests in Ontario.

LOST IN THE BUSH

John Hart Was Without Food or Sleep for Sixty-five Hours.

Special to the Review.

Havelock, December 5.—Mr. John Hart, who is employed on the Sudbury division of the C.P.R. spent a few days this week in town and relates a rather unpleasant experience he had had lately. While out hunting he got lost in the woods during a snow storm and wandered for 65 hours without sleep or food before a rescuing party succeeded in finding him.

AGENT PARSONS MAKES A RATHER QUEER ADMISSION

SLEIGHS ARE IN GENERAL USE

Sleighing is now general throughout the district. Sufficient snow has fallen to make the "slipping" good and the farmers from the country-side came to market to-day with sleighs. It is expected that trade will pick up greatly now.

QUEER CASE OF SMUGGLING

Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Dec. 5.—Warrants charging Capt. Frank D. Root, local manager at the American Soo for the Great Lakes Towing Co., and Henry C. Busse, cashier, with smuggling, have been served. Two more warrants on members of the crew of the lighter Reliance will be served. The lighter, which is the largest in the world, will also be seized.

The case grows out of the stranding of the steamer Canadian. The Reliance went to its assistance. Large quantities of canned goods, tea and sugar, were thrown overboard. It is alleged that afterwards they were picked up by the Reliance crew, brought to the American Soo, without paying duty, and were divided among the crew.

FOUND GUILTY OF MANSLAUGHTER

Auburn, N.Y., Dec. 5.—Raymond Allen, 19 years of age, was yesterday found guilty of manslaughter for shooting aged John Jetty at Port Byron. James Allen, 16 years, and Ethel Lyons, 17 years old, pleaded guilty to being accomplices. Ray Allen was sentenced to not less than 17 nor more than 20 years; James Allen, to not more than seven years, and the girl to three years.

The trio had been living in the Montezuma swamp, subsisting on what they could steal from farmers. They were returning from a night foray for provisions when they met Jetty in their path, and Ray, who carried a shotgun, shot him dead.

Bought Residence

Mr. R. Wilson has purchased the residence of Mrs. Wm. Pringle, 604 Bethune street. The property is a valuable one.

Assumed Government Should Pay More.

For Work and Material—Should Pay More for Work Than Individuals.

Halifax, N.S., Dec. 5.—Judge Cassels has finished his work here. The enquiry came to an end yesterday afternoon, although several witnesses from here may be summoned to Ottawa to give their evidence.

At the conclusion of the evidence, Mr. Watson, addressing the court, said that his learned friend and himself considered that from the evidence already adduced, sufficient had been shown to indicate the course of dealing in the Department at this agency, as well as the prices paid and they thought the enquiry should be adjourned.

Mr. Watson said that it would be necessary for some witnesses to attend before the court at Ottawa, and he named Mr. Hines, foreman of Longard Bros.; Mr. Wilson and Hon. David McPherson.

Judge Cassels agreed to the adjournment, and thought the investigation might be resumed at Ottawa on Tuesday week.

The afternoon session was chiefly devoted to the examination of Agent Parsons. Dealing with the large increase of employes in the dockyard during the month of October, Mr. Parsons said that in his opinion they were necessary by the demands of the Department. He said that the trees required thinning, the paths kept in condition, and the Admiralty grounds looked after.

Towards the latter part of his evidence, Mr. Parsons made what was taken to be an important admission. He said it was recognized by him, and acted upon, that in work and materials supplied to the Government a little extra should be charged than to an ordinary person.

Counsel also brought out the fact from Mr. Parsons, that previous to the stranding of the Lady Laurier a year or two ago off Yarmouth on an uncharted shoal, the location of the dangerous reef had been reported to him by some fishermen, but that the information had not been sent to headquarters, as a result of which the steamer went ashore and the repairs consequent thereon cost about $30,000.

Mr. Parsons was then examined by his own counsel, and explained the outstanding account he had with Longard Bros., stating that it was due to his financial inability to pay the bill, and not because of any favors or hope of reward from the firm.

POLICE COUNT SQUIRRELS IN CENTRAL PARK, NEW YORK

New York, Dec. 5.—The most difficult census ever undertaken is now being carried on in Central Park—a counting of the squirrels which live there. The undertaking is made necessary to determine whether the Central Park squirrels are becoming extinct.

Whatever the cause, however, of the decrease in numbers a dozen policemen have been given the job of taking the squirrels' census. Each policeman is furnished with a pocketful of nuts and another pocketful of colored strings. With the former he is to entice the squirrel so that he can tie one of the latter about his tail to avoid double counting. The men detailed for this peculiar employment have had to put up with a great many gibes from their fellow-cops, especially since it was learned as a result of their labors that the squirrel population was somewhere between 761 and 41,208, the two extreme figures turned in.

AIRSHIPS A MENACE

To be Feared Says Sir Hiram Maxim.

Inventor Declares That in a Year British Fleet Can do Nothing Against Flying Machines.

London, Dec. 5.—Sir Hiram Maxim took the British nation to task for its small interest in aerial machines in a lecture before the Society of Arts. He reproached England for being behind other first-class European countries in progress toward a solution of this form of locomotion.

"Does any one doubt for a moment," said he, "that in case we find ourselves at war with a continental power flying machines will be used for bombarding English towns both on the coast and inland? The City of London within a year's time can be attacked without our enemy needing to fear the boasted British fleet.

"A French engineer of international renown tells me that by this time next year there will be plenty of machines on the market capable of crossing and recrossing the channel several times at night and in darkness without stopping," he continued.

"There is only one way of combatting this danger and that is by constructing machines ourselves. Our achievements in this line thus far are insignificant because we lack the imagination of the French and the Americans. They began by believing, we by doubting."

Sir Hiram went on to say that he thought the Wright aeroplane a rough and imperfect piece of mechanism, but if equipped with a trustworthy motor it could be made much more serviceable.

Other speakers seconded Sir Hiram's warning that it is full time for England to wake up unless she wants to find herself at the mercy of the continental military fliers.

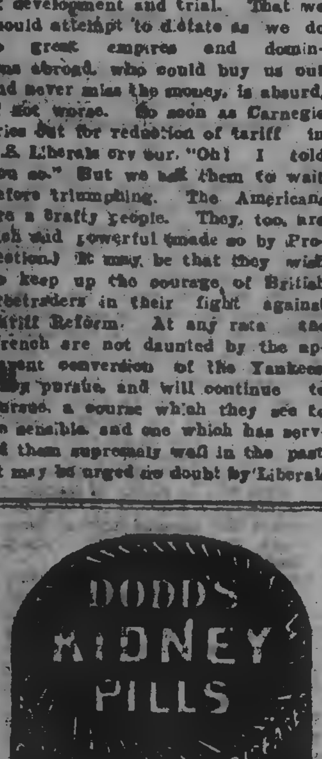
THE TRUTH ABOUT PROTECTION

"The revised French tariff, to be submitted to Parliament in January, increases the maximum rates twenty per cent."—The Globe, Dec. 4, 1908.

Not long ago it appeared that through the industry of the French and their vast store of common sense they had been able to accumulate $665,000,000 in gold as a reserve. As a consequence of this reserve they had been able to say to Germany after the Algeciras conference that she should not go to war with France. By reason of the extent of their loans to Germany, the French were also in a position to say that if Germany wanted war they would want their money. These and other instances of France's supreme position in the financial world are enough, surely, to induce the Globe and other distinguished members of the Liberal press to think before they speak further against Protection, which is together with French thrift the real foundation of French prosperity. The excerpt from the Globe, which we take for the text of our remarks, is a statement of the intention of the French to increase their maximum tariff rates by twenty per cent. Are we to conclude with the Golbe and the Liberal press that this is an act of insanity only by twenty degrees worse than that form of dementia which has characterized French tariff legislation all through? If so the facts of the case already cited must give us pause. If Canada could become as prosperous and financially happy and powerful as France caeteris paribus, surely it ought to be our immediate aim to bring about the desired result. Is it not an invincible argument in favour of Protection? Since by Protection and then still higher Protection the prosperous French became more prosperous and powerful it follows beyond all contradiction that Canada should follow her example. It is true that Combines and Trusts are a danger in protected countries. But this indictment is found not to apply to France. Why? There again is another French example to be followed. The present and the preceding attitude of the French respecting Protection demonstrates beyond cavil the desirability not of lowering our tariff, but of raising it. The next Commission that our Government should appoint should have power to go immediately to France and there find out at first hand from the French themselves how it is that they apply protective principles with such magnificent results. Instead of doing so heretofore, the Laurier administration has sent its delegates about Canada, where, if we knew nothing of Protection elsewhere, we might suppose that it was still in a process of development and trial. That we should attempt to dictate as we do to great empires and dominions abroad, who could buy us out and never miss the money, is absurd, if not worse. So soon as Carnegie cries out for reduction of tariff in U.S. Liberals cry our, "Oh! I told you so." But we tell them to wait before triumphing. The Americans are a crafty people. They, too, are rich and powerful (made so by Protection.) It may be that they wish to keep up the courage of British freetraders in their fight against Tariff Reform. At any rate the French are not daunted by the apparent conversion of the Yankees they pursue, and will continue to pursue, a course which they see to be sensible and one which has served them supremely well in the past. It may be urged no doubt by Liberals and Conservatives alike, and with with much show of reason, that we have no writer or statesman in Canada equal to the task of analysing this whole question as it affects Canada and in such a way as to show plainly the faults that we have committed and the remedies which we should hasten to provide. If so, it is somewhat the same with the U.S. They are looking at each other apparently in perplexity and are asking questions of each other. But in France it is otherwise. With men of the calibre required they see their way clearly and pursue it unfalteringly, firm in conclusions formed from time and ample experience. As a hollow substitute for an imperial federation which Sir Wilfrid Laurier abhors he has instituted a pretended preferential tariff, which, while it serves its purpose of keeping British manufacturers his personal and political friends, retains his favour with his compatriots whom to serve is his first duty and desire. Extravagance, corruption and a misunderstanding of our tariff is the chief characteristic of his regime, which is a sinister manifestation of doing one thing while pretending to do another.



DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS

EDITORIAL NOTES

The Examiner is in grave danger of that dread disease known as rabies verborum.

Horseshoes are now being glued to horses' feet by a sort of coarse gum or cement.

The 'Post' quotes from its correspondent in Canada, who says, 'The most serious scandals, those which involve charges of graft and prodigal use of public money, have as their foundation parliamentary committee or judicial records that can no more be argued out of existence than the North America Act.'—Montreal Witness.

Most of the Esperantists will become Idoists; but the Idoists will not become Esperantists. They cannot; they enjoy something better. Even an outsider can see that "aspektar" is better than "elrigardi"; "treno" than "vagonaro"; "rurolt than "kampro"; "ed" than "kaj"; "nike" than "tie-oni"; etc. Nobody expected Esperanto to suddenly collapse. Nothing in Mr. Mann's letter weakens my position that Esperanto literature will soon be waste paper, and that it will fail to supply the need of an universal international language. To this the Esperantist Congress last August agreed.—Public Opinion.

"The test demonstrated that the report of a service army rifle was so reduced by the device as to be inaudible at a distance of 150 feet from the person firing. The invention is of a nature similar to the muffler of a gas engine. Its essential parts are a valve that closes the bore of the gun immediately after the projectile has passed the valve. This closure of the valve prevents the sudden expansion of the gases, the gases being emitted slowly. The result is that the characteristic report of a rifle is reduced three-fourths in loudness, it being judged by the officials who were present that the efficiency of the apparatus was about 74 per cent. In the report of the test it is stated that upon firing, the report was like the snapping of one's fingers accompanied by a slight hissing as the gases escaped. The sound of the hammer striking the firing pin was more sharper than the report of the piece. The invention appears to be entirely practicable and it is thought that it will work a revolution in warfare. The firing line of an army equipped with noiseless and smokeless rifles will be very hard to locate as there will be neither noise nor smoke to guide the observer as to the position of the enemy. A dangerous feature of the new weapon is that it lends itself admirably to the cowardly assassin. With a noiseless gun it will be possible to shoot down a man in the street without alarming the police. On the other hand, as a game gun, the new rifle will be highly prized, it being possible with it to shoot an animal without scaring the remainder of the herd; but even that has its drawback, as it will tend to make the business of pot-hunting successful."

The following letter to an exchange appears to have excited very general interest and comment:

"I believe the columns of a newspaper are always open to everyone who has anything to suggest that will be beneficial to the country or general public. I have been living in Canada for several years, and from the first I noticed the very peculiar and incorrect pronunciation of the vast majority of born Canadians. If the various cities would compel their teachers to attend schools of voice culture, or elocution, employing only teachers of acknowledged purity and perfectness of diction, the next generation of Canadians would b eable to speak pure English—the English of Shakespeare and Jonson.

You will pardon my plain speaking, but the nasal tone, and the harsh, rasping, squareness of their final "r's" is as hideous and grating to the refined ear as the voice of the 'Down East Yankee.' I do not especially advocate the use of the broad 'a' as used or affected by most Britishers; in fact, that is not the English of 'Shakespeare and Jonson,' the more beautiful English is the shorter 'a,' but it seems to b ethe 'a' that they most abuse, for instance, in the following, they say:

Wel for walk;
Tok for talk;
Ottomobile for automobile;
Wol for wall;
Tol for tall, etc.

I have heard hundreds of your high school pupils, business men, and others who would be deeply insulted if you said they were not well educated; say; 'I gotta go,' or 'I gotto do th's, or 'gotta do that,' instead of 'I have to,' etc. I have heard not only one but many school teachers habitually using that abominable form of words; 'I hope it don't rain to-morrow,' 'I hope she comes.' 'I hope she don't go,' etc.; sentences most crossly incorrect; ones incapable of being parsed; using the verb in the present tense, instead of in the future.

These are only a very few of the errors of speech that make the Canadian voice so unpleasant to the refined ear. It can only be remedied by employing teachers of faultless diction, and training the voice carefully from childhood. Then, and not till then, will these glaring faults be eliminated; and the Canadian people be a people speaking pure English. Since writing the foregoing I was speaking to a man of high education, and one who has travelled all over the world. By an odd coincidence he mentioned the language of the Canadians, and, to quote his own words, he said: 'The Canadian will never learn to speak pure English.' Then, when I told him what I considered the only remedy, he agreed; but said it would take a full generation to accomplish it.

I pride myself on being one who has the welfare of Canada at heart,

A TRUE CITIEZN.

CHECK YOUR FAT

Hold it where it is or take off some. You can do either without disturbing your meals or your ease or your digestive organs. You can do it without physical risk, mental effort or danger of a wrinkle. "Sounds well, but these are words only," you say. True, but there is a nation full of indorsers of these words, so your protest, while natural, is feeble. Prove it. Write to the Marmola Company, Detroit, Mich., inclosing 75 cents or, better still, take that amount over to your druggist and get one of the extra large cases of Marmola Prescription Tablets. You will find it generously filled. Take one after meals and at bedtime, and within thirty days you should be losing a pound of fat per day, without disturbance, as we said, of either your meals, habits or these statements are not to be denied, for the tablets are an exact duplicate of the famous fat-reducing Marmola Prescription: One-half ounce Marmola, 3-4 ounce Fluid Extract Cascara Aromatic and 4 3-4 ounces Peppermint Water, which any druggist will tell you is the World's Fair medal winner in its class.

OF INTEREST

"A survival of the days of Merrie England, when the people were rejoiced with pageantry and military display took place on Monday in the Lord Mayor's Show. This venerable custom had degenerated during the last few years into a miserable travesty of what it once had been. But last year it took on a new lease of life, probably goaded thereto by the accounts of pageants which had been organized with success in provincial towns. This year again the progress was maintained and as a result record crowds lined the streets on Monday to see London's first Magistrate make his triumphal way through his good city of London. It is difficult to turn one's eyes to the past in any of its varying aspects without raising some faint shadows of the Church's benign presence. Thus the very first group which headed the Literary pageant of the Show was composed of Dan Chaucer and his Canterbury pilgrims. There was mine host, rotund and rubicund, there was the priest, a Dominican Monk, with rosary and breviary, a Franciscan Friar, a Red Cross Knight, and all the other well-known picturesque figures of the tales ambling through the streets, on gentle palfrey, and bringing back visions of mediaeval London. Anon came Spencer, attended by the knights of the "Faery Queen," Constancy, Holiness, Charity, Friendship and the rest; and then Shakespeare, garbed in sober black, rode at the head of a galaxy of his immortal characters, taken haphazard here and there. The Merchant of Venice himself, rode side by side with Shylock, Oberon was there and Bottom in a condition of enchantment. Tybalt, gorgeous in rich umber and ashen grey looked a possible rival of less brilliant Romeo; Julius Caesar, surrounded by Nubian slaves, was drawn in a Roman chariot, whilst Mark Antony led the cohort of soldiers which preceded him. Atolicus was distributing his wares to the fair spectators as he passed. Othello jostled Falstaff, and graceful Ariel set off repulsive Caliban; Viola and Rosalind and Imogen were there; while Touchstone rode in solitary state and was followed by many more. Kit Marlowe brought Dr. Faustus and an imposing Mephistopheles and late came "rare Ben Johnson" and the poets of the Stuart period. Each character was befittingly dressed in rich and graceful robes of the period represented, many of the knights wearing chain armour. Moreover the various representatives had been chosen for their physical suitability for the part they played, and, with the exception of one or two unhappy blunders, they looked their parts to perfection."—Exchange.

George F. Kneen, a former Montrealer, now superintendent of Transvaal police at Heidelberg, Transvaal, sends the Star a thrilling account of a fatal fight between Corporal Eagle and a lioness. Eagle was a Canadian half-breed from Regina or vicinity who went to South Africa in March, 1901, and was one of the few Canadians left in the old South African constabulary.

Superintendent Kneen states in his letter that the fight was the talk of the Transvaal. Incidentally he states for the benefit of Canadians who have friends and relatives buried in South Africa, that on All Saints Day the Loyal Humane Guild all over South Africa decorated the graves of comrades who fell during the war, adding:

"In this little village of Heidelberg, I must testify to the splendid way in which these noble women have looked after the graves of the Canadians who are buried here."

With regard to Corporal Eagle's fight with a lioness, it appears that Eagle with a companion, both on horseback, were travelling along the road, over which some Dutchmen had previously passed. The latter had shot a lion cub, and the infuriated parents were following up the spoor with the object of exacting revenge.

Suddenly the lioness appeared in the roadway in front of Eagle and his companion and gave evidence of her intentions by an angry roar. Eagle at once unslung his carbine and fired at her, striking her in the shoulder, at the same time trying to get his horse to move. The poor animal, however, was terror stricken, and stood like a stone, while the other horse with a snort of terror, turned tail and bolted.

The shot from the carbine had no apparent effect upon the lioness, for she came forward at full speed and sprang upon Trooper Eagle, seizing him by the leg and dragging him to the ground.

He fell upon his feet, and, quick as lightning, he made a leap for the brute, twisting round upon her so as to get upon her back. He threw his right arm round her neck and then reached over her head, thrust his first and second fingers up her nostrils and pulled her head back with all the force at his command.

The brute screamed with rage at this unexpected counter attack, and immediately set to work to rid herself of her assailant.

Then commenced what must have been one of the most terrible combats in the history of creation. For over half an hour man and brute fought for mastery —he with bare hands and she with terrible claws. Sometimes he was underneath, kicking at her stomach with his heavy boots while she tore huge lumps of flesh out of his thighs with her claws. Then he would struggle round again to her side and back and force her head back, not that he really hoped to break her neck, but more with the natural instinct of keeping those terrible jaws in such a position that they could not touch him.

Time after time the brute got her teeth into him, as well as her claws, and the marvel is that in such an unequal conflict the brave Canadian lasted so long. Bleeding from a score of wounds, with arms and legs almost torn to pieces, he was just on the point of collapse when with encouraging shouts the Dutchmen who had previously robbed the lioness of her cub, rushed upon the scene.

They had heard the faint report of the trooper's carbine, and, knowing by experience that the parents would follow them up after shooting the cub they were quick to apprehend the true facts of the situation. They rushed back as fast as they could, but some time before they came in sight of the ghastly fight they knew what was happening by the agonizing shrieks of Trooper Eagle and the equally terrifying roars and screams of pain and rage of the lioness, whose nostrils were almost torn out by the despairing grip of the man who never once let go of the tender cartilage, though fainting and practically delirious from the pain and loss of blood.

The appearance of the Dutchmen and the discharge of a bullet frightened the lioness, who with one big effort managed to free herself of the now exhausted man.

Trooper Eagle dropped to the ground in an unconscious condition and the lioness made off, but was quickly brought to the ground with bullets and killed outright.

The unfortunate trooper, whose clothing was practically torn from him and whose body was lacerated in the most horrible manner was tended with the utmost care. He was removed to the nearest hospital with all speed, and though he recovered consciousness and was able to recount what had happened he was unable to recover from the blood poisoning that set in, and died.

He was a young man, slightly built not at all, the sort of individual, physically likely to keep up a thirty minutes' hand to hand conflict with an infuriated lioness. His wonderful intrepidity, and tenacity is almost the sole topic of conversation in the Zoutpansberg, and his comrades of the Transvaal police mourn the loss of one of the bravest men who ever donned the uniform.

One afternoon of last week ex-Senator Edward Ward Carmack, walking with a lady in the streets of Nashville, was shot to death by the son of a political opponent against whom he had lately turned his famous powers of ridicule. The national reputation of the victim, the character the South has long held for crimes of like nature, and the fact that Prohibitionists look upon his death as a martyrdom to their cause, combine to focus the attention of the whole nation upon this particular tragedy. The incidents which seem to have led up to it, and the story of the shooting, are briefly as follows: Mr. Carmack, since his unsuccessful campaigns for re-election to the United States Senate and for the Democratic nomination for Governor of Tennessee, had returned to his old calling of journalism. Recently, as editor of the Nashville Tennessean, he criticized in a satirical vein the political activities of Colonel Duncan Brown Cooper, a local Democratic leader who had brought about a coalition of the Patterson and Cox elements in the Tennessee Democracy. According to Nashville despatches he was "warned" to leave Colonel Cooper's name out of the editorial columns of his paper. For answer he published the following burlesque salutation, which is said to have supplied the immediate incitement to the subsequent tragedy;—

"To Maj. Duncan Brown Cooper, who wrought the great coalition; who achieved the harmonious confluence of incompatible elements; who welded the pewter handle to the wooden spoon; who grafted the dead bough to the living tree and made it to bloom and burgeon and bend with golden fruit; who made playmates of the lamb and the leopard, and boon companions of the spider and the fly; who made soda and vinegard dwell placidly in the same bottle, and who taught oil and water how they might agree—to Major Duncan Brown Cooper, the great diplomat of the political Zweibund, be all honor and glory forever."

In the afternoon of the day on which this paragraph appeared Mr. Carmack encountered Colonel Cooper and his son Robin J. Cooper. The latter killed Carmack with three shots from a revolver, the victim himself firing twice and slightly wounding the younger Cooper in the shoulder. The question as to who first drew a weapon remains to be settled in court, but meanwhile the general assumption, based on the testimony of witnesses, is that Mr. Cooper was the aggressor.

"We cannot conceive that any thoughtful, law-abiding Southern man will condone the crime of which Mr. Carmack was the victim or will find in the paragraph written and published by Mr. Carmack the slightest justification for taking the life of the editor-statesman," remarks the Baltimore Sun.

"HEALTH AND STRENGTH" HAS AN INTERVIEW WITH GOTCH

e London Health and Strength —Despite the conflicting rum- that have been current for some past, Frank A. Gotch, winner of much discussed wrestling match the Russian Lion last April, is our midst. the Cunard liner "Campania" has ght the famous American safely shores on the 4th inst. and following day, amidst a number gagements, he courteously spar- some time to gather his views wrestling matters in general, his own affairs in particular. atever Columbia's champion is like he arena, he is a most agreeable vidual in private life.

ORD SKETCH OF THE VISITOR

ter having heard so much about American, "H. and S." readers doubtless be interested to know what appearance he presents to eye. Standing within a fraction feet, his depth of chest and dth of shoulder strike one at the glance. He is certainly splendid for his avoirdupois—in athletic [illegible], he is "big for his weight," is just 196 pounds stripped. ing the stature into considera- , another stone or two would to be justified; but there is ing superfluous about Gotch, and weight just reaches the point re heavy athletes of the best class usually found. When you get h beyond Gotch's weight the ity is apt to suffer. The follow- are Gotch's measurements as sug- d to me by himself;—Height 5ft. -4 in.; weight 196 pounds; chest, 45 in.; neck, 18 in.; biceps, ; forearm, 16 [illegible] in.; waist, 35 thigh, 25 in.; calf, 17 in.

qually noticeable is the visitor's complexion, the reward of an air life. The good-humored ex- sion on his frank, genial counten- tells that Gotch belongs to the tic division of humanity. Yet ery casual survey of his strongly ed features suggests that when baist or war is sounded, and the to "stiffen the sinews" arrives American looks the picture looks picture of combatant. This, of , is surmised, as just then there battle-cry in the air; on the , Columbia's hero was enter- me, and some of his friends, of reminiscences, told in albeit pithy and incisive o begin at the beginning. to Frank that he was A sponded Frank; "Hum state of Iowa, was the ate was April 27, 1878, now thirty years of ou begin wrestling? question.

349 feet, I have wrestled all my life. I was fond of all kinds of sport. I became a professional wrestler in 1900, and was downed in my first match, which disappointed me until it transpired that my opponent was Dan McLeod, then recognized champion of Canada, who had met me under a disguised name. After that I went on a mining expedition to Klondyke and whilst there I won all along the line at wrestling, the biggest event being a match with Swanson for $10,000. At boxing I was not so successful, Frank Slavin beating me in the seventh round. When I returned to the States I specialized wrestling, and improved so far as to turn the tables on Tom Jenkins, who some time before had defeated me. Tom was the American champion at that time. Since then I have beat every American of note, including Fred Beel, 'Farmer' Burns, Jack Carkeek, Dr B F Roller and Joe Rogers, also Dan McLeod and a number of Continental wrestlers who visited America."

Gotch spoke enthusiastically of his two veteran trainers, Jack Carkeek and 'Farmer' Burns, especially the latter.

"'Farmer' is getting on in years, but he is not far from the top of the tree now," said Gotch.

HIS METHODS OF TRAINING

This led up to the subject of training generally and the famous wrestler gave the particulars of his system.

"Road work is the first item in my programme," said Frank, "ten to fifteen miles in the morning. In the afternoon I practice in the gymnasium, going through a course of dumb bells Indian clubs, handball punching the bag, wrist machine exercise, and wrestling.

"I always use light dumb bells so as to cultivate the utmost speed. In regard to diet, I simply eat plain, wholesome food, carefully avoiding highly seasoned dishes. Personally, I never smoke or drink."

"As a general rule, but with occasional exceptions," I suggested.

"I have never tasted a drop of intoxicating liquor in my life," was the emphatic reply.

Evidently the value of the Public School spirit is not appreciated on this side of the Atlantic alone, as Gotch, who was a law student in his early youth remarked that the discipline of a college education is one of the most potent factors in moulding character. Important as a robust physique is, it is essential that it should be dominated by a sound mind.

"And now," I asked, "what are your plans for the future?"

"On Monday the 9th inst. I begin an eighteen weeks' tour with the 'Moss and Stoll Company,'" answered the bronzed grappler, "starting at the New Cross Empire. I am travelling with my own company in an athletic comedy sketch entitled "All About a Bout."

"But," proceeded Gotch, "I have also come to England for a particular purpose." One word was on the tip of my tongue—Hackenschmidt.

GOTCH AND HACK.

"I have come," said the American, "to vindicate myself. I know the kind of reports that have appeared about me. I am willing to be judged by the British public, but I don't like to be judged without a trial. It would have been of little use for me to have written over here six months back, as it would have been only the word of a stranger; but, contrary to the expectation of some people, I have come to England in person and as soon as my tour is over I shall be ready to meet any catch as catch can wrestler, Hackenschmidt preferred."

I glanced again at the powerful frame of the speaker, and the vision of the Homeric struggle passed before my eyes.

"What is your opinion of Hack," I asked point blank.

"He has a wonderful development. Hack is the strongest man I have met but strength isn't everything by a long way. 'Mind over matter, brain over brawn,' is my motto, and I don't consider that Hackenschmidt is a quick thinker."

"What of the toe hold," I asked.

"I stand by all-in rules, except the strangle hold. Catch as catch can should be catch as catch can. If you introduce restrictions it becomes something else. My opponents are welcome to try any hold on me."

The prospect of a return encounter between such protagonists of the mat as the warrior from Columbia and the Russian Lion will be hailed with acclamation by lovers of the grappling art, and when I parted from the strenuous farmer-athlete it was with the hope that before long I should see the pair locked in the embrace of honorable combat. Meanwhile I hazard the forecast that the British impression of our trans-Atlantic invader will improve upon acquaintance.

P.C.I. IN JUNIOR CITY LEAGUE

Arrangements have been made to secure the Brock street rink two nights a week for practice.

The date for the presentation of the local amateur theatrical, "All the Comforts of a Home," has been fixed for Thursday, Dec. 17th. Lindsay theatre-goers have been waiting the announcement of the date with anticipation, so favorably have the Peterborough press spoke of the play. Mr. Beers, the conductor of the event, is very optimistic about the prospects of the production and says that the Lindsay actors will score every bit as big a success as in Peterborough or elsewhere.—Lindsay Warder.

TOWN LEAGUE IN LINDSAY

The annual meeting of the town Hockey League was held in the Simpson House parlors last evening when a large crowd of enthusiastic hockey players and supporters, including last year's officers were all present. TO PROTECT CANADA FROM FOOT AND MOUTH DISEASE

The Government Veterinary Department of Ontario are taking wise measures to prevent the introduction of the foot and mouth disease into Canada. Cattle on the other side of the line in the norther States and most particularly in Michigan are afflicted with the epidemic and many brought to the stockyards and many found to have the disease. Several persons have also contracted the ailment from eating the diseased meat. Canada, however, is absolutely free from the plague and precautionary measures have been adopted to see that not a single animal that has the disease or any indication of it is allowed to cross the Canadian border from the United States.

Dr. Johnston of this city has returned from a congress of veterinary surgeons in Toronto which was called by Dr. Hilton, Deputy Veterinary Director for the Dominion.

Veterinary surgeons from different parts of the province were in consultation with Dr. Moore, of the Veterinary Director's staff and after much serious discussion were allotted different ports from the States into Canada at which to conduct inspections of cattle and see that the Canadian markets are kept clear of any with the foot and mouth disease. Dr. Johnston was assigned to Windsor, but fears that owing to the extent of his local practice, he may not be able to accept the appointment.

ED. RENTON AT FORT WILLIAM

One of the players that will endeavor to catch a place on the Fort Williams this winter will be A. E. Renton. He has played the game with Peterborough for years and the Fort Williams' secured his signature to one of their certificates this morning.—Fort William Times Journal.

THE RING

Billy Weller and Bob Wilson met last night and agreed to meet in a 15 round bout for the lightweight championship of Canada, during the week commencing December 20th, the place of meeting to be agreed upon on later. Both posted forfeits of $50 to guarantee weight and appearance.—Montreal Star.

WRESTLING

WATER IN CANAL BEING LOWERED

The water in the canal is being lowered to the usual winter level, being dropped several feet below the summer height. The superintendent stated Thursday that this precaution was taken to avoid any possible break such as occurred several years ago. It will not cause any injury to the many fish which will winter in the Trent Canal.—Lindsay Post.

Witness Dissents.

Montreal, Dec. 5.—The Daily Witness published a strong leader last evening against the Board of Trade appointing H. B. Ames, M.P., Geo. E. Drummond, R. Wilson Smith, and Lt.-Col. Jeffry Burland to the congress of the Chambers of the Empire meeting in Sydney, Australia, next year, on the ground that they are all Conservative protectionists.

"Personally," The Witness says, "they will do credit to the city, but as the farmers of the country have pronounced in favor of eliminating the protective system from politics, the delegation is a bad one."

French Fight Moors.

Paris, Dec. 5.—A telegram received here from French West Africa says that a detachment of French Spahis have had a serious engagement with a band of Moors. The French lost in killed one lieutenant and twelve privates, while the enemy suffered heavy losses and were routed.

Another communication received from the Governor of Indo-China says that the four native leaders in the plot discovered some weeks ago to poison a detachment of French troops, and who, after trial, were condemned to death, were executed Thursday.

Cattle Slaughtered.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Dec. 5.—As a result of Government inspection of the Dold stock farm, Niagara Falls, N.Y., over 150 head of cattle affected with the foot and mouth disease were slaughtered yesterday afternoon under the supervision of United States officials. As soon as the cattle were killed their bodies were buried in deep trenches and covered with lime. Automobiles are now prevented from crossing the bridges from the United States into Canada, in accordance with an order posted yesterday afternoon.

WHAT NEGLECT DID FOR HIM

Jas. E. Brant Suffered Torments From Kidney Disease.

Then He Used Dodds Kidney Pills and Became a Well Man—His Experience a Lesson for You.

Athabasca Landing, Alta., Dec. 4.—Special.—That Kidney Disease, neglected in its earlier stages, leads to the most terrible suffering, if not death itself, and that the one sure cure for it in all stages is Dodd's Kidney Pills, is the experience of Mr. James E. Brant, a farmer residing near here.

Mr. Brant contracted Kidney Disease, when a young man, from a strain, and, like hosts of others, neglected it, expecting it to go away itself.

But it kept gradually growing worse, till after thirty years of increasing suffering the climax came, and he found himself so crippled that at times he could not turn in bed, and for two weeks at a time it was impossible for him to rise from a chair without putting his hands on his knees.

He could not button his clothes. He was troubled with Lumbago, Gravel and Backache, and tried medicines for each and all of them without getting relief, till good luck turned him to Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Dodd's Kidney Pills started at the cause of his troubles and cured his Kidneys. With cured Kidneys his other troubles speedily disappeared, and to-day he is a well man.

If you cure your Kidneys with Dodd's Kidney Pills you will never have Lumbago, Rheumatism, Heart Disease, Dropsy or Bright's Disease.

Its regular use soon shows surprisingly satisfactory results and there is not one drop of injurious matter in its composition.

JOHN SAGE FORMERLY OF PETERBORO' WAS DROWNED IN THE GOULAIS RIVER

Was Driving Across the River With a Friend on Nov. 27th—Friend Was Rescued But Horses and Sage Were Lost—Mr. Henry Sage of Smith, a Brother

Chief Roszel has received the following letter from Thos. J. Bowers, of Sault Ste. Marie, inquiring after relatives of John Sage who was drowned near the Sault town on Nov. 27th. Sage was formerly of Peterborough. His body has not yet been recovered.

The letter is as follows:

Sault Ste. Marie,
December 2, 1908.

To Chief of Police,
Peterborough, Ont.,

Dear Sir.—I write you for the purpose of finding out some information in connection with finding out some relatives of John Sage, who was drowned near the Sault Ste. Marie town on the 27th of November. Mr. Sage had been married twice as far as I can learn. Both wives are dead and I think that he has a daughter living in Peterborough, perhaps she is married, but I think you could find out by going to the Registry Office of marriages. He, the said John Sage has a farm and some chattels such as hay, wagon, sleigh, cutter, buggy and some household goods. I was with him when he was drowned crossing the Goulais river with his team. The team of horses was also drowned. If you can find anything of his daughter or any of his relatives. The body was not found yesterday but they are still looking for it.

Please let me know if you can find out anything about his daughter. I think that he has two brothers but do not know where they are. He has been living up in Algoma for six or seven years.

Reply to,

THOS J. BOWERS,
Sault Ste Marie,
Box 312.

PS—The neighbors want me to look after the goods and farm. I am bailiff and district constable and know all the circumstances of his death. He was driving across the river with his team and waggon, the water was above three or four feet deep, strong current and the horses turned and went down stream. He took to the horses and I kept on some boards, that he used for a waggon box. We drifted down in about 12 feet of water. He went under with the horses and I kept on the two boards till a boat came to me, but he went down too soon.

T. J. BOWERS.

P. C Adams on making inquiries, learned that the drowned man had a brother residing in Smith by the name of Henry Sage. He is in the city today and called at the police station where he learned of his brotehr's misfortune. A daughter of the deceased, the last Mr Sage heard of, was residing in Toronto. Chief Roszel communicated with Toronto this afternoon in an effort to find the daughter.

BELL TELEPHONE CO. MUST PAY EMPLOYEE HIS WAGES

Case Heard Before Magistrate Dumble in Police Court This Morning—Dispute as to Whether the Apsley Co. Should Pay or the Bell Telephone Co.

The Bell Telephone Company were ordered to pay Dore Vinnette the sum of sixteen dollars wages earned by him while engaged on the new telephone line between Mt. Julian and Apsley. The company contended that the Apsley Telephone Company should pay the money, but after hearing the evidence, his Worship ordered that the Bell Telephone Co. pay the wages in addition to the costs, amounting to $19.35, It to be paid in eight days. Mr. R. F. McWilliams appeared for Vinnette and Mr. F. D. Kerr for the Bell Telephone Co

D. Vinnette, the complainant, said that he had been engaged as a lineman on the Bell Telephone Co. He was engaged on the new line running from Mt. Julian to Apsley. Mr. Brimner, foreman of the company, took them up to Apsley, Mr. Brimmer told complainant that he would be paid down here. Later he said that the Apsley people would pay him. Then again he said that the Apsley people had no money and that he would be paid here.

Mr. Gunyea, sub-foreman on this work, was called. He received his instructions from Mr. Brimner. He knew nothing of the arrangements between the Apsley Co., and the Bell Telephone Co. He thought Mr. Bremner would pay them.

Mr. F. W. Doan, local manager of the Bell Telephone Co., said that they had a contract with the Apsley Co. The Bell Co. did not have to do any construction work. Witness said that he told the men that the Apsley Co. would pay them. He merely sent them back as a personal favor to Mr. Brown, president of the Apsley Co.

Mr. Bremner, foreman of the Co., said that on the Saturday night before the men went, he told them that they were to go up and work for the Apsley Telephone Co. That was all that was said. He said that wen they were hired it was agreed tat they should be paid in Peterborough. Mr. Doan on the following Friday, when witness was going to Apsley, told him to tell Mr. Brown to pay the men.

Mr. Kerr argued that Mr. Doan might be personally liable, but the Bell Telephone Co. was not responsible for something one of their agents had done without their knowledge.

The Magistrate said that the Bell Telephone Co. had employed these men They know nothing of an independent company and it was to the Bell people that they looked for pay. He ordered that they pay the wages.

NOTHING TO BE DONE THIS YEAR AS TO THE ISOLATION HOSPITAL

The Property Committee of the City Council took up the isolation hospital question at a meeting held yesterday afternoon. Nothing will be done this year regarding the matter. Plans have been prepared for a brick building to cost $7,000, and it is probable that the incoming council will take the matter up. The committee instructed the city clerk to write the secretary of each of the city hospitals and arrange for a joint meeting with the committee or Council to discuss the hospital question.

AN AQUARIUM FOR PHYSICAL LABRATORY AT COLLEGIATE

An interesting addition to the physical laboratory of the Collegiate Institute is an aquarium. It is 4 feet square and holds a foot and a half of water. The sides of the tank are of class and was installed for the benefit of the students of zoology and natural history. It is supplied with running water.

Already there are some unwilling captives in the aquarium—two turtles and some lizards. Fish will be placed in it in the fishing season. The classes in zoology and natural history are under the instruction of Mr. Hodgson.

SNOWSHOE CLUB WILL LIKELY BE FORMED THIS WINTER

The toboggan slide and rink at Jackson Park will soon be open if this weather holds out. The rink is all ready to be flooded and the small boys are already hovering about the slide. Several of them were there there last night amusing themselves in various ways.

Now that there is a certainty of no more warm weather the young people are looking forward to the pleasures of tobogganing, snowshoeing and skating.

Snowshoeing is growing greatly in favor in Peterborough and is likely to be very popular this winter. Already there is talk of forming a club to be conducted on large lines with a view of securing a big membership. Snowshoe tramps and social functions will be in order if the club is organized. While no definite steps have been taken towards organization the Review is informed that it is quite likely the club will be formed.

SPAT ON FLOOR OF OPERA HOUSE

Wm. Fitzgerald in Police Court This Morning---Case Enlarged

Wm Fitzgerald pleaded not guilty to expectorating on the floor of the Grand Opera House last evening. Mr J. J. Turner, Sr, the proprietor stated that he saw the man spit tobacco juice on the floor. The house constable also warned him about it and he became so troublesome that H. C. Newall was called and arrested the man. The house constable was unable to be present and the case was adjourned until this afternoon at five o'clock.

HE PROTESTS AGAINST IT

The Use of the Church as Eating-house and Place of Amusement

Editor of the Review.

Dear Sir.—With your permission allow me to call attention to an important matter, not that I want to use your columns just for to SAY something but for the simple reason that I have SOMETHING to say. In the days of the Apostle Paul the churches were cursed with the same thing that prevails largely today, viz, that of eating and drinking in the churches. The only eating and drinking that is scriptural or allowed in the church is partaking of the Lord's supper.

In Paul's day they held their high teas in the churches and big suppers, &c, &c. Read 1 Cor. 11.18.34 Hear him "First of all when ye come together in the church, I hear that there be divisions among you.——— When ye come together therefore into one place, this is not to eat the Lord's supper. What have ye not houses to eat and to drink in? or despise ye the church of God and shame them that have not. Shall I praise you in this? I praise you not. If any man hunger LET HIM EAT AT HOME that ye come not together unto condemnation.' How many today despise the place set apart for divine worship and turn the sanctuary into an eating house and place of amusement. Men professing to be able ministers of the New Testament and others promoting and encouraging this most unscriptural thing and damaging to the spiritual welfare of the church ought to be heartily ashamed of themselves.

I am persuaded, Mr Editor, that the great bulk of your readers will in their inmost soul, say I speak the words of truth and soberness.

Yours truly,
JOHN CARLISLE.

The Library Site

To the Editor of the Review.

Dear Sir.—Permit me to express my regret that the Property Committee last evening decided to purchase a lot near the Central Park for the Public Library, for the following, amongst other reasons;—

1. This lot is at the back of the city at some distance from the path of the travelling public, to whom we owe much for incidentally advertising our progressive city.

2. It would be an inconvenient location for about two-thirds of our citizens, particularly those engaged in mechanical pursuits for whom, I submit the library was primarily intended.

3. I think the south-west part of the city is entitled to some consideration inasmuch as it has no public park—not even a field in which the boys may play baseball without trespassing. The Nicholls Hospital, Normal School, Collegiate Institute, Armouries, Y.M.C.A., and no less than four parks are all on the north-east and north-west side of the city.

A glance at the map indicates that about half the population live south of Charlotte street, and I have no doubt a number of suitable locations could be obtained in the district bounded by Charlotte, Aylmer, Hunter and George streets, where a beautiful building would be an object of admiration to many, chance travellers, as well as easily accessible to the many readers in the south end.

Allow me to suggest some of these;—

1. The large vacant lot on Hunter street, immediately west of the new Bell Telephone office.
2. Either of the two western corners of Hunter and Aylmer streets.
3. The north-west corner of Charlotte and Aylmer streets.
4. The south side of Charlotte street.

These properties are either vacant lots or the site of comparatively old frame buildings to purchase any one of which $5000.00 (the proposed price of the Lundy lot) would go a long way.

The general advance in the value of property in the vicinity of the library would soon make harmonious surroundings for a fine public building.

I am very much pleased that the Council are taking decided action in this matter. I do not think it the best policy in the interests of the city to cluster all our "show" buildings in one section where to be seen a special trip must be made by the stranger who happens in for an hour or two on business.

Some of the public buildings already erected have been robbed of a large part of their real worth by their unfortunate location if one is to judge by the remarks now being made.

Yours truly,
J. W. BENNET.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Review does not hold itself responsible for opinions expressed by its correspondents

The Law Association.

Editor of the Review.

Wood, November 30, 1908

Dear Sir,—Would you kindly publish the enclosed document, and send me a copy of the paper in which you print it in, as it may strike terror in the gang concerned and may be the means of reform in the administration of justice, and as there are no names or place mentioned, you will not likely incur the ill-will of parties concerned. I have appealed to the Law Society and the Attorney-General for redress in the matter, but without success, and my opinion is that a .. in the Law Society, men graduate as criminals and it ought to be wiped out of existence.

I remain, yours truly,
DONALD ANDERSON,
Wood, Ont.

Dear Sir,—Permit me to pen a word of warning to the people of Canada, concerning an evil which exists in connection with preparing cases for High Courts, and appears like a trap by lawyers and men of rank to enable them to escape justice, whatever their crime may be, and make the plaintiff appear to be a perjurer, and I now call on the respectable citizens of Canada to join and wipe this abominable system out of existence. Anyone who has ever had a case for the High Court knows that the defendant has the priviledge of calling for an examination in order to find out what evidence the plaintiff is able to put up against him, and what witnesses he has, if the case is of a serious nature, he will find out when the case comes up, his witnesses know nothing of the case, or had to suffer insults if they persist in backing plaintiff, or may be found missing. On the other hand if the plaintiff has documents to sustain his charges his attorney will endeavor to get them, which if he does, the plaintiff will never get them again, and the lawyer who would no swear he did not get them, is scarce, and the lawyer who would take action against another for so doing, even if plaintiff could prove his charge, is just as scarce, and if the plaintiff keeps his documents his attorney will endeavor to persuade him to make no statements, only answer questions, which in no case is ever of any benefit to the plaintiff and his lawyer will try to persuade him that all the defendant wants is news, which he must keep to himself till High Court, if plaintiff obeys, they will then say, "where is your case of action, you have told us nothing," and immediately dismiss his case. On the other hand, if the plaintiff is wise to their game, and gives dangerous evidence, and keeps his documents to back it up in High Court his lawyer will try and persuade him that his examination failed, and for him to withdraw his suit, and refuse to act for him any further. If plaintiff then persists in going on with case independent of his lawyer, he will find when he appears in court that there is a different evidence read out in court to what he gave at examination which the defendant's lawyer will with a smile, say, "Is the plaintiffs evidence." and if he asks permission to speak to dispute the evidence the Judge will probably say, "You are now before the unjust Judge," and order plaintiff to his seat, and as the plaintiff is alone at those examinations with only his own Attorney, if the case is against a member of a combine, he will find out that the master is also in the ring, and the stenographer whether in the ring or not, has to obey orders, or run the danger of never acting at another examination, and the plaintiff runs the risk of being brought up on a charge of perjury, as I showed a party of this type up in two different courts, I am in a position to know what I am talking about and I am anxious to call on all respectable citizens of Canada to refuse voting for a member who would not pledge himself to use his influence in abolishing those infamous dens, or compel all lawyers to allow plaintiff and defendant to bring with them any witness they may choose, and give both parties before leaving examination, a copy of evidence and I would also suggest that all Government officials be appointed by the public vote which would to a measure, prevent Judges and Magistrates and other officials getting their appointments, through the influence of combines, whom they in turn must back.

Thanking you for the space I have taken in your valuable paper, remain, yours truly.

THE SENDING OF XMAS GIFTS

Of late years much more attention is paid to the manner in which one's Christmas gifts are tied up and addressed. It is a well known fact that more pleasure is derived in the receiving of a daintily wrapped parcel than in one that is hastily tied up and despatched without much care.

Nowadays no parcel is really complete without a pretty little holly card with the donor's name put inside. The parcels then the wrappings are sealed with small holly or Santa Claus seals and the address written on a holly label or tag.

There are several different styles of cards, labels, tags and seals, and they are all equally pretty. They are all on sale at the Review office together with many other materials Xmas gifts. Sitcod

As it is the intention to have a local campaign here in January, 1910, the journal will be exceedingly valuable in the disseminating of information in the interests of temperance during the coming year. The plans for the publication are not yet complete, but the Review is informed that the journal will be issued in the near future.

IMPROVEMENT OF DAIRYING DISCUSSED BY SPEAKERS

Meetings Held in Peterborough District Have Been Splendidly Patronized—14 Conducted Altogether—Mr. Whitley's Address.

The meetings addressed by Messrs. Barr and Whitely in the interests of dairying in Peterborough section this fall have been of the greatest value and encouraging attendances have greeted all of them. Fourteen meetings were held and besides the two speakers mentioned useful addresses were made by Dairy Instructor Ward and others.

Mr. Chas. F. Whitley, of the Dairy Division, Ottawa, who spoke on cow testing at the meetings stated that cow testing work had two or three main objects in view. The first is to awaken the farmers to the possibilities of increased yield of milk, not only per farm, or per acre, but per cow. With definite knowledge as to the performance of each single cow in the herd gained by a simple system of recording weight and testing samples, it is an easy matter to get rid of those cows whose production is low, while more careful feeding can be practiced with those that give the higher yields. In this way the general average can be raised quickly. Instances were given of how the record work has paid and paid well. One man gave away a cow because he did not consider her to be worth keeping. Her present owner has records to prove that she gave over thirteen thousand pounds of milk last year.

Another member was intending to sell a heifer as she did not promise to come up to his standard of 6000 pounds. However, at the end of her first season the record showed she had given over 11,000 pounds. Instead of being willing to sell her for $35 at first, her owner would not now take $150.

A second object of the work is to develop strains of good milkers, that is cows giving a large flow of milk containing a fair percentage of fat, produced economically. While there are certain well known laws of breeding yet the general tendency in nature is not to improve, but to deteriorate in quality, hence man must use his brains and make his dominating intelligence felt in directing and controlling the forces around him. If only one heifer in five usually turns out to be a good milker, the necessity for the continuance of recording weights is immediately apparent. Selections of the best cows can then and not till then, be intelligently practised.

The work does not institute any rivalry or competition between neighbors; on the contrary, the work is one of co-operation, in the best sense inducing good feeling all round. The rivalry is between animals in the same herd to select those that give the most profit. One chart that was exhibited, had some striking figures in this respect. The most profitable cow in one herd gave 5595 lb. milk in seven months and a profit of $34. The least profitable gave 2790 lb, but only $7 profit. Hence Mr Whitley claimed that the one cow gave not only double the quantity of milk, but about five times the profit

A natural outcome of the work, should be the formation of co-operative breeding associations, to ensure the use of pure bred sires of good dairy strain.

Many benefits arise from this recording, not only to the owner himself, in the increased pleasure and satisfaction from handling better stock, or in the larger profits that must result, but also to the factory, for the more milk supplied per cow or per patron the less proportionately is the cost per pound for making.

Again, the community earns a better name for good stock, and our national reputation as a dairy country is improved.

It was shown clearly that the work does not entail much outlay in cash, time or labor. An outfit of scales, and sample bottles, costs only about $2.50 for 10 cows, or $3.50 for 20 cows, while ten minutes per cow per month will suffice to keep the records. The average farmer can neither afford time to look after poor cows, nor feed for merely the average cows. And, further this cowtesting work has abundantly proved itself a labor saving device, in enabling farmers to turn their attention to the more productive cows. If one good cow will do the work of two, and in some cases, even the work of three poor ones, there is a distinct saving of time energy and feed

A strong plea was made for determining the individuality of each cow in the herd, instead of resting content with general averages and totals. Some remarkable contrasts were shown on another chart where during six months of this year, 37 cows at Rockford in western Ontario had an average yield of over 6000 lb milk. In two associations in Peterborough county 37 cows for the same six months showed an average of only 5500 and 4300. The difference in the total yeild was an extra sixty thousand pounds in favor of the Rockford cows. But submerged in the levelling process of averaging, were good cows giving as high as 9000 lb. and, while assisted up into the average class were poor cows giving only 3000 lb

Referring to Denmark where the associations were commenced twelve years ago, Mr Whitley stated that the general increase with over 200,000 cows had been an extra 66 per cent, in the yield of milk inside five years. The convincing argument was then made that if less than half the cows in Peterborough county could be increased only fifty per cent it would mean an extra $165,000 coming into the owners' pockets.

Cheap milk is the kernel of successful dairying, and while with poor cows the cost is often $2 per 100 lbs. milk, with good cows the cost of production need be only 50c or 38c. Some cows will only bring in three cents a day profit. Some cows have to be milked nine times before they return one cent profit, while others will give nine cents profit every milking. Thus it is the dictate of ordinary good common sense to see that each cow in the herd brings in a reasonable profit. The selection can be made the quickest and simplest by this cowtesting work.

THE BATTLE OF THE NILE CASABIANCA AND HIS FATE

The Facts About the Little Hero of Mrs. Hemans' Famous Poem, His Father and the Tragedy of the Doomed French Flagship, the Orient.

That was a lucky child who in the latter part of the last century escaped the ordeal of standing up before a circle of relatives and friends—outwardly enthusiastic and admiring, inwardly often greatly bored—to repeat those well known if somewhat inaccurate lines that tell us how "the boy stood on the burning deck." Whether, nine times out of ten, the infant reciter or, for that matter, any of the members of the applauding family circle could have given the date and place of the occurrence may be doubtful. The forty lines of Mrs. Hemans gave them all the history that they craved, and when the parrot-like performance closed with "faithful heart" a sentimental maiden aunt would sigh, a liberal uncle bestow largesse to the extent of half a crown, and that was all.

It was in 1798 that young Casabianca, the ten-year-old son of the commodore of the French flagship Orient, stood amid the awful devastation of the battle of the Nile. Bonaparte had himself sailed in the ill fated Orient from Toulon in the previous May, taking with him a good stock of burgundy and also that famous "camp library" of cabinet editions, including forty volumes of English novels, in which the Bible and the Koran were classed under the head of "politics." More important still for those who love the picturesque details of history and great men, he was accompanied by his then private secretary, Louis Antoine Fauvelet de Bourrienne, from whose always entertaining if not invariably accurate pen we have a capital account of the voyage to Egypt.

Much of the time was passed by Napoleon lying in his berth while Bourrienne read to him and in promoting discussions on various questions among the scientific and other distinguished men who accompanied the expedition. The flagship carried a population of more than 2,000 souls, and the cry of "Man overboard!" was not infrequent. On these occasions Bonaparte displayed a side of his character to which full justice is not always done. Bourrienne describes his agitation till a rescue was effected as extreme. On one occasion a false alarm was raised during the darkness of night, and the supposed "man" proved to be the quarter of a bullock which had dropped from the rigging, but Napoleon rewarded the rescuers even more liberally than usual, pointing out that their exertion had been for what they believed a human life.

The fleet arrived off the coast of Africa on July 1, and here Bourrienne and his "Memoirs" leave the squadron to accompany the army and his chief on land. Brueys, the French admiral, had during the voyage expressed forebodings as to the result of an encounter with the British fleet. Nelson, who sailed from Syracuse on July 25, was confident, but well knew the price he might be called upon to pay. When Captain Berry said, "If we succeed, what will the world say?" Nelson replied: "There is no if in the case. That we shall succeed is certain. Who may live to tell the story is a very different question." For himself he made that famous anticipation, "A peerage or Westminster abbey."

The battle began at 6:30 o'clock, half an hour before nightfall. Nelson, on board the Vanguard, flew his colors in six places lest they should be shot away. In a few minutes after the ship had gone into action the crews of the first six guns were swept away by the terrible fire of the French fleet, and twice again during the fight were fresh crews called for. The shot which struck Nelson on the head tore from his forehead a piece of skin which, falling over his one useful eye, rendered him for the time being totally blind. Carried to the cockpit, he insisted on taking his proper turn among the wounded for the surgeon's attention. Soon after 9 o'clock at night, while he was still below, a cry arose that the Orient was on fire. Unaided and unnoticed in the confusion, Nelson made his way up, and presently from the quarterdeck his voice was heard shouting orders that the boats should be lowered to go to the assistance of the Orient's crew.

The doomed French flagship had but just been painted, and quantities of oil and inflammable material littered her deck. Brueys, the admiral, was dead, but Louis Casabianca and his little son were still on deck. At 10 o'clock the ship blew up. "There came a burst of thunder sound," and, although the commodore was not at the time lying "unconscious of his son," as the poetess has it, for both were seen clinging to a floating mast after the explosion, neither father nor son was among the seventy members of the crew who were saved by the English boats.

From the mainmast and ironwork of the Orient Captain Hallowell of the Swiftsure had a coffin made, which "memento mori" he presented to the admiral that he might at the close of his career of glory be buried in one of his own trophies. Nelson received this offering in the spirit of the giver and even kept it set up on end in his cabin till the remonstrance of his favorite servant brought about its banishment.—London Globe.

Educational Bill In Danger.

London, Dec. 4.—Another deadlock has arisen between the Government and the Church party, which threatens the doom of the education bill, backed by Walter Runciman, president of the Board of Education.

CHRISTMAS GIFTS SHOULD BE SENT EARLY

Postmasters are urging people to send their Christmas parcels early, and to see to it that they are fully and properly prepaid.

Their postage on parcels to Canada and United States ports is a cent an ounce, and on printed matter a cent for two ounces. Parcels to Great Britain and foreign countries must be taken to the post office in order to get rates and make the declaration of contents, etc.

Christmas and Now

Christmas comes but once a year — but "once" doesn't mean any time.

Christmas is "coming"—that's true.

But there isn't much difference between Christmas and Now.

Now is—Now.

Christmas is less than three weeks from now.

Then the difference is less than three weeks.

And those weeks will soon slip by.

Christmas will soon be here with its gifts.

The gift spirit has already arrived.

It's just waiting to take firm root, and then the buying will begin in dead earnest.

Now is the time to buy—the best time to start buying, anyway.

Start now to scrutinize The Review advertising colums as you never did before—it will save you lots of time and worry and pay you, too.

The man who has up-to-date goods will be up-to-date enough to want to let other people know, and the Review is better than a block-long window, because the Review goes to you and tells you. It's the easiest way. It's the most sensible.

And remember, the up-to-date advertiser's advice is right—it pays you to shop early

PREPARATIONS TO BE MADE FOR HANDLING XMAS MAILS

The rush of mail for Christmas distribution is not being felt at the great extent, however. The real rush commences about Dec. 20th and continues till the first of the year.

On December 15th two extra men local post office yet but nevertheless the work of the postmen is already becoming heavier but not to a will be placed on the post office staff for inside handling of the mails and when the rush is on locked mail bags will be sent to stores in different sections of the city from the post office. They will be carried by express, and left at the stores for the postmen to call for, as the quantity of mail will be too great for the postmen to handle direct from the post office. The bags will be very securely locked.

THE MADNESS OF GENIUSES; STORIES OF SOME GREAT MEN

Charles Dickens Went to Pieces at the Last—Charles Lamb and Edgar Allen Poe Both Had Delusions—Scott, Landseer, George Eliot, Cowper, Romany and Others in the List.

For hundreds of years past the extent of the border-line between insanity and genius has been a matter of dispute with doctors, scientists and deep thinkers. The lives of famous men, and even women, of the last two centuries, however, seem to furnish striking evidence that there is a very strong link between genius and insanity. And even in cases when actual insanity was not apparent, there are many instances of geniuses who suffered from a variety of ills and disorders which in reality were symptoms of brain disease.

Charles Dickens, it is well known, as he advanced in years, suffered from sleeplessness, gout, incipient paralysis, and loss of memory, and ultimately died at fifty-eight from effusion of blood upon the brain. Wilkie Collins was such a sufferer from nerves that he was accustomed to take laudanum in immense doses. Thackeray died suddenly at fifty-two, and for the last fourteen years of his life was continually ailing, and subject to certain painful spasms.

Charles Lamb was confined to a mad-house for six weeks about his twentieth year, the period at which he wrote most of his sonnets, and all his life was subject to stammering, violent headaches, and was constitutionally nervous and timid. Edgar Allan Poe more than once attempted or threatened to commit suicide while under delusions of persecution, and George Sand confessed that she also at times felt tempted to take her own life.

George Eliot, too, suffered greatly from fits of depression, while Sir Walter Scott complained of certain hallucinations, and thought he saw the image of his friend Byron after the latter's death, the image, after examination, proving to be nothing but the folds of some drapery.

Sir Edward Landseer, towards the close of his life, showed signs of insanity, while the eccentricities of Turner were quite of the insane order Amongst other eminent artists it might be mentioned that Sir Thomas Lawrence suffered from a symptom of brain disorder, David Wilkie lost power of attention, and ultimately had a nervous seizure which made his speech incoherent, while Romney suffered so much from the hallucination that his talent would desert him that at the height of his fame he thought of relinquishing his art altogether.

Referring to famous poets, it might be mentioned that Cowper tried to commit suicide on several occasions was an inmate of a lunatic asylum for eighteen months, and died insane. Southey sank into a state of imbecility, in which he died. Shelley was known as "Mad Shelley" at Eton, while it is a curious fact that the maddest of all poets, "Mad Jack Byron," who led such a wild, dissolute life, always dreaded insanity.

Several famous men, by the way, have lived in dread of insanity. Swift, who, before he became a celebrity, was called the "Mad Parson" and who died an imbecile, was always haunted by the dread of going out of his mind. Dr. Johnson declared that he had been "mad all his life, or, at least, not sober," and so great was his fear of insanity that at times he must have been on the brink of mental derangement.

The lives of famous musicians like Wagner, Bach, Handel, Mozart, Beethoven and Mendelssohn, as set forth by J. E. Nisbet, in his book "The Insanity of Genius," all tend to bear out the contention that insanity and genius are closely related.

Then again the whims and fads of that famous French author Balzac were such that they could only have originated from a disordered mind. He would live in a garret under an assumed name, even at his most prosperous times, sleep from six in the evening until midnight, and then work for from twelve to twenty hours at a stretch, dressed in the white robe of a Dominican friar, with a black skull cap on his head and surrounded by a dozen candles.

The stage, too, furnishes examples of insane genius—notably, Edmund Kean, whose mind became unhinged at forty-five years of age. Junius Brutus Booth, the father of Wilkes Booth, who murdered President Lincoln, displayed insanity in public at the age of thirty-five.

It was while playing a tragic part in Boston, U.S.A., that he suddenly dropped into a colloquial tone and, apropos of nothing, said, "Upon my word I don't know." To the murmurs of the house he responded with a ringing laugh. The manager then rushed on from behind the scenes and led him off, whilst he shouted, "I can't read—I am a charity boy—I can't read. Take me to a lunatic asylum." For some time after this Booth was an undoubted maniac.

Inseparable Twins.

Twin brothers have been arrested and imprisoned in Paris for the fortieth time for vagabondage. The two men are thirty-nine years of age, and they have never left one another since their earliest years. Neither of them has ever done more than two days' work at a time, and they have always taken care to be arrested simultaneously for the same offence.

New York Hotel's Surgery.

The first surgical hospital ever installed in a New York hotel has just been opened in the Waldorf-Astoria. It is in the basement, and contains an operating-table and all the necessary instruments, and there is a professional nurse in attendance.

Labor's Slate.

Brantford, Dec. 4.—Brantford labor men have endorsed a strong slate in the aldermanic field this year. At a meeting of the Trades and Labor Council a platform was set forth in which public ownership of public utilities, independence in municipal affairs, and employment of union men on civic work, were the leading features. An aggressive battle is promised in all the wards.

Three Years For Bad Boy.

Montreal, Dec. 4.—Albert Bonin, a youth, concerned in the recent Geoffrion Club scandal, was sentenced to three years in the reformatory yesterday, having been found guilty of indecency.

For New Armory.

Montreal, Dec. 4.—Rodolphe Forget, M.P., honorary colonel of the 65th French-Canadian Regiment, has subscribed $5,000 towards the erection of the new armory, which will cost $100,000.

SPECIAL REPORTS OF PROPERTY AND FINANCE COMMITTEES

The special report of the chairman of the County Property Committee of the County Council is as follows;—

Gentlemen—As stated in a former report, expenditures that became absolutely necessary cropped up this year, and following your directions when in Council last January, your committee taking advantage of being assembled at the June session, were successful in making arrangements without putting the county to the expense of calling the committee together for that purpose, especially your committee not having individual responsibility in carrying out your orders such as is allotted to the individual chairmen for bridge construction or supervision, where separate reports may be brought in, makes it my duty at this session when no regular session of the Property Committee was necessary, to report to you in this way.

Following the recommendations of the Provincial Inspector, we had the paper removed from some of the walls of the building, and had them properly cleaned and smoothed and coated with paint, thereby combating the danger of unhealthful germs lodging in cracks in the paper, etc.

We also effected an agreement with Mr. Charter to have the steps in front of Mr. Moloney's office, together with platform built of concrete, at a cost of $23, also the old wooden sidewalk that was past redemption, substituted by a concrete walk, extending from Brock to Murray streets through the county property in front of the buildings at a cost of $341.55, and the work completed is to-day an evidence of the quality.

Mr. Nesbitt kindly consented to supervise the work, thereby saving the cost of an inspector.

A lease between the County and Horticultural Society has been signed by all parties required so to do, embodying stipulations recommended at the June session in the County Property Committee report, and resolution of open Council.

The above work has all been done of a permanent character, and will require little or no expense for years to come.

It seems to me that it might not be out of place to say that the caretaker, Mr. Nesbitt, and his assistant, Mr. [illegible], exercise every effort possible towards protection and care of county property.

Respectfully yours,
W. J. PORTER,
Chairman.

Bylaws confirming the above reports were passed after which the Council adjourned.

A special report of the Roads and Bridge committee was read as follows;—

To the Council of the County of Peterborough;

Gentlemen,—I beg to submit the following report, which on account of the amount of work, as well as the report of the chairmen of several committees, I do not think it advisable to enter too minutely into details. The first work undertaken was filling in the approaches to the Burleigh Falls Bridge on the Smith township end, the old wooden approach has been removed and a permanent structure 16 feet wide between railing completed, the cost for same amounted to

The Deer Bay Creek bridge authorized to be built at June session has been finished and shortened, and over ninety feet turned into permanent roading, it being thought better to make two bridges, there being two channels.

Your committee also inspected the Buckhorn bridges, and inspected both the old and the new, the latter constructed by the Dominion Government and soon to be handed over to the county at a cost to the county of

It was not deemed advisable by your committee to make any claim on the timbers of the old bridge. I may say the new bridge appears to be a very permanent structure. It was our wish that every member of this council should have an opportunity of seeing this work.

A new wooden bridge over Black Lake creek has been completed, thirty-five feet in length with approaches eighty-five feet in length, nine feet above the bed of stream the whole structure appears to be done in a solid and satisfactory manner at a cost of two hundred and forty dollars.

The three new steel bridges at North River, Victoria street, Norwood, and Armstrong's in Otonabee, have all been undertaken and completed, and fuller details may be procured from the chairman who has charge of the work. This with small repairs done on boundary bridges between Durham and Peterborough, completes a large amount of work, and consequently a like expenditure, but as all new work has been of a permanent character, their repair will not amount to any considerable expenditure for many years to come.

Splendid Remedy for Stomach and Kidneys and Rheumatism

"The people here do not drink enough water to keep healthy," exclaimed a well known authority. "The numerous cases of kidney and bladder diseases and rheumatism are mainly due to the fact that the drinking of water, nature's greatest medicine has been neglected.

Stop loading your system with medicines and cure-alls; but get on the water wagon. If you are really sick why, of course, take the proper medicines—plain common vegetable treatment, which will not shatter the nerves or ruin the stomach."

To cure rheumatism you must take To cure rheumatism you must make the kidneys do their work; they are the filters of the blood. They must be made to strain out of the blood the waste matters and acids that cause rheumatism; the urine must be neutralized so it will no longer be a source of irritation to the bladder, and, most of all, you must keep these acids from forming in the stomach. This is the cause of stomach trouble and poor digestion. For these conditions you can do no better than take the following prescription;

Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces. Mix by shaking well in bottle and take in teaspoonful doses after each meal and at bedtime, but don't forget the water. Drink plenty and often.

This valuable information and simple prescription should be posted up in each household and used at the first sign of an attack of rheumatism, backache or urinary trouble, no matter how slight.

PUTNAM'S PAINLESS CORN EXTRACTOR

A ROYAL FUNERAL.

Strange Ceremonies That Mark the Burial of a Spanish King.

Strange and almost weird is the ceremonial which accompanies the burial of Spanish kings. The pantheon, or royal tomb, is at the palace of the Escurial, situated 3,000 feet above the level of the sea and some distance from the capital. Only kings, queens and mothers of kings are buried there, the coffins of the kings lying on one side, those of the queens on the other. After lying in state for several days in the throne room in Madrid an enormous procession is formed, accompanying the body to the Escurial. A halt is made on the way, and the corpse rests there for one night.

In the morning the lord high chamberlain stands at the side of the coffin and says in loud tones, "Is your majesty pleased to proceed on your journey?" After a short silence the procession moves on and winds up to the grand portal of the palace. These doors are never opened except to admit a royal personage, dead or alive. When the casket containing the remains is at last placed in the vault the chamberlain unlocks it and, kneeling down, calls with a loud voice: "Senor! Senor! Senor!"

After a solemn pause he cries again: "His majesty does not reply! Then it is true, the king is dead!"

He then locks the coffin, gives the key to the prior and, taking his staff of office, breaks it in pieces and flings them at the casket. The booming of the guns and the tolling of bells announce to the nation that the king has gone to his final resting place.

QUEER TELEGRAPH POLES.

Made of Adobe In Bolivia—Growing Trees Used In Africa.

The most original telegraph line in the world once extended from the capital of Bolivia, La Paz, to the town of Oruro. In this part of Bolivia there are no growing trees, and wood is so difficult to find that even the ordinary household furniture of the natives is invariably made not of wood, but of dried mud or adobe.

So when the war broke out between Chile and Bolivia and a telegraph line became urgent it was adobe that was chosen for the queerest telegraph poles in existence. These pillars were built on stone foundations and measured about five feet square at the base, with a height of about fifteen feet.

They were placed at intervals of about 361 feet and thus held the wire at a height sufficient to clear the only animals of the country, the llama and the donkey. The total length of the line was 156 miles.

Among other curious telegraph lines is the growing pole line erected in Uganda by an English engineer, who could not find any dead wood which would withstand the white ants and hit upon the idea of transporting growing bark cloth trees to the side of the roads and using them as poles.

In the Dutch East Indies growing trees are turned to account also, but there a wire is stretched across the road between the trees on either side, and the insulator is suspended in its middle, and the line is thus over the road and clear from vegetation.

He was surprised at how the sores healed—"I took your NEW METHOD TREATMENT for a serious blood disease with which I had been inflicted for twelve years. I had consulted a score of physicians, taken all kinds of blood medicine, visited Hot Springs and other mineral water resorts, but only got temporary relief. They would help me for a time, but after discontinuing the medicines the symptoms would break out again—running sores, blotches, rheumatic pains, looseness of the hair, swellings of the glands, palms of the hands scaling, itchiness of the skin, dyspeptic stomach, etc. I had given up in despair when a friend advised me to consult you, as you had cured him of a similar disease 8 years ago. I had no hope, but took his advice. In three weeks' time the sores commenced to heal up and I became encouraged. I continued the NEW METHOD TREATMENT for four months and at the end of that time every symptom had disappeared. I was cured 7 years ago and no signs of any disease since. THE HOST IN CANADA.

Eucharist Has Been Carried In Many Cities Without Any Ensuing Riot.

Those who read of the demonstration in London will be no doubt surprised to learn, if they are not already aware of the fact, that Eucharistic processions are annually held in many parts of Canada without disturbance.

The Eucharist or Host is carried on the occasion of the annual feast of Corpus Christi. It is borne in front of the procession in a golden vessel called the monstrance, which has a centre of glass. Through the glass the wafter representing the Christ can be plainly seen.

The monstrance is held aloft in the front rank of the procession by the highest clerical dignitary present, followed by the other dignitaries in order of precedence.

Young men swing censers from which floats incense and children scatter flowers along the way. When the military are present the procession is saluted by heavy guns and the soldiers present arms. On all sides is heard the chanting of prayers and litanies.

The entire ceremony is conducted on the principle that Christ is present in material form, and that all honor should be yielded to him.

After the monstrance is taken with the greatest reverence and ceremony to the cathedral, the host remains untouched until it is partaken of by the celebrating priest at the next mass.

In Quebec on June 21 of this year the Host was borne aloft through the streets and was followed by the archbishop and other high dignitaries of the Church.

About the same time Eucharistic processions were held in Montreal, Three Rivers, St. Hyacinthe and other Quebec cities of importance.

"The Host has been carried in Hamilton, London, and the German towns of Ontario without an ensuing riot," said the dignitary, "but I am certain that one would result if it were attempted in Toronto."

No Eucharist has ever been held in Toronto in many years. Back in the seventies a procession was formed at the cathedral to visit different churches. It was attacked and broken up by the Orangemen. On the next Sunday, by the aid of the troops, the procession was held, but since then it has been discontinued in order to avoid disturbance.

pointing finger. "Why, that's an earring of Countess Radepolskoi's," she exclaimed. "How could it have got caught in my dress?"

"The Countess was wearing those earrings yesterday afternoon," said Elspeth.

"Yes, I remember. But I didn't have on this dress."

"Where was it?" Elspeth asked.

"Hanging up in the wardrobe. It was taken out only this morning. How queer it is. I must give the Countess her earring when I—when I see her. If she has missed it, she must be anxious, and I"——

"I'll see that it's properly disposed of, if you like," replied Elspeth, with a diplomatic meaning which seemed to convey nothing mysterious to the other's mind.

"Thank you," said Hilary. "That will be better, as—as I mayn't be going down for some time. Please explain to her how we found the earring, and perhaps in some way she may be able to clear up the mystery."

Elspeth did not answer; but Hilary, taking it for granted that she acquiesced, went on with her writing, instead of making the request again.

A moment later, she had finished her note, which consisted of but a few lines, and had given it to Elspeth. At the same time she put the Countess's ruby earring into her hand.

"You know what to do with both of these," Hilary said wearily.

"Quite," replied Elspeth. "You may depend on me." Then, at the door she turned, and said, "Lady Hilary, do you lock yourself in at night?"

"No, not always. Why do you ask?" returned the other girl.

Elspeth was slightly confused. "The—the key looks bent," she said. "I thought you ought perhaps to speak to Mr. McGowan about it. In a huge place like this, with so many strangers about, it isn't safe not to lock one's door at night."

Lady Hilary smiled bitterly. "I have nothing of value for anybody to steal," she said. "It's true the key is a little bent. I don't know how it happened, but it must have had a knock. I dare say the maid could tell how, if she would—but no servant will ever confess an awkwardness, if she can help it. I only know it's been like that for a day or two, and that the key won't turn properly. But it really doesn't matter for such a poor person as myself. With Countess Radepolskoi or with Lady Ardcliffe it would be different."

Elspeth felt herself blushing. Had Lady Hilary heard the story of the robbery yet, or had she not? The girl dared not ask, but went away, with much food for thought in her mind, and the note, and the ruby earring in her hand.

As soon as she was out of the room, and shut the door, however, she slipped the earring into her pocket.

She believed that there was a plot against Lady Hilary, and that Providence had sent her at the right moment to frustrate it.

"If they have other proofs against her, they've made them, as they tried to make this," she said to herself. "But is this only a part of some great scheme, or is it the whole? It's time I set myself to find out, and I will. There may be some work for me to do here before I go, for which I was never engaged, and will never be paid—except by success. If they have detectives to help them—those people who wish Lady Hilary harm—they will have one against them, too. And, oh, how hard that detective will try to beat the others."

Strange thoughts floated in Elspeth's brain. She began to weave them together, and her pulses beat with the weaving.

"What shall I do with this note?" she asked herself. "If I'd dared to tell Lady Hilary she was wrong—that no man had come with a summons—would she have wished to take extreme steps? Shall I wait before handing the note to Mr. Trowbridge, and give fate a chance? I could explain to her that I had delayed a little. I can't see how it can do harm, as he is trying to work in her interest at this very minute, without knowing that he's to have a reward—a reward a thousand times greater than he has deserved. Oh, I will wait, whatever happens."

By the time she had decided upon her course she was back again in the great hall. A quick glance showed her that neither the Countess nor Lady Ardcliffe was there, but Mr. Trowbridge, who had evidently been expecting her return, came forward to meet her.

"I think that Lady Hilary will be safe from annoyance now," he said; and Elspeth saw that he was very pale.

"You persuaded them both to do nothing?" she asked.

"I have persuaded the Countess; and so far as I can make out, Lady Ardcliffe relied for proofs upon the Countess. Without her, she's harmless, except for spiteful gossip, perhaps."

"You're sure the Countess won't help her in some secret way?"

"I am sure," said Trowbridge grimly.

Elspeth was assured; but not comfortable. "They had told Mr. McGowan their suspicions, you know," she reminded him.

"Yes, but I have spoken with Mr. McGowan. I told him that the Countess Radepolskoi didn't intend, after all, to drag Lady Hilary's name into the affair; that she had come to see, on second thought, that she must have been mistaken in her suspicions. I said that there were no proofs at all against Lady Hilary, and that, if Lady Ardcliffe persisted in her accusations, he would bitterly regret afterward having paid any attention to them."

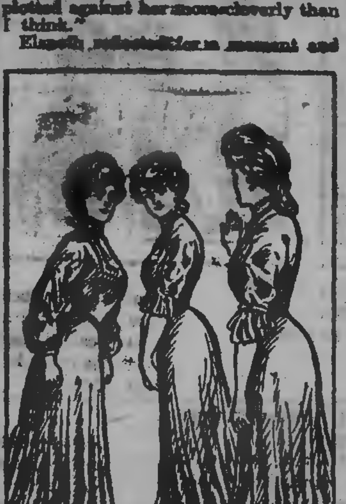
"I'm sure it must have been a relief to him to hear that."

"I think it was."

"But I suppose there's already a detective in the house, or soon will be. Suppose that Lady Ardcliffe should direct his attention to Lady Hilary"——

"She won't do that at present. Lady Hilary is safe enough from her for a few days. By and by it may be different, but then, I hope, the real thief may have been discovered; or at worst, nothing can be proved against Lady Hilary unless these women have plotted against her more cleverly than I think."

Elspeth reflected for a moment and then felt that she understood his veiled meaning. He hoped that Lady Hilary would promise to marry him; but in any case the engagement would not be announced for some days, and meanwhile, perhaps, he intended to be particularly attentive to Lady Ardcliffe, as a "bribe" to her for sparing Lady Hilary.



Instantly Elspeth guessed the thought in their minds.

This was clear enough, but it seemed to the girl that he must have found much greater difficulty in dealing with the Countess, a far more dangerous enemy than flighty and foolish Lady Ardcliffe. It was the Countess whom Elspeth had feared, yet Mr. Trowbridge seemed to have disposed of her without a struggle.

She would have liked to ask more questions, but Trowbridge glanced at his watch and said that he must go.

"You haven't had breakfast yet," remarked Elspeth.

He smiled vaguely. "Haven't I? I forgot." And without another word he was gone.

There was great excitement in the hotel during the morning, when the news of the double jewel robbery had spread among the guests, and every one wondered much what was being done; but to the annoyance of their friends, Countess Radepolskoi and Lady Ardcliffe not only did not appear in public, but refused through their maids to receive visitors.

Had Elspeth been on her old terms with James Grant she would probably have heard from him what was being done; whether the police suspected any one; whether there was a disguised detective at work in the house. But as it was, he kept such secrets as he might possess, though he looked at her wistfully from time to time, as if he hoped that she might yet change her mind.

It occurred to the girl that, if she wished to penetrate the mystery she had now set herself to solve she could not do better than tell James Grant that, after all, she would be engaged to him, and would help him in any way he wished. He would then open his heart to her, and it might well be that, through his communications, she would be put in possession of the very clues she wanted.

But Elspeth could not bring herself to such a course. She was but an amateur detective at best, and could not do the things which a professional would have done without scruple, in pursuit of an end. She must work alone; for, though she did not like or trust James Grant, she would not deceive him.

Late in the afternoon Grant spoke to her for the first time that day, except upon the business of correspondence.

"Mr. McGowan has asked me to tell you," he said, "that he has a very good offer for your room, and that consequently you will have to change into another. The servants will help you, but perhaps would would like to oversee them."

"When am I to change?" inquired Elspeth.

"At once, please. You are to have No. 33, on the third floor, in the west wing. You had better go up to your room now and superintend the maids putting your things together. This is your free hour."

"Very well," said the girl, hiding all emotion: but in reality she was as much excited as surprised. She was convinced that something was to happen in that room from which she had been banished—something connected with the mysterious sights and sounds that had kept her waking through so many nights of fear.

"Who is to have my room?" she asked, with an air of indifference.

"Lord Lochrain, I believe," answered Grant, in the same tone.

CHAPTER XIII.

Number 33 was a small and common-place room, such as might have been given to a lady's maid; and Elspeth reflected, when she saw it, that Mr. McGowan would not have offered it to her had she not been going to leave his employ. Now, it did not matter to him whether she was satisfied or not at Lochrain Castle; she would have to stay on through her fortnight; and then some other girl would arrive to take her place, to be treated with all the kindness and consideration that had been hers at first.

But, after all, she said to herself, such unimportant things mattered no more to her now than they did to Mr. McGowan. She was so unhappy both for herself and for Lady Hilary Vane that little details of physical comfort were too insignificant to be thought of twice.

She was miserable because she was going to be turned out into the world again, where she would be worse off than ever, because she had failed—or, if she had not really failed, it was the same as if she had. She was miserable because she knew that she had been foolish enough to fall deeply in love with a man as far removed from her as the sky is from the earth—a man who thought of her, when he thought of her at all, as a clever child in a different class from her own, a poor little creature to whom one must be kind out of sheer pity for her loneliness. She was miserable because that man would perhaps marry Lady Lambart, who was doing all she could to secure him, and who—if she succeeded—would sooner or later induce her lover to believe the young stenographer a scheming little pretender.

These were Elspeth's own personal griefs, but she had others. She was very sorry for Captain Oxford, whom she liked and admired, and whose cause she would have championed if she could. She was wretched in sympathy with Lady Hilary, who would probably be forced into accepting a man she did not love; and she feared much that her friend was still in danger from the secret plottings of two jealous women.

As for the letter which Hilary had asked her to give Mr. Trowbridge, she had not handed it to him during their short conversation in the morning, and, when several hours had passed without her seeing him again, she had enclosed the letter in an explanatory note and returned it to Lady Hilary. What had happened since—whether the girl had given her answer by word of mouth instead of writing, or whether the question was still in abeyance, Elspeth did not know, for she had heard nothing.

None of her regular work went on that day; except with Mr. McGowan; for she was informed by him that neither Mr. Kenrith nor Captain Oxford would need her services, and she could not guess whether this were because of her disgrace or because the theft of Mr. Kenrith's jewels had upset the ordinary routine.

Later, when the time came for her to go to Lady Ardcliffe, she was informed that she would not be wanted that afternoon; therefore she would have been idle during most of the day, had not Mr. McGowan had plenty of work to give her in the office to replace that which she usually undertook outside.

Altogether, she was in a strange state of mind—a state which she felt could not endure for long. Toward evening, as she tried to make the ugly new room look habitable, she decided that she would pay a secret visit to the tower that night, and discover, if she could, the reason for her banishment. She knew nothing of Lord Lochrain, and could not suppose that he had any connection with the mysterious occurrences in the tower; indeed he had not been in the hotel when they had taken place. But she believed that his desire to have the room was only an excuse to get her out of it.

Perhaps it was really to be given to him, perhaps not. Perhaps it would not be occupied at all, at any rate immediately; but of one thing Elspeth was obstinately certain. Something was to happen in that room, at all events in the tower, that very night, or she would not have been moved out so hurriedly.

Elspeth did not even say to herself that, if she was right in her surmises, it was nothing to her. She had come to have the idea—though but dimly and vaguely—that many mysteries were moving shadow-like about the hotel, and that all these dark shades were controlled by one hand, perhaps aided by others; that somehow there was a connection between all the gliding shadows.

Kenrith was concerned, if the motor car accident were part of a plot. Captain Oxford was concerned; Lady Hilary was concerned; and behind the veil which was impenetrable still, Elspeth seemed to see Trowbridge and Countess Radepolskoi. Maybe, after to-night that veil would not be impenetrable. In any case, the girl resolved to do her best, even if she risked much to find out what was on the other side.

Elspeth remained in her room all the evening, as she had remained in the beautiful old one; but she did not go to bed at the usual hour. She sat up, trying to read, and once in a while glancing at the stained and faded sketch of the boy in old-fashioned clothes, which she had brought away from the other room, between the pages in a book of her own.

The face was so like Captain Oxford's that she half intended to show it him some day, and though she did not wish and had no right to take it with her out of the house when she left Lochrain Castle she had been disinclined to leave it in its old place. If she did so and the tower room was really occupied she could not get the the sketch if she should make up her mind to let Captain Oxford see it.

The guests of the Hydro, those who were there for pleasure as well as those who were there for health, went to bed early, and by midnight, unless there were a dance or theatricals, the great house was quiet, the hall and drawing rooms deserted, even by the men. Elspeth knew this, and so when the half hour after midnight had well passed she opened her door and looked out.

The dimly lighted corridor was silent as the grave. Even the man who collected the boots had come and gone and would not return till early morning. She tiptoed downstairs and was not disturbed by a sound. On the ground floor there was a grandfather clock solemnly ticking and its hands pointed to the quarter before 1. Elspeth told herself that she was safe now. She would meet nobody—unless some person wandering for as strange a reason as her own.

To go from this part of the house to the tower where Elspeth had lived it was necessary to pass the doors of Mr. Kenrith's and Captain Oxford's rooms. They were in the same corridor, just beyond which was the entrance to the tower; and their corridor could be shut off from a small, square hall (on which several private sitting rooms opened) by a heavy, sliding door.

This door Elspeth had never seen closed, and so far as her knowledge extended, it never was closed by night or by day; but now, to her astonishment, it was shut.

"It is sure to squeak and wake somebody up," the girl thought ruefully, as she tried cautiously to push the door back. But for some time she tried in vain, and it was only when she discovered an odd, old-fashioned catch, which held the latch down as she strove to turn the handle, that she was able to open the door.

"Supposing anyone on the other side had wanted to come through," she said to herself, "he could not have got out of the corridor this way." And then the thought sprang into her mind that the closed and locked door was perhaps part of the mystery she was hoping to unravel.

The idea frightened her, as it made the plot—whatever it was—appear so elaborate and so formidable, she felt that the elucidation might prove to be beyond her powers, or that she might be destroyed in the attempt she was about to make.

Still, she persevered, and slowly pushed back the sliding door which, so far from squeaking, glided so smoothly along its groove that Elspeth wondered if it had not been lately oiled.

As the door slid back a wave of acrid smoke rushed out into the girl's face. She could see no light in the corridor, except a dim yellow gleam faintly visible through a thick brown smoke cloud.

Instantly the tears started to her smarting eyes, and she kept herself from coughing only by covering her mouth and nose with a handkerchief.

"Something on fire here," she said to herself, and with a start of terror, her thoughts turned to Mr. Kenrith. His room was in the corridor. What if it should be burning while he slept? What if the same person who had stolen his jewels wished him now to die by fire?

Her eyes and lungs stinging with the acrid smoke, Elspeth felt her way down the corridor, and was about to stop before Mr. Kenrith's door, when she saw a red light glimmering through the keyhole of the door opposite.

"Captain Oxford's room!" the girl gasped. "It's on fire."

For a few seconds she lost her presence of mind, and ran to the door of the tower, not knowing what she did. But the fact that this door was locked, as the other had been, recalled Elspeth to herself. Never had it been locked before; never had it even been shut. It could not be that both these doors were closed to-night by accident; that this was a mere coincidence. No; they had been locked for a purpose, and that purpose could be no other than to prevent the escape of someone whose room opened on the corridor. The person who had kindled that red light had locked the doors as well; and the person who thus planned the destruction of Captain Oxford had attempted his life once before.

Elspeth knew that a moat ran round this part of the castle, which was the oldest of all; and should Captain Oxford try to escape by his window, he would certainly be seriously injured, if not killed. Kenrith, too, was in the same danger. He was to be sacrificed with Captain Oxford.

All these thoughts flashed through the girl's brain in the fraction of a moment, which carried her back from the tower door to the door behind which the red light flickered. There, she beat upon the panel, shrieking "Fire, fire!" and crying Captain Oxford's name.

No sound came in answer, though again and again Elspeth rained blows on the heavy oak; and she turned to Kenrith's door on the opposite side of the hall. There was no red light there, and Kenrith was not in the deadly peril which threatened his friend, but if she could wake him he would be safe from danger afterward, and would help her rouse Captain Oxford.

With all her force she struck upon the door, calling "Mr. Kenrith—Mr. Kenrith!" But there was no movement, no reply.

"Have they been murdered already?" she asked herself, trembling with horror now. "No. It can't be. The heavy smoke of the fire has drugged them. I must find the night watchman and get him to break the doors in. It's a wonder he or some one else hasn't heard me before."

She turned to run toward the door which led into the great hall when she was seized round the waist from behind and at the same time a hand was pressed over her mouth. She felt that she had been lifted off her feet, and that she was being borne away, away toward the corridor in the direction of the tower.

There could be no doubt that the hand which pressed her lips was the hand of the would-be murderer. She had interfered with the success of his work and she was to be removed perhaps from the world. But, strangely enough, there was no fear for herself in Elspeth's heart at that instant. She though only of Kenrith and Captain Oxford, but especially of Kenrith, whom she loved.

She could not let them die a terrible death. If she could but save them she would be willing to die in their place. Let the murderer revenge himself upon her as he chose.

With the fierce strength that only desperation gives, the girl tore at the hand which covered her mouth, and regaining her liberty for a second's space, uttered such a shriek as she could not have given in a moment of less peril. It rang wildly through the corridor, and was terrible even in the girl's own ears. It seemed to her that it might almost make a dead man turn in his grave to be called thus. But would it wake John Kenrith and Captain Oxford?

She could but pray that it might be so, for the scream was stifled in the midst by the hand which crushed her face again, with an iron grip under her chin, and a pressure so savage over her lips that it seemed the blood must spring through the delicate skin. Her neck was bent so roughly that her muscles were strained, and her breath choked back upon her lungs. A shower of sparks seemed to rise and fall before her eyes, smarting and raining tears in the thick smoke. She struggled again, but vainly, and in the agonizing struggle of body and mind against the unseen, compelling force, lost breath and consciousness.

When she awaked, it seemed that she was lying on a bed—a bed at the same time comfortable and familiar.

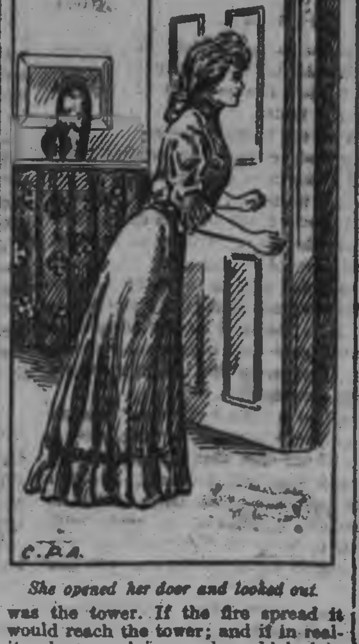
What had happened? Had she had a horrible dream? she asked herself.

There was the same pleasant, mingling fragrance of dried lavender and old wood which she had smelled every night when she had waked up in the wonderful bed in the tower room. Often she had told herself that these scents would make her think of that room, no matter where she might be, and how many years might have passed. Only last night she had thought that, not knowing she was not to sleep in that bed again.

But, she said in her mind, perhaps it was part of the dream that she had been changed to another room. Surely she could not mistake. No other bed could be just like that. And then, if she were not there, why should she be in bed at all? What about the fire shining behind the closed door in the corridor, her frantic knockings, her scream, and the hand that had choked away her breath? Had she really gone through that fearful scene? Oh, she could not doubt it. Perhaps, even at this minute, Mr. Kenrith and Captain Oxford were being burned to death. Somehow she must save them.

She tried to sit up, but something held her down. Her arms were crossed behind her back and tied together at the wrist; she could feel where they were bound. And her feet were bound also. She was powerless to move, but at least she could cry out.

Suddenly she remembered how near to the corridor of the burning room was the tower. If the fire spread it would reach the tower; and if in reality she were lying on her old bed in the tower room it was only the question of a little time before the fire should reach her, and she would be burned to death.



She opened her door and looked out.

Elspeth Dean was young and strong, and the tide of life was high in her veins. The physical repulsion to death was intense in her, and the cry on its way to her lips was rendered even more piercing by the quick horror of this thought.

She screamed long and shrilly, but a voice within her seemed to say with the echo of her own shriek that rang in her ears: "If you are in the tower, no one will hear you. You might die a hundred deaths before any one would come."

The girl shivered from head to foot, and lying there helpless, waiting the horror that was to come, she felt that the bed had begun to move. There had been a click, and then slowly, smoothly, the bed began to glide along as if sliding in a groove.

CHAPTER XIV.

Elspeth's eyes were wide open, but the darkness was like a dark cloth laid upon them. She could see nothing; but as the bed slowly moved, inch by inch, she felt an intensely cold air which surged round her like the wind made by a pair of giant wings. Then the bed stopped, still in thick darkness, and she heard a sound of hurried footsteps and of light breathing. There was another, curious, clicking sound, and while the girl wondered in chill terror what would come next, the bed on which she lay tilted suddenly up at such an extreme angle that she rolled off.

There was a brief instant of horror, as she tried vainly to save herself, expecting a crushing fall, perhaps into the black depths of some hideous oubliette; but she rolled from the bed upon a solid floor, covered with something soft, like a thick rug. And the fall was so slight that she was not even jarred.

For a few seconds there was complete stillness, and then something that moved brushed against her cheek. She believed that it was the bed being rolled away again.

"Now I am to be murdered, perhaps," was the thought that crept coldly into Elspeth's mind; but she could do nothing to avert whatever fate might be in store for her, except to cry out, and if she did that, it would probably precipitate her death.

It was by instinct rather than calculation that she lay still, scarcely breathing.

Voices whispered near her in the darkness. She could neither recognize the tones nor make out the words, but she felt her fate was being discussed, perhaps hanging in the balance.

"If only they would believe me fainting," she thought. "They will wonder that I don't make a sound, and presently they'll strike a light and look at my face. I must lie with my eyes shut and hold my breath as long as I can."

Scarcely had she formed this plan of action, when a stream of white light fell upon her closed eyelids. With all the force of her will she kept them steady, her long lashes lying on her cheeks without a flicker.

"Fainted," came a whisper, louder than before.

"Can't be sure," murmured a second voice. "She may be shamming."

A moment later Elspeth felt the pressure of a hand on her chest. "She doesn't seem to breathe," was the whispered comment.

"Well, then, let us leave her for the present. She can't possibly escape."

"She can scream."

"If she did, she wouldn't be heard."

"Yet we are whispering."

"Loud voices might rouse the girl to consciousness. It's more convenient that she should be as she is. We've no time to waste upon her now. Little wretch! if she hadn't spoiled our game down below with her yells, the fire would presently have saved us all trouble. Our two birds would have been killed with one stone."

"Too late to think of that. There must be no suspicion against us. We had better go now. But I would feel safer if I were certain she could make no noise."

"Simple enough to close her mouth."

"You mean"——

"Not what you think I do. We can't afford to risk the smallest telltale stain when we show ourselves downstairs among the people who've been roused by the fire, and, besides, I've another plan. The thing must be done before morning, and in such a way that she can be carried back to her bed and laid there quietly, with no one to guess that she met death by violence. A dose of laudanum is the thing; the bottle found by her side. It will be thought that she killed herself because she'd been discharged."

"You think of everything."

"I have had some experience; otherwise I shouldn't be where I am."

"Can you get hold of the laudanum?"

Is Your Horse's Life Insured?

A RAPIDLY GROWING BRANCH OF UNDERWRITING WHICH REQUIRES HORSE SENSE.

J. W. Harriman's Nala Carries a $10,000 Policy.

A CERTAIN gentleman discovered that the more he studied men the better he liked dogs. That was progress in education. Yet he might have gone further.

Set this down as a fact:—The more one studies horses the better he will understand men. They have much in common. The gladness and the sadness of their lives often run strangely parallel courses.

There is an equine east side in New York that is every bit as bad for the horses as the same side is for men. And there is a wealthy zone in which the predecessors of the automobile live sumptuously, as do some men.

Moreover, the lives of horses, like the lives of men, are insured. The lives of the poor horses that work hard and suffer much are insured for little, just as the same class of men carry industrial insurance.

And the lives of a few horses that never dragged a truck an inch are covered with larger policies than many a first class merchant carries. These horses, though they know not useful toil, have the ability to win huge purses. They get the money. They are valuable. Hence the big figures of the underwriters.

New York as a city of horses has a population of 250,000, of which 50,000 die every year. The late poet Edmund Clarence Stedman, speaking of the human beings who live in the city, said, "No New Yorkers were born here; we all come from somewhere else." It's the same with horses. Most of them came from the Middle West. A horse is born and brought up in Iowa, Nebraska or in one of the Dakotas. By the time it is five years old it has either become firmly rooted in the mediocre class of plough horses or given signs of power to do greater things. If the animal be of extraordinary weight, build and vigor, it is quickly spotted by one of the numerous buyers who go out from Sioux City, the country's greatest horse market. Negotiations are opened with its owner and in nine cases out of ten the horse soon leaves the prairies forever. If it be an exceedingly good animal it is sent to New York. Otherwise it may go to Boston or Providence, R. I., which divide, in the order named, the good horses that are not quite fine enough to be sent to New York.

And then happens to that horse practically what happens to the Iowa farm hand who perhaps comes to the city on the same day. It begins to work harder than it ever worked before in its life, and it begins to eat too much. These two acts spell early death. And the mortality statistics of the horse insurance companies show the effects of city life as inexorably as do the figures of the companies that insure the lives of men. A country horse five years old may be expected to live twenty more years. If the city work horse isn't dead at the curb by the time it is fifteen it is because something has happened that the mortuary experts cannot figure upon. Seven years of the hard work of New York kills the average horse.

And the average horse, thanks to the Spanish-American and the Boer wars, is valuable—hence the anxiety of many owners to insure their horses' lives. A good team of draught horses is worth anywhere from $800 to $1,000, and anything that can stand in its tracks and support its skin can be exchanged without much difficulty for $150.

Broadly speaking, two concerns carry the risks on the lives of the five thousand New York horses that are insured. Most of the risks for less than $500 are carried by a New York company. All of the policies in excess of this sum are issued by Lloyd's, of London.

Most of the horses that carry insurance, like most men, carry only small amounts. Big numbers of policy holders and big dividends go together; therefore the insurance of work horses is more lucrative than the insurance of racers.

When application is made for insurance on the life of a work horse the procedure is much the same that it is in the case of a man. No insurance company will assume a risk on the life of an idiot, and in like manner no horse insurance company will issue a policy on the life of a "dummy." Horses, again, are like men in that some have sense and some have not; and a "dummy" is a horse that would permit itself to be driven off a dock or into a moving train.

Nor will any horse insurance company issue a policy on the life of a steeplechaser. If the occupation of a steeplechaser has its counterpart in human existence it is that of an employe in a dynamite factory. Neither can get anybody to risk a cent on the probability that he will live from one minute to the next.

Chronic colic is also sufficient to bar a horse from life insurance. Colic is caused by eating too much food or food of the wrong kind. And what tuberculosis of the lungs is to the human family colic is to the tribe of the horse. It kills more animals than any other disease. And for this man is to blame. He wants to get all the work he can out of the animal and shovels feed into it as he might shovel coal under a boiler, or else he wants to save money by feeding spoiled oats and hay. In any case the horse gets the colic, which soon "gets" the horse.

"Horses can't stand pain as men can," said F. Arnold Bliss, a well known veterinarian. "A pain that a man would endure without making an outcry would drive a horse frantic. There have been instances where horses actually became insane as the result of pain. And colic, if it doesn't kill an animal outright, will make it so hard to manage that the owner will soon wish the horse were dead."

If a horse's heart goes about the right gait, both when the animal is resting and when it is exercising, the next thing to investigate is the stable in which it lives. The duration of a work horse's life is largely dependent upon the care given to it after the day's work is over, and it is in looking into this question that the inspector is more than likely to be plunged into one of the miserable structures that constitute the great "east side" of the horses. Sometimes five or six hundred animals, the property of a contractor, are huddled into a building in which there is neither light, air, cleanliness nor room. In the hottest nights of summer there they stand, dripping with sweat and, perhaps, covered with mud from head to foot. Too uncomfortable to sleep and too tired to eat, they stand in their stalls like so many drowned rats until the coming of morning. Then they go again into the great pit that is to hold the foundation of a skyscraper and tug with all their might, two or three teams to a load, to drag away the shattered rocks that explosives have torn loose. Three or four years of this kind of life will kill the average horse, and the insurance companies are correspondingly careful. Insurance on an old truck horse is hard to get.

If the horse is all right, perhaps the owner isn't, so he is always investigated. Perhaps a glance will settle the point in his favor, but the moral hazard of the owner is so great in horse insurance that it must never be neglected. Not every man who wants to insure a work horse for $150 will kill the animal to get the insurance, but so many will do so that an eye has to be kept out for the dishonest man.

If the applicant seems to be all right he pays an initiation fee of $5 in addition to an annual premium representing approximately five per cent of the sum insured, and a policy is issued.

But getting a risk on the books is the easy part of the task; it's settling death claims that requires judgment, memory and sometimes almost intuition. A man will come into an insurance office, for instance, and say that his old brown truck horse is dead. The animal worked the day before, apparently in its usual health, ate the usual amount at night and was found the next morning cold and stiff in its stall. Horses sometimes die natural deaths in that way and sometimes they don't. It is the duty of the company's veterinarian to investigate the circumstances and ascertain the facts. Frequently the investigation includes a post-mortem examination.

"I had a case like that a little while ago," said an inspector for an insurance company. "The most I could get from the owner was that the animal had breathed his last, and that very suddenly. I didn't like the looks of the man, and investigated. What do you suppose I found? A chewed up apple with arsenic enough in it to have killed ten horses. The man had simply plugged the apple with poison and fed it to the horse.

"I have known men to try to collect their insurance by administering prussic acid to their horses. Some animals have been killed in even more horrible ways. Such cases are the exception, it is true, but they are numerous enough so that we have to keep them in mind all the while."

The man who settles death claims for a horse insurance company also has to be alert for another kind of fraud. Horses cannot be identified as easily as men can, and for that reason it is correspondingly difficult to tell whether the dead horse is the one that was insured. Sometimes an owner will insure a horse and try to collect on the body of another. Some take the precaution to lead up a sound horse for the medical examination, for the purpose of putting in a death claim the next week or the next month on an animal that is about to die.

The only way to prevent such robberies is to make a minute examination of the animal preceding the issuance of the policy. All horses look about alike to the man who rides in the subway or in an automobile, but a skilled veterinarian seldom has difficulty in telling them apart. When he makes the medical examination he notes on which side the mane hangs, also taking in with his eye every spot, scar, "star" and blemish. Usually there is some distinguishing mark that a trained observer can detect, but the difficulty is sometimes so great as to be almost baffling.

The owner of a fine team of matched grays had them insured last year. Each horse had a name, which was recorded in the application blank as well as in the policies. But the difference in the names was the only difference in the animals, so far as the ordinary person could observe. And when, a few months later, one of the horses died the owner offered to wager the insurance official who came to adjust the claim that he could not tell which horse was dead.

The insurance man took the bet and won it.

"Tell me how you did it," said the owner, "and you can have the best split second watch I can buy for $300."

The insurance man pointed to the little black spots that are always found on the inside of a horse's front legs near the knees.

"You see those spots?" said he. "They are circular. So are the spots on the horse that's living. But the spots on the dead horse's legs are a little smaller in circumference than those on the other one."

"You don't get the watch," said the owner. "In trying to find wherein, if anywhere, those horses differed, I had even looked at the spots on their legs and found not only that they were the same shape, but the same size."

"Not quite the same size," replied the insurance man. "When I made the medical examinations before we issued the policies I made a note of the fact that the spots on one horse were a quarter of an inch less in circumference than those on the other. Here's the report I made then. See it? Measure the spots yourself and see if I am not right?"

The owner was forced to admit that his eye was not so trustworthy as the other man's tape measure.

The death rate among work horses is so great that if they were insured on the same plan men are the rates would either have to be prohibitive or the companies would become bankrupt. Every year practically one-eightieth of the population of the United States dies. During the same period sixteen-eightieths, or one-fifth, of the horses in New York pass away. As the annual premium is only five per cent of the amount insured, and the average life of a work horse after it gets here is seven years, only thirty-five per cent would be paid in before the death of the animal would convert the policy into cash. But insurance policies upon horses, unlike similar policies on the lives of human beings, cannot be kept up until the death of the insured without the consent of the company. And when age and hard work impair the value of an animal, the policy is either cancelled at the end of the term for which it was issued or the amount to be paid at death reduced to correspond with the decreased value of the animal.

Yet the high death rate, so far as men are responsible for it at all, is due more to ignorance than to greediness. Some men, it is true, look upon their truck horses as they do upon their trucks—merely as a part of their investment in their business.

"I work my horses hard enough so they pay for themselves in three years," said one man who kept his teams in an east side stable, "and any work I get out of them after that time is so much velvet."

But most men are more considerate. Some of the drivers, although they are working only by the day, have a positive affection for their teams, giving up many hours of their leisure to provide them the best of care. The horses of the express companies in particular lack for nothing. And all of the larger express companies own from twenty-five hundred to four thousand horses.

Best cared for of all, however, are the racers. After the winning of a great turf event the owner of the winner may eat more than is good for him, but his horse never does. He gets his little eight quarts of oats just as if he hadn't won enough money that day to buy an oat field twenty miles long. And he's rubbed down, coddled and tucked away in a stall where he has pure air, clean bedding and plenty of room.

And this sort of treatment produces its logical result. Race horses are the best risks that horse insurance companies have to do with. It isn't that they never die; they do. But they wait until their racing days are over and the policies on their lives have been cancelled. If it were not for railway accidents the payments of death claims on trotters and runners would be almost unheard of events.

Yet this class of horses carries the heaviest line of life insurance that is borne by any of the species. E. R. Thomas' Hermis, which won the Suburban Handicap in 1904, was at one time the most heavily insured horse that ever raced. If Hermis had dropped dead at the height of his career the underwriters who carried the risk on his life would have been compelled to pay Mr. Thomas $60,000.

Paul Rainey's De Mund was at one time insured for $30,000, while Colin, who won for his owner, Mr. J. R. Keene, in 1907, $131,000 in stakes, carried a policy for only $25,000.

Among the racers the risks upon whose lives are now underwritten for large sums may be mentioned Fair Play, who is insured for $50,000, and Octagon and Six o'Clock, for $30,000 each. Mr. Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt carries a $100,000 blanket policy on his stable, part of which is in London and part in America. Mr. Harry Payne Whitney carried $80,000 on his stable, while the horses of Mr. August Belmont are insured for $100,000. Mr. J. W. Harriman's Nala carries a $10,000 policy.

Lloyd's of London handles practically all of the racing insurance business in America. The New York insurance laws prohibit any company from doing business in the State unless it be licensed under the laws of New York; and as Lloyd's is not so licensed the business is conducted by brokers who make their headquarters in New Jersey, where there is no such prohibition.

Lloyd's is seldom called upon to pay a death claim. The net premium income would be all profit if it were not for the fact that an occasional railroad accident calls for the payment of a sum that represents the premiums for many years upon many horses. The last disaster of such a nature occurred a few years ago, when Mr. J. B. Haggin's "string" was in transit from Lexington, Ky., to New York. Part of the train was derailed, the cars caught fire, two of the horses were burned outright and others so badly injured that they became worthless. Lloyd's paid the bill just as promptly as the other insurance companies had settled their losses a few years earlier when a train load of wealthy men was wrecked near Cleveland.

The life of a horse, like the life of a man, should cover a period five times as long as it requires to reach maturity. A horse gets its growth in five years and therefore ought to live to be twenty-five. Great as are its periodical exertions, the race horse comes closer to approximating this duration of existence than any other animal. Good care counts in the end.

Yet there is an old horse up in the Bronx, that never did anything more aristocratic than to draw a delivery wagon, that is thirty-eight years old and in good health. How it has contrived to keep above the ground all these years, no one knows. The fact that it is alive seems to be one of Nature's ways of telling man how easily his most carefully worked out rules can be set aside.

A SIGNALMAN'S ACCUSATIONS.

"THE Confessions of a Railroad Signalman," which has been attracting a good deal of attention, is badly named. It should be "The Accusations of a Signalman," for the author reveals no wrongdoing of his own or of his brothers in the signal tower, but tells us how engine drivers, conductors and brakemen conspire to produce railroad accidents.

These accusations, especially those relating to the habitual passage of cautionary signals, are doubtless to a large extent true, but they suggest an interesting line of questions in racial psychology.

The author tells us that the American makes the worst railroad employe in the world for the same reason that he makes the best civil engineer, miner or factory hand—namely, that he can not bear to yield a blind obedience, but must see the reason for what he does. He has, in other words, too much initiative for a job that requires him to be merely a cog in a machine.

If an engine driver sees a cautionary signal, but at the same time sees a clear track stretching straight ahead for a mile, he will act on the evidence of his senses and disregard the signal. And after he has done this several times he will form a habit that will carry him past such a signal even on a foggy day, when he cannot see the track at all.

The author of the "Confessions" concludes that we must break up this bad habit by forcing trainmen to a blind obedience of signals and orders, using a system of inspectors and punishments; although he is afraid that the influence of the unions, which he considers detrimental to discipline, would prevent this. In other words, he would try to make the American mechanic fit into a system for which he is temperamentally unfit, just as the American soldier, the best of his kind, never could be made into the kind of soldier that the German army produces. The opposite plan, that of adapting the system to the temperament and special abilities of the American mechanic, seems to have occurred neither to the "signalman" nor to the management of our railroad companies.

The men themselves have so adapted it, in a rough and tumble sort of way, with disastrous results. Is it not possible to devise a system of train rules and signals the reasons for which shall be clear to those who use them? If not, automatically acting devices would seem to be the only resource, and these, except where electric power is in use, have hardly reached the commercial stage. But it would seem that an engine driver, for instance, ought never to be placed in a situation where the rules tell him to do one thing and his common sense bids him do another. In such a situation an American will follow his common sense every time, and the sooner our rule makers realize this the better.

THE TRICKS AND DODGES OF PROFESSIONAL PRIZE RING

One Man in a Bout at Birmingham Won by Making a Compound of Snuff and Pepper and Putting it on His Gloves—Crooked Battles Are Common in the United States—Tommy Burns' Mesmerism.

With the exception perhaps of horse-racing, there is no sport with which so many shady tricks and dodges are connected as professional boxing. The under-world of the "noble art," in fact, is so peopled with that class of men—"bookies" of no standing, backers with little money, and bullies with less character, although plenty of punching power—that anyone who mixes with the boxing fraternity must often wonder if a fair fight ever takes place.

Even big fights for world's championships have not been above suspicion of trickery at times, particularly in America, where the game of feigning "grogginess," or getting knocked out with the tap of an open glove, has been reduced to a very fine art.

Perhaps the most absurd assertion made in regard to fake fights, however, was that concerning Tommy Burns, after he had beaten Gunner Moir, Palmer and Roche in succession. The report was circulated that Burns mesmerized his opponents with his eyes. But, as Mr. Eugene Corri, the well-known authority on English sport and referee at the National Sporting Club, remarked to the writer, when asked what he thought of the theory that Burns mesmerized his opponents:

"It is all nonsense. The only way in which he mesmerizes them is with a punch."

This story of mesmerism reminds the writer of a trick which was played a few years ago during a boxing contest at Birmingham. One of the men in the match, not being quite certain of his chances of winning in a legitimate manner, decided to make sure with the aid of a certain powder, made for the most part of snuff and cayenne pepper. A little of this mixture was placed on the palm of one of his gloves after the first two rounds by his second as the latter refreshed the boxer with towel and sponge.

The object of the boxer, of course, was to hit his opponent on the side of the head with an open glove, and thus partly blind and daze him. The game was a risky one to play, for the trick might have been betrayed by the powder flying in the air and affecting the judges. But so little was used, and so artfully was the dodge worked, that it succeeded, although it all came out a couple of weeks later through the second talking too much while drunk.

The favorite dodges practiced, however, are those of feigning a "knock-out," or getting the police to stop a fight which has been in progress for, say, three or four rounds.

It is purely a commercial transaction on the part of the backers. They get a couple of well-matched young boxers, and offer them, say, $25 or $50 each for a match. It is then duly announced that "Peter Pippy" and "Nobby Smut" will fight for the "eight-stone-four" championship of, say, the New Cut, and the public think they are in for a good evening's sport. They freely pay 50c and $1.50 for a seat round the ring, and in the meantime the backers have carefully arranged which man shall lose, and get all the bets they can on the other man.

After the first four or five rounds the prearranged winner gives his opponent an apparently hard jab, maybe on the jaw, and the latter goes down. He gets up just before being counted out, pretends to be in great distress, and is knocked out in the next round. With the exception of those who are "in the know," everybody thinks it is a fair fight, although a careful observer might have noticed that these swinging jabs, body blows and upper cuts were for the most part delivered with open gloves.

Then maybe the match has been such an attraction that the defeated one issues another challenge, saying he is not satisfied that he has been beaten by a better man, and hints at a lucky blow, etc., etc. Another match is arranged. This time the winner of the first match loses, and thus honors are even, and neither boxer has lost much prestige.

One of the worst fake fights which ever took place in America was that which victimized sportsmen in Boston, U.S.A., five years ago. A huge Irishman was discovered, who could take any amount of punishment, although he knew nothing about the science of hit, stop, and get away.

Shady bookies got hold of him, boomed him as the forthcoming Irish champion heavyweight, and arranged a match which brought a $7,500 gate. The new champion was in such a funk when the time arrived for the match that he had to be liberally dosed with whisky, and when he got a hard blow on the jaw in the first round he went down and refused to get up.

Naturally, there was an uproar in the audience, and the Irishman and his backers had to show a clean pair of heels.

When a certain chief of police stopped a big fight in Madison Square Garden, New York, three years ago, many wrathful things were said about him by the spectators. But they would have been even more wrathful had those spectators known that he had received a big bribe from the principals and backers of the fight to step in and stop the contest after the sixth round on some technical point of law.

Another favorite game with fake-fighters is worked in the following way. A boxer with a good reputation is perhaps doing a music-hall tour. He sends ahead of him, about a fortnight before he appears at a certain town, a couple of sparring partners. These men work up interest in boxing by posting forfeits with the principal town newspaper and fighting local pugilists for the stakes.

Then the winner of these small fights issues a challenge to the world. True, the challenge gets little beyond the local newspaper; but it is a challenge for all that, and when the well-known boxer comes along and accepts the challenge the town is naturally all agog with excitement. But the challenger cuts a sorry figure, and nothing more is seen of him by the locals, for the simple reason that he has gone on to the next town to repeat the performance—under another name, perhaps.

SHAKESPEAREAN PARTS.

That of Hamlet Is the Longest of Them All.

The longest part in any Shakespearean play is Hamlet, who is before the audience almost constantly. Hamlet is a constant talker, and it is surprising that in the circumstances he says so many wise things. He has to his share 1,569 lines. Richard III. is another long part, as the character speaks 1,161 lines, next comes Iago, with 1,117 lines. Henry V. has 1,063 lines.

One would suppose from seeing the representation or from looking over the play that Othello had more lines than Iago, but it is not the case, for the valiant Moor has only 888 lines. Coriolanus has 886, the duke in "Measure for Measure" 880 and Timon 863. Antony in "Antony and Cleopatra" does not seem a very long part, judging by the appearance of the prompt book, but in reality he has 880 lines.

Brutus in "Julius Caesar" has 727, Falstaff in "Henry V." 719. Macbeth appears a long part, judging from how much he is on the stage in the representation, but in fact he has only 705 lines. Romeo has 618, which is only a few more than the king in "Hamlet," who has 551. Cassius in "Julius Caesar," although a first class part, has but 507 lines.

The female parts in Shakespeare's plays are not very long. The actress who plays Portia has 589 lines to study. Rosalind has 749. Cleopatra has 670 and Juliet 541. Desdemona has only 389. Beatrice has 309. Only twenty of Shakespeare's women have more than 300 lines each, and some of the most famous of the great bard's feminine creations have comparatively little to say. Cordelia in "King Lear" has only 115 lines. Kate in "Taming of the Shrew," although so conspicuous and voluble, has but 229, while Lady Macbeth has but 211.

Insane Sense.

Among the inmates of a certain insane asylum were two who were considered perfectly harmless and not without a certain modicum of common sense. These two were generally employed in the garden and were frequently left without spervision.

An opportunity offering, they planned between themselves an attempt to escape.

"Now, bend down, Tom," said Jack as the two conspirators came to the wall surrounding the grounds; "then I'll climb up your shoulder to the top, and when I'm up I'll be able to give you a hand."

Tom accordingly bent down, and Jack, with a little difficulty, managed to gain the top of the wall, where, instead of assisting his friend, he disappeared on the other side and as he was making off shouted:

"Well, I think, Jack, you'll be better to stay on another fortnight yet. You're not nearly cured."

Signboards In Japan.

From the island empire come these examples of "English as she is Japanesed:"

"Tailor, native country; draper, miliner and ladies' outfitter; the ribbons, the laces, the veils, the feelings."

"Hand-painting post-cards."

"Extract of fowl kept."

"Photographer executed."

"Head hair cutter."

"Writing for another done here."

"Specialist for the dicease of children."

"Best perfuming water, anti-flea, dealer of."

"Notiess—Our tooth is a very important organ for business life and countenance as you know; therefore, when it is attacked by disease or injury, artificial tooth is very useful. I am engaged to the dentistry and I will make for your purpose."

A Child's Philosophy.

It is one of the prime secrets of happiness to recognize and accept one's natural limitations, but philosophy of this kind is perhaps hardly to be expected of children.

A little girl had sent back her plate two or three times and had been helped bountifully to all the good things that go to make a grand dinner. Finally she was observed looking rather disconsolately at her unfinished plate of turkey.

"What's the matter, Ethel?" asked Uncle John. "You look mournful."

"That's just the matter," said Ethel. "I am more'n full."

And then she wondered why everybody laughed.

Definite at Least.

A calm, blue eyed, self possessed young lady in a village down east received a long call from a spinster, who, after prolonging her call beyond the young lady's endurance, came to the main question that had brought her thither.

"I've been asked a good many times if you were engaged to Dr. C. Now, if they ask me again what will I tell them I think?"

"Tell them," answered the young lady, fixing her calm blue eyes in unblushing steadiness on the inquisitive features of the questioner, "tell them that you think you don't know and you are sure that it is none of your business."

USE FOR A TELESCOPE.

Interesting Discovery One Woman Made by Use of the Glass.

"I thought it was a pretty fair sort of telescope for one that wasn't very big," said Uncle Silas. "I rigged it up in the attic by the high north window and had it fixed so it would swing around easy. I took a deal of satisfaction in looking through it, the sky seemed so wide and full of wonders, so when Hester was here I thought I'd give her the pleasure too. She stayed a long time upstairs and seemed to be enjoying it. When she came down I asked her if she'd discovered anything new.

"'Yes,' she says. 'Why, it made everybody's house seem so near that I seemed to be right beside 'em, and I found out what John Pritchard's folks are doin' in their outkitchen. I've wondered what they had a light there for night after night, and I just turned the glass on their windows. They are cuttin' apples to dry—folks as rich as them cuttin' apples!'

"And actually that was all the woman had seen! With the whole heavens before her to study, she had spent her time prying into the affairs of her neighbors! And there are lots more like her—with and without telescopes."—Christian Uplook.

A Delicate Point.

At a certain committee room on Dominion election day, a politician was at the telephone answering the numerous enquiries of scrutineers.

Somebody rang in.

"Say," said the voice, "here's a fellow who wants to vote, and he hasn't the residence qualifications. Shall I insist that he be sworn?"

"How will he vote?"

"Don't know for sure but I think he'll vote our way."

"Then for heaven's sake don't swear him. If you do, he'll probably get mad, and vote the other way."

In Jail For His Religion.

Isaac Robinson, a Hebrew, under arrest at Hamilton on a charge of obtaining goods valued at $90 from H. Levitt, spent all of one Saturday recently because he would not desecrate the Jewish Sabbath by bail bonds that would give him his freedom.

"I would rather go to jail," he declared, and he remained in the cells until sundown, when he signed the papers and was allowed out.

A party of German settlers from Dakota, numbering in all 173 souls, have purchased an area covering thirty-five sections of land north of Calgary. They have brought everything with them necessary to found a flourishing colony, even to their own minister. Their effects include nearly 1,200 head of stock. The body is regarded as one of the model colonies.

PRINCE RUPERT HARBOR

It was erroneously reported in a recent press despatch that the surveys made by HMS. "Egeria," last summer indicated that the Brown Passage between Dundas and Stephen Islands, the most direct entrance to Prince Rupert harbor, is so studded with reefs as to make safe navigation impossible. This is emphatically contradicted by Mr W. P Anderson, the Chief Engineer of the Department of Marine and Fisheries, at Ottawa, who was on board the "Egeria" last month and saw the captain's plans of the survey of the passage. There are reefs on each side of the passage, but the passage itself is clear for a width of between two and three miles. Stenhouse shoal and Hanmer Rocks mark the northern limit of clear water and the North Breaker, which shows well above the water, is the southern boundary of the clear passage. When these points have been marked by lights, there will not be the slightest difficulty or danger in entering through that approach. A gas buoy has already been moored on Stenhouse shoal just outside of the passage; with that aid alone and with the North Breaker showing, the largest sized vessel can now go through in perfect safety day or night. It is the opinion of the Chief Engineer that Brown Passage presents as clear an approach as any vessel need desire.

The Crystal Ball.

By Philip Kean.

Copyrighted, 1908, by Associated Literary Press.

"The trouble with me," Antoinette announced, "is that I am too commonplace."

Charmian laughed. "You funny little thing!"

"I haven't any individuality," Antoinette insisted. "I dance pretty well and sing a little. I have a fairly good complexion. I know how to do my hair, but when other girls scintillate I'm in the shadow. What I need is to be different."

"What you need is to be your own dear self," Charmian stated. "Everybody loves you."

"Everybody doesn't," Antoinette contradicted. "At least"— She stopped suddenly.

"Well, Dickie does," Charmian teased. "You know you are the only girl in the world to Dickie Beveridge, and Dickie's the salt of the earth."

"Oh, Dickie!" Antoinette flared. "Dickie's as insignificant as I am. He has a nice little figure and a nice little way of saying things, but there isn't anything great or grand about him."

"Who wants to be great or grand?" Charmian questioned.

"I do." Antoinette sat up among the pink couch cushions. "I want to be distinctive, Charmian."

"In what way?" Charmian's eyes were smiling as she lounged in the big chair by the open fire, for the October days were cool.

"Well, like you, for example," Antoinette said—"your red-gold hair and your gray eyes and your black lashes and your way of wearing things. Now, what would I look like in that black kimono you have on? With its gold figures it gives you an atmosphere of mystery—like a seeress or something."

Charmian laughed again. "Dear girl," she said, "it's much better to be a woman than a seeress."

"That's all very well for you to say," Antoinette grumbled. "You have a voice like a siren."

"Oh, Toinette," Charmian protested, "a seeress and a siren! I'd so much rather be just a woman and lovable and precious like you."

Antoinette dimpled and then sighed "But I'm not lovable to everybody."

Charmian reached over and took one of the small, plump hands in hers. "Now, who is that sigh for, baby?" she demanded. "And who doesn't love you?"

"Otis Singleton," said Antoinette unexpectedly.

Charmian's eyes returned to the fire with an unfathomable expression.

"So it is Otis Singleton?" she said softly.

"Yes," Antoinette nodded. "I think he is perfectly fine, Charmian. But he doesn't pay a particle of attention to me. And I am positively tongued tied when I try to talk to him. Do you feel that way?"

Charmian smiled inscrutably. "Not exactly," she murmured.

"Of course you don't," Antoinette went on. "You're not commonplace, and I am not going to be any more. I am going to create an atmosphere. Otis is interested in occult things, and there's that crystal ball that father brought from India."

She rose, crossed to a table and brought back the translucent sphere which gave out opal flashes as it caught the autumn sunlight.

"Father says the queer men over there used to gaze in it," Antoinette explained, "and tell what had been and what would be."

"How strange!" said Charmian, handling it curiously.

"I am going to fit up the den," Antoinette recited as she flung herself once more among the cushions, "with dark, mysterious hangings, with a dado of peacock feathers, and a bust of Pallas over the door, and a black cat on the hearth, and I'm going to dress myself in a smoke colored gown, with a snake bracelet, and I'm going to put the crystal ball in the middle of my teakwood table and tell fortunes. And after awhile everybody will say, 'How interesting!' and then I won't feel so insignificant, and perhaps Otis will come, and—now, Charmian, what's the matter?"

For the other girl was laughing uncontrollably.

"Oh, you funny child!" she gasped.

"It's not a laughing matter," Antoinette reproved her. She reached over and took the crystal ball from her friend and gazed into it. "It shows me a great singer crowned with laurels," she said.

Charmian snatched the ball from her. "Don't," she cried; "don't prophesy fame for me! Tell me of a future of love and marriage and home. I've been so lonely all my life."

The young girl laid her cheek against that of her friend. "But you know I love her, Charmian," she said.

"You precious child!" was the grateful response, and after that there was a long silence.

Then Antoinette said, "But I'm going to fix up the den, and I'm going to invite Otis Singleton."

"Better invite Dickie," Charmian urged.

"I shall never invite Dickie again," Antoinette stated. "He always asks me to marry him!"

"And are you sure you don't love him—sure?" The older girl's gaze was compelling.

"Well," Antoinette hesitated, "I do like Dickie, Charmian, but when I think what a commonplace couple we would make"—

"You would make a dear couple," Charmian stated, "and your laughter and brightness are not for such men as Otis Singleton."

"Why not?"

"Otis needs a woman who has suffered as he has suffered. He has had a hard life and a lonely one—a life like mine, Antoinette." She caught herself up quickly and glanced at her friend. But Antoinette was absorbed in her plans.

"Anyhow, I'm going to invite him and read his fortune in the crystal ball. Who knows but he will find his fate?" And she flew up to her own room to dress.

All the week that followed Antoinette was busy transforming the den into an abode of black art. Charmian, watching somewhat wistfully, made invaluable suggestions.

"I shall never fit into it as you would," Antoinette said one morning despairingly. "I'm too chubby. I hate that word, Charmian, but it fits me. And it fits Dickie Beveridge. He proposed again last night, and he looked like a little fat Cupid, oh, dear!" And she smiled ruefully.

"Marry him," was Charmian's prompt suggestion, "and don't think any more of Otis Singleton."

"But Otis is so fine and splendid," Antoinette protested.

"Yes, he is fine and splendid," Charmian repeated, and something in her tone made Antoinette stare.

"Oh, my goodness!" she said to herself later as she fed the black cat on the hearth to get her accustomed to her new environment. "Goodness, I came near making an awful mistake. And, after all, I simply couldn't live without Dickie."

So she sent for him that very afternoon, and he came, beaming.

"Do you really mean what you said over the telephone," he demanded—"that you'll marry me, Antoinette?"

Antoinette nodded. "I've been a little goose, Dickie," she said briefly as she let him hold the tips of her fingers, "and now I want to talk about Charmian."

Two heads being better than one, Antoinette emerged from the interview radiant.

"Your brains aren't chubby if your body is," was the praise she bestowed upon Dickie, "and I never should have thought of that way of bringing them together."

"He loves her desperately," Dickie said, "but he thinks she is wedded to her career. He told me once that he wouldn't dare ask such a woman to share his moderate income."

"And she is longing to share it, only, of course, a woman has to wait until a man asks her. Oh, well"—and Antoinette smiled on her chubby squire ecstatically—"oh, well, Dickie, we shall see what we shall see!"

Two nights later Otis Singleton, coming into the transformed den, with an amused smile curving his lips, found a small, plump seeress in smoke colored crape, with jade ornaments at her neck and on her wrists, presiding over the crystal ball, which was mounted on a silver dragon.

"So this is the new fad," he said as he seated himself.

Antoinette shook her head at him. "It's not a fad," she said. "This crystal ball has told me some things lately that have almost made me shiver, and the role of prophetess has been forced upon me."

Otis threw his head back and laughed heartily. "Antoinette, you are a glorious little fraud," he said, "but that ball is wonderful." And he reached out his hand to take it.

But Antoinette's white hands waved him back.

"Let me read what it says," she murmured softly, "and you will think it still more wonderful."

Otis lounged in his big chair lazily.

"Proceed," he said, then teasingly, "Have you told Dickie's fortune?"

Antoinette nodded. "Dickie is to marry a plump blond on the 14th of December, and he is to live happy ever after."

Otis sat up and stared.

"By Jove, you don't mean that you've really said 'Yes' at last?" he gasped.

Antoinette smiled. "I see that you recognize the small, plump blond," she murmured.

Then for a time she was silent, gazing into the depths of the crystal ball. At last her voice came faintly. "I see a woman in white"—

"Blond or brunette?" skeptically.

All the indifference had left Singleton's face. "Charmian," he breathed.

"Now the crystal is clouded," the voice went on, "but in the dimness I can still see the shadowy figure in white. She tramples on the laurel wreath, but her hand is on her heart. She seems to say, 'I want not fame, but love.'"

Otis' hand came down heavily over the ball. "You are making it up," he accused.

The little lady's eyes met his steadily.

"I am not making it up."

"You mean that it is true?"

"As true as that Dickie and I are going to be married, Otis."

So seriously did she say it that Singleton stood up with a quick laugh of resolution. "Where is she?" he demanded.

"In the library," said Antoinette. "But, oh, Otis, if she should ever guess how I told your fortune!"

"She shan't guess," he said. "I'll tell her you saw money bags and a rich widow"—

And with that he was gone, while the seeress in smoke color flew down the hall to hunt up her chubby cherub.

"And, oh, Dickie," she said as they took refuge in the breakfast room, "I expect she's saying 'Yes' this very minute!"

"And all because of the crystal ball," was Dickie's comment as he folded her in his fond embrace.

WOMAN'S WORLD

UNIQUE CARVING FORK.

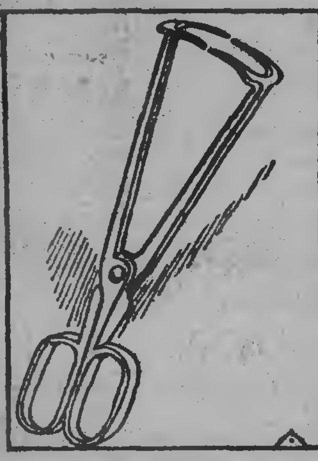
The contrivance shown in the accompanying illustration resembles a pair of pliers, but it is not. It is a carving fork which the inventor claims is a great improvement over the carving forks now in common use. Again, it might be mistaken for a pair of scissors, being of similar construction, with the exception that when the handles are drawn together the shanks still remain apart. At the end of each shank are the prongs. When it is desired to hold the meat to be carved the handles are swung apart, causing the prongs to do likewise. The shanks are then placed at opposite sides of the meat and the handles drawn together. With the aid of this utensil the meat can be securely held, the grip increasing in proportion to the force exerted upon the handles. The prongs being prevented from contracting, they cannot cut or crush the meat.



FOR THE CARVER.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY.

Dark rings under the eyes show that the body in one way or another is being overtaxed by worry or that the physical system is deranged. Lack of rest, late hours or an irregularity of the kidneys will bring those gray, heavy lines. Drink plenty of water every day, get out of doors regularly, look after the diet and get to bed early.

The fluffy headed girl will often find water efficacious in the training of her hair. In this case the hair near the head is gone over with a wet brush and an effort is made to lay it in waves. After this a veil is placed over the hair in the shape of a cap until the hair is dry. If there is the slightest tendency to curl, a couple of weeks of this sort of treatment will develop it.

For very sick people toast water is a nourishing, palatable drink. Put several pieces of cold, crisp toast in a thick pitcher, pour boiling hot water over it, cover the pitcher to keep in the steam and after it has soaked for fifteen minutes strain off the hot water which contains the nourishing essence of the bread. It can be kept in a cool place until the next time to reheat it.

Do Not Be Morbid.

To a degree sensitiveness is a good quality and one to be cherished. But every fine quality has its defects, and the defect of undue sensitiveness is morbidness.

Never torture yourself by wondering if on this or the other occasion you made yourself appear ridiculous. If you wrote a foolish letter, let it go at that. If you made a silly speech, be comforted. People will not remember it long. If there was a clever thing you might have said and did not, remind yourself that there are more days to come and there will be other chances.

HOMEMADE KNEECAPS.

Protections Hailed by Busy Mothers With Much Delight.

Schoolboys always wear out their stockings at the knees, as every mother knows, and the invention of the so called "kneecaps" was hailed by busy women with delight. But somehow they never were very pretty and added nothing to the appearance of the child.

Would it not be a good idea to make them from the cloth of the suits, and then each pair could be worn with the clothes they match? Of course more than one pair for each suit would be necessary, but there are so many pieces left over when the pattern is cut from the material, pieces that seem of no good except to use for patches. Surely if the unsightly pads merely looked like a continuation of the diminutive trousers the looks of the kiddie would not be impaired.

To make them fit a piece of cloth to the knee of the child, interline it with chamois and bind all round with a bias piece of the material. To fasten them in place sew two pieces of narrow elastic to each side and fasten them in each of the knees with a patent glove fastener. There will then be no buttons to continually need sewing on, and the child will be comfortable.

A NURSE SHOULD KNOW—

That orange juice with cracked ice can often be taken by a patient who can retain nothing else.

That orange juice, being laxative, is excellent in most sickrooms, is sometimes even prescribed for typhoid fever patients.

That chocolate, though nourishing, often causes dyspepsia when the digestion is weak.

That the nervous patient should have eight or nine hours of sleep.

That sleep will be slow in coming if the sick person in allowed to have company just before bedtime or listens to exciting reading.

That one should never ask a sick person, "What can I do for you?"

That dainty service often counts more than quality or variety in the invalid's meals.

That the nurse should never save steps when the patient's appetite is capricious. A small portion often tempts where a larger one nauseates. An extra trip to the kitchen is better than heaped up trays.

That a sickroom should never be made a thoroughfare or the gathering place for the family.

That sponging with alcohol and water will reduce fever several degrees.

That having a patient hold her breath will often prevent a spasm of coughing.

That persons subject to rheumatism or weak heart should not take baths that are ice cold.

LETTUCE OVERNIGHT.

The Mushroom Growth Is No Longer In It Nowadays.

This is a suggestion for the winter. It is a secret of how to get lettuce for a luncheon or a dinner party overnight. The mushroom growth is no longer in it with the overnight lettuce.

The expert gardener says it is not generally known, but it can be put into practice if a woman will only take notice and know how.

The way to do it is as follows: A box is filled with rich earth, mixed with one-third part slaked lime, using lukewarm water. The seeds must be softened by having been soaked in strong brandy for twenty-four hours.

The sowing is in the usual way, and, behold, in twenty-four hours one has a head of lettuce for dinner that night!

Whether or not this is a conjurer's trick can be found out by yourself. No one has admitted whether the lettuce goes to the head on account of the brandy, and no one has added up the cost of the brandy against the ordinary cost of a head of lettuce in the market.

Here is another gardener's trick for making flowers bloom in a minute on a cold winter's day to adorn the dinner table:

All you have to do is to select perfect, tightly closed buds with long stems. Cover the ends of each stem at once with sealing wax. See that each bud is perfectly dry and inclose it in waxed paper.

Put each one away from the air. When you get ready to have full blown flowers go to your conservatory on the shelf, take the buds and cut the stems, place in water in which has been dissolved a tiny bit of niter of salt, and you will have a full blown rose for your dinner table.

It might be much easier to telephone the florist for a few roses, but you would miss the fun of growing your own in a few minutes.

"I was a sufferer from fearful headaches for over two years, sometimes they were so bad that I was unable to work for days at a time. I took all kinds of medicines, was treated by physicians, and yet the headaches persisted. I was rarely free from headache. A short time ago I was advised to try "Fruit-a-tives" and I did so with, I must confess, very little faith, but after I had taken them for three days my headaches were easier and in a week they left me. After I had taken a box of the tablets my headaches were quite cured. My appetite was always poor and my stomach bad, and now my appetite is splendid and my digestion is excellent. I had become thin and weak from the constant headaches, but now not only have I been cured of all these awful headaches, but my strength is growing up once more, and I feel like a new man. I have taken in all three boxes of "Fruit-a-tives." I am exceedingly grateful to "Fruit-a-tives" for curing me, and I give this unsolicited testimonial with great pleasure, as I hope thereby some other sufferer of headaches will be induced to try "Fruit-a-tives" and will be cured."

THE MATCHMAKER.

There's Nothing Beats a Brother In This Capacity.

As a matchmaker there is nothing to excel the brother.

The role is not taken by him wittingly, but he fills it to perfection, because of his innocent unconsciousness.

The girl with a brother is certain to meet his friends. He brings them home from school when he is a youngster, and the sister, in her superior way, joins in their sports.

Of course the idea that any one should fall in love with a sister of a boy never occurs to the boy himself.

Later in life he brings his fellow students home from college. Then the sister is a young lady. Still, that anybody should fall in love with her strikes the brother as absurd, if it strikes him at all. At last the truth dawns upon him, and he resents it.

Suddenly he discovers that Tom, Dick and Harry are not good enough for his sister. "They're all right for chums, you know, sis," he will explain, "but you don't want to marry any of them, you know. Why, that chap Tom," etc.

But the brother is no longer an equation in the matter. His part has been done. There is not the slightest use of opposition from him, for if it has any effect this is just the opposite from the intended effect.

The brotherless girl often has comparatively few chances of meeting eligibles. She cannot figure the formalities that, with the aid of a brother, are swept aside as though they did not exist.

She may have a scheming mother, but a scheming mother is not always a help, for the eye of discernment decries in her the scheming mother-in-law of the future.

Nor is a girl who is thrust forward as a candidate for matrimony apt to be accepted at the valuation attached to her.

The bold girl, too, is at a disadvantage. The willingness to marry, made too evident, is construed into an anxiety.

It is the girl with a brother or two who is unhandicapped. She does not have to do any planning. Everything is done for her and all without connivance or even knowledge that it is being done.

She is unaware of it herself and perhaps elated at being chosen when other girls apparently as attractive are passed by.

There really is no secret about it. The other girls had no brothers.

Make Haste Slowly.

This is an age of hurry, and we are all inclined to do everything in a rush, forgetting that hurry retards our work, and the more quietly we do what is to be done the more quickly and better it is done.

"Hasten slowly" is the advice given in an exchange, for the first necessity is to find ourselves ont—to find ont for a fact where and how we hurry and how we have the sense of hurry with us all the time. Having found ourselves out, the remedy is straight before us.

Nature is on the side of no hurry and will come to our aid with higher standards of quiet which are always back in every one's brain if we only look to find them.

Five minutes sitting quietly and taking long breaths to get a sense of no hurry every day will be of very great help, and then when we find ourselves hurrying let us stop and recall the best quiet that we know. That need only take a few seconds, and the gain is sure to follow.

Festina lente (hasten slowly) should be in the back of our brain all day and every day.

'Tis haste makes waste, the sage avers,
And instances are far too plenty.
Whene'er the hasty impulse stirs
Put on the brake, Festina Lente.

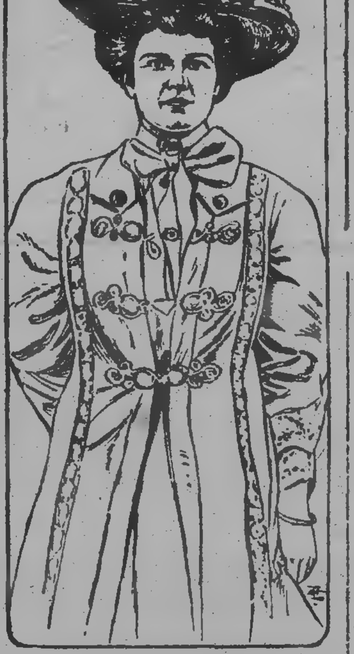
MISS ETHEL'S DEBUT.

Daughter of President to Be National Belle For a Few Months.

Time was when the debut of the daughter of the president of the United States would have been relegated to the category of unimportant affairs concerning only the United States. Now a thrill of interest is felt in every country of the world. Though the occasion calls for nothing except letters of congratulation and probably a few gifts from personal friends who are high in the cabinets of foreign lands, the event will be noted in courts and will figure in the chronicles of foreign capitals along with the doings of royalty.

The slender young girl who stands so luminously before the world just now is a type of which every American may be proud. She is just seventeen and a few months and is young for debutantes as the buds are introduced nowadays. But the delight of reigning a short while as national belle was too alluring for even such a level headed young woman as Miss Ethel to forego. She possesses the healthy desire of all girls to have a good time, and certainly a debut in the White House offers a tempting field of operation. Last year she decided against a collegiate course, and after finishing her academic training at the Cathedral school she devoted all her attention to the accomplishments necessary for the belle who would shine in such a complex assembly as Washington's official society.

She is a good musician, a clever conversationalist, clever with her brush and pen and can "make conversation" in three tongues besides English.



MISS ETHEL ROOSEVELT.

Unlike Mrs. Longworth, Miss Ethel is fond of books, and she has gathered a fine library during her years in the White House. Books are the most welcome gift that can be offered, and, as her friends have learned this, she has added largely to her treasures. Her skill as a needlewoman is almost national, and her pretty little fancy articles have figured in church festivals and gentlewomen's sales for the past five years.

That Miss Ethel Roosevelt is a handsome, well equipped young girl, who would make her mark in the social world even without the prestige of a White House environment is universally conceded. Interest centers in the plan for her debut party, and great is the longing of every one socially inclined, young, old and middle aged, to be included in the guest list on that occasion. For some reason social experts have decided that, as Miss Alice Roosevelt was presented at a ball, so the second daughter must expect the same brilliant fete. But conditions differ widely from those when Mrs. Longworth made her bow. Mrs. Roosevelt was comparatively new to her high position, and her circle of friends was more circumscribed. Then, Mrs. Longworth possessed much independence of character as well as an income of her own to execute her own plans. Miss Ethel is more amenable, and the wishes of her parents have always been paramount. A ball seems the proper function, but people shudder at the Pandora box of ills which could spring from such an entertainment. Mrs. Roosevelt has hitherto displayed marked independence when it comes to planning her private amenities. She has drawn a rigid line between the obligations of the president's wife and those of Mrs. Theodore Roosevelt.

American Plates.

The woman who is intensely American and patriotic can now get china to carry out her feelings. The shops have put out emblem plates with the arms of the thirteen original states. These would be attractive used for a supper or dinner on the Fourth of July or Washington's birthday.

Water Bugs.

Water pipes are frequently stopped up with water bugs. These pests can be got rid of by pouring a tablespoonful of turpentine down the pipe. The mouth of the pipe should be covered to keep in the fumes.

Paper Shade Hint.

Some women are so fearful of fire that they hesitate to use the dainty paper lamp shades that are so cheap and lend such a soft radiance to a room. There is really little danger if the wire frames are large enough for the lamp. Do not use shades, however, after the paper becomes dry and charred, as they are then more liable to ignite. Another important thing in regard to paper shades is to keep them free from dust. Not only do they burn sooner when dusty, but they are not a credit to one's housekeeping. The tops should be changed frequently, as the paper costs but little, and it is not much work to make a new top when the frame is there.

To Polish Mirrors.

The first step toward cleaning the mirror before polishing is to rub off the glass carefully with a damp cloth. When this is done, polish with a woolen cloth on which some powdered blue has been shaken. For the final touch, rub the glass carefully with a chamois skin until it is brilliant.

In Ironing Lace.

If you iron your lace or embroidered muslin on a fine board or table covered with several thicknesses of flannel and no muslin over them they will look much nicer than if ironed in the ordinary manner, as the flannel "gives" and the raised work stands out.

THE Dominion Cook Book

By Anne Clarke.

Preeminently the Best Collection of Cooking Recipes Published.

A Household Necessity.

HOW to cook, and what to cook, are the two topics discussed in this volume. The suggestions given are not such as an inexperienced editor might collate and combine in quantity, regardless of quality; but they are the results of long and careful domestic experience in houses where these two arts were studied and practised. Skilled housekeepers of large experience are responsible for every recipe and hint here given. They have tried and tested these matters of which they write, and happy is the young housekeeper who can profit by their wisdom.

In order to profit thus, care is needed and much study. This book on a shelf in the kitchen will not act as a charm to prevent burning the beefsteak or toughening the pie crust. Nor will the mere reading of it transform the careless girl into a thrifty manager of the home. The book must be read, studied and obeyed. Do the things here directed and realize the benefits here portrayed. "Practice makes perfect,"—provided it be wise practice. Otherwise it spoils everything.

Cook books are numerous, but it is believed this, the latest and best will surpass them all. A valuable chapter is given entitled "The Doctor," in which are recipes selected from eminent authorities, and which will be found invaluable where the doctor is not readily available.

Each Recipe Prefaced by List of Ingredients—A New Feature in Cook Books.

This work is a veritable ENCYCLOPEDIA, containing 1000 Practical Recipes WHICH ALWAYS COME OUT RIGHT!

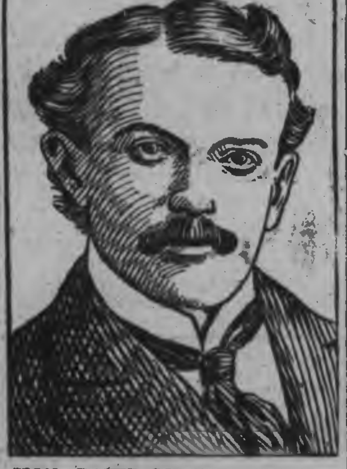
SUFFRAGETTES IN LONDON EMPLOY WHIPS AND CHAINS

Band of Agitators Raise Disturbance During Speech of Chancellor Lloyd-George in Albert Hall and Are Only Ejected After a Fierce Struggle.

London, Dec. 7.—The gulf between the suffragists and the suffragettes, the latter being the term generally used to describe the militant section of the female agitators, who believe in street riots and attacks on Cabinet Ministers as the quickest means of attaining the suffrage for their sex, was further widened Saturday afternoon by a fierce demonstration indulged in by the suffragettes at Albert Hall against David Lloyd-George, Chancellor of the Exchequer, who was addressing the Woman's Liberal Association.

The Chancellor had hardly got beyond announcing that he was present with the object of making known the Government's intentions regarding the problem of woman suffrage, when a great uproar broke out. Strident voices from all parts of the hall shrieked: "We want deeds, not words."

The stewards of the hall, and there were 350 on hand to deal with the anticipated disturbance, at once moved down the aisle of the women who had interrupted the speaker with the idea of ejecting them. They found them chained to their seats.



HON. DAVID LLOYD-GEORGE.

There then began a confused struggle between the men and the women, but finally the chains were cut and the suffragettes expelled. But the numbers of the disorderly seemed to increase rather than diminish. Some of the women were armed with whips, and they replied vigorously every attempt to eject them.

There were fierce tussels every few moments in different parts of the hall, and every time Mr. Lloyd-George made an attempt to speak his voice was drowned with mingled groans and cheers.

The uproar was at its height when a dozen suffragettes who recently had been released from prison, divested themselves of their outside wraps and appeared in their jail garb. Their clothes were liberally stamped with broad arrows.

This exhibition acted on the sisterhood like a red rag to a bull. Megaphones and bells were brought into use, and the noise became deafening. The stewards at length lost their tempers, and as they continued their work of throwing out the demonstrants, the clothes of many of the women were torn off their backs.

At the end of half an hour or more the opposition became worn out, and Mr. Lloyd-George was able to continue his speech with only an occasional interruption. He assured his audience, which totaled fully 8,000 people, that there was a majority in the Cabinet, and the Liberal party was in favor of woman suffrage and that a suffrage clause would be included in the Government's franchise bill, which however could not be introduced until the eve of the dissolution of Parliament.

Boats at Fort William.

Fort William, Ont., Dec. 7.—Yesterday at noon twenty-one boats were in the harbor, all freighters, with a carrying capacity each of from 100 to 400 bushels. For this late date in the season, the number of boats exceeds any previous record.

The steamer Tampa, with coal from Cleveland, arrived Saturday afternoon at two o'clock, after a very stormy passage up the lake. Very little damage was done to the steamer.

FIFTY-SEVEN PROTESTS HAVE BEEN ENTERED IN DOMINION

Ontario Has Eight, Quebec Thirty-Five and Manitoba Seven---Results of Saturday's Appeals Against Federal Elections After Saw-off Results in Four by Each Party in Ontario.

Toronto, Dec. 7.—Eight Federal elections were protested in Ontario on Saturday, four by Conservatives and four by Liberals. They are—by Conservatives: Fowke in South Ontario, maj. 287; J. R. Stratton in West Peterboro; Sir Wilfrid Laurier in Ottawa, maj. 640; Wm. M. German in Welland, maj. 800. By Liberals: Geo. Gordon in Nipissing, maj. 16; Wm. Thoburn in North Lanark, maj. 6; Tom G. Wallace in Centre York, maj. 44.

Centre Toronto is not on the list, although at 11 o'clock Saturday morning it was stated positively that the petition had been sent to Osgoode Hall. It will be noted that Thunder Bay and Rainy River is also omitted.

The Liberal leaders still maintain that they prefer to "wipe off the slate." They have all the seats they need from Ontario. It was evident Saturday afternoon that negotiations were still on between the two parties.

The six petitions filed Saturday may quietly drop out if the necessary $6,000 is not produced within four days to back them up. This would leave Messrs. Burnham and Christie free to follow up their protests if they see fit to do so in West Peterboro and South Ontario.

The usual stereotyped charges of electoral corruption and wrong-doing accompanied each protest.

Thirty-Five In Quebec.

Montreal, Dec. 7.—The outcome of Saturday's contestations in the Province of Quebec is that thirty-five seats have been petitioned against.

All of the eleven Conservative members elected on the 26th of October are contested, while the Conservatives have entered petitions against Rimouski, Temiscouta, Montmagny, Lotbiniere, Port Neuf, Quebec County, Quebec Centre, Montmorency and Bellechasse in the Quebec district, and Brome, Stanstead and Drummond and Arthabaska, in the eastern townships, with Huntingdon, Chateauguay, St. Mary's, St. Lawrence, St. James, Hochelaga, Maskinonge, Joliette, Montcalm, Berthier, Two Mountains and Beauharnois, in the Montreal district.

The Liberals contest: Mr. Monk, Jacques Cartier, Mr. Dohery, St. Ann's; Mr. Ames, St. Antoine; Mr. Perley, Argenteuil; Col. Worthington, Sherbrooke; Mr. Price, Quebec West; Mr. Forget, Charlevoix; Mr. Blondin, Champlain; Paquot, L'Islet; Nantel, Terrebonne.

Disqualification and annulling of the election is asked in every case on both sides of the House, but the Conservatives have gone one better. By counter petition they ask for the personal disqualification of the three Ministers, Hon. Messrs. Brodeur, Fisher and Lemieux, as well as Hon. Mr. Taschereau, Minister of Public Works in the Quebec Government.

Two petitions were entered against the Conservative leader, F. D. Monk, for Jacques Cartier.

Conservatives claim to have positive proof that it took $40,000 to defeat young Lorenzo Robitaille in Quebec County, while $25,000 were expended in the vain effort to beat Dr. Paquet in L'Islet. William Price is also of the belief that they spent at least $30,000 against him in Quebec West, while it required $18,000 to pull Mr. Lapointe through in the Liberal stronghold of Kamouraska. Then they put a fund of $20,000 at the disposition of Mr. Pouliot in Charlevoix in the vain attempt to down Rodolphe Forget in his county.

Seven In Manitoba.

Winnipeg, Dec. 7.—Protests have been filed under the Dominion Controverted Elections Act against seven of the eight Conservative candidates returned in Manitoba in the federal election of Oct. 26 last.

The petitions are against Alexander Haggard, Winnipeg; S. H. Bradbury, Selkirk; Glen Campbell, Dauphin; W. H. Sharpe, Lisgar; Dr. Roche, Marquette; W. D. Staples, Macdonald, and A. J. Meighen, Portage la Prairie, and with the exception of Winniepg and Selkirk, are almost entirely on statutory grounds. In these two there are special counts.

Two Each In New Brunswick.

St. John, N.B., Dec. 7.—Protests have been filed in four New Brunswick constituencies, as follows:

Against Hon. Mr. Pugsley (Lib.), in St. John City and County; Dr. Daniel (Con.), in St. John City; O. S. Crockett (Con.), in York County, and Dr. McAllister (Lib), in Kings-Albert.

All protests were filed within five minutes of closing time.

Daniel and Crocket were the only two Conservatives elected in New Brunswick.

One In P. E. I.

Halifax, N.S., Dec. 7.—On Saturday a petition from the office of A. McDonald of the law firm of Matheson & McDonald, wherein Louis T. Tanton of Charlottetown is the petitioner, was filed in the Supreme Court here against the election and return of L. E. Prowse, Liberal candidate elected at the late Dominion election in Prince Edward Island.

None In Nova Scotia.

Halifax, S.S., Dec. 7.—There will be no election protests in this province.

Two In British Columbia.

Victoria, B.C., Dec. 7.—Petitions have been filed against the return of G. H. Barnard for Victoria and Ralph Smith for Nanaimo.

Surprise to Premier.

Ottawa, Dec. 7.—The protest against the election of Sir Wilfrid Laurier in Ottawa came as a surprise. The Conservative party executive had decided against the proceeding and it is thought to have been done by the Toronto executive.

RESIDENTS OF LOCALITY PLEASED WITH NEW WHARF

Birdsalls' Now Has Splendid Shipping Facilities—Birdsall's Has Long Been Used as a Landing Place.

Birdsall, Dec. 7th.

The hoisting of the flag on the new Government wharf at Birdsall on November 27th, signalized its completion, and the wharf was formally declared open by the contractor, Mr. George Payne, of Lakefield.

Under the able supervision of Mr. Payne this structure has been erected during the past two months. It is of imposing proportions, extending into the lake, 185 feet from high water mark. The framework is built of the best pine and hemlock timber, being filled with stones, and the sides of the whole are covered with 6 in. plank, placed perpendicularly. The fact that two tons of iron spikes were used in the construction will give some idea of the solidity of the structure, the appearance of which justifies the builders' opinion that it is capable of withstanding any amount of the great pressure of the ice in the spring.

The building of the wharf will fill a long-felt want in the community, this place having been as a landing without facilities other than natural, since 1819. In the early days in the time of Richard Birdsall, P.L.S., it was largely used as a terminus by the boats, and many of the first settlers of this country date the commencement of their pioneer efforts from the time of the landing at this point. Supplies were brought from Cobourg, as the nearest centre, and being deposited by the boats at the point where the wharf now stands, were conveyed from thence inland among the settlers.

THE NEW WHARF AT BIRDSALL'S.
Which was completed on November 27th, much to the satisfaction of the residents of the community.

The thanks of the community are due Mr. Finlay, M.P., without whose untiring efforts even the largely signed petition presented by the ratepayers would have failed to obtain recognition.

The manner in which the wharf has been brought to completion reflects great credit on the painstaking contractor and his capable assistants. As the wharf now stands fully equipped with all the latest accessories, it compares favorably with any on the inland waters, and will no doubt prove a source of great satisfaction and profit to the people of the community.

PIANO FACTORY IS DESTROYED

Fire in Kingston Destroys Property Worth More Than $120,000.

Kingston, Dec. 7.—Fire at 2 o'clock Sunday morning almost totally destroyed the Wormwith Piano Works and the wholesale grocery of W. G. Craig & Co., with a loss of over $120,000.

The blaze started in the varnish-room and quickly spread, so that it was impossible to save the pianos, over 200 of which were in course of construction. Men from A Battery went in and rolled out the safe. In this were notes to the value of $40,000. The staff numbered ninety men and boys.

All the machinery was ruined and the men lost their tools. The total loss is $90,000.

The building was a handsome stone structure, owned by the company, and was used for over twenty years by Fox, Stevenson & Wormwith.

Craig's wholesale grocery was in one end. The loss there is $30,000, with insurance of $26,000. One thousand dollars' worth of tea was saved.

WAS IT BEER OR WHISKEY ?

Spotter Says He Got Red Liquor in Owen Sound---Defence Says Beer.

Owen Sound, Dec. 7.—There was a somewhat sensational scene between Lawyer H. G. Tucker, counsel for Charles Crook, accused of illegal sale of liquor, and Stewart, the "informer," at Saturday's trial. Stewart swore positively to having been served with whisky, though the defence declared only local option beer had been served. Then Mr. Tucker reverted to the incident earlier in the week, when he was charged with having tried to bribe Stewart to affect his evidence, and said Stewart had in court admitted he might have made a mistake as to Tucker. This Stewart flatly denied and repeated he was sure the lawyer was the man. When the latter produced a black purse, Stewart was positive he had had a brown purse, which he had described.

Alex. Coorian corroborated Stewart as to the serving of drinks.

Wakeford and Pat Tansley, in giving evidence for the defence, said that they had been in the bar and had observed that the detectives were supplied with only local option beer.

QUEEN'S STUDENTS CLASH WITH KINGSTON POLICE

Try to Attend Theatre in a Body and Fight Rages in Corridor for an Hour, After Which They Are Ejected and Struggle Commences on the Street.

Kingston, Dec. 7.—Police and Queen's students clashed Saturday night, following the Alma Mater Society elections, when the students made their usual rush.

They stormed the Grand Opera House, where "Uncle Tom's Cabin" was being produced, and after Manager Branigan refused them admittance one of the hottest rows that has taken place in Kingston for years resulted. At one time it looked as if soldiers from the barracks would have to be called to quell the disturbance.

The students were out over 500 strong. The manager of the show, all the ushers, some soldiers and attendants lined up at the theatre door armed with clubs, and assisted the police in keeping out the crowd, but in the melee the fine glass front and railings were destroyed. All the exits had to be locked to keep the students out.

After an hour's fight the police drove the students out of the theatre corridor, and the fight was renewed on the street. The students armed themselves with stones, clubs, stole eggs from nearby stores and then went after the police. Orders were given that the ringleaders should be arrested. Citizens went in and helped the police, and free fights followed. There was a regular shower of eggs and stones, and several of the officers were struck with clubs.

The police succeeded in keeping hold of six of the main offenders until within a stone's throw of the police station, when there was another encounter. Students gathered around the officers and orders were given the latter to use revolvers and this alone had the effect of quieting the crowd. A couple of officers were kicked in the face and badly used up. Several students also received severe hurts from coming into contact with policemen's batons.

The row occurred right in the business centre and business was practically suspended. Many spectators were struck with eggs and stones, and several stores near the opera house also decorated with stolen hen fruit.

The students will be arraigned in police court to-day. Bail was asked and refused, and they were compelled to spend Sunday in the cells.

MOON'S ECLIPSE

Penumbral Shadowing Takes Place This Evening—Covered by Light Haze.

A somewhat interesting phenomenon, a penumbral eclipse of the moon, takes place this afternoon and evening. The earth will pass between the sun and the full moon, not as in a total eclipse, throwing an almost black shadow over it, but rather causing the moon to appear as though covered by a semi-transparent haze for several hours. That is, the moon will not pass into the deep black shadow or umbra, of the earth but keep in the outer or lighter part of the earth's shadow, the penumbra. Even during a total eclipse of the moon it is not completely blotted out from sight but appears rather blurred by a blackish round shadow. The reflected sunlight from the space outside this comparatively narrow shadow still partially illumines our satellite.

Today's eclipse will simply rob the moon of its silvery splendor, as though a light haze covered it while the stars around will shine out clear as ever, provided, of course, there are no clouds.

The moon will come into first contact with the penumbra, or in other words the eclipse will begin, at about 2.40 pm. It will be completely covered about 5 pm. and will be completely clear again at 7.12, but it is not very easy to note the exact moment of entry and exit.

BRITISH ELECTION SOON THE TORIES ARE HOPEFUL

London, Dec. 7.—The Conservative politicians and press are raising a chorus of joy over the defeat of the Government's Education Bill, and are prophesying the early termination of the Liberal administration.

The collapse of the Government's two most pretensious and most carefully prepared measures within a few days of each other, together with the Liberal defeat in the Middlesex Parliamentary election, following several successive rebuffs at the polls, give support to the assertion that the Liberals have lost the country's confidence.

On this ground the Government's opponents are urging it to invite a vote of confidence by going before the country in a general election, and are taunting it with being afraid to do so.

It is well within the range of possibility that the next six months may see a general election. A few people say that a general election will come early in the new year.

Some of the Liberals suggest that the Government should frame a press bill, curbing the power of the Lords, and that when that body throws it out the Government should appeal to the country on that issue.

The most important legislation this session having failed, the only noteworthy project left to consider is the Irish Land Purchase Bill, but the chances of it passing is poor.

The Liberals object to the scheme of the committee of the House of Lords, directed towards reform in the House, because their party under the proposed plan would be assured of only a small fraction of the members of the Upper House. Colonial representation in the House of Lords finds general favor, and suggestions are heard that if the colonies are given seats, India should not be left out.

45 MEN AT WORK

At the Wm. Hamilton Co. Plant—Plenty of Work on Hand.

The Wm. Hamilton Co. works are again in operation. The new company have a staff of forty-five men at work and the foundry which has been silent for several months is again a place of activity. All departments have been opened and those in charge state that there is an abundance of work on hand. Many inquiries are also being received and the prospects for the new concern are of the brightest nature.

Practically all the men at work are old employees of the works, the majority of them being married men with families. More men will be engaged as they are required.

Mr Collier stated today that $57,000 worth of stock had been allotted and that there was a good demand for it. More money is needed however, to put the new company on a sound and permanent basis.

CHIMNEY FIRE ON AYLMER ST.

This morning at 10.25 the fire brigade had a call to put out a chimney blaze at the office of the Allin Ice Company, Aylmer street, a hundred yards south of the fire hall. The blaze was not a serious one and was put out before any damage was done.

Washington, Dec. 7.—At the ways and means hearing free barley from Canada was the theme of the argument of Charles L. Feldman, representing the Buffalo Malteters' Association.

The present duty is 30 cents a bushel, and since it was imposed Feldman said, the malting industry in New York State has, to a large extent, been destroyed.

G.T.P. In Coasting Trade.

Victoria, B.C., Dec. 7.—Announcement is made from Montreal that the Grand Trunk Pacific will enter the coasting trade between Victoria, Vancouver and Prince Rupert next summer with two fast modern passenger steamers, to be ordered at once.

Artillerymen Go Through Bridge.

Lawton, Okla., Dec. 7.—Three artillerymen were killed when a bridge gave way on Saturday when a detachment were galloping to a prairie fire. Eight men were on the bridge when it collapsed. It was in poor repair.

Jailbreaker Ends Life.

Lindsay, Dec. 7.—William Brooks, the young man who escaped from the jail here last week and was captured on Sunday evening at Pefferlaw, committed suicide in his cell in the county jail Saturday morning by hanging himself with a towel.

The deed was committed while the turnkey was away at breakfast. On returning he found Brooks dead. The prisoner had hanged himself by means of a towel tied to the grating in his cell door.

No doubt the fear of an extension of his previous eighteen months' sentence for horse-stealing led him to take his life.

Woman Eats Rat Poison.

Brantford, Dec. 7.—Annie Babcock, aged 34 years, employed at A. E. Brown's house, Murray street, took a dose of rat poison yesterday morning and expired before medical assistance arrived.

The woman was subject to headaches and took the poison in mistake for a powder to cure her malady. No inquest will be held.

Champlain Tercentenary.

Albany, N.Y., Dec. 7.—President Taft and party, including his Cabinet officers and ambassadors from France, Great Britain and Canada, are expected to attend the Lake Champlain tercentenary celebration in July next. Plans for the fete were yesterday submitted to Governor Hughes. L. O. Armstrong, M.P., of Canada, is on the committee.

Three Days In Woods.

Wetaskiwin, Dec. 7.—Mrs. Thomas Wagner had a terrible experience during the past week, when she lost herself while returning from the bush, where her hsuband was cutting lumber. She wandered around for three days and two nights, and was found in an exhausted condition by a search party, which was organized immediately after her disappearance was known. She was about six miles away from her home at the time.

Falls Overboard.

Asylum Searched.

Montreal, Dec. 7.—About $20,000 damage was caused on Saturday by fire at the insane asylum at Verdun.

Sisters Reunited.

Marine City, Mich., Dec. 7.—Mrs. W. H. Conley of Marine City has left for Toronto to join her sister, Mrs. Ira Phillips, of that city, from whom she has been separated for fifty-three years.

The sisters lost all trace of each other more than half a century ago. Through a Toronto acquaintance who mentioned that she had met a woman who greatly resembled Mrs. Conley, correspondence was begun which showed that the Canadian lady was Mrs. Conley's sister.

Mrs. Conley, accompanied by her son, will spend the holidays at Toronto.

Shot In St. Louis.

Deseronto, Dec. 7.—News was received here yesterday of the murder of a Deseronto man named Pope Flood, who was shot and instantly killed on the street in St. Louis Saturday by an intoxicated man.

Flood was formerly an operator employed in the Great Northwestern Telegraph Co.'s office here, and was making preparations to return to Montreal, Que., where he had secured a situation with the same company.

Provincial Appointments.

Toronto, Dec. 7.—William Meinhardus, Gravenhurst, has been appointed license commissioner for the district of Muskoka, instead of John S. Gibson, resigned.

Walter Wallbridge Denison, Toronto, is appointed a notary public.

John Jennings Creelman, Montreal, is now a commissioner for taking affidavits for the Ontario courts.

ACCIDENT ON CANAL

Three Men Hurt in Explosion Near Frankford—On Man May Not Recover.

Special to the Review.

Frankford, Dec. 6—A painful accident occurred here yesterday in which three men were hurt. One man had his jaw blown off and his recovery is doubtful. The other two will recover, but are badly bruised and cut. A pipe which had been used for tamping dynamite in the hole was thought to have ice on it and was being thawed out by steam when it exploded. The accident occurred on No. 6 dam, Trent Canal, at Frankford.

LEAVES $5,000 FOR PRAYERS

Albany Man Will Have One Said Every Day Forever.

Albany, N.Y., Dec. 7.—While the world lasts and the Roman Catholic Church is in existence a prayer will be said daily for the soul of the late Peter Cagger of Albany. Mr. Cagger left $5,000 to Bishop T. M. A. Burke of Albany, in consideration for which a prayer is to be said during mass at least once each day forever for the repose of Peter Cagger's soul. The prayer is to be called the Elizabethah, in memory of his mother.

The rest of the property goes to William C. Cagger, a brother, whose home is in this city, but who has for several years been in France. It was provided in Peter Cagger's will that his brother was not to receive any share of the estate if he ever renounced his citizenship in the United States or allowed his children to be raised in any other faith than the Roman Catholic.

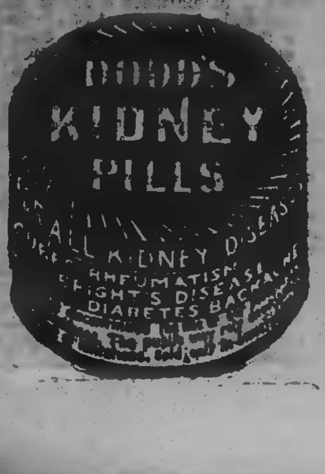
SAW-OFFS

If the reports in the newspapers of saw-offs between the Conservative and Liberal parties are true then the executives at the rival headquarters are guilty of corruption, the shadow of which will necessarily fall upon the leaders in parliament. There can be no possible excuse for playing one case of corruption against another except upon the supposition that it is dangerous for both parties to play with fire. A more unnerving and stultifying example to set before a country or a people could not well be devised. It is wicked and transparent weakness. What does ante-election preaching amount to in the face of such post-election performances!

TAFT AND REVISION

"It will take the difference between the cost of production here and the cost of production abroad in the making of any product, whether of the field, the factory or the mine, and it will impose a customs duty equal to that difference in the cost of production. That cost of production is made up of at least of three elements—the cost of material, the cost of labor, and the manufacturer's profit, or interest on capital. Taking that difference, you have the measure by which the Republican party has pledged itself to revise the tariff. In other words, it has pledged itself to protect every industry, and to give every industry that needs protection the same measure of it."—Taft on tariff revision.

The real struggle between the revisionist and the protectionist lies in the determination of the one to bring all countries to a common basis of production and in the determination of the other to resist it in the interests of the life of his people. The common or general good of a people must prevail. All else is common robbery. When all methods of productivity, manufacturing, farming, etc., are placed on equal terms with relation to each other, the function of government is practically at an end. The rest depends upon the people. In Great Britain agriculture is ruined for the sake of manufacturing. In protective countries like the United States it is given practical fair play. The real difference between the [illegible] countries and the protected however, lies in the condition of the wage-earner. If he is not sacrificed to the money interests the rest is easy. No further restrictions whether of tariff or otherwise are necessary. We say and have always said, "Do not protect the manufacturer or the employer but do protect the wage-earner." In other words, see to it that he is not sacrificed to his rich brother, at home—or abroad. When that security is given then let them all fight out the battle of life as best they may. There is no royal road to prosperity and happiness anywhere. The free trader argues scientifically. He argues as if all stood upon an equal footing to begin with. His mind and its ideas are focussed upon goods, not upon men. When he retorts that he, above all things, wants cheap goods for the consumer and therefore for the wage-earner, he overlooks the fact that cheapness is a relative term and really as used by him means worse than nothing. To say to an out-of-work that clothes are "cheaper" is useless. If they were as cheap again it would not matter. What he wants and what everybody wants or ought to want, is fair play. Give a farmer the full reward of his farming, the maker of his manufactures and the worker of his toil. This "full reward" means that none of the other branches of industry enumerated are getting by law any of the share that belongs to one of the others. Free trade has an international reference only. Protection is more concerned with the internal than the international phase of it. When the just balance of opportunity is preserved between the various branches of industry and employment, Protection has served its purpose. Free trade means and always must mean, on the other hand, that the rich, the fortunate, the greedy, or strong, are having free scope and play for their inclinations. Which, then, fulfils the meaning of government which is scientifically conceded to be the protecting of the individual against improper conditions. Protection to the state, is like judgment to the mind. It preserves the balance of intellect and points the better way for the future.



THE TORONTO WORLD

"The general impression last night was that if Peter Christie and Tom Robinette would lie down there would be no contests in Ontario."—The Toronto World.

During the last election campaign The World published a fulsome eulogy of Mr. J. R. Stratton which occasioned much surprise amongst those who supposed that the World was a Conservative paper. Others put the World's general conduct throughout the last campaign down to jealousy of the News and annoyance at the conduct of those who had agreed to back the latter as a new Conservative enterprise. Others put it down to something else. It would look to us as if the World had formed new party affiliations altogether since such paragraphs as the above are unaccountable on any other supposition. We had thought that West Peterborough was in Ontario. The attempt to give the impression to the general public throughout Canada that the protest here amounts to nothing is a piece of common cheek. We trust the Conservative press will see to it that the World is not allowed to continue to play the ass in sheep's clothing. Some little time ago the Kingston Standard took to pronouncing an opinion upon something it knew nothing about but then, of course that is not new. It is advisable one would think, if journals are to retain public confidence and party endorsation that they shall not lend themselves so readily to the aid of their hitherto supposed opponents.

THE WITNESS'S OPINION

"Halifax has out-Heroded the effrontery of the boodlers elsewhere by an attempt on the part of certain people who had dealings with the Marine Department to throttle the Royal Commission with legal proceedings. This is a bad way to convince the world of one's innocence. It suggests, on the other hand, enmity to any righteous effort on the part of the Government to come the truth. The outcome of this ruffianly proceeding which has has made the garotters the laughing stock of the whole Dominion, is the smallest of punishment for such a flout through in the face of His Majesty."—The Montreal Witness.

There is a disposition always to conceal the truth on the part of boodlers and to whine out of the penalty if possible No one can logically expect anything better. Is not their whole stock-in-trade bluff, bullying and funk? The aim of such men is personal physical enjoyment. They have their apparently good points. So have professional gamblers who have been known to burst into tears of emotional sympathy and generously subscribe for misfortune, the next minute returning to "the game" and all that it involves. No one, it has been said, is altogether bad. Few animals indeed, are altogether bad. Many animals, like the horse and dog, are exceedingly fine examples of dutifulness and propriety. We have in our possession the sworn proof of the case of a dog that imperilled its life to save another dog. What gambler or boodler ever did more? Yet men of this class like the famous Christy Fallaway, who was hanged for meanness, have been known to do a decent act. These considerations remind us of what it is that constitutes greatness according to the philosophers. The first element of it is universally admitted to be self-command, the second high ambitions and lofty aims in serious things. The aim of the boodler is always for his own good even if he has to be good to others to attain it. The routine of greatness lies in the daily course of life. There are few so low or so stupid as that to have their flashes of so-called brilliancy, but there are fewer who are able to maintain the even well-regulated flow of a well-balanced character. Why? Because they have not got it. Like the negritos of the south seas they seem to be capable of civilization, while as a matter of fact they are really not so. It is a defect of their natural make-up. They belong to an inferior stock. They have no moral fibre. They look like men, but are not men. They represent the weakness of human nature. The "total result" of such a class is failure. Their place by nature is in the great under-world of human life where their natural pals are. To philosophy, poetry, art and science they are strangers except by hearsay. They have no good ambitions, although their vanity is usually excessive. They mistake vanity for strength. The Witness, as in the above extract sometimes becomes bitterly impatient of the rottenness of "things as they are." The following clipping will illustrate further the Witness's meaning. Father Higley was above being bribed:

"While the impeccable Englishman has been holding up his hands in horror at the stories of "graft," which have filtered to him from the other side, 'way down east in Popland a little drama has been unfolding in which the only member of a London Board of Guardians who stood out with conspicuous honesty of purpose, was a Catholic priest. This Reverend gentleman declined a proffered donation of £5 towards his struggling mission, offered him by a man who by false pretences of various kinds and bribery and corruption, was obtaining every description of contract which the Board had it in their power to let. When dragged into the case for the prosecution, Father Higley with an Irishman's ready humor, showed himself a match for lawyers and principals alike. Asked by one of the prisoners if he did not profess to be his friend, the priest replied, "I am the friend of all sinners." He left the court with colors flying and ample proof that his had been the only influence exercised against the conspiracy of fraud and dishonesty that had worked so famously."

No man can be judged by himself. That is something that must be left to others. Much that is said against him is no doubt true. The good man will try to mend, the bad, never. Goodness consists in the trying.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Mr. Stratton's majority in West Peterborough as declared by the Returning Officer was 333, not 350 as some journals publish it.

It is rumored that a meeting for the formation of a local Women's Canadian Club will be held shortly. Bridge will be tabooed it is understood.

We have never heard any more of the power given to the city by the legislature to buy out various electric or traction companies. What has been done with it?

There might have been fewer sins revealed by the full, searching inquiry before Hon. Justice Cassels if Canada's great auditor-general had been continued in office. The very name of J. L. Macdougall was a terror to evil-doers in all the departments.—Toronto Telegram.

Munsey, of magazine fame, is going to publish a real Sunday afternoon paper in Washington—if the law will allow. His idea is that the people must have the news every day and on Sunday. The people will have what they want, and it does not appear to be the Puritan's Sabbath.—Kingston Whig.

A cripple came into the editorial sanctum of the Review today with some neckbuttons for sale. The staff offered him a bonus but he declined with thanks. He was not a beggar. He spoke with a quiet French pride that did us all good. We immediately doubled our purchases as a feeble tribute to a man who, though crippled, and beggared, had a soul above a shilling.

French justice is giving justice on this continent an object lesson in the trial of Madame Steinheil. This is precisely one of those sensational cases which lend themselves to the exploitation of the baser section of the New York press; and yet in it we see the examination of Madame Steinheil conducted in secret and the Parisian press not able to publish a line of the salacious details. What at reading it would have made in the columns of papers on this continent which need not be named, everyone knows; and it is from Paris, that much maligned city, that this good example comes. No one doubts but that the prisoner is as certain of just treatment as if her trial were held in public; and the people are spared a flood of nauseous filth and suggestive revelation.—Montreal Star.

The Montreal Star is apparently beginning to find that the moral condition of Canada does not justify the optimism of those who take it for granted that we are justified in looking abroad for fresh fields to conquer.

The Peterborough Morning Times charges the Review with an unjust summing up of the financial situation of the city, comparing this year with last year and with a desire so to do. We have no desire at any time to be other than fair and as a consequence subjoin the Times' remarks, which we shall inquire into and further report upon. The treasurer's report for the year 1908, will be presented this evening.

A few nights ago the Review made a statement comparing the financial standing of the city this year and last year, which was not only unfair but which was quite contrary to the facts. That journal stated that this year, up to the 31st of November the overdraft was $12,000, while it is over $14,000. The overdraft for last year on the 31st of December was given at $107,000, while as a matter of fact there was a surplus of practically $5,500. The difference is accounted for by the paper's evident desire to make the work of last year's Council appear as dark as possible. Every dollar of the overdraft carried over from last year was to be covered by debentures, and the debentures have since been sold with the exception of a comparatively small amount of street extension and for work on the water front. The people will be asked to pass a by-law in January to authorize the issue of debentures to pay off both of these sums.

On the year's business last year's Council actually had a surplus of $5,500. See the auditor's report for 1907.—The Morning Times.

EAST DURHAM CONSERVATIVES

Annual Meeting of Association Was Held at Millbrook

At a well attended meeting of the East Durham Conservative Association, on Tuesday, in Millbrook, Mr. Henry Henders, of Manvers, was elected president. The vice-presidents are the presidents of the local associations, viz., Alex. Noble, Hope; Chas. Reynolds, Manvers; C. Twambley, Cavan; R. Grandy, Port Hope, and T. B. Collins, Millbrook. Secretary W. H. Given was re-elected, as was treasurer Wm. Earle.

Col. Ward, J. J. Preston, M.P.P., and C. J. Thornton, M.P., were on the platform, and made stirring addresses, as did the retiring president, Mr. Charles McNeil, of Cavan.

Mr. Preston in a carefully prepared analysis of the recent Dominion vote in Durham, showed that the Grits "stayed at home" owing to the general feeling of dissatisfaction with their candidate. The result was the bumper vote—every Conservative poling his favorite. Col. Ward was the main stay in Port Hope.

Mr. Thornton made a straightforward declaration of his position as member. He was deeply touched at his election, profoundly grateful, and most anxious to do his duty by the country for one and all. Any man of the Grit party who, as he did, found out the poverty of the government policy and their actual dishonesty in public utilities would do as he did long ago, join the party of honest men. (Applause.) He too was grateful for Col. Ward's hard work.

Mr. Metheral Speaks

Editor of the Review.

Dear Sir,—I wish it distinctly understood that the petition which I am circulating for a return to the ward system of electing aldermen, which has been signed by over 250 of the most important citizens and ratepayers of Peterborough, is not intended to cast any reflection upon the present Mayor or Council. It is wholly for the purpose of re-introducing the old and better system.

Yours truly,
J. W. METHEREL.

A BIG DAY'S THRESHING IN OTONABEE

1250 Bushels Threshed in 4 Hours and a Quarter

The biggest day's threshing that has ever been done in the township of Otonabee was done on Wednesday last when 1250 bushels were threshed by P. Slattery's machine in four hours and a quarter. It was done on the farm of Mr F. Crowley. This has established a record around the surrounding country and one that will be hard to beat.

Mayor F. L. Kelly, of North Sydney, is charged with selling liquor in violation of the law.

PETERBOROUGT TO BE REPRESENTED IN THE O.H.A.? SHOULD MEET AT ONCE

ing clubs intending to enter the A. must send their entries at once W. A. Hewitt, sporting editor of Toronto Star. Among a list of ns published, that Secretary Hewwould like to hear from is Peterough.

There is serious thought of organizing an OHA. seven in this town and such a step is to be taken a meeting should be called at once.

With the material at hand it would be too bad that Peterborough should be represented by only a junior club. It was simply lack of practice together that prevented the team last year from getting to the top of the ladder and this is shown by their games with Lindsay, which went to the semi-finals with Midland when if sufficient attention had been given to the game here the locals could have quite handily won the district.

It's getting late now to get a team together and if Peterborough is to be represented in the OHA, a meeting should be held at once.

NGLISH WALKERS HAVE REACHED REGINA, SASK.

arke and Marchan, Who Passed Through Peterborough in August Are Making Good Progress.

Regina, Sask., December 4.—Edward Clark and Leo Marchant, the two Englishmen who are walking across continent have reached this city will leave tomorrow for Moose Jaw, Medicine Hat and Calgary, then across the Kicking Horse Pass into British Columbia.

The two men who left Quebec city August 8th have been following the track for upwards of 1500 miles to this point and intend sticking to the C.P.R. main line to its termination at Vancouver.

Their experiences on the trip have been many and varied, including a hold up in Quebec province and a knock out by half breeds near Port Arthur.

The two pedestrians left Quebec without a cent must not beg or work for money but are set the task to walk right through from coast to coast and finish up with sufficient profits to pay their expenses back to London, Eng., where they are to report on March 1.

This seemingly hopeless task has been so far made easy by the unbounded kindness shown to them by hotelkeepers and boarding car cooks, but there have been times in the silent places when they have walked forty odd miles without a meal and turned in at night with unwashed Polaks for bed mates, or fixing their wearied frames on station floors or any old place in proximity to a stove.

The mileage so far is as follows:

	Miles	Days
Quebec to Montreal by road	246	8 1-2
Montreal to Ottawa, by road	130	3 1-2
Ottawa to Toronto, by road	308 1-2	10

THINKS PETERBORO' SHOULD HAVE PROFESSIONAL TEAM

Mr. Oscar Rumpel, Berlin, of the Crystal Amusement Co., returned to Berlin on Saturday, after a short business visit in the city. Mr. Rumpel, who has been actively engaged in connection with getting a fast professional hockey team for the western town, says a fast seven has been selected and one that is looked upon to give a warm time to any team in the pro. league. He did not care, however, to give the line-up for publication. Among the players, however, are Rolly Young, Gross and other good ones.

Professional hockey, Mr. Rumpel said, was a paying proposition, and he thought Peterborough should be a good field for it.

"This town has turned out some good ones," he said, "and has the name of being a great hockey town. The professional game is certainly the one that pays, as the public appreciate the fastest play."

MIDGETS SET TOO FAST A PACE FOR NEWSPAPERITES

Whether it was the shock occasioned by Josh Craig's first strike will probably never be known, but in all events the Midgets fell by the wayside in their first game against the Examiner Bowling team in Saturday night's league fixture at the P.B.C., the B's winning out by four pins in a most exciting finish of a great game. In the second game Craig rolled up a total of 174 while DelaFosse gave him excellent support. Richea, however, was playing in hard luck and fell below the hundred mark and as a result the Midgets captured the contest by twenty-five pins. In the third game the Midgets ran away from their opponents from the drop of the hat and won out by 99 pins.

Richea had the high single for the evening with Giroux and Craig, a good second and third, respectively, the high aggregate easily going to [illegible] Hayes.

The result of this game gives the Midgets a firm hold on second place, the Bankers still being in the lead.

To-night the Bankers and Lang's team will come together and the occasion will be marked by the final appearance on the Peterborough alleys of Mr. Hemsted, who has been moved by the Bank of Toronto. "Hem," as he is familiarly called, by his associates, is one of the most popular bowlers in the city, and his departure will be deeply regretted by all.

The scores on Saturday follow:

EXAMINER B.

Dela Fosse	142	164	149—455

HASSAN WILL BE AT RIVERDALE

The Syrian-Turk Who Was Defeated by Hurtubise Will Wrestle Cyclone Burns

Toronto is to see one of the big Turkish wrestlers in action next week. Manager C. Smith of the Riverdale arena has succeeded in matching Cyclone Burns, the grappler, who beat Jim Stockly, the English champion and won the title at Wigan, England, in April, and Hassan Abdallah, the Sultan's wrestler.

They meet next Friday night at Riverdale best two in three falls. The Turk wanted Graeco Roman, while Burns stuck out for catch as catch can. They compromised, since with a mixed style the winner of the fastest fall having the choice of the style for the third fall. Hassan Abdallah weighs 210 pounds, while the Cyclone strips at 198.

The Turk is the grappler who cleaned up the field on the famous Brazilian tourney a year ago. He was also third at Paris.

MEETING TO ORGANIZE A CHURCH LEAGUE

A meeting to form a church league will be held to-night at the Y.M.C.A. at 7.30 o'clock. Each team that purposes to enter is asked to send a representative.

The church league this year will be a strong one and will have a healthy representation. The election of officers will likely take place at to-night's meeting.

SPORTING TALK

Mr. P. A. Crane will manage the Review hockey team this winter.

The Toronto Amateur Athletic Club has been incorporated with a capital of $50,000.

The burning question in local sporting circles is, will Peterborough have a team in the OHA. To call a meeting of hockeyists is the only way to answer the question.

Hassan Abdallah will make his Oriental salaam to a Toronto audience at the Riverdale roller rink on Friday night when he wrestles Cyclone Burns. The dark skinned son of the Orient is the most affable wrestler ever seen here.

There is somewhat of a lull in wrestling in Peterborough. The next match, however, should be a fine one. It will be a bout between Kaiser and Hurtubise. The date has not been decided yet.

A bowling match between five hotelkeepers and five bartenders will be played at the Majestic bowling alleys tomorrow night. The hotelmen will be captained by O. Nixon and the barmen by Chas. Dunnett of the Peterborough House.

Mr. Bill Motherall, who is home from Port Colborne, and confined to the house as the result of the accident he met with in that place will remain here for the winter and will take an active interest in city league hockey. He will likely be manager of the Strathconas.

The statement issued as a despatch from Brockville that Alfred Shrubb ran five miles there in twenty minutes, is coming in for general ridicule. It was probably and unintentional mistake on the part of a reporter or telegraph operator for surely no one would in seriousness believe that Shrubb or any other man on earth could do the distance in the time stated.

Longboat is affording fine material for the "faking" New York newspapers. Some of the yellows have him making speeches and writing signed articles in much the same language as Red Jacket and Osceola used to the pale faces in the recitation books of another generation, and you need not be surprised at any story that comes from the big city about him in the next few weeks.—Globe

"Yes. I always keep plenty of stage properties. There, I've made a gag of a sort out of my handkerchief. A second's work to fit it in, and she can wake when she likes, without causing you a qualm."

Elspeth heard every word of this conversation; and when a hand pressed down her chin to open her mouth she lay limp and motionless as before, making no resistance. A great lump of cambric was forced between her teeth, and still she feigned unconsciousness. Her hearing seemed now almost abnormally keen. She heard the breathing of the two men. She heard the soft sound of footfalls on the thick rug or carpet, and at last a faint click which seemed to come from a distance. After that all was still, and she knew that she had been left alone.

She had heard why the men were going, and it was reasonable to suppose that they would be gone some time. Still it could not be so very long, if she were to be disposed of "before morning," after the fashion which had with so much quiet grimness been suggested. They would need darkness to hide the deed, if she were to be carried through the house and laid upon the bed in the new room whose number they must already know.

It is difficult to recognize a voice from a whisper, and Elspeth could not have guessed the identity of either speaker from the murmurs she had heard; nevertheless she was sure that she had guessed the name of one man. The other was still a mystery to her; she had no idea who he could be. But, after all, it mattered little. Nothing, indeed, need matter much to her now, unless she could free herself and escape.

To expect to do this seemed like expecting to perform a miracle. And yet Elspeth could not believe that she was to die to-night.

For her there was but one ray of light in darkness. She had heard one of the men say to the other that she had "spoilt their game." That must mean, she thought, that the alarm she had given had been heard; that John Kenrith and Captain Oxford had been saved. And the idea that she had been able to do this gave her courage to attempt more. She did not know where she was, but if she could only free herself she could find out; and if, afterward, she could escape, she would be able to give at least one villain up to justice.

"Oh, if I could only loosen these bands that hold my arms," she said to herself. "If I could do that, all the rest would be easy, perhaps."

Elspeth Dean was a lithe and supple as well as a slender creature, with all the elasticity of youth and health. As a child she had been able to do all sorts of wonderful things with her lively little body, and she and her brother, two or three years older than herself, had often played a glorious play in which they were contortionists in a nursery circus. It was many years since the girl had practised any of the feats for which she had been famous among her little companions, and indeed, she had forgotten all about them until this moment.

Now, however, she suddenly remembered how well, in the old days, her body had been accustomed to obey her will. And in the desperate danger which threatened her she called up her ancient skill to her aid. So did she writhe and twist her slim arms and shoulders as to loosen the bonds made to hold less supple muscles. Presently she felt a slight relaxing of the bands which held her wrists. Slowly, slowly, grudging each moment, she twisted one hand out of bondage, the fiftieth part of an inch at a time. Then suddenly it was free, and she could have sobbed in joy and thanksgiving, though she was far from being out of danger.

With one hand at liberty, it was but the work of a few seconds to tear the gag from her mouth, and to release the other hand. Then she sat up, and unwound a long, narrow strip of woolly material which felt like knitted work, from her ankles. She was free to move, free to escape—if she could but find a way.

Tremulously, tottering a little at first, she scrambled to her feet, and for the first time since she had rolled from the moving bed seriously asked herself where she was.

Gropingly, she tried to find a wall, stumbling on, catching her foot in the wrinkled folds of a rug, and saving herself from a fall by seizing an edge of some hanging drapery. Thus she steadied herself, and found behind that drapery the wall for which she had searched. Her hand touched a surface of wood, and passing her fingers along it, she discovered that it ended as a door might end, in a framing of stone.

"The tower wall!" she said to herself; and remembered now the head of the strange old carved bed in the alcove had seemed to be set in the wall.

"That was the secret of it," she thought. "It was made for a murder trap in the old, old days when people used often to get rid of their guests in the night, and no one outside ever, ever knew what had become of them."

The girl stood still for a moment, vividly recalling the sounds which had robbed her of rest, as she lay in that curious, carved bed in the alcove of the tower room. If she were right in her guess, she must be now in some secret passage just behind the wall; and if the footsteps she had heard there were made by human beings, not ghosts, those human beings must have found their way in through some hidden entrance.

Elspeth would have given anything now for a match, even a single match; but it was useless to wish, and she began to feel along the surface of wood for something like a spring. She could discover nothing, and, giving up hope at last, she groped farther on, until to her delight she came upon a steep, narrow stairway. It also was covered with some thick, soft material, as if to deaden the sound of footsteps, but here and there a board creaked; and the girl fancied that the noise was like some she had heard, lying in bed, in the tower room.

The stairway was so exceedingly steep as to resemble a ladder, and the girl counted thirty steps before she reached the top. Above was a floor of wood, which she tested with her hand before trusting her feet upon it.

She imagined now that she must be in the room above the one she had occupied in the tower; and as she had been told that it was in a ruinous condition, she stepped carefully: but she found no sign of loose debris as she moved cautiously along literally inch by inch; and it occurred to her that the stairway she had seen bricked up had probably been made a nothoroughfare for some other reason than the one believed by Mrs. Warden, the housekeeper.

There was no time to speculate upon that now, but Elspeth could not help recalling the night when the blood-red drops had rained through the cracks between the oak rafters in her room. Now she was in the abode of mystery, yet she could guess as little at the explanation as on that night when she had started at the falling rubies as though unable to believe her eyes.

As she moved slowly along she stretched out her arms, trying to touch the wall, as she had before, when suddenly she stumbled over something which lay at her feet—something soft and heavy, over which she would have fallen if she had not recovered her balance with a quick backward step.

In the excitement of discovery and progress Elspeth had almost forgotten her fear, but now it returned upon her, like a cold, overwhelming wave.

INTHON BIBLE CLASS MEETING

The Inthon's gathered as usual in the George street church parlor yesterday afternoon. Mr F. C. Moore, the assistant teacher, took Rev Pearson's place and gave a very good description of the lesson.

The fine afternoon was too great an enticement for some of the Inthons so the class wasn't as large as last Sunday. However, it is to be hoped that the boys will soon get tired of roaming around on these fine Sundays and will come in where it is nice and warm where they will learn more about the One who gives us the fine days.

Mr. Deprose, chairman of the visiting committee, has been able to distribute a few welcome visits among the sick Inthons. Yesterday afternoon one of his visits took him to see Mr Will Metheral, the lad who met with a painful accident and miraculous escape from death in Port Colborne last week. The many friends of Will, will be glad to hear that he is much better and will be able to get up in a few days.—Com

SUDDEN DEATH OF OLD AND PROMINENT RESIDENT OF SOUTH MONAGHAN TOWNSHIP

One of the most highly respected residents of South Monaghan in the person of William Rutherford passed away suddenly at the residence of his son-in-law, Alexander Hunter, of Cavan, his death occurring on Saturday. His demise was due to heart disease. Deceased had made his home with his son-in-law for some time past.

The late Mr. Rutherford, whose forefathers were among the first settlers of the township was the second eldest son of the late Richard Rutherford. He was 77 years of age.

He was perhaps, one of the best known men in the county, especially amongst the agricultural community. All his life he took an active interest in everything that would tend to advancing the interests of farmers and farming. He himself was in many respects a model farmer and made a success of his calling. For years he was prominently connected with agricultural exhibitions having been president several years of the Agricultural Society of his native township of South Monaghan. He was also for years a director of the Peterborough County exhibition under its various names and on more than one occasion was president. He also acted frequently as judge on horses and live stock at the Norwood, Lakefield, Millbrook, Cobourg and other fairs in this vicinity. At the time of its prominence in this province he was actively interested in the Grange movement. The breadth of his interest in the promotion of public welfare extended to municipal matters and for many years he was honored with the reeveship of the township of South Monaghan and as a member of its council. In religion the deceased gentleman was a Presbyterian and attended the church of that denomination in Centreville.

The late Mr. Rutherford was born and lived practically all his life in South Monaghan occupying the large farm on lot 6, on the 3rd concession to which he removed, about the time of his marriage, which took place in 1858, to Miss Margaret Mary, daughter of the late William Smitnson, of South Monaghan.

Of a family of ten children, four are living, three sons and one daughter. The sons are William S., on the homestead, John, who resides in the Canadian Northwest, and Frank, a civil engineer of St. Catharines. The daughter is Mrs. Alexander Hunter, of Cavan, at whose home Mr. Rutherford was residing at the time of his death. Mr. Rutherford also leaves two brothers, John, of Minneapolis, Minn. James of Dakota, and one sister, Mrs. James Perrin, of 736 George street. Mrs. John Riddell, 550 Homewood avenue, is a sister-in-law.

The funeral took place this afternoon to the Centreville cemetery.

THE WORKINGMAN AND THE CAPITALIST FROM THE SOCIALISTIC VIEWPOINT

The Worker to Improve His Condition Must Control the Means of Production—Is a Slave to Capital—Address of Socialist Organizer.

"Why Have We Hard Times? How Can we Have Good Times?" were the topics dealt with yesterday afternoon in the Union Hall, Simcoe street, by Mr. Wilfrid Gribble, of Toronto, Provincial Organizer of the Socialist party for Canada. He gave an exposition of Socialism and its bearing on the topics mentioned. His address was earnest and he spoke in a manner which showed he desired to bring forth good points of the principles he advocated rather than to make a burning or eloquent address.

Mr. R. Mitchell acted as chairman, and in a few remarks introduced the speaker.

The word Socialism, Mr. Gribble stated had a very incomplete and indefinite meaning to many. Socialism was a workingman's science, and science was truth. And he was there to tell the truth and help the workingmen. The truth was in the interest of the workingmen, and the study of his life was to help the working class.

To understand the society of today we had to go back to the beginning of the history of the world. The world's history was not simply the account of wars, butcheries of how one king was dethroned and another deposed. No, the real history of the world had not been written. The dukes and nobles and fair ladies had been simply bubbles on the great underlying stream, the element of which was the working people.

WHERE THE WORKINGMAN STANDS.

The speaker told of the primeval men whose work was done with rude tools. He related the gradual development of the working class from the time of slavery up to the present day. The working class have done everything—produced the world's goods and built the world's buildings. The workingmen talk of good times.

"I think you all are workingmen," said the speaker. "But what do you mean by good times? To you they practically mean a fair living wage. But the workingman produces much more than what goes towards living. What becomes of it?"

The motor cars, the yachts, the balls and social functions the magnificent mansions of the rich; the castles, estates and luxuries of royalty told the story of where some of it went. But after all that lavish expenditure there was much left.

There was more prosperity now on the average than ever before and yet there are more going hungry today than ever. What does the working class own? Nothing. It is imperative that they rise up and take over the means of production. There was a world of plenty, but between that world of plenty and the working men there was a small class of men who dictated to the workingmen as to what the latter shall earn. These hard times were a lesson to the workingmen, and Mr. Gribble hoped would never go unless capitalism went with them.

Labor had the place of greatest importance in the world's history. Using the table on the platform as an illustration. The speaker said: "The only difference between a tree and this table is labor." And that labor power was wrapped up in the image of God, in a living, thinking, human being.

HOW CAN WE HAVE GOOD TIMES.

What was to be done to improve conditions. The workingmen had to become active themselves. The capitalists would never help.

The speaker had travelled over the globe extensively. He had been in Egypt, Morocco, Spain, Italy and other places. St. Peter's Cathedral, Rome, which could not be described in its grandeur, and all the other beautiful historical buildings had every one been fashioned by workingmen.

The workingmen were the most intelligent class in society to-day, and yet had not thought for themselves. They would never realise their true position till they controlled what they were producing.

To-day, more or less, every workingman felt the pressure of hard times.

In Europe there were 30,000 men and women who had made up their minds to work their reform and save humanity.

GREATEST MOVEMENT IN HISTORY.

Socialism was the greatest movement in history. Yet there was not a branch in Peterborough. It was on the outside of the revolutionary movement.

Speaking of right and wrong, the speaker said there was in a large sense no such thing as absolute right or wrong. Both were based on material interests. Right was simply a matter of power. It had been proved such since the earliest history of the world. Stronger vegetation, stronger animals, and eventually stronger men had triumphed because of this power. The capitalist could not be blamed in a way for acquiring what they had, but the workingmen should deprive them of their great control in the interests of their own wives and families.

ARE STILL SLAVES.

We had had 1900 years of Christianity and speak of our great national liberty. But the workingman should realize that he is as much a slave to-day as at any time in the past. The chattel slave and feedual slave had an advantage over the workingman of to-day inasmuch as they were never out of a job. The slaves of bygone days were bought out stock and barrel, and workingman sold himself. The working class of to-day were simply a lot of cattle, and would remain so until they knew enough to free themselves.

It was quite proper that they should rebel against the conditions existing. Jesus Himself was a social rebel.

THE HIGHER RIGHTS.

The average workman's ambition seemed simply to get a job. There was no literature, art, or music for him.

The speaker when a child had felt the pangs of hunger and the little children to-day were suffering more than ever before. When he had heard the gospel of the salvation of the working people he took a solemn vow to wage war against that class which had made his mother suffer.

If the rights of the capitalist class stood in the way of the rights of wives and children, the rights of the capitalist must go. And when the Socialistic movement got started in one country it would spread like a lightning flash throughout the whole world.

SOCIALISM IN CANADA.

In Toronto, Mr. Gribble's headquarters, there had been a small beginning, but great progress had been made in the work there. There were now five branches, five choirs and a band in the Queen City, and just as good growth comparatively should be made in Peterborough.

The Socialistic party in Canada five years ago started in Vancouver and there were now branches from coast to coast. Peterborough should be added as another link to the chain.

At the conclusion of the address a couple of Socialist hymns were sung from the pamphlets distributed, and a collection in the interests of the cause was taken up.

Garden's Store, Calgary, Nearly Destroyed by Fire---Mr. Jack Garden a Former Peterborough Man

The Calgary Albertan tels of the narrow escape from destruction by fire of a dry goods store conducted in Alberta by the Gordon Brothers formerly of Bobcaygeon. One of them, Mr. Jack Garden, is a former member of the Review job room, and was employed in this office, four or five years ago.

The Albertan says:

An early call, a quick response, saved two large establishments from complete ruin yesterday morning.

Shortly after seven o'clock one of the occupants of the Thompson block, noticing smoke emerging from the basement sent in the alarm to No. 1 fire hall. The brigade responded quickly and, on arriving, found that there was the beginning of what promised to be a very disastrous conflagration right under Binning's drygoods store and that Garden's was also threatened.

The brigade, recognizing that they had arrived in time, thought it was only a matter of minutes, perhaps of seconds, attacked the fire with chemicals. They found that there was enormous volumes of smoke pouring out of the building, but the fire was confined to the joists over the basement, which were breaking out in a strong blaze.

It required only a short time to put the fire out. The brigade was called upon to use nothing but the chemicals.

The damage to the building is not very great.

Both stores were full up with goods. The Binning store had fully $50,000 worth of dry goods, and the Garden store had about the same amount. The goods were damaged considerably by smoke but the fact that no water was used did not make the damage at all as serious as it otherwise would have been. The damaged stock is partially insured.

HOW ABOUT THAT OVERCOAT?

Possibly a new velvet collar, cleaning, pressing and repairing would make it as good as new and save buying just now.

THEATRICAL

Messenger Boy No. 42

The admirers of sensational melodrama had a good feast at "Messenger Boy No. 42," which was produced at the Grand Opera House on Saturday night and which was given by a cast somewhat superior to that of the average play of the kind.

The much heralded and widely lithographed Landseer dogs did good work. While their performances were not so wonderful, in view of the more difficult feats often done by trained dogs at dog shows and circuses, they acted with a sagacity which a dog in real life could not possibly display and their appearances were most timely. An heroic and clear thinking canine twice saved the life of the little heroine and once went so far as to lower a drawbridge raised by the two heartless and inhuman villians. At the end of a couple of acts these last mentioned monsters were entrapped by the good element in the play and would never have gotten away and not the curtain gone down at the critical moment—and so they were on deck again in the next act. How they made their escapes is not known for it took place when the lowered curtain hid them from the audience.

But nevertheless "Messenger Boy No. 42," afforded plenty of excitement and entertainment and the large audience was an enthusiastic one. Violet Hill as Bessie Courtwright, the former's daughter and later "Messenger Boy 42" did clever work and acted exactly in a way a bright eyed, ready-witted metropolitan messenger boy would do. Her portrayal was quite admirable. She made a great hit with her well rendered song, "I'd like to be a guy like Jesse James." Geo. W. Mitchell was excellent in the part of Jacob Courtwright, her rich father. Other members of the cast who appeared to advantage were W. Flave Ryan as Jerry Wright, the insurance man, John J. Magee, as Simon Steele, Billy Williams as Josie, a negro servant, and Howard Sydney as Harold Skinner.

The big dogs won the favor of the audience. The scenery was ample and effective as is the case with all of Chas. H. Gale's productions.

Latchford Liberal-Conservatives have formed an association with J. Mingston for president.

INCOMPATABILITY OF RACE AND RELIGION IN TURKEY

Prevents That Country From Becoming a Strong Nation—Sermon by Dr. Gould, Medical Missionary in Palestine, at St. Luke's Church Last Evening—An Interesting Discourse.

Incompatibility of religion and race are the great difficulties that stand in the way of the young Turkish party becoming a new and strong nation. This was the opinion of Dr. Sydney H. Gould, as expressed in his sermon at St. Luke's church last evening. Dr. Gould is a medical missionary of the church of England, and for the past eleven years he has labored in Pa. His work has brought him into contact with the operation of the different centres of government, the Arabs of the desert and conditions in the outlying portions of the Turkish Empire.

Speaking from the 5th verse of the first chapter of the second epistle to St. Peter, "And beside this, giving all diligence, add to your faith virtue, and to virtue knowledge." He said that first in the minds of the church people should be the missionary character and the missionary duty. His work laid particularly among the Mohammedans. The Mohammedan world embraced many countries and 225,000,000 souls. "The vastness of the Mohammedan world is evidenced by the fact" he said, "that we say the Christian world and the Mohammedan world but we do not say the Buddhist world." Mohammedanism was the religion of North Africa, Egypt, Arabia, Afghanistan, Persia and Turkey in Asia and Europe. In these countries the crest of Mahommed floated over the cross of Jesus Christ. Mohammedans say, "there is no God, but one God and Mahommed is the Prophet of God."

The speaker referred to the five things that constituted their pillars of faith. It was a religion with high points, but with a heart of stone. But the misery and degradation was appalling. The treatment of Mohammedan women and girls was terrible and the speaker related several incidents illustrating the awful lives of the women.

"Then men say," said the preacher, "why send missionaries to the Mohammedans? Mohammed is good enough for them." But he said "What man in his senses could say such a thing. The hand of workers was small. More were needed. In the hospitals in Palestine 86,500 patients had been treated.

Dealing with the circumstances which led to the recent establishment of constitutional government in Turkey, he took exception to the generally used phrase "a bloodless revolution." In considering the causes that brought about the change it was impossible to overlook the rivers of blood that had been shed in Turkey. In the attempt to suppress the Yemen revolution alone there had been engaged no less than 85,000 troops, and of these something like 60,000 had lost their lives through starvation. He told how on one occasion a regiment of a thousand men left Jerusalem for a march of five hundred miles through the disaffected districts. The entire commissariat for the regiment consisted of a few bags of unground wheat. Neglect of the army was one of the direct causes of the change. Massacres in Armenia and Macedonia had all contributed to the bringing about of the change, and such being the case, to call the revolution a bloodless one was a misnomer. Other contributory causes were the successful administration of Egypt under British rule, the raising of that country from bankruptcy to the position of being the most prosperous on the shores of the Mediterranean, and its reflex influence when contrasted with the maladministration of Turkey.

Dr. Gould dated the rise of the Young Turkish party from the time of the Crimea, but at the same time admitted the developments of the last few months have been most striking. Twelve months ago there were parts of Jerusalem which for a Jew to visit meant death. Now one of the members for Jerusalem of the new Parliament for Turkey is a Jew. Another feature of the change is the reascendancy of British influence and the discrediting of Germany. One of the great reasons for this he said, was to be found in the building of the Bagdad Railway, which, in a practical form, brought before the people, the power which Germany had obtained in the councils of the Turk.

Still, in spite of the great changes which have taken place, Dr. Gould did not seem to entertain any great hopes that a new Turkey would be established for many years on a basis which would be solid and lasting. The one great obstacle was to be found, in his opinion, in the fundamental incompatibilities of the religions of the races that make up the empire. There is no equality between the Mohammedans and the Christians or the members of other religions in the eyes of the law. The oath of one Mohammedan will outweigh the oaths of a dozen Christians, and until that fundamental difficulty is abolished it is impossible for that equality to exist on which the success of constitutional government is absolutely dependent. The difficulty had been recognized in Persia, and was the reason for the revocation by the Shah of the constitution granted to that country.

Dr. Gould touched for a moment on the question of unrest in India. It was the result of the giving to a people of an entirely different mode of thought—western education without its being accompanied by western balance—and in time similar effects would follow similar causes in Egypt.

ANNIVERSARY SERVICES HELD AT BETHANY YESTERDAY

Rev J. G. Potter, pastor of St. Andrews preached at both services at the anniversary of the Bethany Presbyterian church. The morning service was held at the church but owing to kindness of the Methodists of Bethany their more commodious church was used for the evening service and the congregation filled it to the doors. Both of Mr. Potter's sermons were acceptable and appropriate.

Mr. Potter sang solos both morning and evening. Rev Mr. Adams and Mrs Adams rendered a duet at the evening service and a quartette also sang at this service.

An anniversary entertainment will be given tonight in the Bethany town hall. Peterborough talent will take part.

FOX HUNTING BEING ENJOYED

Many Are Being Shot in the Surrounding Country

The sport of fox-hunting is being enjoyed by many persons in the country around Peterborough. The foxes are said to be more plentiful than in past years and quite a number of them have been shot. A man from Selwyn was in the city to-day with the hides of three foxes which he shot last week. He brought down two of them one day and was only out a couple of hours the next day when he bagged another one. He disposed of the skins to a local furrier.

"How was business on Saturday?" the Review asked a George strete merchant this morning.

THE WEATHER FOR THE WEEK

Ire Hicks Predicts Storm Period From 7th to the 11th of Month

A regular storm period extends from the 7th to the 11th, having its centre on the 9th. The Venus period is central on the 10th, with moon at extreme north declination on the 9th, and full moon on the 7th. The December storm diagram shows that this period is at the beginning of the winter solstice as well as in the closing stage of the Mercury period. We calculate that very general and severe winter storms will visit most parts of the country between the 7th and 11th. These storms as we have indicated above, may come over from the preceding period in a spell of prolonged threatening weather; they will take on renewed and very decided force not far from the 7th, and during the 8th 9th and 10th, they will move like vast storm trains across the country, bringing general blizzards of sleet and snow to all central and northern sections. Many wild and menacing storms and gales will be encountered on the north Atlantic Ocean and along the coasts. The great lake region will be swept with boreal northwesterly gales and blizzards. Behind the storms the barometer will rise to phenomenally high reading, and a full grown December cold wave will push southward and eastward from the northwest, bringing real winter weather to most sections, progressively from about the 8th to the 13th.—Hicks.

"ART" SUBJECT OF THE ESSAY

Read by Miss Mamie McCarthy at Ladies' Literary Meeting of the T. A. S.

On Friday evening the regular meeting of the Ladies' Literary Society of St. Peter's T.A.S. was held, when a very interesting essay on "Art" was read by Miss Mamie McCarthy. The essayist confined her subject almost entirely to painting and in her introduction pointed out that an artist can never be manufactured any more than one can manufacture gold——the art intellect is born in the true artist. The writer aimed at defining clearly the chief characteristics of greatness in painting and places as the first choice of a noble subject. The artist who makes a choice of sacred subjects, as Leonardo da Vinci did in his "Last Supper," is a painter of the highest rank, as it implies that he has a natural disposition to dwell on the highest thoughts of which humanity is capable. he who delights in representing the acts and meditations of great men, is a painter of the second order, and he who represents the passions and events of ordinary life, of the third.

The second characteristic of the great schools of art is that it introduces in the conception of its subject as much beauty as is possible consistently with truth. In this respect, schools of art become higher in exact proportion to the degree in which they apprehend and love the beautiful. Thus, that saintly artist monk, Fra Angelico, loving intensely all spiritual beauty, will be of the highest rank; Correggio loving intensely all physical beauty of the second rank; and Rubens, apparently insensible to beauty and caring only for truth of the third rank. The corruption of the schools of art, so far as this particular quality is concerned, consists in the sacrifice of truth to beauty. Great art dwells on all that is beautiful but false art changes or omits whatever it considers ugly or objectionable.

The third characteristic of great art is that it includes the largest possible quantity of truth in the most perfect possible harmony. If it were possible for art to give all the truths of nature it ought to do it. But, as this is not possible, choice must be made of some facts which can be represented from among others which must be passed over in silence. As its greatness depends on the sum of truth and this sum of truth can always be increased by delicacy of handling, it follows that all great art must have this delicacy to the utmost possible degree. All coarse work is the sign of low art.

The fourth characteristic of great art is that it must be inventive; that is produced by the imagination. Hence lower art merely copies what is set before it, while the higher either entirely imagines its subject, or arranges the material presented to it, so as to manifest the imaginative power as much as possible. However, imaginative art always includes some facts as we see them in nature, for creation in its full sense, is impossible to man. For example, in Holman Hunt's great poetical picture, "The Light of the World," where the Saviour stands knocking at the door, the whole thought and arrangement of the picture is imaginative, but the several details of it are wrought out with simple portraiture, the ivy, the jewels, the creeping plants, and the moonlight, having been calmly studied or remembered from the things themselves.

In conclusion Miss McCarthy pointed out that a painting is nothing unless it expresses thought. The picture, which has the nobler and more numerous ideas, however, awkwardly expressed, is a greater and a better picture than that which has the less noble and less numerous ideas, however, beautifully expressed. No weight or beauty of execution can outweigh one grain or fragment of thought. The writer gave as examples of pictures numerous, and of course, well connected thoughts, "The Highland Shepherd's Chief Mourner," by Sir Edwin Landseer and "The Last Judgment," by that greatest of artists, Michael Angelo, and her conception of each of these world famous paintings was exceptionally fine.

During the evening Miss Eva Tangney presided and presented the following programme;

Vocal solo, Miss Mamie Theobold.
Essay, Miss Mamie McCarthy.

CHURCHILL CAUGHT BUT GOT AWAY

Toronto Gaol-Breaker Was in Custody at Dallas, Texas.

Toronto, Dec. 7.—Harry Churchill, the escaped Toronto jail-breaker, is still at liberty. He was arrested at Fort Worth, Texas, Nov. 10 for picking pockets at Dallas and was taken to the latter city. But the following telegram tells of Churchill's luck:

"Thomas Moore, alias Churchill, was released here. Party refused to prosecute in the case.—B. F. Bradenburg, Chief of Police."

Dallas is probably only one of a good many likely places that didn't get a circular telling of the escape. Anyway, although the arrest was made Nov. 10, for picking pockets, the first intimation the local police department had of it was when the usual scrutiny of the current issue of the Chicago publication known as "The Detective" revealed his portraits and the facts of his arrest. He, with six others, got away from Toronto jail July 17. Only one, a boy, has been recaptured.

BRANTFORD WILL NOT VOTE ON LOCAL OPTION

Council Will Not Submit By-law.

Temperance Measure Defeated by Majority of One---Progress in Brampton is Slow.

Brantford, Dec. 8.—Brantford City Council by a vote of 7 to 6 knocked out the local option bylaw last night. The council chamber was packed.

The council went into committee of the whole, where the bylaw was when the temperane aldermen bolted a week ago, leaving no quorum.

Ald. Suddaby, who previously supported the bylaw, was put in the chair. Before the vote was taken ex-Magistrate Woodyatt addressed the council on behalf of the license holders, and E. Sweet followed for the local optionists. There was no discussion.

Ald. Andrews and Draper, previously supporters, refused to vote, while Ald. Blakney voted that the bylaw be struck out.

The result was scarcely anticipated and caused a gloom among the temperance workers.

Before proceeding with business, Mayor Bowlby intimated that anyone making a demonstration or addressing an alderman would be arrested. Four policemen were kept in the lobby. A report from the city engineer declaring the council chamber unsafe for a crowd was also read and no one moved during the proceedings.

Before adjournment a resolution was submitted that local option ought to go to the people in January. The resolution was lost, Mayor Bowlby tieing the vote by voting nay.

The council will meet again Wednesday evening, when the hydro-electric power bylaw to expropriate the lighting plant of the Western Counties Power Co. will be given necessary readings.

Brampton Slow.

Brampton, Dec. 8.—The local option bylaw had another airing in the council chambers last night, but no further progress was made. Councillor Ashley again moved the adoption of the first clause. Richard Watson, who had opposed its adoption a week ago, received new light in the meantime and supported it, but Dr. Sharpe, who was favorable last week, voted against, leaving the vote 3 for and 4 against.

BALSDEN GOES FOR TRIAL

C.P.R. Switchman Blamed for Wreck Committed for Trial at Bowmanville.

Bowmanville, Dec. 8.—Wm. Balsden, C.P.R. switchman of Burketon station, was yesterday committed for trial by Police Magistrate Horsey, bail being granted in the sum of $2,000.

The evidence given at the inquest into the deaths of three C.P.R. trainmen at Sandbank on Nov. 23 showed that Balsden did not have the switch lights burning.

DEATH ON THE RAIL

Engineer and Fireman Were Killed in Collision Near Fort William.

Special to the Review.

Fort William, Dec. 8.—Enigneer Noble and Fireman Osler of this city, were killed on the C.P.R. last night as the result of the collision of a switch engine, of which they had charge, with a freight train. The freight train was crossing the main line at what is known as the Puzzle switch, when the switch engine ran into it. The cab of the engine was completely wrecked while a car on the freight train was thrown from the rails and over turned.

The two men whose bodies were fearfully mutilated, were married and each leaves one child.

BY-LAW TO PURCHASE FAIR GROUNDS TO BE SUBMITTED IN JANUARY

City Council so Decided Last Night—Several Aldermen Were in Favor of Leaving Matter Over Until a Later Date.

The by-law to raise $36,000 to purchase the exhibition grounds by the city will be voted on at the municipal elections in January. This decision was reached at the meeting of the City Council last night. The matter was brought up in the Committee of the Whole by the Mayor. He stated that while he believed all the aldermen were in favor of purchasing the grounds he was doubtful if it were advisable to have the vote taken at a time when several other money by-laws were being submitted. If too many by-laws were submitted they might all be defeated.

Ald. Morrow was of the same opinion as the Mayor. The by-law to raise $50,000 to build a new bridge at Smith street and a by-law for $25,000 to pay for street extensions were going to be voted on in January. He thought that these would be enough for one time.

Ald. Buller and Ald. Tovey spoke in favor of submitting the by-law in January. The people were in favor of it and would carry it.

Ald. Morrow moved, seconded by Ald. Tovey, that the vote be taken in January.

The amendment was carried by a vote of 6 to 3.

HOLDERS OF BILLIARD AND POOL TABLE LICENSES ASK FOR A REDUCTION

Holders of pool and billiard table licenses in the city are asking the City Council for a reduction in the license fees, which are $40 per annum for each table at the present time. Two holders of licenses, Messrs. Smythe and Pappas, were present at last night' meeting of the Council, and through their solicitor, Mr. D. O'Connell, asked for a reduction in the license fees.

Mr. D. O'Connell, on behalf of Mr. Pappas and Mr. Smythe, appeared before the Council and asked for a reduction in the licenses for pool and billiard tables. At present they are paying $40 per table per year. Mr. O'Connell pointed out that in Toronto, Hamilton and London the license fee was $25 for the first table, and $10 each for each table added. Mr. Pappas has thirteen tables and Mr. Smythe eight tables at the present time. Mr. Pappas intended putting in six tables more. He pointed out that various clubs in the city had pool tables and paid no revenue to the city for conducting them. Billiards and pool were an innocent amusement and were not to be discouraged.

Ald. Johnston and Ald. Neill moved that the matter be referred to the Finance Committee.

The clerk will write to other cities to secure information as to billiard and pool licenses.

OPENING LAST NIGHT OF 57th REGT. INSTRUCTION CLASS

There was a good attendance at the instruction class of the 57th regiment held last night. Col. Stevenson is fortunate in being able to secure a commodious and warm room to have the class held in, as many were not favorable to attending in the unheated drill shed. Under such conditions it is expected that the membership of officers, non-coms and men will increase materially.

A strong effort will be made to have the examinations at the close of the term conducted here, instead of the officers having to go to Toronto. Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays have been the three nights fixed for holding the class each week, although this arrangement is subject to any change that may be considered of advantage.

The cheapest tea to use is not the lowest priced. COLONIALS IN HOUSE OF LORDS

Andrew Fisher, Australia's Premier, Gives His Views on the Matter.

Melbourne, Dec. 8.—(C.A.P.)—Referring to the proposal of Lord Rosebery's committee to reform the House of Lords, Mr. Andrew Fisher, Australia's Labor Premier, says that if the nominees of the oversea states can make known the views of the states they represent without binding them, nothing but good can come of the proposal, but attempts to hurry on the creation of an Imperial Council will defeat their own object, though such a council is not impossible in the future. The Canadian Associated Press is informed that the present Government intends to take no action on the report.

To Ward System at Present Time

City Council Did Not Grant Petition---Give Two Year Term a Trial First

The petition of a number of ratepayers praying the City Council to revert to the former method of electing aldermen by the ward system was not granted at last night's meeting of the City Council. To make it imperative that the Council submit a by-law to the ratepayers on this matter the petition should have been signed by at least twenty per cent. of the ratepayers, and to have been presented to the Council before November 1st. This had not been done. In view of this fact and also that the Council had secured special permission from the Ontario Legislature only last spring to have aldermen elected for a two year term, it was decided not to submit a by-law at the elections in January. It was felt that it would be well to give the two year term system a trial before making another change.

The petition presented to the council last night was as follows:—

To the Honorable Mayor and Aldermen of the City Council of Peterborough:

We, the undersigned ratepayers whose names are here subscribed, do hereby humbly ask and request by this petition that the present Council will take into due consideration, and will take such action as will be necessary to introduce and adopt a by-law to repeal the present system of electing representatives of the people to the City Council; also that the ratepayers will have the privilege of voting upon the adoption of such by-law at the coming elections of our City Council. Further, we humbly ask that the present City Council will take immediate action on the introduction of such by-law by giving such readings as the same may require at their regular meeting, or otherwise at special meetings.

The petition was signed by 251 ratepayers.

Ald. Morgan moved, seconded by Ald. Buller, that a by-law be submitted at the municipal elections in January as requested in the petition.

It was defeated, those voting in favor of the motion being the mover and seconder and Ald. McIntyre and Tovey.

Several of the aldermen expressed themselves as not being opposed to the ward system, but in view of the fact that special legislation had been obtained for the two year term system, it was considered advisable to give it a trial.

RESUMPTION OF INQUEST THIS MORNING

Nothing of a particularly startling nature was brought out this morning in connection with the inquest into the death of Roland Ayotte, the young boy who was shot in Harvey township, accidentally, it is claimed, by Tommy Gordon, the young boy who was his companion at the time of the shooting. But his explanation, while it may be very true, was not altogether satisfactory and Coroner Grey decided upon an inquest, which was opened a few days ago at Youngs' Point, and adjourned until to-day. As no gun had been found there was some mystery attached to the affair. The inquest was resumed this morning in the annex of the Lakeview House and after the forenoon session was enlarged until this afternoon at two o'clock.

Dr. Young, who, with the assistance of Dr. Boucher, performed the post-mortem examination on the body of the boy, was the first witness. He gave evidence to the effect that the ball from the rifle entered into the body in a straight line. Other witnesses were the late boy's mother, his father, Thos. Weaver and his sister Laura, who reside in Harvey, and both of whom saw the body soon after the fatality, and Tommy Gordon Ayotte's young companion.

The Laymen's Missionary banquet will be held to-night in the George street Sunday school. Supper will be served at 7 o'clock and addresses will begin at eight o'clock. The speakers are Messrs. Davidson, K.C., and Patterson, K.C., of Toronto.

THE FAIR OPENED

Guelph Exhibition is Now On.

President Brodie Says That Farmers Must Turn Over a New Leaf Agriculturally.

Guelph, Dec. 8.—Although the Guelph Winter Fair, the second largest of its kind on the continent of America, did not open its doors to the public until yesterday morning, practically the Ontario agricultural festival commenced on Saturday. The fair has now been established for a quarter of a century, and its growth has been, in a measure, an indication of the development of the farming industry in the banner province of the Dominion.

The statement made, therefore, at its opening session by its president, Mr. G. A. Brodie of Bethesda, to the effect that Ontario farmers must radically alter their ways if, as agriculturists, they intend to maintain their position as leaders of the world, is of exceptional interest. Mr. Brodie, in his address at the Ontario Agricultural College, contended that Ontario farmers must pay more attention in the future to intensive farming. Bitten with the fever of land greed, that has so declared itself in the west, he said that the farmers in Ontario "mined" their land rather than farmed it.

Another interesting address delivered at the union was that of Prof. E. J. Zavitz, in which he discussed the forestry problem. He points out that in Ontario there were many hundreds of square miles of land absolutely unsuitable for agricultural purposes. On some of those areas, in the effort to make them fruitful, there had already been expended "three generations"—"lives," as he termed it, "of blood, sweat and tears, at a net profit of $3.75 per acre." Far better, in view of the ever-increasing timber problem, that these districts should again come under the control of the crown, and be made to supply to future generations wealth and its concomitants in timber.

FIVE STUDENTS MUST PAY FINES

Kingston Rioters Assessed $10 Each---They Call Mayor a Traitor.

Kingston, Ont., Dec. 8.—Police Magistrate Farrell yesterday levied a fine of $10 and costs each on five students of Queen's University, arrested on Saturday night for participating in the riot on Princess street. The charge of interfering with the police was not pressed.

The culprits pleaded guilty, not as individuals, but as representing the student body.

The student prisoners were attended in court by Principal Gordon, Dean Connell of the Medical College, and Francis King, barrister.

Queen's students marched in a body to the Police Court, but were refused admission.

When Mayor Ross crossed the market square a crowd of students, awaiting the result in the Police Court case, hooted at him and some yelled "Traitor," because on Saturday night he refused to use his efforts to free the arrested students.

Mayor Ross is professor in Queen's Medical College.

THE SEASON OF ADVENT

This is the season of Advent. Advent continues from the 30th of November until Christmas and on Wednesday and Friday evenings there are devotions, beads and short reading. During the season of Advent no weddings are solemnized at the Roman Catholic church.

To-day is the Feast Day of the Immaculate Conception of the Blessed Virgin. High Mass with sermon was held at six o'clock and ten o'clock, and the regular masses also.

Sir Hibert Tupper denied at Montreal that he desired to lead the Conservative party.

Caretakers must open Hamilton Public schools earlier in the mornings to let the children in.

Dunnville has voted a bonus of $15,000 to the Dunnville, Wellandport and Beamsville Railway.

MAYOR IS THANKED FOR HIS EXCELLENT SERVICES

Vote of Thanks Passed by Aldermen Last Night---Last Meeting Was Very Harmonious One.

Last night's meeting of the City Council was somewhat of a love-feast. Everybody was in a merry mood and the transaction of business was mixed with considerable bantering of a friendly nature among the aldermen. The greatest of harmony has prevailed among the members of the Council during the year and while there have been differences of opinion, the questions have been considered fairly and without prejudice. No meeting during the year has lasted later than eleven o'clock and in this respect a record has been established.

Before adjourning last night Ald. Phelan moved a vote of thanks to his Worship Mayor Rush for the excellent manner in which he has presided over the affairs of the city during the past year. His Worship had acted in harmony with the aldermen and the year had been a pleasant one for everyone in the Council.

Ald. Morrow seconded the vote of thanks and in doing so referred to the fact it had not been necessary to extend the time at a meeting of the Council during the year.

The motion in connection with the vote of thanks was put by Mr. Armstrong and was carried by a standing vote and much applause.

Mr. Rush said he was deeply grateful for the compliment that had been paid him. He thanked the aldermen for the support they had given him during the year and complimented them on the fairness and broadness with which they had considered the various questions that had come up.

ABSENCE OF CRIMINAL CASES AT WINTER SESSION

Of the High Court---Commented Upon by Judge Weller---His Address to the Grand Jury---Several Non-jury Cases.

The winter sessions of the County Court opened this afternoon at two o'clock before His Honor Judge Weller. There were no criminal cases and all were non-jury. The members of the bar present were:—Messrs. T. C. Robinette, Toronto; W. H. Moore, K.C.; A. P. Poussette, K.C., and S. T. Medd.

The Grand Jury is composed of the following:—

Messrs. Alf. Davies (foreman); Wm. Harper, Amos Jones, Joseph Madill, Michael O'Brien, Robert P. Payne, Wm. Patrick, James Ruth, W. G. Rundle, Frank Sanderson, James Thorne, W. J. Thompson, Thomas Wilson.

His Honor, in his address to the jury, said that he was both sorry and glad. He was sorry because they had been brought together and there was no work for them, there being no jury cases. He was glad because the absence of criminal offenders which denoted that the people of Peterborough county were a law-abiding people. But the Police Magistrates, he said, took a good deal of the work at one time done in this court. It would be necessary for the jury to visit the county gaol but it was not compulsory for them to visit the other public institutions. However, they might do so if they wished. They received public money and were entitled to their inspection. His Honor particularly mentioned the Normal and Collegiate Institute new buildings erected within the past year.

The first case taken up was Carton vs. Pilkey. There were seven such cases. They arise out of the Trent Valley Sugar, Provisions and Cold Storage Company, Limited. In the case of Carton vs. Pilkey, the plaintiff, Michael Carton, is a retired merchant living in Peterborough, and the defendant, David Pilkey, is a farmer residing in the County of Ontario. The plaintiff claims judgment against the defendant for the sum of $250, which amount he alleges the defendant by a promissory note to pay to the order of the Trent Valley Sugar, Provision and Cold Storage Company, Limited.

The case of Carton vs. Wm. Arbuckle, Carton vs. J. Emmerson, Carton vs Mich. Kennedy, Carton vs. Gordon Ellworth Reynolds, Carton vs. Noble L. Stevenson, and Carton vs. Balsdon, are similar in detail. Solicitor for the plaintiff, W. H. Moore, K.C., Peterborough; solicitor for the defendants, T. C. Robinette, Toronto.

ROMAINE ST. SEWER IN THE LIMELIGHT ONCE MORE

The Romaine street sewer is again to the fore. It is not working satisfactorily and at last night's meeting of the City Council a report was read from the City Engineer recommendmending the relaying of the sewer with twelve inch pipe laid on planks.

Ald. Neill wanted the Board of Works to act on the Engineer's recommendation at once.

Some of the aldermen were doubtful if the sewer would ever be satisfactory till the course was changed.

After considerable discussion it was moved by Ald. Neill and seconded by Ald. McIntyre, that the Board of Works be authorized to take such action as was necessary to commence the reconstruction of the sewer at once. This was carried.

WARM DEBATE EXPECTED ON U.S. JAPANESE AGREEMENT

BLACK HAND AT CHIPPAWA

Mr. James F. Macklem Receives a Threatening Letter.

Niagara Falls, Ont., Dec. 8.—The Black Hand, that mysterious Italian organization that resorts to violence when its demands are not complied with, has made its appearance at Chippawa, and the life of the wealthiest resident in the village is threatened. Now every citizen is moving about armed and sleeping with a pistol under his pillow.

On Friday last, presumably late in the afternoon, a letter was placed under the door of James F. Macklem's office, which adjoins his home, directing that he leave $1,000 beside the horse block that night or his home would be burned to the ground. The letter was crude in construction, but the author made plain his demands.

Mr. Macklem moved his valuables from the house and at once notified the police. Detectives set to watch and pursued two strange foreigners. Revolvers were freely used, but the men escaped. Another case has been reported.

LATE TICKS FROM WIRES

There was a fall of 10 inches of snow in Montreal yesterday.

Flavelles, Limited, of Lindsay, lost two carloads of turkeys, valued at $12,000, in the dock fire at Portland, Me., Thursday night.

A paper known as The Northern Light has been started at Athabasca, and is probably the most northerly publication in the world.

The oil tank steamer Oriflamme, oil-laden, from Philadelphia Nov. 25 for Cette, France, was towed into Halifax in a disabled condition yesterday morning.

At New York, Louis Evans, aged 19, shot himself dead in the Riverside Hospital, North Brothers' Island, where he had been under treatment for consumption for four months.

Democratic Leaders to Make Trouble.

Because no Formal Treaty Has Been Entered Into---Germany is Well Pleased.

Washington, Dec. 8.—The indications are that the Japanese-American entente designed to protect the territorial integrity of China will be the subject of a great deal of debate in executive session of the United States Senate during the present session.

The fact that such an agreement has been entered into through diplomatic exchanges between Japan and the United States without the formality of a treaty is not acceptable to Democratic leaders. As a result they propose to institute an enquiry to determine the exact form of the understanding between the two countries with a view to showing, if possible, that the agreement in fact, is a treaty.

If a controversy should be raised in the Senate over the question as to whether the President and Secretary of State were usurping constitutional powers of the Senate, it is likely that disposition of the question will be postponed until after the adjournment of the present session.

In this event the probability is that Mr. Root will be one of the Senators from New York and he would be expected to take an active part in the defence of the right of the President to engage in relations with foreign Governments along the line of the Japanese-American agreement.

Germany Satisfied.

Berlin, Dec. 8.—Chancellor Von Buelow, during the budget debate in the Reichstag yesterday, referring to the American-Japanese agreement, said:

"The new arrangement is thoroughly in harmony with the principles of Germany's policy in the Far East, the principles of the 'open door' economically, the preservation of the status quo territorially, and the integrity and independence of the Chinese empire. We have no occasion to regard the agreement otherwise than sympathetically."

Answering a complaint that Germany was left out of the American-Japanese agreement, the chancellor called attention to the fact that Germany already has a precisely similar arrangement with Japan, through an exchange of notes. Japan explicitly accepted the principles of the Anglo-German agreement of 1900, which guarantees the maintenance of the "open door" and the territorial status quo.

SAYS THAT THE STRINGENCY DID THE DOMINION GOOD

Montreal, Dec. 8.—The annual meeting of the Bank of Montreal was held yesterday, with the president, Sir Geo. Drummond, in the chair.

Sir Geo. Drummond said: "A year ago business in the United States was staggering under a sudden collapse of credit and acute money stringency, while in Canada the brakes had been applied and the slowing down process had begun.

"The check had been beneficial and financial affairs are now on a sound basis.

"To-day the situation is much improved, confidence has been largely restored, credit is again good, the money markets of the world are abnormally easy, but the volume of trade has been considerably diminished, measured by the value of imports. The shrinkage in Canada within a year has been approximately 20 per cent., namely, from $362,460,000 to $297,300,000, the figures being for the twelve months ending Oct. 1, 1907, and 1908, respectively. On the other hand, the value of domestic exports in the same period has been well maintained, being $231,500,000, as against $244,200,000 last year.

"The past year certainly was, and the present holds out the prospect of being, emphatically the era of railway construction. The Grand Trunk Pacific, between Prince Rupert and Moncton, is likely to occupy a considerable time, while it cannot be overlooked that most of the other railways in the country have been occupied with extensions much greater than the public have any idea of. For example, the C.P.R., at the end of June, had over 700 miles under contruction in different sections of the country, and the Canadian Northern was also engaged in increasing its mileage in Quebec and the western provinces."

BOWLERS HONOR MR. HEMSTEAD

Leaves To-day for Head Office of Bank of Commerce, Toronto

Hooper's grill was the scene of a merry little gathering last night when a few friends assembled to pay tribute to Mr. C. H. Hemstead, teller of the Bank of Commerce, who leaves to-day to join the staff at the headquarters of the Bank of Commerce in Toronto. A dinner was tendered him and at its close Mr. Geo. Cairns presented Mr. Hemstead with a pipe as a slight token of the esteem in which he is universally held here.

The recipient replied feelingly and promised to pay Peterborough friends a visit at New Years. He leaves this

A COUNCIL'S RECORD

Some fault has been found with a statement in the Review, concerning the city's financial affairs by which it was made to appear that this year's council had paid off $100,000 of last year's council's indebtedness. This is a mistake. Had the debentures been sold in 1907 instead of 1908, the payment of the bank overdraft would have been made at that time. We had intended to give our readers some idea from a layman's standpoint of how the city has been proceeding for the last two or three years in a financial way from year to year, but find that it will be necessary to wait till the end of the year in order that what has been accomplished up to that time shall not be left to mere estimates. It is useless to deal with our civic accounts without taking into account also, the circumstances of policy as well as of finance. One year is pretty much like another in matters of bookkeeping and there is no preponderating difference, apparently in the matter of financing and meeting obligations between one year's council and another's. At any rate, it is wholly unfair on our part or anybody else's to attempt an analysis or comparison of records without going into the matter fully from all points of view. This cannot be done until the full year has elapsed. While this year's council deserves every commendation for its promptness and business ability and for its very evident desire to conserve the best interests of the city, it would appear that to make any comparison with last year's council's record to the disadvantage of the latter is quite uncalled for.

THE RESPONSIBILITY OF LAURIER

Under the above heading a feuilleton writer in the last number of Le Nationaliste, writes as follows: "Let the Progres de Saguenay note carefully our words there would have been no general inquiry, no inquiry concerning the administration of M. Brodeur if a happy accident (the report of M. M. Courtney, Fyshe and Bazin, designated to study the reform of business methods) had not forced the hand of the Cabinet."

This is putting the case just as it is. The administration of our national affairs is a national disaster, a national calamity, a national crime. If a man or a government is to be judged upon its business record what shall the judgment upon this state of affairs be? What can it be? But even if we can acquit those who should have protected instead of plundering us on the charge of complicity, the even more startling fact remains that they were and are incompetent. If sincere and honest then they were in the last degree, dangerously incompetent. Either horn of the dilemma is bad enough.

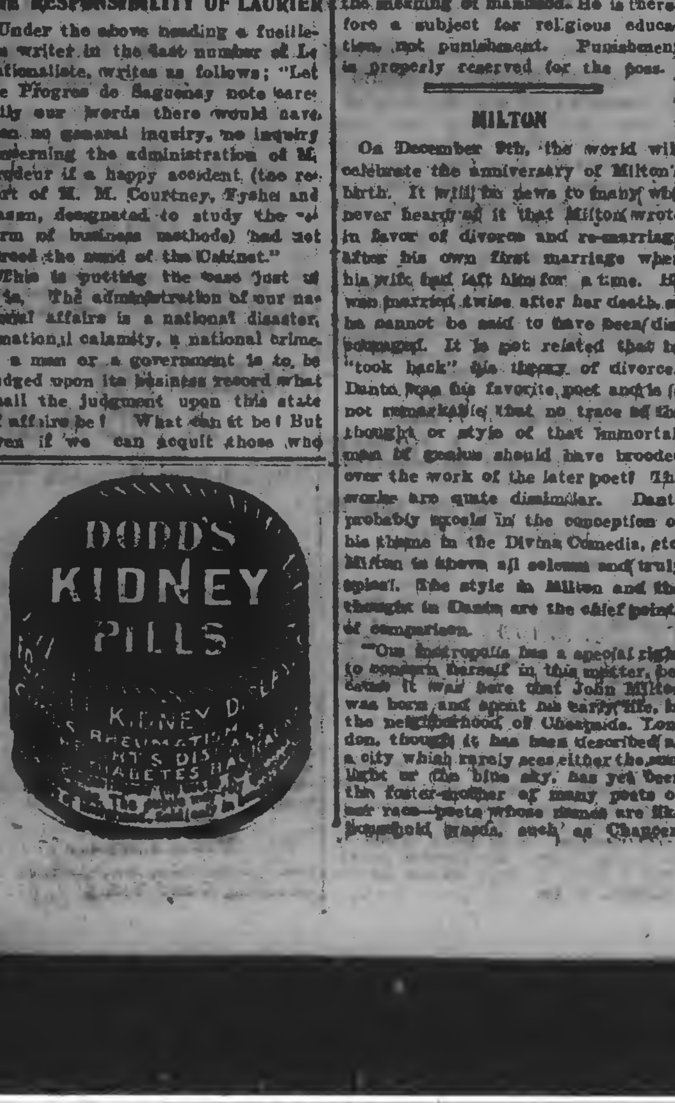
TROUBLE AHEAD

The Dexter poll at Port Arthur and the special train connected with it are likely to eventually make trouble for somebody. The Ontario Government appeared to be very lenient in the closing hours of the late police court investigation, but it was simply because it wished to get at the real culprits. Any man or set of men could put Peterborough "on the rough" with a special train or two, plenty of whiskey and money galore. It is the briber, whiskey-jack and general purpose rogue with a perpetual grin at his own success and at other people's simplicity, that does the damage. The people are "grinned" to their own ruin. A perpetual grin is the chief stock-in-trade of the man with the false face. What does he care? He does not mind a few thousand to secure the co-operation of the bribable, for a man can not do these things quite alone, or yet so long as he can make a few hundred thousand out of it for himself. It is "good business" he thinks. Let others hold laymen's banquets or periods of fasting, it matters little, so long as the hideous grinning monster behind it all can get what he wants by furnishing free whiskey and special trains to a false poll. The poll was movable also. The Ontario Government realizes that it is up against a gang of ruffians that rank with the worst in the province's experience. Like all other suborners of crookedness they must be run down at all costs. The poor victims are best treated with merciful contempt. The moral weakling is next door to the inoffensive lunatic who grins at his own knowingness. He is wholly ignorant of the meaning of manhood. He is therefore a subject for religious education, not punishment. Punishment is properly reserved for the boss.

MILTON

On December 9th, the world will celebrate the anniversary of Milton's birth. It will be news to many who never heard of it that Milton wrote in favor of divorce and re-marriage after his own first marriage when his wife had left him for a time. He was married twice after her death, so he cannot be said to have been discouraged. It is not related that he "took back" his theory of divorce. Dante was his favorite poet and is it not remarkable that no trace of the thought or style of that immortal man of genius should have brooded over the work of the later poet? The works are quite dissimilar. Dante probably excels in the conception of his theme in the Divina Comedia, etc. Milton is above all solemn and truly epical. The style in Milton and the thought in Dante are the chief points of comparison.

"Our metropolis has a special right to concern herself in this matter, because it was here that John Milton was born and spent his early life, in the neighborhood of Cheapside. London, though it has been described as a city which rarely sees either the sunlight or the blue sky, has yet been the foster-mother of many poets of our race—poets whose names are like household words, such as Chaucer, Spenser, Herrick, Ben Johnson, Pope, Gray and Keats." —Daily Telegraph, London, Eng.



EDITORIAL NOTES

It might not be a bad idea to call for volunteers to re-construct the Romaine street sewer.

The large number of protests will probably necessitate the judges' getting to work with all convenient speed.

A proceeding by protest enables the public to satisfy itself respecting the conduct of both sides. In this manner each party reaps the reward of its good or evil doing. It does not shelter the protester, while punishing the protested.

THE FRUITS OF THE EARTH

Seem To Be Nature's Provision For Keeping Man Healthy and Warding Off Disease.

Cereals, vegetables and meat supply the elements needed for man's nourishment. Yet fruit — though it has very little food value—has proved to be absolutely necessary for perfect health.

Careful investigation has shown that all the common fruits act on the Liver, Kidneys, Bowels and Skin. These are the organs that rid the body of dead tissue and waste products, and the fruit juices stir them up to more vigorous action, thus keeping the whole body clean and healthy.

But few people eat enough fruit. Realizing this, after several years of experimenting, a prominent Canadian physician succeeded in combining the juices of apples, oranges, figs and prunes in such a way that the medicinal action is many times multiplied. Then he added valuable tonics and made the combination into tablets called "Fruit-a-tives." They are really Nature's cure for Constipation, Indigestion, Biliousness and Stomach Troubles. Mild as Nature itself — but more prompt and effective. Sold by dealers at 50c. a box—6 boxes for $2.50—trial size box 25c. Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa.

His Worship, the Mayor, in presenting the parchment, said it gave him great pleasure to be able to recognize in this way a brave and laudable act. He was proud of Mr. Airriess and of his brave act. He wished him every success. He had no doubt but that Mr. Airriess would cherish the certificate.

As Mr. Airriess received the parchment there was loud applause from the aldermen and others present.

THE GHOST OF LOCHRAIN CASTLE

BY MRS. C. N. WILLIAMSON

Author of "The Princess Passes," "The Lightning Conductor," Etc., Etc.

Copyright, 1908, by Mrs. C. N. Williamson.

What was this soft, heavy bundle on the floor of the hidden room in the tower? She hardly dared stoop to touch it with her hand, which grew ice-cold with fear of the coming contact. Though every moment was of the utmost importance now, and life or death might lie, for her, in the difference of a second, she bent down with slow reluctance. Her groping fingers touched something smooth and silky, like a woman's hair, and her impulse was to spring up with a shriek. But she forced the cry back, and instead of drawing away her hand, she passed it over the silky surface once again.

There was no doubt this time. She was touching a woman's hair, hair elaborately dressed in thick waves and coils. Still compelling herself to do a thing against which her flesh and blood rebelled, she touched a face so cold that it might have been carved in stone; then, when her trembling fingers had outlined the features, wandered to a marble throat and motionless breast, clothed in silk, she yielded at last to her impulse and shrunk back, sick with horror of the thing she had found in the darkness.

Who was it who lay there, dead? Who was the perpetrator, who the victim, of this crime—since crime it must surely be? Elspeth could not guess; neither nerves nor brain were in a condition to make guesses, and her one thought was now to escape from this horrible place—wherever it might be.

She groped for the opening at the head of the stairs, and found it again, risking a fall by almost running down the steep steps; and thankful as she had felt a few minutes since, to reach the top she was a hundredfold more thankful to be at the bottom again.

Once more she searched with eager fingers for some spring on the wide panel of wood which she took to be the back of the movable bed; but finding nothing, she moved on until she came at last upon another wooden panel. There she did find a knob of metal, and pressing it the panel slipped silently, smoothly away from under her hand. Instead, an open space was left, through which her body could pass, and Elspeth flung herself into the aperature with a joyous sensation of being saved.

For an instant she stood bewildered, but the faint light which took the place of blackness seemed brighter than it really was, to eyes accustomed to the dark. Dimly she could see shapes she soon made out to be chairs and tables. She was in a furnished room, with uncurtained windows that were squares of starlit sky. "The tower room!" she said to herself, as the familiarity of the surroundings impressed themselves upon her mind.

"The tower room! And I must have come in by the entrance through which the ghost—or man—appeared the other night. That is why he vanished so quickly and so silently. He came through a secret door, and went back by the same way."

Elspeth waited only long enough to close the door (which shut by a spring, as it had opened), made sure with an exploring finger that she could find the spring again, if need were, and then she fled to the door which was the known entrance to the room.

She had feared to find it locked, and so it was, but only by a bolt on the inside, which she slipped back. Then she was in the landing which led to the tower stairway, and there the air was still thick and acrid with smoke.

It was her one way down toward safety, but she took it with fear and trembling, realizing fully that she was far from being out of danger yet.

CHAPTER XV.

A plan was growing in Elspeth's brain as she groped her way down the stairs, usually lighted throughout the night, but in black darkness now.

"If I come safely through this," she promised herself, "the whole mystery of the house and the plots that have been going on in it shall be unravelled before morning."

As she descended the two steps which led from the tower into the corridor beyond her feet splashed down upon wet carpet, as if she had stepped into thick, damp moss. Evidently much water had been used to put out the fire, and the reek of smoke was offensive still; but apart from the acrid odor and the soaked carpet there were no other signs of the conflagration to be detected in the darkness. Whatever had happened here was all over and done with long ago.

As Elspeth flitted, ghost-like, through the dark corridor a clock somewhere struck three. Only two hours and a half since she had left her room and started out upon the exploring expedition which had come so near to ending in tragedy!

The girl could scarcely believe that the clock told the truth, for it seemed that she had lived through days and nights of horror since then. "Perhaps when the light comes I shall see that my hair has turned gray," she thought, and shuddered as in spirit she touched again the marble features, the silken hair of an unknown dead woman in the dark.

It was so black in this corridor now that Elspeth could not make out the doors on either side, but she stretched out her hand to touch the first one as she passed. It was open, and so was the next. The doors of the three large rooms on either side were ajar, and it was certain that those who had occupied those rooms had been driven out of their quarters by the fire. Where, then, were Mr. Kenrith and Captain Oxford? Upon finding them before it was too late the success of Elspeth's plan depended.

Once in the great hall, far from the scene of disaster, the girl began to feel a sense of security after deadly peril. She was weak and spent after all she had endured, and all that was physical in her longed for rest. She yearned to escape to her own room, lock the door, fling herself down on the bed, and rest there safely till morning, thanking Heaven for rescuing her from a terrible fate. But she had work to do still, and in spirit she was ready, though her body shrank from further ordeals.

There was very little smell of burning in the great hall, and one or two jets of gas, turned low, faintly illumined the place. Elspeth found an electric bell, which summoned waiters by day, or a night porter, if necessary, in the dark hours, and very quickly the summons was answered by a man who showed his surprise at sight of a young girl alone at this time in this place.

Elspeth, who kept early hours, had never before encountered a night porter in the hotel, and her face was as strange to him as his to her. If he took her for one of the guests there was no reason why she should go out of her way to disabuse his mind of that impression.

"Did you ring, miss?" the man asked, peering at her through the dimness.

KNOX CHURCH YOUNG PEOPLE

Had a Devotional Evening at Their Meet Last Night

A devotional meeting of the Knox church young people was held last evening when a large number was in attendance. The chair was occupied by Miss E. Warner. A paper was read by Miss Mamie Menzies on the subject of "Commending Our Religion by Consistent Living." It proved very interesting, comparing the members of the church of Christ with those uninterested ones.

A vocal duet by Mrs. Parker and Miss Eva Bartley brought a pleasant gathering to a close.

Hair Raising Talk

We claim that Dr. Norvall's Hair Restorer is easily the best requisite of its brand on the market.

Those who have used it enthusiastically say it is. It cleans and envigorates the scalp, it prevents dandruff and stops the hair from falling out.

Its regular use soon shows surprisingly satisfactory results and there is not one drop of injurious matter in its composition.

MUST PAY THE INCOME TAX

Review Was in Error in Statement Made Yesterday as to Ruling of Judge Weller

In yesterday's Review it was stated that His Honor Judge Weller had ruled in favor of the civil servants who appealed against paying an income tax. The Review was in error. His Honor's ruling was exactly opposite to that given in the report. He dismissed the appeals against the judgment of the Court of Revision and the civil servants will therefore have to pay the income tax.

PLACARD WAS ORDERED UP AND THEN TAKEN DOWN

Doctors Disagreed in Scarlet Fever Case—Board of Health Meeting This Morning—Medical Health Officer Must Exercise Authority in Regard to Isolation.

The last regular meeting of the Board of Health was held this morning, when the following were present:—Dr. Burnham (chairman); Dr. McNulty, Mayor Rush, Chief Roszel, James Edgar, T. Parker and James Murty. The minutes of the last meeting were read and adopted.

Communications from two medical men regarding a scarlet fever case on King street were read. It appears that one doctor was called to attend a King street lady. He diagnosed her case as scarlet fever. Being unable to continue attending her, another physician, who agreed with the first doctor in the diagnosis of the disease, was called. A placard was ordered to be put up. In a couple of weeks' time the second doctor was told that he need not come any more, and the placard was taken down. Two other medical men had signed a certificate saying that there was no more danger of contagion and the health officer allowed the placard to be taken down.

The doctor who attended the patient ordered the police to put it up again, but it was soon taken down.

Dr. Bingham produced the certificate, signed by two medical men.

Chief Roszel said that he took his orders from the physician in attendance.

Dr. Bingham said that he didn't take it down.

Dr. McNulty said that the medical health officer was the only one who had any right to enter a house where there was scarlet fever. The doctor did not think that the infection necessarily lasted six weeks. It might extend over three months and then a mild case might only be contagious for three weeks. Where doctors disagreed, he thought, that the medical health officer should exercise some authority and decide the matter in dispute.

It was moved by Dr. McNulty, and seconded by Mr. James Murty, that the attention of the medical health officer be drawn to the sections of the regulation making it his duty to exercise authority in regard to isolation in cases of contagious diseases.—Carried.

The meeting then adjourned.

CITY COUNCIL HELD LAST REGULAR MEETING OF YEAR

Large Amount of Business Transacted—Reports of Committees—Mr. Logan's Request to Be Considered.

The city council held the last regular meeting for 1908 last night and transacted much business. Mayor Rush presided and Ald. Turner was the only absentee. The council first met in committee of the whole and then in regular session and it was almost eleven o'clock before adjournment took place. By adjourning before eleven o'clock it was not necessary to extend the time and as such has not been done during the year a record has been established.

MR. HICKEY'S REQUEST

Mr Hickey waited on the council regarding the opening of a street. In this connection it was moved by Ald. McIntyre seconded by Ald. Elliott that a drain be constructed on Bethune street from whatever point necessary, north to Aberdeen Avenue and on Aberdeen Avenue to the Communication road.—Carried.

Ald. Neill drew attention to the case of Wm. Logan, blacksmith, who asked for damages on account of his business being injured during the building of the new bridge at the corner of Brock and Aylmer streets. Ald. Neill said that he was of the opinion that Mr. Logan's business had suffered and that as a matter of justice he was entitled to something.

Ald. Buller said he had learned more of the case since it was before the Board of Works and he agreed with Ald Neill.

Ald Bradburn said the city engineer should make an investigation of the matter and secure declarations as to work that was turned away from the shop. In this way, Mr Logan could be recompensed if advisable, without establishing a precedent. He moved along the line he had spoken.

Ald Johnston seconded the motion and it was carried.

COMMUNICATIONS.

Mr. John Carlisle wrote offering an eight roomed house of land to the city to be used for an isolation hospital at what he considered a reasonable price.—Property committee.

From F. J. Bell, clerk of Smith, offering on behalf of that municipality to pay one-third of the cost of the electricity current for one lamp to be placed on the corner of Smith and Fairburn streets for a term of five years.—Fire, Water and Light Committee.

From Ed. M. Elliott, asking regarding a sewer on Manning avenue.—Board of Works.

From Davis, Thompson Co. asking for the privilege of insuring the firemen—accident policies.—Fire, Water and Light Committee.

From John Green, notifying the council that Mrs Corrine Meehan had been injured through falling into a grate-hole in the sidewalk on Aylmer street and that she claimed damages.—Legal Committee.

Miss Katharine E. Wallis regarding the monument to Mrs Nicholls.

From George Murray Publishing Co. asking the city to place an advertisement in the Montreal "Standard".—Finance Committee.

Mr. William Logan wrote again, calling attention to the damage done to his business in connection with the re-building of the Brock street bridge.

STATEMENT OF TAXES.

City Tax Collector Green submitted the following statement of taxes up to November 30th:

Total amt, on roll	$159,356.66
By total amt. deposited	143,971.00
Balance	15,385.66
Less 20 per cent discount on first payment	2,290.45
	$13,095.21

CLAIM FOR DAMAGES.

Roger, Bennett and Goodwill, wrote informing the council that, acting for Mr John C. Higgins, they would take action against the council within one week and apply for an injunction because of damages done Mr. Higgin's land by excavations on the city's property adjoining.

Ald. Neill, seconded by Ald. Morrow that a committee composed of the Mayor, Ald. Phelan, Elliott and Morgan interview Mr. Higgins regarding this matter, with power to act.

WIDEN LOUIS STREET

On motion of Ald Phelan and Johnston the matter of widening Louis street be referred to a committee composed of the Mayor, Ald. Morrow and Ald Bradburn.—Carried.

PROPERTY COMMITTEE

Ald. Bradburn, chairman, presented the following report from the property committee:

Your Property Committee beg leave to report and recommend as follows:

1. That the lot on the river front which R. Sheehy had during the year past, be rented to him for another year at $25 in advance.

2. We instructed the Clerk to write to the Board of Trustees of the Nicholls hospital and the management of St. Joseph's hospital and ask them to meet this committee to confer in regard to hospital treatment for patients suffering from contagious diseases.

FINANCE COMMITTEE.

Ald. Morrow reported for the Finance Committee as follows:—

Your Finance Committee beg leave to report and recommend as follows:

That 500 copies of the 'Times' Industrial number be ordered at $10 per hundred copies.

That $2 paid as dog taxes by Mrs. M. King be refunded as a kennel license was afterwards taken out.

That the chairman and Ald. Bradburn be authorised to settle the matter of the taxes on lots 12 and 15, Plan 26, through which Aylmer street was extended and that the tax collector be authorized to accept the taxes from the parties, as arranged by them without any added percentage and to remit such taxes as the city would be liable for the part of the land owned by the city.

That the rate of interest on the debentures to be issued be 4 1-4 per cent, and that the sinking fund be based on 3 1-2 per cent.

That the previous instructions to take proceedings to expropriate land to widen Louis street be recinded and that no action be taken on this matter at present.

That the City Treasurer be instructed to send accounts to persons who had sewer connections put in and whose deposit did not meet the cost of making the connections.

That no action be taken on the order of the Police Magistrate to pay Constable Adams for the arrest of a horse thief.

That the arrears of taxes charged to lots 45 and 46, Plan 73, for 1907, amounting to $8.98 be written off owing to the error in the description if they cannot be collected from the owner of Lot 48 who should have been assessed for them.

SCARLET FEVER VERY PREVALENT

Several Pupils of City Schools Have it—A Mild Type

There are a number of cases of scarlet fever in the city but the doctors state that it is of a mild type.

Mr. A. Mowat inspector of public schools informed the Review today that the parents should not feel alarmed in sending their children to school as every precaution has been taken by the teachers and doctors to prevent the contagion from spreading. There are five cases in the South Central schools but in all instances where a case of fever is known to be the brothers and sisters of the infected ones are closely quarantined

CHIMNEY FIRES WERE IN ORDER

Fire Brigade Called Upon to Look After Two of Them Yesterday

Chimney fires gave the fire brigade a couple of runs yesterday. They had a hundred yard dash in the morning to put out one at the office of the Allin Ice Company, Aylmer street, and at 5.0 in the afternoon were given another call to the residence of Mrs Wilkinson, 268 Wolfe street, who occupies the property at that address, owned by Mr John Carlisle. No damage was done.

WHY SUFFER?

Breathe Hyomei and Kill the Loathsome Catarrh Germs.

Just as long as you have catarrh your nose will itch, your breath will be foul, you will hawk and spit and you will do other disgusting things because you can't help yourself. The germs of catarrh have got you in their power; they are continually and persistently digging into and irritating the mucous membrane of your nose and throat. They are now making your life miserable; in time they will sap your entire system of its energy, its strength, its vigor and vitality.

Joseph Dural, of Woodstock street, Tavistock, Ont., says; "Catarrh had given me all kinds of suffering for a long time. There was a swelling of the glands under the eyes and adjacent to my nose and the discharges would drop into my throat. I used several remedies, but never got the relief that I did from Booth's Hyomei. I have been so pleased with Hyomei results that I highly recommend its use to catarrh sufferers."

Wm. Madill, the druggist, will guarantee Hyomei to cure catarrh or money back. Don't delay this pleasant antiseptic treatment. Breathe in Hyomei and kill the germs.

Wm. Madill will sell you a complete Hyomei Outfit, including inhaler, for only $1.00. It is also guaranteed to cure bronchitis, asthma, coughs, colds, hay fever and croup.

NATIOAL LAYMEN'S CONGRESS WILL BE HELD IN TORONTO

In Massey Hall on April 1, 2, 3, and 4—Many Countries Will be Represented.

The National Laymen's Congress, the most important gathering yet held any place in the world in connection with the Laymen's Missionary Movement, will begin in Massey Hall on March 31, continuing on April 1, 2, 3 and 4. While the meeting will be essentially Canadian, it will partake of a "world" character through the attendance of prominent representatives of the movement in various parts of the world. The attendance will include two thousand representative laymen or commissioners and probably an equal number of clergymen practically all from Canada. In addition there will be a representative from Great Britain, the United States and the Orient. The delegates will all attend at their own expense. The object of the gathering, which will be interdenominational, is the adoption of a national missionary policy and the reception and discussion of reports from all centres that have adopted a missionary policy. A strong local committee is being formed to take charge of all details preparatory to the meeting, and negotiations are already under way for the presence of some of the greatest speakers in the world. The attendance of Mr. Robert E. Speer, the well-known secretary of the Student Volunteers and Sir Robert Hart, British Ambassador to China, is already assured. Interest in the great gathering will be added to by the meeting at that time in Toronto of the International Laymen's Committee, consisting of Mr. John Wanamaker and other leading laymen of the United States.

A FEW ADVANTAGES OF THE DIAMOND CALK HORSE SHOE

It saves time—it saves money—it saves your horse.

The Calk being adjustable, the shoe has not got to be removed to be re-sharpened.

The Calk being made of case hardened steel and being triangular, having three sharp edges, it has been tested out to more than equal nine ordinary re-sharpened shoes.

Your horse always having perfectly sharp Calks is thoroughly protected against slipping.

The Shoe and all the parts are made of the best material. The Fittings, that is the Calks, Clamps, and Cap Screws, are renewable at a very small cost, while the Shoe itself is practically indestructible.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Mr. Airless Thanks

Editor of the Review.

Dear Sir,—As I was not able to say more than "thank you" last night to the Mayor and Aldermen I would like if you would let me say through the press that I am most grateful for their kind treatment of me.

Yours truly.
J. AIRLESS.

Dr. Frederick Speaks

Editor of the Review.

Dear Sir,—Apparently we are on the verge of a considerable outbreak of scarlet fever, and as in the past our facilities for attending to it are almost as inadequate for handling it, as a generation ago, and not as good as a few years ago, when the hospitals accepted these cases in a special ward.

Ours is too progressive a city to be still floundering in the mud on this question.

It is only when a number of unpleasant messes arise, such as those which have occurred in the past few weeks, that we awaken to the recognition of our out of date condition.

The majority of people forget or do not realize, that the quarantine and isolation of infectious diseases is for the benefit of the public at large, which should pay for this protection.

Isn't it enough hardship for a poor man to have these diseases come to his home without the neighbors, the law, and public at large compelling him to pauperize himself for years to come, by staying at home weeks or months without work, without perhaps enough food to live on, and yet those for whose safety this is done are unwilling to share the expense.

Take the concrete examples of recent date:

An honest, hard working woman with a family of five children, two of whom are breadwinners. Each of the latter were taken from their work to nurse the others, ill with scarlet fever, in order that the main breadwinner might stay away from the family for the public protection. Think what this would mean to you in the same circumstances:

Away from her family for three months.

Board to pay for three months.

Two breadwinners less for three months.

Consider the other case where a very ill child in an institution with a number of other children, was infected with scarlet fever, probably from some ignorant visit or coming from an infected house not disinfected.

Why should a poor man disinfect his home at his own expense for public protection, if he is too poor to pay for it when we—the public—don't care whether he does or not, and, at any rate are unwilling to recompense him for it.

If this had been your child and it had died would you not feel indignant at our lax and careless system in Peterborough.

The Board of Health wants to solve the problem, the council wants to solve the same thing, but up to the present they have been unable to do so.

Dr. McNulty last year made a sensible suggestion, when he proposed home isolation, compensation of breadwinners for loss sustained, and disinfection at public expense.

But this suggestion was ignored, entirely because the trouble has not struck home to those who have the power to act. With but few exceptions the scarlet fever has been in the homes of the poor and powerless.

The plan, we the public, in our selfishness would like is to have the Nicholls hospital board build an infectious disease hospital, pay for the nursing and run it free for all. But why should they. We do not appreciate what we have. If, like other cities, we were taxed the twenty odd thousand of hospital upkeep we might worry. Other cities are always begging for hospital funds. Having become used to spoon feeding in this way we thing the Nicholls or other hospital boards should still spoon-feed us free.

Statistics.

During the last year, as recorded in the city books, the cases of infectious diseases are.

	Scarlet fever	Diphtheria.
January	0	0
February	6	0
March	0	0
April	3	0
May	2	0
June	0	0
July	7	0
August	4	0
September	4	0
October	9	1
November	4	0
December	4	0

Allowing an average rate of $10.00 per week compensation for the minimum number of weeks—6—on Dr. McNulty's plan, and $2.00 per case for disinfection the city's bill for protection would have been about $2700.00.

It does not seem necessary to compensate the breadwinners to this extent, for most of them can board out at about $1.00 to $2.00 more than they can live at home and still earn wages.

At this rate and $2.00 for disinfection making an average of about $8.00 per case, the city's bill would have been about $400.

If full compensation were allowed to those out of work, it would only add a few hundred to this, making perhaps $600.

But this does not consider or assist those unpleasant circumstances, where cases suddenly develop in Nicholls hospital, St Joseph's hospital, the House of Providence, Barnardo Home, or strangers in boarding houses or hotels.

It does not seem necessary to build an expensive, ideal building with a marble front, when from the statistics this is shown to be unnecessary.

A combination of a small moderate cost building with home isolation and compensation in suitable cases would cut out a great deal of expense.

I heard a "man of authority who knows," say he considered a suitable building for practical use could be put up for $3000.

The council seems afraid of running expenses and mentions $4000 as the minimum.

There are in the city a couple of graduate nurses, thoroughly reliable ethical and competent, whose services can be obtained at about $400 per year. As assistant an extra nurse could be supplied from Nicholls hospital or when desired from St. Joseph's at a rate of $6.00 per month or $72.00 per year, payable to the hospital.

This would afford a grand opportunity for our nurses to obtain a training they are now unable to receive, viz. the handling of infectious cases.

Allowing seven dollars a week for food, fourteen tons of coal per winter and $400 per year for a porter for scrubbing, disinfection, washing and furnaces, allows a standing expense without patients of—

Nurse	400.00
Hospital, Ass't Nurse	72.00
Coal	100.00
Food	360.00
Porter	400.00
Telephone	18.00
Electric light	20.00
Water	20.00

About $1400.00.

Let year's expense rating at about 25 cents per day per patient for light diet or $600 for food.

$100 for medicine.

$100 for disinfection.

Thus we have a standing expense of at most $1500 and an expense variable with the number of patients, from $500 to $1500.

These plans may not fit in with the theoretically beautiful and perfect isolation hospital, as planned by the powers that be, but will cover the present and ordinary future needs, and save some unfortunates a lot of worry.

Yours,
E. V. FREDERICK.

FIVE DOCTORS GAVE HER UP!

Ulcers and Sores Defied all Treatment—Zam-Buk Has Worked Complete Cure

Miraculous indeed is the cure which Zam-Buk has worked in the case of Mrs. Jane Beers, of L'Original (Ont.) "I began to suffer," she says, "from ulcers and skin-sores. These broke out on my legs and spread to an alarming extent causing me great pain. They defied all remedies I applied to try and heal them, and remained suppurating open wounds.

"One medical man after another gave my case up, until I had consulted five different doctors and they were all baffled by my case. Then I went into hospital and was there five months, and came away very little better. The sores were so extensive and I was so weakened that I had to walk with a stick and a crutch. This was my condition when first I began to use Zam-Buk. I applied it to the sores and in a few days I thought I saw an improvement. I persevered with the balm, and, to cut a long story short, the wonderful balm did what all the doctors failed to do—healed my ulcers. I have now put away my stick and crutch, the ulcers and sores are healed and I take this opportunity of strongly advising all who suffer from sores, ulcers, or open wounds, to give Zam-Buk a proper trial."

It is by effecting such impressive cures as this that Zam-Buk has established its world-wide reputation. In every country to which it has been introduced it has become the leading family balm and embrocation. This surely is proof of exceptional merit!

Purely herbal in nature it supplies the housewife with a handy and effective cure for the hundred-and-one injuries to which she or the children or the husband are liable.

Zam-Buk is also a cure for eczema, ringworm, scalp-sores, cold-sores, chapped hands, sores due to blood-poisoning, piles, cuts, burns, bruises, and all skin injuries and diseases. All druggists and stores sell at 50 cents a box, or post free from Zam-Buk Co. Toronto, for price. Beware of cheap and harmful imitations sometimes offered as "just as good."

LEADER OF THE ADAMITES COMES TO TRAGIC END

Fired at Posse in Kansas City.

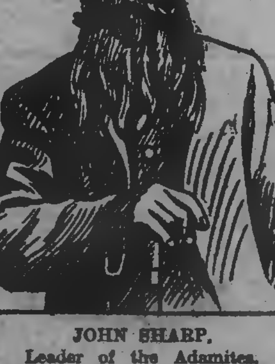
John Sharp and Party Fired on Officers and Riot Follows---Several Killed and Injured.

Kansas City, Mo., Dec. 9.—In the shadow of the city hall, a riot in which religious fanatics and the police participated, resulted yesterday afternoon in the death of two persons, the fatal injury of three others, and severe injury to two persons.

A. O. Dalbow, policeman, and Lola Pratt, aged 14 years, were killed, and the fatally injured are: Patrick Clark, police lieutenant; John Sharp, a street preacher known as "Adam God"; Michael Mullane, policeman.

Probation Officer Holt of the juvenile court yesterday went to Fifth and Hain streets to investigate a case of alleged abduction.

Probation Officer Holt met Sharp, who was exhorting a crowd on the street. With Sharp was a woman named Selser and five children, ranging in age from three to 14 years. Holt then inquired as to the identity of the children. The woman replied that the officer "had better attend to his own business." The officer persevered in his enquiries, and Adam God "who wears long white beard and hair, struck him a blow behind the ear with a pistol, inflicting an ugly wound.



JOHN SHARP,
Leader of the Adamites.

Sharp and his companions were within 50 yards of the police station when officers stepped into the street. The Sharpites, with profane abuse, served notice on all that they would preach right "under the eyes of the police station, and the police cannot prevent us."

The officers did not, however, expect serious trouble, and were not prepared for the volley of bullets which met them almost immediately after they appeared on the scene.

A riot call brought policemen from all directions. Thoroughly aroused, the officers closed in on Sharp and his followers, firing as they went. When the firing ceased "Adam God" was fatally wounded.

The woman and the children fled to a houseboat on the Missouri river. Fifty policemen followed them and found that the woman had barricaded herself in the houseboat. Standing on the boat with a shotgun she shouted to the officers, "Come on, you fiends." The boat was only a few feet from the bank of the river and several officers dashed toward it. The woman dropped her weapon, and seizing two of the children, she sprang into a row boat and began to row into the middle of the river. She was ordered to stop, but she only pulled the oars more vigorously. The police fired a volley at the rowboat. One struck Lola Pratt, tearing away the greater part of the child's face. She died later. The woman then surrendered.

At the police station she said she was Mrs. Pratt, wife of one of the companions of "Adam God," and mother of the dead child.

Louis Pratt, who was with the preacher when the first shooting took place, was arrested uninjured.

Winnipeg, Dec. 9.—John Sharpe, the man who styled himself "Adam God," and whose career as religious fanatic ended in bloody battle in Kansas City yesterday, is the man who last July invaded Canada from Missouri and for two or three weeks defied the Provincial Governments of Manitoba and Saskatchewan, and the Royal Northwest Mounted Police.

SANFORD EVANS ELECTED MAYOR

He Has Majority of More Than a Thousand in Winnipeg.

Winnipeg, Man., Dec. 9.—William Sanford Evans was yesterday elected mayor. With six polls to hear from he has 4,134 votes, R. A. C. Manning, 3,091 and the dark horse, W. S. Eades, 89, giving Evans a lead of 1,043.

For controllers, R. D. Waugh and J. W. Cockburn with eleven votes between them, are 1,100 ahead of the next competitors, A. A. McArthur and J. G. Harvey, Joel Baker making a poor fifth.

No figures on the bylaws are obtainable, but it is believed the bylaw for $400,000 for an overhead bridge, and one for $215,400, carried with substantial majorities.

RUSSIA WILL STEER CLEAR

Refuses to be Drawn Into the Balkan Trouble.

St. Petersburg, Dec. 9.—An authorized statement on the Russian position on the Balkan situation, correcting a number of rumors in circulation, has been issued. With regard to the possibility of hostilities, it is admitted that certain interests in Austria-Hungary are in favor of forcing a conflict with Servia and Montenegro, but up to the present these efforts have not been successful. Russia on no account will allow herself to be drawn into war.

The only egress from the uncomfortable position which Austria-Hungary has been placed by the unexpected opposition of the powers to annexation and the boycott instituted against her by Turkey, is the calling together of an international conference to take the many questions involved under advisement.

Austria's answer up to the present have been negative, but the way is still open for a graceful retreat.

Annual Meeting of W.F.M.S

SIX DOLLARS EACH PER YEAR FOR THE MISSIONARY CAUSE

This is the Aim of the Laymen of Peterborough as Resolved at Banquet Last Night---Two Hundred and Thirty-five Men in Attendance at Function at George Street Church.

THE MISSIONARY MOVEMENT

As a result of the appeals made by the visiting laymen at the missionary banquet last night, it was moved by Mr. Vincent Eastwood, and seconded by Mr. T. Wilson, that the church members of Peterborough, have as an ideal the raising of six dollars each, annually, for missionary purposes. This was unanimously carried.

A resolution approving of the principle of the Laymen's Missionary Movement and urging the men of the churches to a larger interest than ever in the past, was moved by Mr. D. H. Moore, and seconded by Mr. E. A. Peck, and carried.

The call for help in the foreign mission field was urged and deeply impressed upon nearly three hundred of Peterborough's leading business and professional men who gathered at the laymen's missionary banquet in the George street Methodist church room last evening. It was a splendid gathering of men and one that is bound to be productive of great results.

"The evangelization of the world in a generation," was the keynote of the addresses delivered by two of Toronto's laymen, Messrs. J. A. Paterson, K.C., and N.F. Davidson, K.C., who are prominently identified with the laymen's mission enterprise in that city. Their remarks were along practical lines dealing with the mission question as a business proposition.

Shortly after seven o'clock the men, consisting of the clergy of the city and the surrounding country, merchants, lawyers, doctors and representatives from almost every walk of life, sat down to a splendidly prepared dinner. The room was tastefully decorated with flags and bunting. Young ladies from the different city churches acted as waitresses in a most efficient manner. While dinner was being partaken of the George street church orchestra rendered a choice programme.

The evening's proceedings were opened with the singing of a hymn. The chairman was Mr. D. W. Dumble, K.C.

CHAIRMAN'S ADDRESS.

Mr. Dumble in his opening remarks said that he never felt so embarrassed at making an address. It was a peculiarly pleasing gathering. Representatives from all Protestant churches were present, and all men who professed the Lord Jesus Christ. They had not gathered to discuss matters pertaining to earthly things alone. They had come, he hoped, with glad hearts and thankfulness. But continuing, he asked the question, "Can we receive all these blessings without feeling that there is an obligation upon us to bring others to Jesus Christ? We have not shouldered the responsibilities left to us. We have not considered out duty to God. There are greater things to be done, and it is for us to realise our duty and the object of the laymen's movement is to consummate the work which Christ left us to do."

WHAT CHURCH PEOPLE CONTRIBUTE.

Mr. T. Wilson, secretary of the committee, through the kindness of the city ministers, was able to present some statistics as to the amount of money the Protestant people of Peterborough contribute to churches. The figures given below are for all the churches combined;—

Amount collected for general purposes	$47,082.72
Amount collected for Foreign and Home Missions	11,840.29
Total	$58,923.01

Church membership—4,287.

Average collection per member for general purposes—$10.99.

Average collection for missions—$2.76.

NOT MAKE HYDRO A PARTY TO THE BEARDMORE SUIT

Acting in His Temporary Capacity of Attorney-General of Ontario, Premier Hands Down Decision Which Will Also Apply in Case of Smith v. City of London.

Toronto, Dec. 8.—Sir James Whitney, Acting Attorney-General, has refused to grant a fiat making the Hydro-Electric Power Commission a party with the city in the suit brought by Mr. W. D. Beardmore. The decision, which was made public last evening, also applies to the case of Smith v. London. However, in the judgment there is a clause by which the applications may be renewed after the opening of the Legislature. The full text of the judgment is as follows:

"These applications were fully argued before me by counsel representing the different interests on the 1st of December. I am expected, apparently on the mere statement of a plaintiff that the members of the Hydro-Electric Power Commission were guilty of fraud and deception, as set out in the statements of claim, to assume the truth of the statement, and, therefore, grant a fiat. Under this doctrine it would be simply necessary for a plaintiff to interject into his pleading any allegation calculated, if true, to justify the issue of a fiat, and a fiat would follow as a matter of course. As I cannot agree with this, and as under such circumstances fiats have been many times refused, I do not see my way clear to grant these applications.

"Apart from the question of fraud, the plaintiffs' contention in each case rests upon the view that the Municipal Councils had not the power under the statute to finally enter into contracts with the Hydro-Electric Power Commission without submitting the terms of them to the ratepayers. I have personal knowledge that this was not the intention of the Legislature, and I cannot divest myself of this knowledge. It may be that at its next session, which cannot now be long delayed, the Legislature may make a declaration on the subject.

"In refusing the applications now I reserve the leave to the applicants to renew them after the opening of the session."

At the meeting held in Windsor after the recent visit of Hon. Adam Beck, it was decided to invite all the cities and towns between St. Thomas and Windsor to a power conferene on Friday next at 1.30 p.m. The representatives have been asked to submit the amount of power their municipalities will be likely to require.

The conference will deliberate with a view to the submission of electric-power bylaws in January. The Hydro-Electric Commission have until February to close the additional contracts arranged for at the cheap rates under the original McGuigan contract. Prompt action by the municipalities in the west will enable these rates to be taken advantage of.

PERJURY CHARGED

Capitalist Arrested at Toronto—Defendant in Mining Action.

Toronto, Dec. 9.—Justice Riddell yesterday afternoon ordered the arrest of E. Kenyon Stow, defendant in a mining action involving $51,300 damages in the non-jury Assizes.

At the close of the hearing Justice Riddell in giving judgment to the plaintiff declared that Stow had sworn falsely when he said that he had not promised to give 10 per cent. of the stock of a mining company to J. Carling Kelly and ordered his arrest for perjury.

Stow was taken into custody by Detective Kennedy upon a warrant which the detective swore to, the charge being:

"That E. Kenyon Stow as part of his evidence under oath in open court made an assertion that he did not agree to give one T. Carling Kelly ten per cent. of the stock of a company to be formed to take over the Otisse Mining Co., such assertion being known to said Stow to be false and being intended by him to mislead the court."

Bail has been fixed at $2,000, Stow having offered $1,000 cash. Bail was accepted by S. L. Owens, local manager of the Bank of Ottawa.

Justice Riddell allowed Mr. O'Meara to amend his claim from $51,300 to $100,000.

The four election protests in New Brunswick will be dropped.

TWO DEATHS MAY RESULT

A Michigan Central Express Strikes Waggon Near Dunnville.

Dunnville, Dec. 9.—A double fatality occurred yesterday morning at a level crossing on the Diltz road, about six miles from here, when a fast express on the Michigan Central struck a wagon in which Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Miller and their three-months-old infant were driving into town.

Mrs. Miller and the child were killed instantly, and Mr. Miller was seriously injured.

The crossing at which the accident ocurred is particularly dangerous owing to trees obscuring the view, and several fatal accidents have happened there before.

The bodies of the two victims, together with Mr. Miller, were brought to Dunnville to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Burton S. Depotty, parents of Mrs. Miller.

Mr. Miller is reported last evening to be likely to recover.

THE PRESIDENTIAL MESSAGE ISSUED BY ROOSEVELT

TEDDY GIVES THE LIE DIRECT

He Engages in a Verbal Battle With an Accuser.

New York, Dec. 9.—President Roosevelt is involved in another controversy in which the "shorter and uglier word" is being freely bandied about.

It is an echo of the recent campaign. Roosevelt has written one William Dudley Foulke denying reports that were published that Panama Canal property was bought from an American syndicate, with, of course, graft hinted at.

Roosevelt refers to Delavan Smith, editor of The Indianapolis News as "a conspicuous offender against the laws of honesty and truthfulness," and to William M. Laffen, editor of The New York Sun, by referring to that paper as practicing "habitually and continually and as a matter of business practice every form of mendacity known to man, from the suppression of the truth and the suggestion of the false to the lie direct."

To which Mr. Laffen replies that the President has an overwhelming advantage over any respectable antagonist in his (Mr. Roosevelt's) complete freedom from any sense of personal obligation in respect to the truth.

MUST SUBMIT THE BY-LAW

Chief Justice Meredith Issues Mandamus in Brampton Case.

Toronto, Dec. 9.—Chief Justice Meredith yesterday issued a mandamus to compel the town council of Brampton to submit a local option bylaw, saying:

"I think it would be the purest formality to hold that this is not the petition signed with the heading up on it. I have more difficulty as to the other point as to whether the prerequisite literal application has been shown."

His lordship quoted from an American authority to the effect that in public matters, as there might be no one whose duty it was to make the application, the literal demand was not necessary.

"That sounds to me like very good sense," remarked the chief justice, "and it ought to be the law of the country."

His lordship also remarked that the loose, careless manner in which the temperance lists often fail to comply with the plain, simple direction of the law, imposed a burden on the public.

Contains Last Statement of Policy.

Reiterates His Stand Regarding Control of Corporations---Condemns Injunction Law.

Washington, Dec. 9.—Interest in both Houses of Congress centered yesterday in the President's message, the reading of which began in the Senate at 12.15, just a quarter of an hour after the Senate had convened, and in the House a few minutes later. The galleries of both Houses were well filled. The chief points in the message are:

Favoring a revision of the currency system to remove defects.

Placing of railways, telegraph and telephone companies under interstate commerce commision and removed from the domain of the anti-trust law. As regards rates the power of the commission should be summary.

There should be regulation by the National Government of the great interstate corporations, including a simple method of account keeping, publicity, supervision of the issue of securities, abolition of rebates and of special privileges. There should be short-time franchises for all corporations engaged in public business, including the corporations which get power from water rights. There should be national as well as state guardianship of mines and forests. Labor legislation should be enacted into law.

Postal savings banks will make it easy for the poorest to keep their savings in absolute safety. The regulation of the national highways must be such that they shall serve all people with equal justice.

There must be prohibition of child labor, diminution of woman labor, shortening of hours of all mechanical labor. Stock watering should be prohibited, and stock-gambling, so far as is possible, discouraged. There should be a progressive inheritance tax on large fortunes. Industrial education should be encouraged. As far as possible we should lighten the burden of taxation on the small man.

There should no longer be any faltering with the question of taking care of the wage-workers who, under our present industrial system, become killed, crippled or worn out as part of the regular incidents of a given business.

Recommends increased salaries for the judges and simplification of the administration of justice, which "operates with peculiar severity against persons of small means and favors the very criminals it is most desirable to punish.

The bill demanded by labor leaders before the House committee on judiciary last year, in regard to injunctions, is referred to as legalizing blacklisting and boycotting in every form and representing a class of policy which, if carried out, would mean "the enthronement of class privilege in its crudest and most brutal form."

The Hawaiian Islands should be made impregnable.

American citizenship for Porto Ricans is recommended.

REFORM COUNCIL

Is Now on Permanent Basis—Discussion of "Saw-offs" at Meeting.

Toronto, Dec. 9.—The Moral and social Reform Council of Canada was organized on a permanent basis at St. George's Hall yesterday, Rev. Dr. Carman was chairman. These officers were elected: Hon. president, Archbishop Sweatman; president, Rev. Dr. Carman; vice-president, Jas. Simpson; secretary, Rev. Dr. Shearer; treasurer, Henry Moyle; additional members of executive, Rev. Dr. Chown, Canon Tucker, Sir Thomas Taylor, Prof. Kevistead, Dr. J. C. Copp, J. G. O'Donoghue and W. C. Good.

Rev. Dr. Shearer, secretary, reported that provincial councils had been organized in Prince Edward Island, New Brunswick, Ontario, Manitoba and Saskatchewan. The Alberta Temperance and Moral Reform League asked to be affiliated with the council. This was agreed to pending a report of a special committee to be made at a future meeting of the Canadian Council.

James Simpson, delegate from the Trades and Labor section, asked what could the council do to prevent election saw-offs.

Allan Studholme, M.P.P.-elect, Hamilton, said Hon. A. B. Aylesworth, Minister of Justice, and Sam Barker, Hamilton, in Toronto on Saturday, agreed to a blanket saw-off to cover all the protests filed in connection with the Dominion elections.

Hon. Geo. E. Foster said the council would have to get down much deeper than saw-offs to bring about an era of political purity. They would have to reach the foundations of political corruption. Every bribe-taker should be disfranchised, and guilty candidate disqualified. Prosecutions should not rest with the public, but upon a public prosecutor. The patronage system would have to be entirely eliminated. The only hope for such reforms rested on the church and the press to conduct a vigorous campaign of education. This education was as much needed by the electors who were church members as by those who were not.

The question was referred to a sub-committee.

The Daily Review

WEDNESDAY, DEC. 9, 1908.

FROM DAN TO BEERSHEBA

A copy of the daily Standard of Regina, Sask., of date December 3, 1908, has been forwarded to us for we presume, a good Sunday afternoon's reading. It is the same old tale, the same old sickening record of (alleged) corruption from one end of Canada to the other. Is there no place between the wide-extending seas where Public Opinion demands honest representatives and a fairly healthy condition of the public mind? No place on earth is so corrupt as Canada at the present moment. The United States has long since been outstripped by us in this regard. We can preach to perfection but it is all profession. There is no general practice of political morality. Yet we profess to make ready for evangelizing the rest of the world. Somewhere in the Bible it speaks of a mote and a beam. Let us read and digest that lesson. The article we refer to consists largely of an affidavit. One Wright is alleged to have been bought to stand aside for the Hon. W. R. Motherwell, a member of the Liberal government of Saskatchewan.

Affidavit.

"IN THE MATTER OF THE NOMINATION of the Hon. W. R. Motherwell, at the Liberal Convention held at the Town of Humboldt, in the Province of Saskatchewan, on Wednesday, the 9th day of November, 1908:

I, Albert Wisewell, of the Town of Humboldt, in the Province of Saskatchewan, night operator of the Canadian Northern Railway, make oath and say as follows:

1. On or about the 9th day of November 1908, I was approached by F. C. Wright, of the Town of Humboldt, in the Province of Saskatchewan, in the telegraph office of the Canadian Northern Railway, to manufacture a telegram reporting that his wife was sick with pneumonia at the City of Woodstock, in the Province of Ontario, and calling the said F. C. Wright to Woodstock at once. After explaining to me fully the situation as regards his position after accepting the candidacy for the constituency of Humboldt in the bye-election to be held in this constituency on the 7th day of December, 1908, I agreed to deliver the said telegram as above stated to the said F. C. Wright the following morning and to place a copy of the said telegram on the files to use in the records of the telegraph office. This said telegram was delivered to the said F. C. Wright by the messenger boy on Tuesday morning the 12th day of November, 1908. The said message never having been received over the wire from the city of Woodstock, and the said message being written in the said office in the town of Humboldt by myself at the instance of F. C. Wright, a true copy of which said telegram is now produced herewith and marked as Exhibit "A" to this, my affidavit.

2. I was informed, while in conversation with the said F. C. Wright at the office of the Canadian Northern Railway Company on the evening of November 9, 1908, that Mr. Wright and myself would go to the room of Mr. H. C. Pierce in the Windsor hotel, in the town of Humboldt, in the Province of Saskatchewan, and that then and there the said H. C. Pierce of the village of Wadena, in the Province of Saskatchewan, member of the legislature for the constituency of Wadena, would explain to me the exact situation in regard to the proposed deal to be made with the said F. C. Wright, in order that he should be induced to withdraw from the field and contest in this constituency in favor of Hon. W. R. Motherwell.

* * * * *

H. C. Pierce gave me his sacred word that, if I would manufacture the telegram reporting that Mrs. F. C. Wright was ill with pneumonia in Woodstock, that only Alex. K. Thom, F. C. Wright, John J. Bowman and the said H. C. Pierce and myself would ever know that the said telegram was manufactured by me or that I had any connection whatever with the matter.

I stated that I did not see how it was possible this matter could be kept secret as I knew the inside workings of the telegraph business, and if anyone or anybody proposed to investigate, they would find it out. But I was informed by the said H. C. Pierce that it would not get out, and that it could be controlled.

* * * * *

After that I consented to manufacture the telegram.

* * * * *

I did go to the office of the said F. C. Wright the following morning and was then and there asked by the said F. C. Wright if I had copied this telegram and I said yes, and told him it was very serious news for him. At the time that this conversation took place Miss May West, the stenographer of F. C. Wright, was present. The said F. C. Wright left for Winnipeg at 4.20 on the afternoon of November 12.

* * * * *

On the evening of November 13, I went to my office in the Canadian Northern Railway station and on taking the message off the files I discovered a message sent to Dr. C. L. Clapp, of Woodstock, and it came to my mind that the game was up unless something was done quickly.

* * * * *

Dr. Neeley and the said H. C. Pierce came into the office some two hours afterwards, and he said Dr. Neeley dictated a message to the said Dr. C. L. Clapp of Woodstock, wiring him not to answer any message from here, and that they would explain later.

* * * * *

"If these things have got out the way they have, who was it told them," he said. "If they have got out the way you say they have. It must have been F. C. Wright himself that told the man Sinclair Elliott, as Fred was pretty well boozed up the day he left town." I said that I did not believe it, and I said, "You and Dr. Neeley left the office last night and went directly to Ouseley & Elliott's office and you rounded up Wm. Stiles and got him into the office, and asked him what he meant by being a traitor to his party, and he was instructed to keep his mouth shut." I then said, "Are you sure that you and Dr. Neeley did not discuss this matter in Ouseley's office. And, if you did not, how did Wm. Stiles know about it." H. C. Pierce seemed to be pretty well scared.

The next day almost all the machine I could see, had no use for me, as I met them on several different times and they did not recognize me.

* * * * *

In conversation with Mr. Pierce some time before this, he stated to me that he would like to see F. C. Wright win the constituency, but he knew that he had no chance as the patronage of the Liberal party was against him and the seat had been promised to Motherwell and they were bound to give it to him, and that they had selected him, the said Pierce, being a good friend of the said F. C. Wright, to fix the matter up with the said F. C. Wright in order that he would retire from the field in favor of Motherwell "and I, being a new member in the legislature and knowing that F. C. Wright had no chance of winning the convention, that I could make myself strong in the government."

EDITORIAL NOTES

The Kaiser wins. His instant obedience to the commands of his people have disposed them to re-assert the dignity of their crown. The Germans as a people take no interest in politics, national or international, hence they knew nothing of what the Kaiser was doing. When they woke up to find that he was a friend of Great Britain they became furious. Probably they have found out their mistake.

George Bernard Shaw furnished a biographical sketch of himself for an English journal some years ago, and it is said to be still correct except as to his bachelorhood. It ran thus: "I am a bachelor, an Irishman, a vegetarian, an atheist, a teetotaler, a fanatic, a humorist, a fluent liar, a Social Democrat, a lecturer and debater, a lover of music, a fierce opponent of the present status of women and an insister on the seriousness in art."

"Pray for the departed. Do not cease to pray for your loved ones because they have passed into the unseen world. Ah! that wonderful Paradise land—that Church of God in the unseen; with its vast numbers; with its enthusiastic love; with all its grand leaders who have been trained on earth. We and they together form the great continuous Church of God. We are all one long procession; they at the head, in the unseen.—Rev. Dr. Paterson-Smyth, Montreal.

Our winter used to call up visions of cross-country tramps on snowshoes by moonlight with glowing cheeks, great log fires and steaming coffee. It is all gone. The picturesqueness and comfort of those delightful times have given way to a sort of ready-made system of doing everything that is disheartening. Yet there is a disposition to don the blanket and climb the moonlit hilltop this time, however, on skis. It does not matter, perhaps, so long as we rejoice in fresh air and the simple life. People seemed to know more of literature and art in those days, but they had not yet learned to chew gum.

The revenue of the Dominion for eight months of the current financial year to the end of November amounted to $55,115,227, the expenditure on ordinary account $45,276,957, and the capital expenditure to $23,156,294. This represented a decline of $11,547,200 in the revenue from the corresponding months of last year, an increase of $3,332,501 in the ordinary expenditure and an increase of $5,501,907 in the capital expenditure. The decline in the receipts was due in the main to the reduction of the import trade and consequent reduction of customs duties. The only department whose revenue exceeds that of last year is the post office. On the other hand the very large outlay on capital account arises from the expenditures which the country is now making in the construction of the new Transcontinental railway. The expenditure on the Transcontinental alone for the eight months has totalled $19,508,821. In the month of November there was an increase in the public debt of $3,263,144.

OF INTEREST

The process of cutting metals by a stream of oxygen, patented by the German Oxhydric Company, has been employed with success in numerous establishments for several years. The operation is performed by means of a blowpipe with two nozzles, of which the first delivers an ignited jet of mixed oxygen and hydrogen and the second a stream of pure oxygen. The pressure is regulated by a guage attached to the oxygen tank. The oxhydrogen flame and the stream of oxygen strike the same part of the metal, which after being heated by the flame is rapidly cut or rather burned, through by the oxygen. The temperature being raised to 1300 or 1400 deg. F. by the combustion of the metal. The cut is as smooth as a sheared cut, and requires little or no finishing. The chemical composition and physical properties of the material are not affected beyond a distance of 1-100 inch from the cut. The precision of the cut varies from 1-25 inch in plates less than two inches thick to 1-8 inch in the thickest objects, and the width of the cut varies from 1-3 to 1-5 of the thickness. Armor plates can be cut in one-twentieth of the time required for mechanical cutting, and the sharply localized heating probably causes less strain than punching and shearing develop. If oxygen costs two cents and hydrogen two-thirds of a cent per cubic foot, the cost of cutting an iron plate 4-5 inch thick is about 7 1-4 cents per running foot—about half the cost of mechanical cutting.

Special machines are constructed for cutting various objects. The pipe cutting machine is made in a number of sizes for pipes up to 4 feet in diameter. The nozzles are attached to a frame which is easily adjusted to the proper position on the pipe, and are guided by a small wheel that runs around the pipe. Another machine is designed for cutting flanges and lateral openings in pipes for branch connections. Then there is a machine which cuts oval, round and square manholes in large pipes and boilers. In the plate cutting machine used in very thick plates the nozzles are moved in a straight line by a long screw and a hand wheel. Finally there is a "universal" machine which can be arranged to make curved and polygonal cuts effected by the other machines. A special form of this universal machine is exceedingly useful in taking apart machinery and steel buildings. It operates by cutting off the heads of the rivets, which are then easily driven out.

The range of usefulness of the oxhydric process is very extensive. The process is regularly employed in many rolling mills, boiler shops, and machine shops and it is used in steel foundries for the removal of runners and sinkheads on castings. It is also employed largely in cutting plates for the hulls and armor of vessels, in demolishing iron vessels and buildings, and in cutting up scrap.

The advantages of the process are well illustrated by the following examples taken from actual practice. In the dust catcher of a blast furnace, made of 1-2 inch plates, seven openings for branch pipes, each 3 feet in diameter, and four holes over 2 feet in diameter, were cut by two men in 6 hours at a total cost, for labor, gas, etc., of $18.50. It would have taken two men at least two days to cut one of the larger holes with hammer and chisel.

A brace plate for a locomotive base was cut out of a steel plate 3-5 inch thick in one hour. The aggregate length of cutting was 22 feet.

A sinkhead 8 inches thick and 16 inches long was removed from a steel casting in 4 minutes with 40 cents worth of gas. A sinkhead 1 1-2 inches thick and 10 inches long was cut from the flange of a valve case in three minutes. Three runners about two inches thick and with an aggregate length of 30 inches were cut neatly from the flanges of another valve case in 11 minutes at a cost of 57 cents. The removal of runners and sinkheads with planing and shaping machines is a very difficult, tedious, and expensive operation; and after it is completed, it is necessary to send the castings back from the machine shop to the foundry to be annealed. The oxhydric process is applied in the foundry to castings, fast from the mold, which are annealed before they go to the machine shop for finishing.

The dome of a blast furnace was removed by cutting it into four parts with the oxhydric apparatus. The actual cutting was done in 70 minutes, and the furnace, with its new dome, resumed operations two days sooner than would have been possible with the methods usually employed. An old cruiser, containing 14-inch armor and guns 8 feet in external diameter, was reduced to scrap ready for the furnace in 2 1-2 months. The old methods would have required eighteen months.

In cutting up scrap precision is not required, and consequently very rapid progress can be made. Four tons of scrap can be cut up in a day, by apparatus controlled by one man. With the oxhydric process the work can be done at any place, thus saving transportation charges, and far more cheaply than by the old methods. The process has already been adopted, for cutting scrap, by nearly three hundred railroad machine shops, ship yards and other establishments.

The oxhydrogen nozzle of the oxhydric apparatus is cooled by water jacket, other heat absorbed so effectually that flame striking back is immediately cooled below the point of ignition and consequently extinguished, so that all danger of explosion is eliminated. The cooling device also serves the purpose of mixing the gases intimately. — The Scientific American.

MAKES ASTONISHING CURES

Mi-o-na Tablets Cure Dyspepsia by Promptly Removing the Cause, or Money Back.

There is just one way to cure dyspepsia and stomach disorders, trivial or serious and that is to tone up or put energy into the stomach walls, so that they will be able to properly mix or churn the food.

Mi-o-na tablets quickly arouse the stomach from its inaction and in a short time it is able to do its work properly.

Harry Dodd, of Bridge St. Hastings, Ont., says; "For seven years I had suffered and spent much money doctoring but all to no avail. I could eat but very little, as the food would ferment and sour, making gas, which caused serious heart oppression. I was in constant misery, sour gas would belch from my stomach. I was languid and weak and had no ambition. I did not feel like going anywhere or seeing anyone. There was a constant dull pain in the pit of the stomach. I was unable to sleep, was nervous, restless and would awake more tired than on going to bed. I tried Mi-o-na and soon found relief, and in less than six weeks Mi-o-na has completely cured me.

Wm. Modill, the Peterborough druggist, sells Mi-o-na tablets at 50 cents a large box, under a rigid guarantee to do all that is claimed for them or money back.

Their postage on parcels to Canada and United States ports is a cent an ounce, and on printed matter a cent for two ounces. Does Electrocution Kill?

Albany, Dec. 8.—Speaking of the report from Trenton, N.J., that efforts are to be made by county and prison physicians to revive the victim of the next electrocution at the state prison there for the purpose of proving or disproving the theory that has been expounded, that electrocution only stuns the victims, who are later killed by the surgeon's knife during the autopsy, Superintendent Hollins of the state prison gave the opinion that when the contacts are made properly the man is dead before the surgeon's knife touches him.

No Need For Y.M.C.A.

Guelph, Dec. 8.—There is no need for a Y.M.C.A. in a city the size of Guelph, said Rev. C. H. Buckland of St. James' Church, when speaking on the subject, "If all the Sunday schools and churches did their duty."

He went on to say that he believed every school house ought to be fitted with a gymnasium, churches and Sunday school halls should remain open all week, and the Carnegie public library reading room should remain open on Sunday afternoons for the benefit of the young men.

Leaky Boat; Loses Life.

Chatham, Dec. 8.—Emil Huyer was drowned in the Sydenham river yesterday morning. He was employed by the Wallaceburg sugar factory.

Huyer, who is a Belgian, and three others tried to cross the river in a boat. It sprung a leak and sank. Two of the men swam ashore. Another was brought out by an Indian. But Huyer was drowned.

The men had been warned not to use the boat.

Theatres Will Open Sunday.

Montreal, Dec. 8.—The Sparrow and Jacobs' Amusement Co. has decided to open the Academy of Music, the Francais and the Theatre Royal on Sundays, as a protest against the small moving picture shows in the French-Canadian portion of the city being open. They say they are paying more taxes and should have at least the same privileges.
